The Germans have always claimed that in the last war their armies were not beaten in the field, but were forced to give up the struggle when the internal economy of their country collapsed under the strangulation of the British maritime blockade. So the Nazi Government has been at great pains to take every possible precaution against a similar collapse during the present war and professes to have built for Germany an economic structure which is foolproof and can easily resist the pressure now being exercised by the same sort of blockade. But certain anxieties remain to disquiet their minds, and on the eve of the new offensive in the Balkans some of the directing spirits of Germany's economic machine have been engaged in a process of public stocktaking, probably designed with the dual objective of reassuring the German people themselves and of convincing the outside world that Germany's financial and economic strength is adequate to sustain a prolonged conflict.

Huge Debt Increase

One of Germany's best financial experts is Herr Fritz Reinhardt, who holds the post of Assistant Minister of Finance, and last month he disclosed in a public statement that the national debt of the Reich, which at the outbreak of the war had stood at 37,400,000,000 marks, had risen by the end of 1940 to 79,000,000,000 marks. This meant that in the first sixteen months of the war the German Government had borrowed 42,000,000,000 marks, which is an average of 2,600,000,000 marks per month, but he admitted that in the last quarter of 1940 the borrowings had been stepped up to 3,000,000,000 marks per month. However, he claimed that the present size of the national debt could not be considered "particularly high," when it was appraised in relation to the national income and the state of the national economy. About 4,000,000,000 marks per annum are required to take care of both interest and amortization on the debt, but this sum only represents about 13 per cent of the nation's ordinary revenues, which for the current fiscal year are estimated at 30,000,000,000 marks. So, arguing that this ratio compares favorably with the much higher percentage of national revenue which was absorbed in carrying the national debts of Britain and France even before the war, Herr Reinhardt complacently declared: "The Reich's financial power and status will not be affected by the war's duration."

The Reich's Gold Reserves

The financial advisers of Hitler see no need for gold as a necessary cover for currency, which in their view should be based solely upon the working capacity of the nation, and as a result gold has played a very small part in their operations for financing the war. According to the weekly statements of the Reichsbank, Germany's gold reserve have since the beginning of the war remained stable at about 77,000,000 marks, and there has been neither authoritative confirmation or denial of the story circulated before the war that, apart from the official reserves of the Reichsbank, Germany has an emergency gold stock of several hundred million marks. Anyhow, whatever was the extent of the Reich's gold reserves at the opening of the war, they conferred no serious economic advantage upon it, inasmuch as the supplies needed by Germany from the geographically accessible countries were obtainable through the agency of the barter system, and the selling countries wanted in payment for their exports, not gold, but coal, steel, chemicals and machinery which the Reich could supply.

Trade Successand Troubles

Collaborating with Herr Reinhardt in the role of chief economic adviser of the Reichsbank if Dr. Rudolf Eicke, who was trained under the great Dr. Schacht, and he recently favored his directors with an exhaustive view of the Reich's economic situation. He made the most of Germany's success in maintaining her volume of foreign trade at the prewar level by substituting for her lost overseas trade increased Continental trade, but he admitted that this compensatory adjustment had only been recently achieved. Its accomplishment has only been possible because all the countries of the European Continent, with a few exceptions, must, whether they like it or not, trade for the duration of the war with Germany. On the surface, the enlargement of the trade exchanges of these countries, as paraded by Dr. Eicke, looks very impressive, but owing to the sharp rise in prices the volume of this intercontinental trade looks much more favorable when measured by values than if it were measured by volume, and no small part of Germany's imports since June, 1940, were in reality forced requisitions, a type of trade which cannot continue indefinitely owing to the general economic disclocation. Then Germany is known to be experiencing difficulty in making delivery of goods, e.g., coal to Sweden, which she has undertaken to supply in payment for imports.

Dr. Eicke may have been able to prove statistically that Germany had already recovered from the initial disabilities imposed upon her by the war and to make out a favorable case for her capacity to stand the economic strain of the blockade; but what he did carefully refrain from discussing was the enormous difficulties created for her by the deprivation through the blockade of many vital necessities unproduceable in Europe. Among these can be cited American mineral oils, lubricants and mining machinery, African oils, woods and cocoa, Chinese and India tea, Brazilian coffee, Australian wool and Malaysian tin and rubber.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Mar. 8 — (CP). — Overshadowed by brisk cash wheat operations, trading in the wheat futures pit on Winnipeg Grain Exchange on Friday was confined to light purchases by mills and interests which usually represent United States houses. Final futures quotations were ¼ cent higher.

In the cash wheat market shippers and exporters were credited with buying approximately 3,000,000 bushels of Nos. 2 and 3 Northern for movement from the Lakehead at the opening of navigation on the Great Lakes. Price spread on these grades improved a little on the transactions, believed to represent covering of previous sales overseas or anticipated new business.

Oats, barley, and rye recorded few changes as shippers bought a little barley, outside interests picked up oats and exporters supported rye. Flax prices dropped a cent in speculative trade.

British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden had failed to obtain a definite promise from the Greeks to fight on during his recent visit in Athens, and declared that Turkey was friendly with Germany despite her ties with Britain.

Yugoslavia, these sources claimed, may join the Axis soon, but if not the tide of German influence in this part of the world will bring her into line eventually.

The official Turkish radio, however, broadcast a declaration that "all signs show that Yugoslavia is preparing to defend herself," and added that many Yugoslavs "apparently believe the fact that Germany thus far has asked only economic aid is merely a bait leading to future and more serious demands."

Hits Pole, Dies

WELLAND, Ont., March 8.—(CP) Ryerson McKenny, 25, of Crowland Township, was fatally injured early this morning when his car left the highway, crashed into a pole and rolled over. The mishap occurred three miles north of here. McKenney was en route home from his work at a St. Catharines' plant.

The victim was picked up and rushed to hospital by Mayor T. H. Lewis of this city. McKenny died shortly after.

Comfort In Dark Days Is Offered By Apostle John

By REV. E. R. JAMES.

Whither I go ye know, and the way ye know.—S.. John 14: 4.

Simple words—a child can read them. Yet like St. John's simple statements they contain profound truths which the wisest in every generation can meditate on.

The Lord is standing in the midst of His eleven Apostles. They have been with Him nearly three years yet they cannot grasp His meaning. He speaks of His Father's House, but their minds are "grounded" on the visible Temple in Jerusalem which is to them a type of the heavenly. So this clear statement is hidden from their eyes. They wist not what to say.

Thomas saith unto Him. Without St. John's Gospel Thomas would be but a name, "one of the twelve." St. John tells us of his courage: "Let us go that we may die with Him." He is known to most of us as the man who refused to accept the Lord's resurrection till he was visibly satisfied. To him we owe the shortest of the creeds: "My Lord and my God." He is a plain, level-headed man, and asks: "Lord, we know not whither Thou goest: And how can we know the way?" This gives the Lord the opening to make one of His most famous claims: "I am the way, the truth and the life; no man cometh unto the Father but by Me."

Familiarity has dulled our minds. His Apostles were Jews. They knew the way of God. Prophet after prophet had declared that the way to God is the way of holiness and righteousness. But no prophet ever dared to say: "I am the way." For many months these men had seen Him walking in the way of obedience to God's will. "I am come to do the will of Him that sent Me" is His constant statement. It was above all the way of self sacrifice and service for others.

The Lord claims that He Himself is the way to God, that He has bridged the gulf between God and man. He came down from heaven and took our nature upon Him and living the life of faith and obedience has fulfilled all righteousness. Of Him truly the Father could say: "This is My beloved Son, in Whom I am well pleased, hear ye Him." He is the way, the living way to God through His perfect Humanity. None other has bridge the gulf. None other has bridged that gulf.

I am the Truth. At dawn next morning Pontius Pilate would ask the Prisoner the vital question: "What is the truth?" Can you give the answer? The importance of such a question is seen by the fact that the word is peculiar to St. John, and used by him twenty-five times. The whole Gospel is built on the statement that "This Jesus is indeed the Christ, the Son of the living God and that believing ye might have life through His Name." He is truly the Son of God in a wonderful sense. He is the fulfilment of the prophecy that some day there would appear on the earth the perfect likeness of God. The men who followed Him those three years saw that life and knew that there was no fault in Him. So clearly and calmly the Prophet of Nazareth says to His eleven Apostles: "I am the truth," the truth that God loves you and has sent Me to redeem you and all mankind who accept Me as the Truth. You have seen men who accept Him as the Truth and their acts testify that their yea is yea and their nay, nay. They are witnessing that He is the Truth.

I am the Life. "Life" also is a word peculiar to St. John, and is found nearly 40 times in the Gospel. The Gospel opens with the claim, "In Him was life"; and the Master's own claim, "As the Father hath life in Himself even so gave He to the Son to have life in Himself." The Lord took upon Himself our human nature through the Virgin Mother by the operation of the Holy Spirit and brought into this world a new life and a fuller life. "I am come that they might have life and have it abundantly." Life means energy, growth and development. He is come into the world to create a new humanity of which He is the Head. All who believe in Him will receive that life and reveal something of His truth in their lives. They are the sons and daughters of God. A modern scholar sums up this marvellous statement: "As we live the life, we know the truth, and advance on the way; as we follow the way, we learn the truth and are filled with the life."

To those of us in the days of darkness and trouble the Lord Jesus says, "Be of good courage, I have overcome the world."

COMFORT YE, COMFORT YE MY PEOPLE, SAITH THE LORD.

The Golden Text

"Blessed are ye when men shall reproach you, and persecute you, and say all manner of evil against you falsely, for My sake." — Matt. 5:11.

Christ's Rejection Compared To the Wicked Husbandmen

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for March 9 is Luke 20:9-21-38, the Golden Text being Matt. 5:11. "Blessed are ye when men shall reproach you, and persecute you, and say all manner of evil against you falsely, for My sake.")

The lesson today begins with the telling of the parable of the wicked husbandmen and the vineyard. A certain man, said Jesus, planted a vineyard and let it out to husbandmen, who presumably were to have a share in the crops for working it. The man then went into another country and was gone for a long time.

When the returned he sent his servant to receive his share of the fruit, but the husbandmen beat the man and threw him out of the vineyard. The owner sent another servant, who was also mistreated, and a third who was wounded and cast out. The man sent his son, thinking these wicked husbandmen would respect him and give him the fruit. The men, however, killed the young man, thinking that, as he was his father's heir, if he was out of the way they would inherit the vineyard.

"What therefore will the lord of the vineyard do unto them?" Jesus asked and answered that he would undoubtedly destroy the husbandmen and take the vineyard and give it to others to work. The chief priests and scribes grew angry when they heard this parable, as they felt it was directed against them, especially as Jesus further said that it was written that the stone that the builders rejected had become the head of the corner, and that if someone fell upon that stone he would be broken, but if the stone fell on him, it would "grind him to powder."

Chief Priests Send Spies

Jesus was the stone that would crush these unbelievers who were always careful to observe the letter of the law, but who could not see—or would not admit—that Jesus was the Messiah for whom they had been looking, and were determined to destroy Him. After this these men sent spies to listen to Jesus and report to them so that if He said anything that could possibly be construed as treasonable to the state, they might have an excuse to arrest Him. They thought themselves very clever when they asked Jesus about the payment of what the Jews thought was an just tax which they resented bitterly.

"It is lawful for us to give tribute to Caesar or no"? they asked. They thought if He said it was lawful, the people who hung on His words would be angry; and if He said it was not lawful, they could accuse Him before the Roman tribunal. But these spies were no match for Our Lord. "Shew me a penny Whose image and superscription hath it"? He asked. "Caesar's," they answered. Then, said Jesus, "Render therefore unto Caesar the things which be Caesar's, and unto God the things which be God's."

His enemies were rendered speechless, but hey tried once more to trap Him. Certain of the Sadducees, who did not believe in resurrection asked Him a ridiculous question about a family of seven brothers. The first one married and had no children and he died. The law said that in such a case the next older brother should marry the woman and have children for his brother. One by one the brothers married the same woman and died, and last of all the woman died, still leaving no children. In the resurrection, therefore, whose wife would the woman be?

Jesus' answer was that it is only in this world that there is marriage and giving in marriage. At the resurrection all are "equal unto the angels." Certain of the scribes were impressed with this answer and said, "Master, Thou hast well said." And St. Luke says: After that they durst not ask Him any questions at all."

The Widow's Mite

In the temple in Jesus' time were 13 chests to receive offerings for the work of the temple. One day Jesus watched those coming and dropping in their offerings. Many rich men came and evidently dropped in their money with a proud air for all to see. But a woman came, with two "mite," the smallest copper or bronze coin in use, and dropped them into the chest. It was probably all she had and represented a great sacrifice on her part.

"Of a truth I say unto you, that this poor widow hath cast in more than they all," Jesus said. It was not the amount of the offering that counted in His eyes, but the way in which it was offered. 'She of her penury hath cast in all the living that she had," He said.

The Lord then warned His disciples of the terrible things that were to come, of the destruction of the temple and levelling of their holy city, of their persecution and martyrdom, and of wars, pestilences and great upheavals of nature, but told them not to be afraid. Many should come claiming to be the Christ, but they were not to be deceived by such imposters.

In the daytime He taught in the temple, but at night He abode in the Mount of Olives. "And all the people came early in the morning to Him in the temple, for to hear Him."

Nickel Shortage

WASHINGTON, Mar. 8—(AP).—Saying that there is a shortage of nickel, President Roosevelt declared yesterday that he knew of no steps being considered to relieve the shortage for civilian uses.

He said at a press conference that there was not at present enough of the metal for army, navy, and civilian uses, but gave no indication of what might be done.

NOTICE TO MINISTERS

Church advertisements for this page should be in the Examiner Office not later than Friday noon.

Indecent Literature

The letter in Wednesday's Examiner on indecent literature is likely to awaken interest in the question of reading and books. It is a pity that the writer of this letter did not give his name, this would have enabled the minister to confer with him, and find out some things about this kind of literature. Where is it being sold? What are the authorities doing about it? Some years ago a Toronto newspaper, which has since been suppressed, published a series of filthy stories which went on for several weeks. People bought the paper in hundreds on the streets of one Ontario city. At last some people in Toronto called the attention of the police to the articles and the editor was tried and sent to prison.

The writer of this note has searched some of the bookstalls in Peterborough, bought several papers and magazines, but they were all quite harmless. Where is this literature being sold? Perhaps some one would inform us.

A feature of many books in modern times is not that they are indecent but that they presuppose a background of life in which there is no God, no religion, no church. The characters in the books drink and swear but they never pray. They spend Sundays as days of recreation and folly. Some of them are fairly good people, some quite bad, but most of them are pagan in the sense that God has no place in their lives. The subject of the address in St. Andrew's church on Sunday night will be "decent and indecent literature."

Churchill "High Constable"

LONDON, Mar. 8 — (CP Cable). —Prime Minister Churchill was termed "The High Constable of the Tower of England" in a warm tribute on Friday by Malcolm MacDonald, High Commissioner designate to Canada.

Adapting a Churchillian phrase, he told a Canada Club luncheon in a witty speech that "never in the field of human conflict was so much owed by so many to one man."

Mr. MacDonald said North America is making a vital contribution to victory. The United States, as the arsenal of democracy, was partnered by Canada's vigorous effort where factories worked beyond the range of enemy bombers.

"It is not only materials we are getting from the Dominion," declared the High Commissioner designate. "Canada's young manhood is stepping into the fray."

Victory assuredly will rest with the Empire's Armies—"those pioneers of a brighter future"—and not with the Axis powers, "those bragging mimics of an old order"—tyranny.

He confessed he was leaving Britain with mixed feelings. "It would be a poor representative of Britain anywhere who had not got a passionate belief in th's great year of 1941 when no place in the wide world matters so greatly as this precious island."

The chairman, Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner, said "We know Mr. MacDonald in Canada and we like h'm." He asserted the new High Commissioner's spiritual home will be "somewhere on the Lake of the Woods, where there is a sort of Transatlantic Lossiemouth."

Christ Rejected — By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Luke 20:9-21:38.

Men sent as spies on our Lord came to Him, from the chief priests and scribes who sought to lay hands on Him. "Is it lawful for us to give tribute unto Caesar?" they asked.

Jesus asked to be shown a penny, and, holding it in his hand, asked, "Whose image and superscription hath it?" "Caesar's," they answered. "Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's."

Jesus saw rich men casting their gifts into the treasury and also a poor widow who put in two mites. "This poor widow hath cast in more than they all," He told His followers.

In the daytime Jesus taught in the temple, but at night He went out and abode in the Mount of Olives. The people came out early in the morning to hear Him. (GOLDEN TEXT—Matt. 5:11)

Mr. Howe Under Fire

The Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Munitions and Supplies, has been under fire in the House of Commons and in a portion of the press throughout Canada of late, in the so-called airplane bottle-neck controversy; but two of Canada's leading newspapers, the Ottawa Journal and the Windsor Star, have come to bat in his defence. They admit that he is a fine administrator, an engineer and a business man of ability but that he lacks something as a parliamentarian. The Journal surmises that his parliamentary duties irk him, while the Star suggests that he is sometimes inept in answering critics in Parliament.

We believe we heard in the last Federal election that business men should be elected to parliament; in fact how many times have we preached that "what this country needs is more real honest-to-goodness business men in parliament." The people cry for a business government. But when some smooth-tongued politician fires a trick question at a business man in the House of Commons, the business man is often at a loss for a reply. The smooth phrases of a demogogue often win more votes than the proven ability of the man of affairs. This not only is the case in our House of Commons, but it is found in our Legislatures, our Councils and our Boards.

After looking through the hundreds of pages of contracts entered into with Canadian firms for war supplies we can readily come to the conclusion that perhaps Mr. Howe has made some mistakes; in fact he would be a superman if he didn't make mistakes. But we just wonder what the smooth-tongued politician would have done if he had had the awarding of those thousands of contracts. From what we can see and hear this engineer-business man turned parliamentarian in the service of his country is making a good job of a hard task. There has been a general scaling down in contract prices since the first were let, especially in the case of armaments, until today the cost of manufacturing many of these is actually below what it is being done for in England, according to Wallace Campbell of the War Supplies Board. Thus we trust Mr. Howe will not take these political thrusts too much to heart for we believe that he is doing the best that any man in Canada could in accomplishing miracles in the way of war production.

Duce's Navy Nazified

Signs indicate that Germany in the past few weeks has been forced to take over more and more of Italy's war effort and the question now arises as to whether Hitler can ameliorate the Duce's present naval dilemma in the Mediterranean.

There is already the belief, among leading naval authorities, that Germany was virtually taking over the command of Italy's submarine fleet and in many cases furnishing trained crews for these underwater craft.

Can Germany do the same thing with Italy's surface fleet, which has constantly been avoiding any form of contact with the British Mediterranean fleet? There is little doubt, according to Captain Frederick L. Oliver of the U.S. navy, but Germany has waited patiently for the day when she could take over complete control of Italian naval operations.

To what use Germany could put these warships remains to be seen. But the German naval record of the past has not been so much superior to that of the Italians, to cause the British much concern. History has yet to record an instance where the German navy has stood to its guns and fought.

Competent man-of-warsmen cannot be improvised overnight, so it does not seem possible that Germany can provide full crews for Italian ships.

The British on the other hand have sunk or severely damaged every Italian man-of-war that could be reached by their guns or torpedoes. In very few cases would the Italians stand up and fight. So the question still remains, what can Nazi leadership accomplish with a navy that has no traditions and in addition will accept German domination grudgingly?

69 Men Serving

The village of Norwood with a population of a little over 700 has 69 men in the Canadian Active Service Force, or practically one in every ten of its inhabitants is serving his country in the army, navy or the air force. Not a bad record indeed. While perhaps all those 69 men do not actually live within the limits of the village they are near enough to be considered from Norwood. Other villages in this county and district also have proud records. Lakefield is up close to the 100 mark; Bancroft from all reports possibly stands at the top of the list and Hastings is well up there also.

But with Norwood the names and units have all been nicely tabulated hence it is much easier to draw comparisons. As was the case in the last war the Infantry with 35 leads in the number of men in its various units. There are 17 in the Midland Regiment, 7 in the Highlanders, 6 with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment and one each in the Saskatoon Light Infantry and the Elgin Regiment. Where last war the Artillery was second now the Air Force has taken its place and here there are 18 men serving, the Artillery and Anti-Tank Battery is next with seven, the Navy has 3, the Signal Corps 3, the Army Service Corps 2, the Tank Corps 2 and the Ordnance Corps 2.

Rise Of a Better World

As the war enters the second half of its second year it is heard on all sides, especially in Great Britain, that grimly quiet conscientious determination of millions of men and women to see to it that out of all the suffering and sacrifice there shall emerge a better world.

Back in Europe after a four-month absence in America Mallory Browne of the Christian Science Monitor says that it is this main fact that is repeatedly brought home to him with all the pounding impact of fresh impressions.

"It is not spectacular news like the recent British victory in Northeast Africa. It is not dramatic news like the Anglo-German air duel. It is not sensational news like the recurring sign of an imminent Nazi attempt to invade England. But it is big news because it is the inside news of this stage of the war."

Mr. Browne finds that one senses rather than sees it. It is found in hundreds of little ways as Britons go about their everyday labors deeply resolute under apparent unconcern in the midst of their prolonged ordeal by bomb and fire. It was found in the Britisher who told of the Germans bombing two hospitals, "they probably didn't know what they were doing or they wouldn't have done it." It was found in the words of the great scientist, Dr. Alexis Carrel, who declared his conviction, "science and invention has reached a point today where it can give mankind everything—everything except the one thing it needs. That one thing is love."

These are of course only a few little straws in the wind. But they are significantly indicative of the underlying social, and in the broadest and deepest sense, revolutionary character of this war.

British politicians and party leaders are fully awake to this fact, for proof of it is to be found in the many measures that have brought greater equality of sacrifice into effect in Britain than has ever existed during any war in any country heretofore.

Much still remains to be done in this direction. Much muddling, inefficiency and complacency still remains to be eliminated. But the real remarkable progress that has been made in such things as the practically complete abolition of war profiteering is one of the most promising aspects of the whole war picture in Britain. "We have gotten ourselves into this mess, or our leaders have gotten us into it and now we have got to finish the job. And we will." That is the British spirit that exists, but underlying this all is the same determination that the rise of a better world is demanded for war's toll.

The Lesson Of Lofoten

That raid the other day by British and Norwegian naval forces on the Lofoten Islands was one of the most tonic things that has happened in weeks. There was a Nelson touch to the completeness of the surprise and to the audacity of the raiders who effected their objectives with a cool assurance that must have been galling to the Nazis.

And the most encouraging feature about the whole thing was that it gave 300 brave Norwegians a chance to slip away from their German bondage and enlist with the Norwegian forces who are fighting with the British. The eagerness with which those gallant men accepted the opportunity was a plain warning to Hitler that his new order has no real chance to succeed in Norway and other conquered countries and that a day of reckoning is surely coming.

The peoples of the Nazi-dominated countries may have to seem to submit to German mastery but their hatred of the invaders is deep-seated and the first opportunity that is given of striking a blow against Hitler and all that he stands for will be eagerly embraced by Poles, Dutch, Belgians, Norwegians, Czechs and other peoples now held down by the power of German arms.

Three hundred Norwegians, in the face of their knowledge that punishment would surely be meted out to those they had to leave behind have given the Nazis their answer. They prefer to fight wherever there is a chance to strike a shrewd blow against Germany to remaining slaves under the Gestapo. That 300 will swell into thousands and hundreds of thousands as friends of democracy see their opportunity to fight effectively against the system that would make serfs of them.

The lesson of Lofoten is not in the military damage that was done but in the plain warning it gives the Nazis that they cannot hope to keep brave people for ever under oppression.

Federation Not Coercive

As a simple method of financing their organization, the members of the Federation of Agriculture are proposing to ask the Provincial Government for legislation permitting the levy of a tax of one cent an acre or one-fifth of a mill on farm assessment to provide the funds they need. To avoid the objectionable aspect of compulsion, it is suggested that any farmer who might be opposed to supporting the interests of his own industry, as they have already been substantially promoted by the Federation, would be exempted from the tax by notifying the clerk of his municipality that he was unwilling to pay it.

That provision seems to answer satisfactorily the criticism which has already been made by a Toronto paper which also conceives the possibility of farmers going into politics again, and raising campaign funds by this stroke of legislation. Of course, that is within the range of possibility, but at all the Federation meetings the farmers who have given it leadership in its inceptive stage have emphatically declared that this agricultural organization has no political ambitions.

Their message and appeal to the farmers of this province is that their persistent and stubborn disunion has left them helpless, while such strongly unionized bodies as the Trades and Labor Congress and the Canadian Manufacturers' Association hav grabbed all the financial plums by influence and pressure applied through their respective offices at Ottawa and elsewhere..

Helpless and close to bankruptcy, that is the plain statement of the affairs of the farmers who are putting their energy and their hopes into the Federation of Agriculture.

Look over the names of the officers and directors of the Ontario Federation who were elected a few days ago. They are not embittered agitators. Most of them are conspicuously successful farmers. Obviously if these men like Alex. McKinney of Brampton and Melville M. Robinson of Burlington, to mention two of the Board, are willing to subscribe to and advocate the plan of securing Federation funds by taxation, they fully understand what they are proposing for themselves and for others of their industry. They must be convinced that their movement has everything to gain from a plan of financing that is safeguarded against the fault of extraction or exaction charged by critics who are a long way from the problems against which the disunited farmers are struggling today.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Senator Nye calls Britain the ace aggressor of all time. Hitler couldn't do much better than that.

Ontario weather bureau official says we still have a long way to go before winter is done. Isn't it the truth, brother.

Trading with Bulgaria and Hungary has been proscribed by Ottawa. The order is not likely to put any Canadian firms out of business.

The greatest influx of tourists in years is predicted for this summer. This district can stand up under a lot of that kind of news.

Hon. C. D. Howe avows that he will make no more forecasts. There must be times when the weather bureau officials feel like that, too.

A new sea serpent is reported from British Columbia. Is the Ogopogo going to allow another monster to muscle in on its territory?

Former King Carol and Mme. Lupescu have escaped from Spain and if the stories of how they got away are true, the ex-monarch and his companion are likely to face a speeding charge.

Seventy-five magicians are to meet at Toronto and organize a branch of the International Brotherhood of Magicians. We have an idea there is a trick in this somewhere.

The First Lord of the Admiralty says the British navy is stronger now than at any time since the war started. Hitler and Mussolini will be delighted to learn that.

CAP and BELLS

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

SOMETIMES we are extremely unjust in our moral judgments; we have too narrow an idea of what constitutes sin. We condemn the man who drinks to excess, but we rarely condemn the man who eats to excess although one vice is about as productive of unhappiness as the other. We have a low opinion of the man who loses money betting on horse-races but we regard (some of us used to, that is) with awed respect the man who spends his days betting on whether a mining stock will go up or down. And although we may scorn the delights of the roulette table many of us are inveterate auction-sale gamblers.

C & B

There is a fascination about an auction that few can resist. Be it at Christie's dignified rooms in London or on a farm in the back concessions of a Canadian county the announcement that goods are to be sold at auction will always gather a crowd. In every breast there lives the desire to get something for less than its value; most men and women secretly consider themselves shrewd traders, and they regard an auction as a place where they will be able to show their superiority by over-reaching their neighbors. They gather for a variety of reasons: there are, of course, a few people who go to an auction in order to buy a specific article, but I do not regard these as true, died-in-the-wool auction-goers; there are those who go for curiosity, because they know the person or family whose goods are to be sold, and they want to see, sometimes for very unkind reasons, "what they will bring when they are sold up"; but the true auction-goer attends for the same reason that some people flock to the gaming tables—because he cannot stay away.

C & B

These last—the inveterate auction-goers—do not, as a usual thing, want anything that is to be sold. But that does not stop them from bidding. If they see anything going at a bargain they are quite likely to bid on it for that reason alone. When something is, as they often put it, 'going' for a song' they cannot help singing out themselves and often they get their bargain. They are the people who bid on those items described in auctioneers' catalogues as "Sundries" or "Mixed Lots." It does not matter what rubbish is to be sold, these pathologically acquisitive people will buy it if it is cheap.

C & B

I might as well confess that I am an inveterate auction-goer myself. I speak thus harshly of the vice because I know all about it. I am told that there is a good living to be made touring the country lecturing as a reformed drunkard; I have thought more than once of touring as a reformed auction-goer, but I cannot reform. I have been at all kinds of auctions; picture auctions, book auctions, antique auctions, rug auctions—I know them all. But for the connoisseur of auctions I think that there is nothing to compare with a rural Canadian auction for surprise, pathos, humor and general entertainment.

C & B

To begin with, rural auctioneers are in a class by themselves. The learned gentlemen who auction the pictures and books at Sotheby's, for instance, are hampered by the fact that they know to the last shilling the market value of what they are selling, and their professional standing is to a great extent dependent on their regard for the truth. Neither of these circumstances hampers the rural auctioneer. He is often an outrageous liar, but he is also likely to be an excellent psychologist and a wit. He knows his audience. I remember one who never failed, when selling one of those jug and basin sets which were popular in pre-plumbing days, to hold up the chamber pot and to strike it with his gavel; it would give out a fine, clear note, and he would remark on the superior quality of the china. This gave the men a pleasant feeling of devilishness and made the ladies blush and say that the auctioneer was "awful," a word which, in the circumstances, implied complete approval. I think that man could have sold anything. I once saw him sell an entirely useless clock to an Indian for $3.75, explaining that it would keep either daylight-saving or standard time with equal ease. And he once remarked, with perfect truth, of a hideously ornate parlor-lamp that it would not only give a fine light but would also heat any room it was in! He had an undoubted flair for selling people things which they did not really want, and if he had chosen to sell bonds rather than second-hand harness and feather beds he would probably have been a rich man when he died.

C & B

Perhaps the most determined auction-goer I have ever known was a lady who made a speciality of buying 'mixed lots.' She liked the surprise that went with them. On one occasion she went to a sale of the effects of a professor whose hobby was Egyptology, and the results of that debauch made her drawing-room a horror. She had bought several baskets of Egyptian junk, and her plate-rail was full of miniature mummies, gods and charms. It was hard to move in that room without sweeping half a dozen of them off onto the floor. Hers was a pitiful case of acquisitiveness gone mad and when I go to an auction I always keep her memory before me as a horrible example of what may happen to me if my craving for bargains is not kept in check.

Letter To The Editor

ANOTHER UNEMPLOYED

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—I would like a space in "Your Letters to the Editor," column of your paper to express my feelings towards the unemployment situation in Peterborough and no doubt ninety per cent of the unemployed are with me in my views.

There never was a more truthful statement made than the letter "Her facts in Order," in Tuesday, March 4th copy of the Examiner.

I am a married man and no cripple and I have walked the streets of Peterborough for nearly three years and by times have have left Peterborough for Oshawa and Toronto in search of work, but to no avail. Now there is no reason why a married man or girl either has to leave the city they were born in to find employment, I figure the whole blame is in the employment managers in our local factories. Most factories in Peterborough hire a great percentage of farmers' sons, farm owners and foreigners from God knows where. It seems to me if you say you are from Baffin Land or somewhere a few thousand miles away or have a good percentage of farm manure on your legs, you sure have a great chance of getting a job. I have no objections or I am sure no one else has of outsiders working in Peterborough, but why not give our local men the preference. There are lots of smart men in Peterborough who are unemployed and have several dependents. I am 31 years of age, can do a great many different jobs, and have always been considered a good worker. I have had experience in a good many different varieties of work and up to the present time I have never received relief in any form, but still I am very unlucky at getting employment. There were just fifteen men waiting at the De Laval to get work, a week or two ago when I was there.

Then a word or two about the single girls who are walking the streets with the whole thought of work in their minds and just can't find it. Why are all these married women working every day in our factories in Peterborough and in many cases their husbands working in the same factory or the one across the road? Now these married women are doing wrong in my mind, their places are at home. If it continues I guess we men will have to don the skirts and stay at home and let the women bring home the bacon. Every married woman holding down a job is just keeping a poor single girl walking the streets, who perhaps has her father, sister, mother, or someone to help support. Is this fair?

It's about time a good many points in this local unemployment situation were looked into. What I have mentioned are just a few of the facts of which I am aware of.

Thanking the Examiner for its valuable space. I remain,

"ONE OF THE MANY."

Death of Catherine Traill

By Edwin C. Guillet, M.A. in Cobourg Sentinel-Star.

"AN old landmark in the history of this part of Canada has been removed this week, when Mrs. Catharine Parr Traill, the authoress, died on Tuesday in her 89th year, and was buried yesterday at Lakefield. Mrs. Traill was the daughter of an English gentleman named Thomas Strickland, who was a descendant of the Stricklands of Yorkshire, and was born on Jan. 9, 1802, in London, Kent, one of a family of sisters well known in the literary world.

Literary Family

"Elizabeth and Agnes Strickland were jointly the authors of the 'Queens of Scotland,' and separately of other historical biographies. Susanna, afterwards Mrs. Moodie, became well known as a writer both in England and Canada, 'Roughing It in the Bush' coming from her pen. Jane Strickland was the author of 'Rome, Regal and Republic,' and other works of a semi-historical nature.

Emigrate to Canada

"Catharine Parr Strickland met Mr. Thomas Traill, of the Orkneys, in 1831, and was married to him in May, 1832, and after a visit of a few weeks' duration in the Orkneys, Mr. and Mrs. Traill sailed for Canada on July 7 and arrived in Montreal on Aug. 17. Via Cobourg and Peterborough they came to the shores of Lake Katchewanooka, the present site of Lakefield, where Mrs. Traill's brother, Mr. S. Strickland, was already settled, and where Mr. and Mrs. Traill spent the next seven years, 1832-1839.

Author of 'The Backwoods of Canada'

"Mrs. Traill's pen was not idle, and she soon began to evince her interest in the country of her adoption. In 1835 she wrote 'The Backwoods of Canada,' which was published in London by Charles Knight. This contained much information for intending emigrants and had a large circulation. The hardships and discomforts of life in the bush were described with fidelity to the fact and in the spirit of cheerfulnes and hope. It was undoubtedly the means of leading many to make their homes in Canada.

Remove to Ashburnham and Rice Lake

"Between 1839 and 1846 they lived at Ashburnham (just east of Peterborough), at the end of which time they removed to the shores of Rice Lake. In 1857 they were burned out and lost everything—books, manuscripts, all save life. This calamity was followed in June, 1856, by the death of Mr. Traill at the age of sixty-six.

Mrs. Traill Returns to Lakefield

"Soon after this bereavement Mrs. Traill returned to the banks of the Otonabee, near her brother's home near Lakefield. In 1893 Mrs. Traill received from the Government the gift of a tiny islet in the Otonabee River."—Cobourg Sentinel-Star, September 1, 1899.

A Bit of Nonsense

No Good At All

A man burst into the office of a railway official and demanded that the driver of the 12.15 express should be forbidden to blow the whistle on Sunday mornings.

"Why, that's impossible! What leads you to make such an unreasonable request?"

"Well, our vicar preaches until he hears the train whistle — and that confounded express was forty minutes late last Sunday!"

Murdered

The constable called at a villa and rang the bell. Inside the house the piano-playing ceased and a rather scared-looking young woman appeared at the door and asked: "Yes? What do you want?"

"Well, miss," said the constable, "we've just had a telephone call to say that there's some fellow called Mozart being murdered in this house."

DISTRESSING TO CENSORS

It must be distressing to the censors to have a Minister of the Crown, in answer to questions in the House of Commons, reveal the whereabouts of many of the hush-hush munitions works that the newspapers have been forbidden to mention. — Oshawa Times.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

Hearken to me, ye that follow after righteousness, ye that seek the Lord: look unto the rock whence ye are digged....Hearken unto me, my people; and give ear unto me, O my nation; for a law shall proceed from me, and I will make my judgment to rest for a light of the people. My righteousness is near; my salvation is gone forth, and mine arms shall judge the people; the isles shall wait upon me, and on mine arm shall they trust.

Lift up your eyes to the heavens, and look upon the earth beneath: for the heavens shall vanish away like smoke, and the earth shall wax old like a garment, and they that dwell therein shall die in like manner: but my salvation shall be for ever, and my righteousness shall not be abolished.

MILLBROOK

St. Andrew's WA Lay Plans For Busy Month

MILLBROOK, March 8—(ENS)—Mrs. J. Albert Brown was hostess for the March meeting of the Women's Association of St. Andrew's Church, held at her home, Tupper street, on Wednesday, at 3 p.m., with the president, Mrs. P. I. Bentley, in the chair.

The devotional theme was "Faith in the Holy Spirit as the Comforter"; Mrs. Ross Edmunds reading the lesson, and Mrs. Richard Matchett closed the period with prayer, after the talk which emphasized the "three cheers of the Bible: first, the cheer of forgiveness, "Son, be of good cheer, thy sins are forgiven thee"; 2, the cheer of companionship, "It is I, be not afraid"; and 3, the cheer of victory, "Be of good cheer, I have overcome the world."

Miss Josie Sutton called the roll, when fees were paid, and contributions to the mile of coppers received, the communications including a card of thanks for cigarettes sent to E. V. Scott, now on active service in England; and notes expressing gratitude for remembrance during sickness, or bereavement, from Mrs. M. E. Hobbs, Mrs. Stanley Wright, and Mrs. W. A. O'Brian.

Letters were also ready from the T. Eaton Company, regarding donation of five dozen small tea plates, and from the Robert Simpson Company for a donation of 1½ dozen plates of larger size, the gifts being intended for use at the recent congregational supper. Letters of thanks will be sent these firms for their generous donations, and a purchase of further plate made from the funds cleared at the supper in question.

The treasurer, Mrs. J. McKnight, reported $9.40 from the afternoon tea served at her home, following the February meeting; $16, with $9.93 cleared, from the supper at the congregational rally; $8.50 and $9.25 from two pot luck dinners, Mrs. Irwin Hatherly, Mrs. Edworthy and Mrs. J. H. Might having been hostesses for the first at Mrs. Hatherley's home; Mrs. Bentley and Mrs. J. Stinson taking charge of the second at the former's home.

The next pot luck dinner, with Mrs. A. L. Sisco, Mrs. Edmund Ball, Mrs. R. Matchett, and Miss Ledlia Kennedy as hostess will be on Monday, March 10, at Miss Kennedy's home. The crokinole party, planned for March, will be on Friday, March 21, in the church basement, and the afternoon tea and baking sale will be on Saturday, April 26, in the community waiting room.

Mrs. Maud Hetherington brought in the holiday cards, which were given out, Miss Sutton and Mrs. W. E. Ball to be in charge of the distribution and the collection of same; a dime is put in the small attached envelope for each holiday of the year. Mrs. Stinson will have the April meeting at her home, and the meeting was dismissed with the benediction and the National Anthem, after which the hostess served candy and a social hour was enjoyed.

Y.P.U. Meeting

The Christian Endeavor convener, Jean L. Burnham, was responsible for the program at the weekly meeting of the Young People's Union, held on Tuesday at 8 p.m., with the president, Gordon Might, conducting the business period.

The young people plan to hold another pot luck supper on Monday, March 17, with a St. Patrick's Day program to follow. The lesson for the evening was read alternately from Matthew's gospel, and Paul's letter to Timothy, and Phyllis Kidd offered prayer.

For the study, Miss Burnham led in a questionnaire on the Bible, and a one-act play followed with Dorothy Sisco, Jack Kidd, Leitha Edworthy, and Lloyd Bowerman taking part, the material being illustrative of the evening's theme.

The general discussion, and the benediction closed an instructive program, and next week the missionary convener will have charge.

Village Of Havelock Sets Rate At 45 Mills

HAVELOCK, March 8—(ENS)—The council meeting was held on Monday evening, when the tax rate for the village was discussed, and the rate of 45 mills set for the year 1941. This decision was made earlier, owing to the tax collecting plan that has been adopted by the council, that of making taxes payable in four instalments.

Two tenders were received for the wood supply at the town hall, from M. McArthur at $9.00 per cord and A. Spencer $8.00 per cord. The tender of A. Spencer was accepted and 12 cords of body maple were ordered on motion of Pollock and Sanderson.

A letter from Mr. Fair, solicitor for Dr. D. J. Holdcroft, M.O.H., with the cheque of $40.00, which the council issued to Dr. Holdcroft, was presented to the council by Mr. Miller. Moved by Pollock, that a suitable settlement be arranged with Dr. Holdcroft out of court. Not carried.

Moved by Martin and Ketchen, that the request for a marriage register from the Pentecostal Tabernacle be granted. Carried.

Clerk Puffer applied for the Tax Collector's position, which he has held for the past few years, with a salary of $100, owing to the extra amount of work involved in the new tax arrangements. On motion Mr. Puffer secured the position.

On a motion of Sanderson and Pollock a request is being sent to the Department of Highways in regard to 16 elm and maple trees for along the south side of No. 7 Highway.

Mr. George Watson addressed the council regarding the lights on No. 7 Highway, stressing the importance of their erection for the safety of the public. Moved by Pollock that the lights be erected on No. 7 Highway. Not carried.

Diamond Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dorricott, Lindsay avenue, Toronto, are celebrating their diamond wedding anniversary, Friday at their home, when friends and relatives will call. Mr. Dorricott, who was for 50 years an engineer of the CP.R., was born in Wales. There are five children living, Mrs. T. H. Carson, Edwin, William and Walter Dorricott, all of Toronto, and Mrs. Harry Haines of Chicago. There are many grandchildren and great-grandchildren who will be present for the occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Dorricott were former residents of Havelock, where all three children were born. It was here that Mr. Dorricott first started his career as an engineer, starting to work on Friday 13th, his first engine number was 13. During all the years of working for the railway Mr. Dorricott never had an accident.

Orange Lodge Party

The card party and dance held by the Orange Lodge on Wednesday evening was well attended, with ten tables of euchre being played. The ladies' first prize went to Mrs. Brisbin, the second to Mrs. F. Thompson and the consolation to Mrs. William Harris. The men's first prize went to Gordon Tucker, the second to Joseph Johnson, the consolation going to William Copp. After the euchre, dancing was enjoyed.

The proceeds amounted to $24.50 which will be forwarded to the British War Victims' Fund.

Mrs. Wright Hostess To Keene Ladies' Club

KEENE, Mar. 8 — (ENS). — The Ladies' Club met at the home of Mrs. H. Wright for its Wednesday night meeting. The topic, How to Acquire a Literary Taste, was given by Mrs. George Murray. Mrs. Murray touched briefly on the literary style of several great poets, illustrating with short sketches from their works. Miss Margaret Bryce read "Cotter's Saturday Night" by Robert Burns; Miss Lyla Drummond Grey's "Elegy"; Miss Isobel Faux read a poem "Canada" by Charles G. D. Roberts. Contests were played and serving a dainty refreshments brought the evening to a close.

Minister Seeks Legislation To Limit Drive Against Hares

By CENTRAL PRESS CANADIAN

TORONTO, Ont.—Closely following organized drives by a hundred hunters or more on Ontario's giant hares, Hon. Harry C. Nixon, Ontario Minister of Game and Fisheries, announced this week that he would seek legislation to limit driving parties to no more than 15 persons so that this unusual breed will not be totally destroyed and will be preserved for posterity and the excellent sport they provide.

Found In Central Ontario

Found in no other place in the western hemisphere than a 500-mile region in Central Ontario, the huge rabbits, weighing from eight to 20 pounds, are actually European hares. From three to six times the weight of ordinary cottontail rabbits, they attract many American hunters to Ontario which, according to Mr. Nixon, is most important when Canada needs American dollars badly for the purchase of war materials and essentials from the United States. Thus the lowly rabbit is finding a place in Canada's defence plans.

Multiply Rapidly

In 1915 a half dozen of the big hares escaped from a private preserve at Beaumont farm, near Brantford, Ontario. During the next 10 years they multiplied rapidly and spread out in a radius of 200 miles from Beaumont but were not noticed by sportsmen who just thought they were freaks, or especially large jack rabbits. Between 1925 and 1930 biologists of the Ontario game and fisheries department identified them as true European hare and traced their origin to its original source. The big rabbits breed eight times between February and August, bearing small litters of two or three each time. An unusual feature of the breed is that the young are born fully furred with their eyes open and within three or four days are able to be "on their own" and self-sustaining. The adults are not varying, as many northern rabbits are, and their fur does not change to white during the winter months but stays the same fawn-grey throughout the year. They do "hole in" when hunted as most rabbits do but depend on their speed and long strides to outdistance pursuit of man or dog. They are quite frequent and considered excellent sport because of their speed which gives them more than an even chance with hunters who are excellent marksmen and quick on the trigger. The big rabbits are quite plentiful and attract many American sportsmen to Ontario.

Freights Pile Up At Station In Merritton

MERRITON, Ont., March 8.—(CP)—Traffic was blocked on the Canadian National Railways main line for more than four hours this morning as the result of a collision involving two freight trains. No one was injured. Three freight cars were derailed and demolished and several hundred feet of track was ripped apart in the collision which occurred almost in front of the Canadian National Railway station at Merritton, near St. Catharines.

Salvage and wrecking crews and a derrick were rushed here from Hamilton and shortly past eight o'clock one track was restored to use. Several heavily laden and lengthy freight trains which had been halted on opposite sides of the wreck were cleared through.

Workmen believed that repairs would be completed and wreckage cleared away by early afternoon.

A switching engine was pulling a string of cars from the Eastbound tracks across the Westbound to the N.S. and T. railway yard. The last car of the short train, a box car laden with merchandise for a St. Catharines plant, was not clear of the eastbound traffic when a long freight train, pulled by a "6000" type engine, bound for Niagara Falls from Sarnia, plowed into the box car, and hurled the wooden car and two empty Gondola cars across the eastbound tracks.

The impact slowed the freight and it continued along the switch, pushing the cars of the switching freight ahead of it until the big engine was brought to a stop.

The three freight cars were hurled a considerable distance and smashed. The box car was thrown against the car foreman's office beside the eastbound track and the small building was wrecked. The office was unoccupied.

Conductor McCann, Hamilton, and Engineer Jack Shrugg, Niagara Falls, were in charge of the switching train, while conductor Ackerman and Engineer Randall both of Sarnia were operating the Niagara Falls bound freight.

Carol Receiving His Subjects

LISBON, Mar. 8 — (AP).—Henrique Viana, spokesman for the Portuguese Foreign Office, said to-day the government has given former King Carol of Rumania and Mme. Magda Lupescu permission to live in Portugal for some time.

They are living on the first floor of a small chalet in a residential district of Lisbon as guests of the wealthy Portuguese business man, Augusto Lopes Joly.

"The king," friends said, "will be glad to receive and meet all Rumanians who may wish to greet him 'as members of the same family and race,' but he would rather keep pressmen and publicity away while in Portugal."

Charge Red Tape Delays Shipping

CARDIFF, Wales, Mar. 8 (CP).—One of Britain's leading shipowners asserted to-day that governmental red tape is causing "endless delay" in the movement of vessels transporting the nation's food supplies.

Sir Willie Reardon-Smith told the Bristol Channel Shipowners' Association the red tape is due to a lack of co-operation and confidence between shipping men and the Ministry of shipping.

"If only the Prime Minister or some other minister with the necessary drive and authority could spend some time in the departments affected," he continued, "iron out natural jealousies which exist between one department and another and cut away a few wrappings of red tape and get down to essentials, all shipping men would be happier and the nation's war effort would be helped considerably."

Sir Willie said shipping men are greatly concerned with an apparent neglect of shipping in departments supplying and transporting food, "even in the Admiralty."

LONDON, Mar. 7 — (CP). — Lord Stamp, chairman of the London, Midland and Scottish Railway, declared at the company's annual meeting to-day that British railroads were hamstrung by governmental demands which "make nonsense." He said proper thought had not been given to the transportation problem.

Claim Officials Hotel Owners

TORONTO, March 8 — (CP). — William J. Stewart (Cons. Toronto-Parkdale) said during debate on the Throne Speech in the Ontario Legislature yesterday that he had information that hotel licences were owned by Crown and public officials.

"If that is right, it should be cleaned up," he said. "What position is a man in to prosecute others when he is identified with a hotel licence?"

Hon. St. Clair Gordon, chairman of the Ontario Liquor Control Board, asked Mr. Stewart to give the name and authority of those concerned and the matter would be inquired into.

"There is no authority granted to anyone in this province who is not a Canadian citizen," Mr. Gordon said. "As to public officials, I'll appreciate a list, have it checked and tabled in the House."

"My information is from talk on the downtown streets and was given to me by a hotel official, proprietor of a large hotel," said the Toronto member.

Mr. Gordon agreed that if the question was put, the information would be given.

League Leaders Stage Thrilling Fight

Quaker Aces all but clinched first place in the Ladies' Senior City League by managing to nose out their nearest rivals, Westclox, 21-20 in a thrilling battle. Quaker Cubs all but hung up another of their now well-known upsets before bowing out to "Y" Gym, 15-9, in the other half of the weekly double bill at the Y.W.C.A. last night. Aces were the nearest to defeat they have been in some weeks, last night but finally managed to win out, while "Y" Gym. stayed near the top rung by coming from behind to down the Cubs and virtually eliminate them from a playoff chance.

Cubs managed to keep the Gym. team off the score sheet in the first half and led 4-0 at the rest period. The winners flashed an improved offensive, however, in the last half to close up the gap and finally pull away in front. The losers have played the role of "giant killer" several times this season and for half of the game it looked as though they might do it again until "Y" Gym.'s attack got rolling to pile in 15 points in the last half and assure them of victory. The losers battled hard all the way and carried a fair share of the play until they tired in the final minutes and faded out of the picture. Each team made one in three free throws. B. Flynn and R. Sullivan led the winners with H. White and B. Fenner prominent for Cubs. The teams:

Quaker Cubs, 9.—G. Allen 2. H. White 3, B. Fenner 4, D. Smith, M. Youdell. J. Metcalfe.

"Y" Gym., 15.—B. Flynn 4, I. Young 2, S. Zacks. S. Ecobichon, R. Sullivan 3, D. Ackford 4, R. Ellis 2.

Referees — W. Thirnbeck, J. Cooper.

Hard Fough Game

In one of the closest, most thrilling frays of the season, Quaker Aces just managed to nose out Westclox 21-20, in the final and feature part of the double feature. The winners had established a 13-8 edge in the first half, but Westclox rallied strongly in the final period to make the final score a photo finish. Aces gave their usual consistent show of good passing and shooting, but the losers better checking and a last half scoring show of their own made it a thrilling finish. The play was just about as even as the score indicates with the winners carrying the first half edge and Westclox all but equalling it in the second period. Both teams muffed scoring chances that would have shifted the count either way. with Aces shooting a shade more productive than the losers. Westclox could have grabbed the verdict by counting more than the two in eleven free throws they had, while the winners only made one in seven tries. S. Alexander, P. Lawless and D. Weese led the winners, with E. Craig and B. Saunders standing out for Westclox. The teams:

Westclox, 20—J. Crowe, B. Saunders 7, E. Craig 12, H. Tighe 1, M. McFadden, D. Gibbs, F. Bestard, E. Bestard.

Queker Aces, 21.—P. Lawless 3, D. Weese 4, H. Howden, A. Grady 2, J. Fowler, M. Duncan, E. Kerr 2, V. Wood. S. Alexander 10.

Referees—H. Smith, J. Cooper.

North Sydney Fans Join Boycott

GLACE BAY, N.S., March 8, — (CP).—Tempers of the colliery working hockey fans here continued to shower sparks to-day over the Cape Breton Hockey League situation.

There were still some who thought the sparks might start new fires when it was learned the Quebec Amateur Hoskey Association had recommended to the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association a resolution that Glace Bay be barred from Allan Cup play even if they win the Cape Breton series. The reaction of the inflammable miners to this might revive the strike talk which has been hailed here for the last two days as the one weapon capable of dealing with the "discrimination" against the Glace Bay team.

The hockey conflagration which started in Glace Bay spread last night to North Sydney, where fans decided to join in the boycott of Sydney merchants and wohlesalers until the Millionaire club dropped its protest against the use of the agile Bill Fraser in the Miners' nets.

Threat to Strike.

The boycott started here with the endorsement of merchants and the Glace Bay board of trade, and was followed by the colliery workers' threat to strike. Both were means of expressing the fans' anger at Sydney's alleged "poor sportsmanship" in protesting the the use of Fraser, taken from the Northside Victorias for the series when Glace Bay's two goalies faded from the scene—one by disbarrment, and one for unexplained reasons.

Even the decisions to allow the miners to keep the three games they have won in the best-of-seven series for the C.B.H.L. title failed to pacify the fighting fans.

Unable To Get Meal.

Sydney visitors here found that waitresses in restaurants couldn't find time to serve them. Truck drivers from that steel city, hauling goods to Glace Bay merchants, got as far as Reserve Town, and then turned back. They met a group they figured were pickets out to enforce the boycott, and decided discretion was the better part of valor.

But this dizziest drama in maritime hockey history was climaxed when the town council met here yesterday and asked that the Provincial Attorney-General's Department investigate the situation.

Rumor has it that department threw out the request, but are fearful more pressing demands will follow.

TO SHOOT STRAYING CATS

Some Ball Camp Training Notes

AVALON, Calif., Mar. 8 — (CP). —Charley Root, 40-year-old Cub veteran, received good news to-day from Manager Jimmy Wilson. Root is to escape bull pen duty this season and will be used as a starting pitcher occasionally, especially when double-headers pile up.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. — Doc Prothro of the Phillies looks to Rookie Frank Melton to bolster his pitching staff. Ordered to "cut loose," Melton displayed a world of stuff, especially a fast ball that fooled all the Philly sluggers.

SARASOTA, Fla. — Joe Cronin is pleased at the showing of Woody Rich, who faced just six batters in a two-inning stint against the Reds yesterday. Cronin plans to start Jimmy Foxx in all the Red Sox exhibition games but will remove him from the lineup after an inning or so to help his injured right wrist to heal.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. — One for the book: Elden Auker was both the winning and losing pitcher for the Browns yesterday in a six-inning practice game. Auker pitched the first two innings for both sides.

LAKELAND, Fla.— Charley Gehringer may be the "old man" of the Detroit Tigers, but he hasn't lost his skill at the plate. Working out for the first time yesterday, he awed teammates by solving the new fast ball of Paul (Dizzy) Trout with well-placed bunts and line drives.

Notes:

With only two weeks of the regular schedule to go the top teams are getting well mixed.

The Legionaires have now forced they way into tie for top honors with the Separator gang and have pulled their average up to the 50 mark from 47 of two weeks ago.

St. George's hold third position, 2 points behind the leaders, whilst the Wanderers are just one point behind in fourth position.

The two top teams are meeting this week on the L.O.L. grounds and this promises to be a real battle.

At a meeting of the league on Friday, recommendation were brought forward that the first three teams will receive prizes and these to be in War Savings Stamps.

Owing to a poor turnout nothing definite was decided, but each skip will be notified and will take a check on his team.

Also it was recommended that the President's Cup games following the close of the regular schedule. All games to be played on neutral grounds. Fees to be the same as previous years. Any team wishing to enter into the President's Cup games should notify the secretary by next Saturday.

Juveniles Win Round From Port Hope

Reeling off their sixth straight win Peterborough's juveniles hockey team captured the O.J.H.A. group last night when they defeated Port Hope at Lakefield 6 goals to 3 and took the playoff round 12 to 6.

It was a fast and well-played game with Port Hope putting up a gallant fight before they finally went down to defeat. They succeeded in holding the young Petes to a scoreless tie in the first period and after Huard had opened the scoring early in the second session the Ontarios came back with a goal to tie it up. However Garvey and Smith registered in succession for the Petes and they were never headed after that. It was 3 to 2 in their favor at the end of the middle stanza and in the final twenty minutes they outscored their opponents 3 goals to 1. Huard and Garvey were particularly good for the Petes while Ashby starred for the losers.

Lineups and summary:

Port Hope: Goal, Anderson; defence, B. Bailey, R. Bailey; centre, Keller; wings, Ashby, Downey; subs, Smith, Welch, Foote, Dotzho, Watts.

Referee—Joe Blewett.

First Period

No score, no penalties.

Second Period

Petes—Huard (Smith) 1:05
Port Hope—Ashby 5:01
Petes—Garvey (Huard) 8:50
Petes—Smith 13:57
Port Hope—Downey (Masters) 18:25
Penalties—Downey, Lawson.

Third Period

Petes—Gillespie (Hudson) ... 10:00
Petes—Huard (Garvey) 12:40
Port Hope—Ashby 18:00
Petes—Huard 18:50

Gynane Captures Y Swim Event

The Peterborough junior swimming club under the direction of Coach Gord Minty staged another successful handicap swim last evening at the local pool. The event was a one hundred yard free style swim and was won handily by Jack Gynane. Gynane has only been swimming a short time and showed marked improvement during the night's events. Second position was keenly fought for between G. Pinch and Lynn Head, with the former taking the decision.

A club meeting was held following the meet. The meeting was terminated with refreshments supplied by various members. Mr. Alex. Fitzgerald was guest speaker at the luncheon, and also presented the swimming club shield to Jack Thirnbeck, who won it for the month of February.

Complete results of the events are as follows:

1st Heat—1 J. Gynane; 2 G. Pinch.

2nd Heat—1 L. Head; 2 J. Thirnbeck.

Half-mile relay—1 Team of A. Brown, J. Shields, Clapham, Gynane and B. Coones; 2 Team of D. Pinch, R. Seabrooke, J. Thirnbeck, G. Pinch and D. Plunket.

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

With Outboard Marines clashing with Trenton Flyers in the first game of the O.A.B.A. group playoffs and hockey so far as Peterborough is concerned chiefly a matter of history for the year basketball comes into its own. If the Outboards can get by the Flyers who ran second to them in the group schedule games Peterborough fans are in for some brilliant exhibitions of the cage game because the winner of the Flyers-Peterborough series are booked to meet the Toronto winners, the Earl Grey team in the first round of the provincial playdowns. And that means action plus. The Toronto team, just barely nosed out of the championship last season has been built up for this year's competition and is considered a senior outfit in everything but name. They will be tough opposition indeed for the Eastern Ontario winners whichever outfit grabs the honors down this way.

Tonight's game which gets under way in the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium at 8.15 o'clock should be a hummer. The Air Force five captained and sparked by Brian Casey, former University of Western Ontario star, a steady and capable cage performer in his own right, play sound effective basketball. We have an idea that the Outboards who have been running up big scores in their scheduled games will find the Flyers about as tough defensively as anything they have tackled this season. However, the Peterborough crew are counting upon the sharp-shooting of Thorburn, McArthur, Stewart and McPherson to more than offset the steady blocking of the Flyers. Outboards believe in the system of keep tossing them at the basket and you are bound to sink a flock of them. And some of their sniping is done in unorthodox style which makes it tough for the opposition to deal with their attacks. It should be a great battle tonight. It will be prefaced by a game between the junior O.A.B.A. squad and Dominions and an exhibition between the juvenile Y boys and the Y.W.C.A. Cadets.

Hastings' favorite citizen, Dit Clapper, is undoubtedly Mr. Defence for 1941. Every Canadian Press all-star selection so far has Clapper named for a position and he will undoubtedly land more first-choice votes than any player in the N.H.L. The Hastings' professional has played grand hockey all season. His work on the defence has been flawlessly effective, he has come through with scoring plays in close games when his forwards were stymied and he has been the driving force for the Bruins all winter. All things considered he has been the outstanding player of the year. Other places on the all-star team are not yet so definitely decided and it looks like a battle for some of the berths, although Sweeney Schriner seems to have the left wing post about hogtied in the early voting. It will be quite a scrap between Bryan Hextall of the Rangers and Bobby Bauer of Boston for the right wing slot. They are unquestionably the two best right wingers going both ways, in the big show.

The Skiiers' Big Day

Tomorrow is to be the big day for the Peterborough Ski Club when the senior championships will be decided at Bethany. The downhill event will be run off in the morning and the slalom contest will be the feature of the afternoon program. Snow conditions are reported as excellent, a big field of entries is expected and the competition should be about the keenest in the history of the club. In order to get an early start in the downhill event it has been arranged to have the bus leave at 10:30 o'clock Sunday morning.

The winners in the junior events have been officially announced. They were as follows: Boys' jumping—1, R. Currie, 2, Cauley, 3, J. Matthews; Boys' cross country—1, Ferguson, 2, Gentles, 3, Cauley; Boys' combined—1, Currie, 2, Cauley, 3, Ferguson; Boys' downhill—1, Murray, 2, Matthews, 3, Cauley. Boys' slalom—1 Cauley, 2, Matthews, 3, Currie; Boys' open downhill—1, Murray, 2, Matthews, 3, Taylor; Girls' downhill—1, Germain Laderach, 2, Gladys Driver, 3, Jane Gillespie; Girls' slalom—1, Gladys Driver 2, A. Jimmy Lehane's Kadunks after winning two games in the Felt Cup tournament at Lindsay were eliminated in the final game last night by an Oshawa club that included Dafoe, the Whitby star, Fraser, the former Oshawa junior and other well known performers. Thursday night the Kadunks eliminated Omemee Black Hawks and last night they lost the toss and had to play the Smithfield team in the semi-finals of the tourney. They won that battle 6 to 4 and then had to take on the fresh Oshawa team in the finals, going down to defeat by 7 to 4. The Peterborough team only had nine players lining up with Harding in goal, Les Burton, Ron Horton and Stew Williamson on defence and Creighton, Starr, Heal, Joe Rochetta and Doug Mortimer, forwards.

The Juveniles Come Through

Congratulations are in order to Manager Cec. Courneya and his Peterborough juveniles who won their group playoffs last night by defeating Port Hope 6 to 3 at Lakefield, taking the round 12 to 6. The young Petes have reeled off six straight wins in taking their group and have played smart, fast hockey to overcome their opposition. Now they will be matched with Haliburton in the first round of the playdowns. Nothing much is known here about the Haliburton team but those boys from the north generally play pretty fair hockey and they will undoubtedly prove stout contenders in the next round. The dates for the series with Haliburton have not yet been announced. The Peterborough juveniles who have been playing their home games in Lakefield may endeavor to stage their game with Haliburton here.

Smiths Falls' protest against Walt Gerow has been tossed out by the president of the Upper Ottawa Valley Hockey League as it should have been. The losers protested that Gerow had been a member of the Kingston Combines all season and therefore was not eligible to play with Petawawa Camp but in that contention Smiths Falls was wrong. Under the C.A.H.A. ruling a soldier moved by the military authorities to another district is entitled to play for a team in the place to which he has been transferred and that made it perfectly o.k. for Gerow to join the Petawawa team. What we are interested in is to see whether the Kingston Combines intend to try to use Gerow in their future games. The ruling in regard to soldiers certainly would not justify Gerow playing for Kingston after he had been transferred from that city.

112 Are Nominated For Kentucky Derby

LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 8.—(AP)—Our Boots, Porter's Cap, Whirlaway and Dispose top 112 thoroughbreds nominated today for the May 3 Kentucky Derby. The field it without a Bimelech, the E. R. Bradley runner.

Just a short time ago it looked like Whirlaway, voted No. 1 juvenile for 1940 by sports writers in a close one with Our Boots, was being tabbed as the likely winter book favorite but the winds have changed. Today a Louisville book maker was putting him no better than 8-1 to win the Derby.

That same bookmaker quoted odds of 4-1 on Our Boots and Dispose; 6-1 on Porter's Cap; 10-1 on Bold Irishman, King Cole and Attention; 15-1 on Curious Coin, New World and Good Turn, and the others as high as 1,000-1.

Remember When—

(By the Canadian Press.)

Howie Morenz, one of hockey's alltime greats, died in a Montreal hospital four years ago to-night from a heart attack. The 38-year-old Montreal Canadien player was playing his 14th season in the National Hockey League and was staging a great comeback, halted when he suffered a broken leg in a game at Montreal on January 28, 1937.

Tigers' Stock Is No Higher Than Spring '40

LAKELAND, Fla., March 8 (AP) —Del Baker's idea of a daring statement would be to announce emphatically that if his team didn't win on a certain day the other team would— if the game weren't postponed, and if it didn't end in a tie.

There are others, however, who say the Tigers are going to start the 1941 season with much better prospects than last year, when all they did was win the American Baseball League pennant.

For one reason, the prospects would have to be better, figuring that there is nothing lower than the bottom. A year ago the infield looked like the four horsemen, dismounted, even to the boots. There was doubt Charley Gehringer would play at all. Dick Bartell and Pinky Higgins took a census every night to see if they still had legs. Rudy York was trying first base, and left field was trying Hank Greenberg.

What they did is history, and how they did it is a miracle. The men had "that good year," as Baker says, and for some, such as Buck Newsom, it was better than good.

Newsom is down here, working like a beaver. He says he is only ten pounds overweight He's doing a lot of homework trying to figure out how many games he'll win. An accurate report on the Tigers' chances awaits the result, because he never misses his prediction by more than a couple of games.

A quick size-up of the team at this early stage shows the infield, outfield and catching about the same and the pitching probably improved. Charley Gehringer, Baker says, might have another good year.

The outfield is stout at the plate and weak in the field. Greenberg is a scatterarm on long throws, and Barney McCosky has a bloomer-girl wing. If Greenberg is called to the army, Bob Harris, Tom Beaumont, probably would take his place, although Walter Evers looks good.

Birdy Tebbetts and Bill Sullivan are A-1 catchers, so there is nothing to worry about there.

Newsom can be counted upon for twenty or more victories if he can avoid injury. The big boy is as brittle as company china.

Boston Red Sox Rebuilt Of Young Blood

By GAYLE TALBOT
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

SARASOTA, Fla., March 8 (A)— The pressure finally is off the Boston Red Sox, biggest disappointment of a baseball decade. Nobody expects them to win the coming American League race, and with that load off their minds it wouldn't be surprising to see them do better.

Manager Joe Cronin is sunnier than he has been for many springs. Every time he turns to the sports page and sees where another "expert" has given up on the Sox he beams and says "Good!"

Owner Tom Yawkey appears to be happier, too. It cost him a wad to learn he couldn't buy a championship. The Gold Sox, known as "Yawkey's Folley" have about disintegrated, and in their stead is the nucleus of a fine, young club.

Joe Is Getting Old

One of the greatest problems facing Cronin is what to do about himself. Joe was the "goldest" Sock of them all when Yawkey began building his fabulous team.

But now Joe is building a new team. He has 21 pitchers in camp, and if a few of them click and he can give them a fairly tight defence the Sox couldn't help being right in the race—not with their tremendous offensive power. Five regulars hit over 20 homers last season.

At 36, Joe knows he belongs to the old order. The rebuilding program demands that he take himself out of there sooner or later and become a bench manager.

Vigh Is Floored In 30 Seconds 12-Round Bout

NEW YORK, March 8—(AP). — Billy Soose, the boxer from Farrell, Pa., turned slugger for one blow last night and on that punch rode to his second straight victory over Ernie Vigh and into a shot at Ken Overlin's share of the middleweight crown.

A lightning right uppercut, square to the chin, sent Vigh reeling to the mat within 10 seconds after the 12-round fight started. The squarely-built Newburgh boxer got up at six and rallied to take the second and sixth rounds but not until the eleventh did he fully shake off the effects of that one punch.

Just a month ago Vigh had made such a gallant stand against the former Penn State athlete that Promoter Mike Jacobs called for a rematch before naming the one to get a shot at Overlin's New York-recognized title. But there was no argument after last night's entertainment.

Jacob's immediately announced he would match the pair, for a 12-round fight sometime in May. Soose fought under a 30-day suspension for failure to make the agreed weight of 160 pounds, give or take a pound.

Toronto, March 8.

"NEW YORK Americans will be playing at Madison Square Garden next winter and don't let anybody tell you differently," Manager Mervyn Dutton of Americans declared here last night.

"Apparently there are forces interested in bringing about the removal of the Americans from New York, but they aren't going to get away with it."

Asked about a report that Amerks were discussing a proposition to establish a team and franchise at Buffalo, Dutton answered that no such deal is under consideration.

MARLBOROS BLANKED 1 TO 0 AS ST. CATHARINES EVENS UP SERIES

Goal Is Scored Soon After Start Of Play

TORONTO, March 8 — (CP). — St. Catharines Saints came to Toronto last night trailing Marlboros by one game in their O.H.A. Senior A final series. Before a paid attendance of 4,106, the largest to see a senior game at the Gardens this season, it took the Saints exactly 4:41 of the first period to remedy the situation. They left with a 1-0 win under their belts and the series tied up 2-2. The fifth game of the best-of-seven series is slated for St. Catharines on Monday.

Red Reynolds, captain and centre of the St. Kitts team combined with Grant and Mundrick to defeat Goalie Bastien with a hard shot from a difficult angle.

For the first two periods the Saints carried the play in the final session although Marlboros dominated the picture they could not beat Goalie Coupland who played spectacularly behind a stonewall defence.

Changed Their Strategy.

A change in strategy paid dividends for the Garden City couriers. Coach Dan Corrigan explained it this way:

'Instead of trying to get five goals, as we have in the other games, we went out for only one. If we got it, we were prepared to put up a defence that would make it stick. And"—he added quietly—"we got it."

On this basis, indications point to a great masterminding battle over the rest of the route, with Coaches Corrigan and Powers cast in the leading roles.

Marlboros made their most dangerous attacks of the duel in the last three minutes of the game. But Walt Coupland wasn't conceding anything but thrills as he fended all efforts, mostly by diligent diving. He pulled off three sparkling saves at this stage, two from Johnny Inglis and one from Eddie Shamlock during hectic scrambles.

South Africa's first "hotel de luxe" for natives has just been opened.

Toronto Leafs Play Twice Over Weekend

(By the Canadian Press.)

Upon the results of this week-end, second to last in the five and a half month National Hockey League schedule, may well hinge the order of the finish from the two-team fight for the top berth down to the sixth and last playoff berth.

With New York Americans eliminated, other playoff opponents have been decided to all but the last mathematical possibility. In each of the three groups, however, there still remains the question of who gets the odd game at home in the first round of the hunt for the Stanley Cup and world's championship honors.

Closest and natural feature of the three separate duels is the one which also involves the N.H.L. championship, between Boston Bruins and Toronto Maple Leafs. The Leafs, struggling to keep in the hunt without the services of their great centre, Syl Apps, face a major test in two week-end games.

Leaders Have 5 Games Each

Two points behind the Bruins while each has five matches to go, the Leafs play the Americans at Toronto Saturday night and then swing over to New York to meet the Rangers. The first game should be a walkaway but the next may prove a different story — and the Leafs need victories in both to assure themselves of staying well in the running.

The Bruins, rolling toward their third straight N.H.L. title, meet Montreal Canadiens Sunday night at Boston in their only week-end game. A Bruin victory while the Leafs are losing either or both of their games would just about send Boston home free.

The Boston match is the second week-end game for the Canadiens, who meet Detroit in Montreal Saturday night. By beating the Canadiens, the Wings could all but clinch third place, no matter how the fourth-place Rangers make out in their one week-end contest against the Leafs.

Spectator Socks Lindsay Referee

ORILLIA, March 8.—Beaten 4-3 here last night by the local Midgets, but winners on the round by 12-9, Lindsay hockey officials will, nevertheless, protest to the Ontario Minor Hockey Association regarding the treatment accorded their players and officials at the game and immediately after it.

The game was fiercely contested and Referee Jack Connelly of Lindsay was censured by local fans, who invaded the playing surface late in the game to vent their wrath. Don Osborne, rink manager at Lindsay, stated last night the Lindsay players "had to fight their way from the rink."

Osborne also charged that Referee Connelly was struck by a spectator and suffered a black eye. After the game, he said license plates were missing on three cars belonging to the Lindsay delegation. He further charged that water had been poured into the gas tank of one car, thereby causing a long delay on the trip home.

New York Theatre Reviews

By LEON EDEL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

NEW YORK, March 8—(CP).—If the war against Fascism could be won by reasoned argument, choice epigram and eloquent peroration, the Playwrights Company would win it hands down.

Last season the company produced Robert Sherwood's "There Shall Be No Night," which argued in fine, measured rhetoric against Totalitarianism. Early this season they produced Elmer Rice's "Flight to the West," in which he maintained that Fascism must lose out because men are not machines.

Now they have brought to Manhattan S. N. Behrman's "The Talley Method," the most literate work of the three, in which that witty and urbane dramatist indicts spiritual Fascists, the men who believe that might is right, that only the fit must survive and that human emotion must be subordinated to cold rationality.

His Dr. Talley is just such a man; a brilliant surgeon who thinks that the method of the operating room, where all is orderly, efficient, meticulous, precise and timed to the dot, can be applied to the life of the emotions. He applies it to his children; his daughter grows up to be a rebel, a Communist; his son, over-impressed by his famous father, a weakling. Both seek elsewhere the warmth and understanding they can't find at home.

It so happens that Dr. Talley falls in love with one of his patients, Enid Fuller, a poetess. She thinks at first that in the superlatively efficient doctor she has found a pillar of strength. But when she tries to tell him that life is not to be measured by the yardstick of dogma or hatred, that emotion and feeling are not items to be spread out on an operating table, her words are lost on him. It is of the essence of the play that the unimaginative man of science should never quite understand what the poet is trying to tell him.

Mr. Behrman's story is always less important than his characters. Here he lays bare with his delicate and penetrating dramatist's scalpel the mechanical heart of Dr. Talley and let us see it in all its cheerlessness.

Philip Merivale, as Dr. Talley, creates a fine portrait of the cultivated man with Fascism in his soul and iron in his mind. Ina Claire, always the deft comedienne, sometimes is given to an overdose of smug histrionics, but speaks Mr. Behrman's beautiful lines with genuine feeling and warmth.

Like Mr. Rice, Mr. Behrman hopes that the human heart will triumph over the mechanical heart. His play is a distinguished appeal for sweet reasonableness in life.

Kiel Cluttered By Wreck Bars Big Ships

LONDON, March 8—(CP).—The Kiel Canal, shortest route for German naval and shipping movements between the Baltic and North Seas has been closed by British action to all but the smallest vessels, the Air Ministry News Service said Friday.

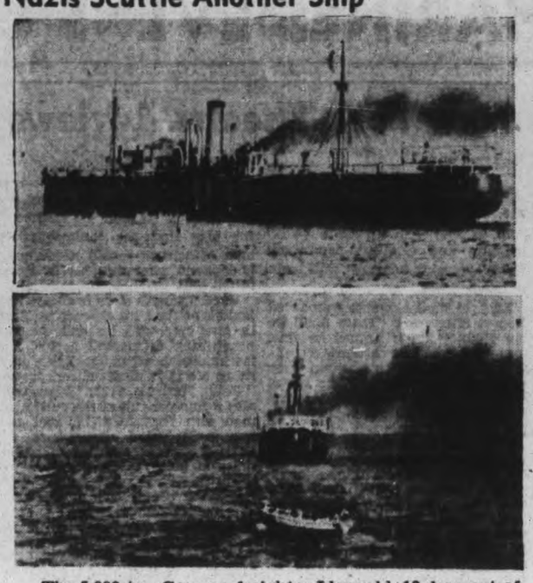
The agency cited this as one result of minelaying by the Royal Air Force and the Fleet Air Arm. More than 100 Axis ships have been lost is less than 100 per cent of the areas covered by the aerial minelayers, it said.

One of these ships was a freighter which sank with a heavy load of ore in the Kiel Canal last December, the news service reported. The wreckage blocked the channel to all but the smallest ships, as disclosed by subsequent aerial reconnaisance, the news service said.

The Kiel Canal, cutting across the northwesternmost tip of Germany, is Germany's shortcut route from the Baltic to the North Sea. Closing of this route would force deep draft ships to use the circuituous route around Denmark, through the Kattergat and Skagerrak.

But the longer passage, presumably, also is heavily mined. The news service said that few ports, channels or estuaries from Norway to the Mediterranean had not been sown.

Nazis Scuttle Another Ship



The 5,000-ton German freighter Idarwald, 10 days out of Tampico, Mexico, is fired. TOP, by her crew when intercepted last December 8 off Cuba by the British cruiser H.M.S. Diomede. Boarding party boats from the cruiser leave the Idarwald, BOTTOM, after the freighter's seacocks are found destroyed. The freighter starts to settle as the boats pull away. The German crew of 45 was taken prisoner. The pictures were released Feb. 21 by the British Admiralty.

German Advance Threatens To Pinch Soviet

(By KIRKE L. SIMPSON.)

WASHINGTON, March 8 (AP)—London and Berlin each brand as a "propaganda" move of the other the Balkan report that Russia has demanded Black Sea bases of Rumania. That leaves out a third significant possibility

The circulation of that rumor might be traceable to Moscow. If it was Russian-inspired, it could be, true or false, a clue to Russian policy. Its timing suggests it was Moscow-aimed at Yugoslavia, which is hovering on the verge of adherence to the Axis Balkan bloc.

London spokesmen suspect a "made-in-Berlin" stamp on the rumor. Berlin read it as "made in London."

There is more reason to assume Russian origin. The pertinent fact is that uneasy Moscow has already thrust one busy finger into the Balkan pie by glowering at Bulgaria for accepting Nazi military overlordship. The "ultimative" rumor appears to be a follow-up. It well might sway Yugoslav action

Russian racial and cultural ties with Balkan Slavs are closer than with the Bulgars, or with the Turks, for that matter.

Marriage of Convenience

The Turko-Russian "good-neighbor" doctrine is a marriage of economic convenience and necessity. It is based on Turkish ownership and control of Rusia's Black Sea outlet to the Mediterranean via the Dardanelles. Now, with powerful Nazi air and army forces surging across Bulgaria and within 100 miles or less of that vital sea artery, the Russians are threatened with being Nazi-pinched there as well as in the west

That is the ground the Turkish press takes in urging Russian action as a matter of self-interest to check the German Balkan thrust. Nor can it be seriously doubted that Moscow, however anxious to avoid being involved in war with Germany, is gravely concerned.

Russian experience in the west is to be recalled. A sort of passive partnership with Germany has netted Moscow much in territory and an extended Baltic Sea frontage; but has not obtained a free outlet from that sea for Russian ocean commerce.

The Germans, astride the outlets to the North Atlantic, could bottle up Russia in the upper Baltic.

Pinched in Far East

Similarly astride the Dardanelles, or dominating the Aegean end of the passage from air and submarine bases in Greek Macedonia, the Nazis could also shut Russia's ocean commerce backdoor. Russian policy-making at this critical moment cannot overlook such a threat

Japan in the Far East, seeking Asiatic domination as her share of the Axis war spoils, holds a veto over Russian Pacific outlets. That leaves Russia only her Murmansk route in the stormy reaches of the North Atlantic. It is an all-year port, but utterly unsuited for fostering great ocean commerce.

That Moscow could look complacently on German seizure of the Dardannelles from Turkey or upon a German advance into Greece is beyond belief. Yet that is just what the Hitler "new order" in Europe must look like now in Russian eyes.

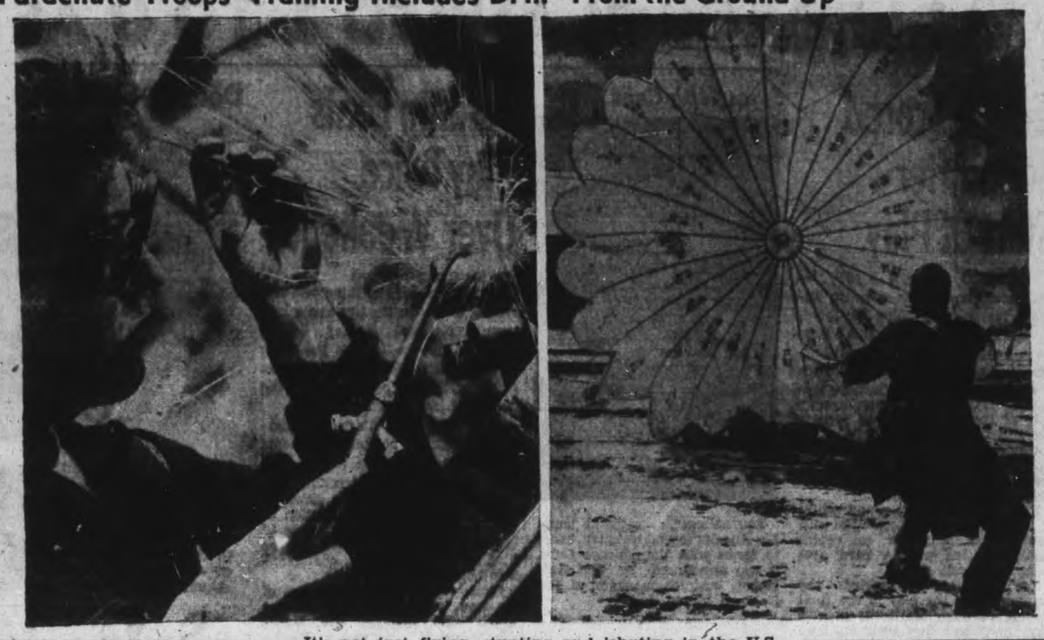
Soviet concern over the Balkan situation was underscored by the after-the-fact expression of resentment at Bulgaria yielding to German military occupation. Indicated Moscow approved of new Turkish-British understandings is another item. The rumored ultimatum to Rumania may be another straw in the wind.

It all adds up increasingly to major war possibilities for Hitler in the Balkans if he strikes at Greece. That Russian moves are disturbing Berlin is obvious.

PUNCTURE-PROOF TIRES

A soft-rubber solid tire with radial cooling channels leading to an air-intake has been invented in Germany for automobiles and is said to be absolutely puncture proof.

Parachute Troops' Training Includes Drill "From the Ground Up"



It's not just flying, stunting and 'chuting in the U.S. Army Air Corps. Before you can fly, you must learn what makes an engine tick, and that experience is gained by taking them apart and putting them together again. At the LEFT, Private Stanley Bengston learns about airplane welding in the ground school at Chanute Field, Rantoul, Ill. At the RIGHT a student is spilling the air from a parachute. Spilling the air saves the jumper from bruises or serious injuries by being dragged across land after hitting terra firma. The landing trick is learned first—even before the art of jumping.

Fleming Bingo Pleasing Event

HASTINGS, Mar. 8.—(ENS)— A most successful Bingo was held in Fleming school on Thursday evening, under the auspices of the Friendship Circle and $10.50 was realized, the proceeds to be used for war work.

Over 75 people attended the social event, the bingo being supervised by Mr. Basil Johnston. Twenty prizes were given and a lucky door prize won by Lillian Johnston. Following the bingo, Mr. Learl Humphries of Hastings donated a carton of soft drinks for which tickets at 5c a card were sold, and as a result $1.55 was made.

Miss Maron Bibby and Mr. Arnold Bates conducted a quiz program and winners were, Mrs. Ernest Stevenson and Mr. Douglas Fleming.

Mr. Learl Humphries sang that old favorite "Climbing Up the Golden Stairs" and A. Bates and James Beamish gave pleasing duets after which the ladies served lunch.

W.A. Packs A Bale

St. George's Women's Auxiliary held a special meeting on Thursday afternoon at the home of the president, Miss D. Plant, for the purpose of packing a bale to be sent to Bishop Sovereign for the white settlers in the diocese of Athabasca.

The bale included new articles valued at $21.15, which consisted of 15 pair mitts, three pair gloves, children's dresses, three warm quilts and quantities of good second hand garments.

Arrangements were made to hold an afternoon tea at Miss Plant's home on April 16.

Mrs. T. McWilliams pieced and quilted the beautiful quilt which is now on display in J. Doherty's window. A great many tickets have been sold and Mrs. McWilliams will donate the proceeds towards the British War Victims' Fund.

Born on Monday in St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough to Mr. and Mrs. M. A. O'Shea, a daughter.

Work was started on a second afghan for Red Cross purposes, also the making of a complete baby's layette. Plans were made to present an Easter pageant in the church on the Sunday evening before Easter. An afternoon tea will be held at the home of Mrs. C. M. Baker on March 22. Mrs. Iden Bonds gave an interesting account of the life of Miss McKinnon, a Japanese missionary.

New 9-Hr. House To Fill Breach

OTTAWA, March 8—(CP).—A 7-room dwelling built in nine hours and costing about $1,500 may be the first link in a country-wide chain of prefabricated houses designed to meet Canada's wartime shortage of living accommodation for industrial workers, officials of the Dominion Housing Administration said today.

Result of studies conducted by Housing Administrator F. W. Nicolls and his colleagues, the model unit was constructed at the lumber plant here.

"We hope this type of house may be used," another official said today. "When they are no longer needed in one centre, they can be taken apart and sent to another."

The model house is a one-storey dwelling and has two bedrooms, dining room, Living room, kitchen, bath room and furnace room, making 576 square feet of living space. Floor, ceiling and roof are fitted in 12 separate sections each, and the walls in 24 parts.

HEALTH PROBLEMS

By DR. L. A. CLARKE
Peterboro M.O.H.

BREAST FEEDING

One of the subjects of concern among those interested in the welfare of babies is the question of breast feeding. This concern is felt in Peterborough quite as much as it is in other centres. Medical men disagree on a great many subjects but on the subject of breast feeding they are unanimous. They believe—first, that no perfect substitute for mothers milk has been found and second, that a great majority of women are capable of nursing their babies. In some cases, natural feeding is not even attempted. The economics of the question do not enter in because in the upper income group the vast majority of babies are artificially fed. In the lower income group the majority are breast fed.

Dr. L. A. Clarke

Cows milk was meant for calves and differs in the proportion of its solid contents and in the chemical composition of its contents from human milk. The latter, being manufactures specifically for the use of the human animal, is easier for him to digest and meets his specific requirements more accurately than the most skillfully prepared artificial feedings.

Encouragement of maternal feeding and its successful accomplishment would be a considerable factor in the reduction of infant deaths. While figures frequently lie, nevertheless when large series of figures gathered together year after year in many cities show a great preponderance of deaths among bottle fed babies as compared to those among breast fed babies, we are forced to the conclusion that the statement of one authority that the mortality of artificially fed children, might possibly be correct. In addition to the lower mortality rate among breast fed infants the occurrence of diseases is also decreased, particularly those diseases which affect the digestive tract.

You all know that Dr. Allan Dafoe places the credit for the survival of the Dionne quintuplets to the fact that he was able to obtain through the co-operation of Toronto officials, human milk supplied daily.

Although the importance of breast feeding your baby has already been emphasized, it becomes a more timely question once your baby is really with you, and dependent on you for its care.

It is said that mothers who nurse their babies develop a greater affection for their children. Whatever be the truth of this opinion, one has only to look at the picture of a mother nursing her child to feel that here exists a more complete realization of motherhood for there is established a more precious relationship between the infant and the parent and a memory for the mother to carry through the years.

We know that breast feeding contributes to achieving the physical and mental development of women. The breast suffers no ill effect from lactating activity. After weaning, the gland decreases in size and regains its normal shape. Suckling has never been shown to predispose

Closeups At The Capital

Doings In Ottawa By The Canadian Press

OTTAWA, March 8.—(CP)—Military tidbits from a wartime capital: Australian and New Zealand airmen in the British Commonwealth Air Training plan used to get Royal Canadian Air Force wings—but now they get their own...The New Zealand wings are identical with the Canadian but have "RNZAF" instead of "RCAF" in the centre... The Aussies' wings are silver with blue trimming instead of gold and they're marked "RAAF"...Early birds from the Antipodes who got R.C.A.F. wings have had them changed.

It takes three Federal ministers to give full information on dentures required by men in the fighting forces...G. R. Boucher (Con. Carleton) asked in the House how many sets had been ordered for the dental corps since war began...Defence Minister Ralston said information would have to come from three ministers—but didn't say which.

When Hitler gets the boot from the Canadian army it's going to be a big one...European armies walk on socks size 10 to 10½; but the Canadian Red Cross says Canadian troops need 'em 11, 11½, 12—and even larger.

Chitter-Chatter

Scores of suggestions from Canadians for a "war effort" stamp issue have reached Postmaster-General Mulock...Correspondents want stamps showing planes, destroyers, troops and the like...But there's nothing stirring in that direction yet although it's under consideration ...Spokesmen say a lot of things have to be taken into consideration and (very important) there's no appropriation in the 1941-42 estimates.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King gest more-or-less-regular letters from Madeleine Carroll, the screen star...She's a prolific letter-writer and reportedly interested in a chunk of property near the P.M.'s home.

Agnes MacPhail, member of parliament until last year for Ontario's Grey Bruce riding, is moving to Ottawa soon.

Social Misfit: Princess Alice's dog ...It's forever getting into wrong rooms at Government House when guests are about and the Princess has to interrupt her conversation to shoo it out again.

Parliamentary Paragraphs

Olof Hanson (Lib. Skeena), born in Sweden, got a nice compliment from a fellow-British Columbian across the chamber. Howard Green (Con. Vancouver South) said the 1931 census showed 614,971 naturalized Canadians and Mr. Hanson commented he was one. "And you're an ornament to this House of Commons," said Mr. Green.

Before Christmas J. F. Pouliot (Lib. Temiscouata) said one session of the House was so quiet it was "like a mortuary chamber"...This week he decided it was sometimes a "pink tearoom—We can't say anything, we have no freedeom of speech"...But the Hansard reporters have to take down a terrific lot of words.

Senator William Duff, the Nova Scotia Liberal, seems to think the Commoners like to talk....arguing against a long debate adjournment he said: "Adjourn for three weeks instead of two and we just give those gentlemen in the other chamber another week to speak before they get some legislation ready for us."

The Senate attracted only eight spectators to the galleries on Tuesday....Everybody took it for granted the Senators would go home for another spell before getting down to business....The House galleries have done better, but the Cabinet ministers, main attraction, have been few and far between....War work keeps most of them busy in their offices.

Odds and Ends.

Wonder why: The Senate's calendar on the Clerk's desk is in English only; the one in the House has days and months in both English and French.

Corridors on the Centre Blocks main floor are something of an art gallery....A score or so of portraits of former Senate Speakers are in one....And the only clean-shaven man in the row is the late Senator W. E. Foster, Speaker from 1936 to 1940.

"The wholesome sea is at her gates,
Her gates both East and West...."

It's taken from a poem by the late J. A. Ritchie, K.C., of Ottawa ....The stanza ends (but not in stone):

"Then is it strange that we should love
This land, our land, the best?"

Uncle Sam Closed His Office

Giulio Pasquicci-Righi, 28, Italian vice-consul in Newark, New Jersey, pictured being interviewed by a U.S. reporter after the United States government had ordered the movements of all Italian diplomatic representatives restricted, and the Italian consulates in Newark and Detroit be closed. The unprecedented action was in retaliation for the recent closing by the Italian government of the American consulates at Naples and Palermo.

Obituary

PERRY E. SIMMONS.

TWEED, Mar. 8 — (ENS).— The death of Perry E. Simmons occurred at his late home, Township of Hungerford, near Actinolite, after a lingering illness on Wednesday. In his 75th year, he was a son of Mr. and Mrs. James Simmons and had spent practically his whole life in this immediate vicinity. On May 26, 1896, he was married in Tweed to Elizabeth Vance. The late Mr. Simmons had been in failing health for the past six or seven years.

He was a member of the United Church at Actinolite, and was a member of L.O.L. No. 392. He received his education at Bogart School, and afterwards took up farming as a vocation. In politics, he was a Conservative.

Remaining besides his widow are the following family: Mrs. George Perkins, Muskegon, Ill.; Murney Simmons, Holloway; Miss Effie Simmons, Muskegon, Ill.; Mrs. John Clifton, Ferndale, Mich.; Mrs. Sidney Skanes, Pembroke, Ont.; Miss Elizabeth Simmons, Detroit, Mich.; and Mrs. Arthur Reavie at home.

The funeral was held on Friday afternoon, from his late residence, with interment in Victoria Cemetery, Tweed. Rev. Mr. Snelgrove was in charge of the services.

No use talking

Mr. Picobac removed a fresh-lit pipe from his mouth, exhaled a blue, fragrant cloud of prime-cured Canadian Burley, and burst into an exclamation of honest pleasure.

"Seems to me I've heard you say that before," remarked Mrs. Picobac, who happened to be the only "boy" present.

"You'll hear me say it again, too," declared Mr. Picobac. "That's what they all say. Everywhere throughout the length and breadth of Canada men are telling themselves... telling each other... telling their wives — that Picobac is the pick of Canada's Burley crop and a mild... cool... sweet smoke."

"Must be something in it," smiled Mrs. Picobac.

"You bet your life there is," replied her lord and master. "All anybody has to do is try it."

"It DOES taste good in a pipe!"

RADIO INTERFERENCE

Residents of Park Hill Road east are complaining about the radio interference in that district and have asked for the inspectors to investigate the trouble.

NAME WAS OMITTED

The name of W. Chris Hughes was inadvertently omitted from the list of directors of the Chamber of Commerce. He is now in his seventh year of service to the Chamber.

R.C.A.F. RECRUITING

The air-conscious youth of Peterborough is reminded that recruiting for the Royal Canadian Air Force will be again conducted in the committee room at the City Hall on Monday and Tuesday, March 10 and 11.

BUYING INSTRUMENTS

Mrs. Ed. Wand has informed Mayor Hamilton that the drums and bugles for the 3rd Field Park Company of the Engineers have been ordered, and the Peterborough boys at Debert will soon have aband of their own. The council made a grant of $150 to the Ladies' Auxiliary to the War Service Council mostly for this purpose.

CASE IS ADJOURNED

Garnet Walker faced a charge in police court this morning of having been drunk in charge of a truck on Murray street Friday night and at his request the case was adjourned for a week without plea. A companion who was with Walker when he was arrested was fined $20 and $4 costs on a charge of having liquor in a place other than a residence.

SPEAKING AT ORONO

James Gifford of Ennismore will be one of the speakers at the Durham county meeting for the organization of a branch of the Federation of Agriculture at Orono Monday night. The Peterborough branch has also been asked to send a speaker into Northumberland Tuesday, and it may be that several of the members may be willing to take on this missionary work. An intensive campaign is under way in Elgin county which is organized down to the last school section. The movement is budding in all directions, like the trees in March.

HE FELL ASLEEP

In the lobbies of two local hotels on Friday night, children were sitting waiting for their parents to come out of the beverage rooms. One boy, a little fellow of about 7, curled up on the big chair and fell fast asleep. He was alone, and a kindly commercial traveller woke him up and had a great time entertaining the youngster. Several beverage room patrons who noticed the child were heard to remark, and the gist of their opinions was that the mother of this child should either get some person in to mind the child at home or else drink her beer in her house and let the child get his sleep.

Old Shell Used By Gus Lech Stored In City

There is a wealth of memories wrapped up in an old racing shell which has been stored for the past forty years in the garage near John Comstock's store.

It is a single scull model in a good state of repair except of course that the ravages of time have dried the wood and opened a few seams.

The boat belonged to the late Gus K. Lech, father of Keith and Cyril Lech, well known local merchants, and with this boat the elder Lech won an imposing array of gold, silver and bronze medals and also many other trophies. One of the medals which Keith Lech still has indicates that his father won first prize in a regatta at Lydi Wild in Rice Lake in the year 1880.

It is difficult to obtained much specific information on the sculling and boating activities of this community sixty years ago, and the only man so far as can be learned who took part and is still alive is Robert Kingan, of the Kingan Hardware.

A Peterborough Regatta Then

This much however was gleaned from Keith Lech about the single scull racing shell. It was used by his father on the Little Lake, Chemonk Lake, and Rice Lake during the latter part of the last century when it was customary to hold regattas at each lake during the summer holiday season. The regattas were held in the bay just east of Burnham's Point in Little Lake and the spectators would throng the shore of the Point and along the north shore of the lake from the foot of Burnham street over to what is now the Mark street wharf.

At that time the southern bay along Crescent street over to Cemetery Point was jammed with logs, and there was a boom guarded channel down the centre of the lake for steamboats and other river traffic. Paddling, sailing, sculling, and tilting were enjoyed and Peterborough boasted some topnotch athletes in these branches of sport. Mr. Lech recalls that the shell was kept in the English boat house which was located just east of the present Brewery Warehouse. This boat house was torn down when the C.P.R. bought a right-of-way from the bridge up to the Quaker Oats and built the siding which is still used to this day.

When the boat house was torn down, the shell was taken over to Comstocks because that family too had always been keenly interested in water sports. Those who swung it high up near the rafters in the storehouse, did not realize perhaps that more than a quarter of a century would roll by without the old shell getting back into the water again.

It appears that there were two Yacht clubs or Aquatic Clubs in those days. One had headquarters at Chemong Lake and their boat house and headquarters was the building now known as Hopwood's cottage.

A Great Athlete

The late G. K. Lech was a well built man and a great athlete. Sculling was his favorite sport and at one time he held a gold medal emblematic of single sculling supremacy on the three neighborhood lakes. He was a member of the fours which competed several times at the Canadian Henley, and at that time also local men were entered in the doubles and singles as well. They brought many honors to the district and were a threat in every big regatta in Eastern Canada. A few times they even competed in the United States.

"What finally happened to this boat?" he was asked.

"So far as I can remember it was used to build a flower bed near Hopwood's cottage and I believe the oars form part of the bannister in the cottage itself," said Mr. Kingan.

Mr. Kingan said that regattas held at the Little Lake in the old days were a great success despite the fact that sometimes the lake had a great many logs boomed off in different sections. He is strongly inclined to the believe that some local organization should give consideraton to holding a regatta at Little Lake during the coming summer. Particularly since the Crescent street shoreline has been improved and now forms a natural grandstand that would accommodate a host of people. It would also give ample parking space for hundreds of cars without obstructing the view of spectators.

May Transfer Regatta

It is understood that a few members of the Wallace Point Canoe Club have given some thought to transferring their annual regatta to the Little Lake to help in an amalgamation which might result in a mammoth program of water sports being organized and staged successfully.

Perhaps such a step might bring Peterborough back into the paddling and sailing spotlight to the position it enjoyed when the huskies of old competed as a Peterborough club in Canada.

Surprise Bombs Real Jolt To Farm Family

SHEENSBORO, Que., March 8— Information at the post office of this Quebec village in Pontiac county, not far from Petawawa military camp, was that things are going on pretty much as usual at the Meeham farm, some two snow-covered miles away. But not so Wednesday.

On Wednesday "two or three" big planes flew over the Meeham acres and by accident some bombs came tumbling down on the Meeham farmstead. Nobody was injured, according to word at Sheensboro post office, where the incident was the main topic of conversation.

In fact information here was that Farmer William Meeham, his son-in-law Ernie King, and their families, "took the bombing pretty well" though it was exciting and alarming for a few minutes.

"The next thing they knew there was a lot of noise and bits of shrapnel went through the house and all the windows were blown out," said the postmaster.

All things considered, the postmaster added, damage to the house was "considerable."

The only way to reach the Meeham place from Sheensboro is by horse and sleigh or on foot. They have no telephone. Up to noon Friday, the postmaster said, he hadn't been talking to any of them personally.

Meantime a Royal Canadian Air Force court of inquiry has investigated the accidental bombing which first became known outside this immediate area yesterday when an official statement was issued in Ottawa.

According to the statement two bombs were accidentally released from a plane Wednesday during routine testing of samples from a new shipment of aerial bombs.

Reaboro Youth Struck By Car

While Frank Shine, Peterborough, was driving a number of Omemee hockey players to Lindsay Thursday night to take part in the Felt Cup tourney he was involved in an accident in which Robert Deyell, 18-year-old Reaboro youth, was knocked down and bruised.

The accident happened on the Lindsay-Peterborough highway as Shine's car was passing another machine travelling east. The driver did not notice Deyell until he had been hit and knocked off his feet. The boys was taken into hospital at Lindsay for medical attention but was found to be not seriously hurt.

Several Converts

EDMONTON, Mar. 8 — (CP). — Premier Aberhart said in a broadcast over Calgary and Edmonton stations last night that several Opposition members in the Alberta Legislature would like to cross the floor. Lakefield W.I. Will Hold Quilting Bee

LAKEFIELD, March 8—(ENS)—"Peace and International Relationship," was the interesting topic presented to the members of the Senior Women's Institute, Lakefield, when the branch met at the home of Mrs. Fred Norish, Queen street, on Thursday afternoon.

The roll call was answered by each member giving a recent current event, the answers showing how interested the ladies were in recent happenings, especially the war news.

Four quilts were reported to be ready for quilting and it was decided to complete them at a quilting in the United Church basement on Tuesday afternoon to which anybody who would like to help along this line, is invited.

As a means of raising funds it was decided to have a Canadian Fair in the Memorial Hall, the date to be announced later.

Mrs. (Rev.) G. F. Kelly, program convener, in keeping with the topic, stressed the many causes of war and saying that not always was the government responsible for war, for it is the individual communities which are responsible for the government appointment. She also spoke of the necessity even in war times to prepare for peace.

Mrs. J. W. Ridpath read a poem, "A Plea for Peace" and Miss Margaret Sanderson an item on "Peace."

Before closing the meeting, a hearty vote of thanks was extended Mrs. Norish for her kind hospitality.

The April meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. C. W. Garbutt.

New Highway Bill

TORONTO, March 8.— (CP)— Leopold Macauley (Con. Toronto South York) introduced a bill into the Ontario Legislature yesterday which would amend the Highway Traffic Act to provide that a person convicted under the Act would have to prove his financial ability before having his licence restored.

Ready To Be King

ROME, March 8.—(AP).—Prince Juan, heir-designate to the Spanish throne, has formally declared his readiness to return to Spain as king when the day of restoration comes, Spanish Royalists said today.

The Royalists met yesterday, it was learned, and the prince pledged himself to uphold the principles of his father, the late Alfonso XIII.

The prince was reported to have told the Royalists the day of restoration "may not be far off."

Basic Product Of Community Is Its Manhood

"In the 1890's it was a 'Gig and a girl, in the 1920's—a flivver and a flapper, and in the '40's it is—a plane and a jane", said Rev. Dr. G. S. Easton to the Peterborough Kiwans Club at the weekly meeting at the Empress Hotel of Friday. Dr. Easton was speaking on the inability of man to understand himself, and gave the mentioned as a definition of recent progress as a prelude.

"The basic product of any community is its manhood," the speaker said, "and the matter of building a man is the greatest game in life." He went on to explain that it takes all of a player's will power initiative, and every other attribute for this task. The rules in the game of life are the same as the rules in a game of hockey or football and penalty boxes, or their counterparts, are provided for those who do not observe them.

The first and probably greatest rule, the speaker said, is 'know self'. An athlete trains and practises much before a competition for the main reason that he may know what to expect of his body when the pinch is felt, that he may know at what times during his struggle he must let himself out, and when he should practise conservation. In the summing up of the race or game, he will be able to feel that each ounce of energy at his disposal has been utilized.

Makes Many Mistakes

Man makes many mistakes in judging himself. He is unable at times to recognize himself for what he is, and here the speaker went into some past humorous happenings. One story dealt with an author now famous in English literature, with whom the speaker had been thrown by circumstances, and the novelist told of the only time he had used an actual character in a story. He had wanted one of those surly individuals, described by Dr. Easton as being "13 cornered", and he had resorted to his description of a friend, upon meeting the friend on the street sometime later, the author was amazed to hear that the friend had not recognized himself as the character, but had sent a copy to an acquaintance in anquaintance in another city, who, he said, fitted into the part perfectly.

The next in the importment group of rules, is asking oneself a frank question—"Am I honest?" "Character is what you are in the dark", and went on to say that a person should have a straightforward conversation with himself that he may discover just what his motivations are, and the outcome will be startling, he predicted.

Play Game Together

The third rule or suggestion is "play the game together." Here the speaker used as his illustration, the hockey team of the city of Ottawa in the days of "Cyclone" Taylor. That great star, he said, played a lone hand on the ice, and would be doing most of the team's work himself. This continued until one day the captain and the coach suggested that if he wished to keep his berth he must learn to co-operate with the remainder of the team. Seeing the wisdom involved, Taylor underwent a change in his tactics, and the result was team play at its best, and even the casual observer was able to detect the added strength present in the team. Service clubs such as the Kiwanis group, Dr. Easton said, will do well to heed the experience of the hockeyist, for it is only in the spirit of team work that accomplishments will be worthy of the effort.

Not Termination

"Life begins with it's end" but the word end did not mean termination, he explained. No worthwhile mark has been made on the world, unless a goal had been set by the man involved. Reference was made to some of the great men who worked so hard that the present and immediate past generations might benefit, and all were proven to have had established, early in life, a mark at which to aim.

In concluding the speaker mentioned Christ. Born in a humble dwelling, He saw His objective, and fought straight for it, finally to die for it, His vision. "It would be well", Dr. Easton said, "for members of all service clubs to light their candles at the altar of that vision, and go on to the great goal that has been set."

A new member was welcomed into the Kiwanis Club at the meeting, in the person of Seymour Heard the new manager of the Tamblyn drug store who has filled the vacancy created by the transfer of Reg. Walton from Peterborough. Mr. Heard was welcomed into the club by John Troke the president and was installed by C. S. Browne. Mr. Troke announced that Victor Hamilton had been appointed to the board of directors of the Peterborough Club, succeeding Mr. Walton, and had been named Chairman of the Sports Committee.

Faces Draft Charge

Irving Schiller, 41-year-old member of a New York draft board, is booked by New York police, charged with accepting a $100 bribe to give deferred classification to a selective service registrant. Schiller faces a possible five years' imprisonment and $10,000 fine.

Girls' Club Studies Food Values

LAKEFIELD, March 10—(ENS)— The Kawartha Kids' Klub concluded the project "The Club Girl on Guard," with the final meeting held at the home of Miss Eva Higgins on Friday evening.

Miss Frayne Johns invited the Klub to her home for a crokinole party on March 28.

Miss Bernice Slater, Miss Hilda Northey and Miss Hazel Northey were appointed to represent the club as the demonstration team, and Miss Minnie Charlton was selected to give the three-minute talk at the Achievement Day program.

The leaders exhibited the results of the experiment on bread to discover the micro-organisms.

Various topics were dealt with, including the number of calories in different foods and how to plan menus according to calories in order to secure the required food values.

Several health rules were given, including fruits and protein foods suitable for the betterment of health. In this topic the leaders outlined the value of one's eyesight and the necessity of preserving one's eyes, against improper lighting and eyestrain.

Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by her mother and sister.

GILMOUR

Mrs. R.D. Wright Is Honored

GILMOUR, March 8 (ENS) — A pleasant afternoon tea took place at the home of Mrs. Harvey Sanderson this week, when the Young Women's Mission Circle entertained the senior W.M.C. Mrs. Sanderson received ladies. In the dining room Mrs. R. D. Wright and Mrs. Max Archer poured tea at a table covered with a lace cloth and spring flowers in a silver basket with tall tapers in silver candle holders.

During the afternoon Mrs. R. S. McMullen offered a few words on behalf of the Y.W.M.C. to Mrs. Wright, who is leaving the district, and presented her with a beautiful bracelet. Mrs. Wright, taken by surprise, thanked the girls.

Miss Jean Paul played a number on the piano and Phyllis Moore conducted a contest which closed an enjoyable afternoon.

Mr. Milton Clarke was in Toronto on Wednesday.

Mr. T. E. McMullen is spending a few weeks with his sisters in Markham and Toronto.

Sunday School Donates $20.55 To War Victims

Trinity Church Sunday School took the lead in contributions to the British War Victims' Fund in the list today with a cheque for $20.55. This sum was realized when the Sunday School held a party for the children last night and took up a collection for the fund.

Employees of the Brinton-Peterborough Carpet Company Limited must have some system of weekly contributions for today they came back with their 13th contribution since the fund was organized, and the amount received was $7.50. Another anonymous donor sent along an American one dollar bill, and it should be pointed out that everyone who has American money should turn it over either to a bank or to this fund, so that the Government will have a favorable balance in foreign exchange.

Several donations promised from the rural districts and a few social affairs to be held locally will soon bring the total high enough to permit cabling of the 5th $500.

Todays list is as follows:

LOVELY WAVY HAIR

Bring on the engineers when there is a tough assignment in the army. The husky, brawny, devil-may care engineers will dig tunnels, build bridges, roads and trestles, blow an objective to smithereens with dynamite—in short no job is too hard for them. Alas, something has gone wrong for yesterday an engineer strolled downtown and on entering a beauty parlor ordered a permanent wave which cost him $2.50. MRS. WILLIAM WALLACE COLE.

Mrs. William Wallace Cole, the former Evelyn Maude McCullough, passed away with tragic suddenness late Thursday evening at her home, 587 Downie street. Mrs. Cole had been in apparent good health, and her passing has come as a shock to her many friends.

Born in Peterborough 58 years ago, she was the daughter of the late James McCullough and the late Katherine Roseman. She had lived in Peterborough all of her life, and was known to be an ardent believer in the "Golden Rule." She was a member for many years of the Assembly Hall.

She is survived by her husband, William Wallace Cole, two daughters, Mrs. Andy Rutter, of Cornwall, and Mrs. Reginald Perks of Peterborough, one son, Howard R. Cole, of Brandon, Man., three sisters, Mrs. M. Kennedy, Mrs. L. Piton, and Mrs. J. Rowland, one brother, John McCullough of Cleveland, Ohio.

The funeral will be on Monday, March 10th, at 2.00 p.m. from the Nesbitt Funeral Home, 347 Charlotte street. Rev. J. H. Blackwood will officiate, and interment will be in Little Lake cemetery.

THOMAS HICKEY.

A life-long resident of Peterborough passed away on Friday, in the person of Thomas Hickey, who was born in this city 85 years ago. He had been ill for some length of time but his passing has come as a shock to his many old friends in the district.

The son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Hickey, he was a member of St. Peter's Cathedral for his entire life, and was a member of the Holy Name Society. His wife, the former Hannah Laronde, predeceased him 46 years ago.

The remains will rest at the J. J. Duffus Funeral Parlors until 8.45 a.m. on Monday. The funeral will then proceed to St. Peter's Cathedral for Requiem Mass at 9 a.m., and interment will be in St. Peter's Cemetery.

MRS. GEORGE T. DICKSON

CAMPBELLFORD, Mar. 8 (4NS) —Funeral services for the late Mrs. Jennie Downer Dickson were largely attended here Thursday, Widow of the late George T. Dickson, the deceased who had been in failing health for several months, died late Tuesday evening at her Ranney street home.

Mrs. Dickson, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Downer, was born in Cramahe township 76 years ago, coming to this town as a girl of thirteen. She became the bride of the late George Dickson in a ceremony which took place near the village of Warkworth 55 years ago and following this returned to Campbellford to reside in the home in which she continued to live until the time of her death.

A faithful member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, she for many years taught a Sunday School class and sang in the church choir. Nor did the activities of her full life, many years of which were spent in the service of others, cease with this. She was also a tireless worker in the Women's Missionary Society and during the last war was an enthusiastic member of the I.O.D.E.

Surviving are two sons, Addison of Beardmore; James of Timmins; and two daughters, Mrs. F. de F. Free of Campbellford and Margaret of Peterborough. Three sisters, Mrs. A. D. Smith of Peterborough, Miss A. Downer of Pittsfield, Mass., and Mrs. Fred Treat of Pittsfield and three granddaughters, Elizabeth Free of town, and Jane and Mary Louise Dickson of Timmins.

The funeral service was conducted from the family residence by Rev. D. K. Perrie of Hastings, interim Moderator of St. Andrew's Church here, and interment was at Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

Pall-bearers were C. B. Williams, John Ray, M. C. West, Harry Lowery, J. C. Birmingham, and J. Gay. N. A. McCall and J. R. McLaren were the flower bearers.

MICHAEL JOSEPH COSS

The death of Michael Joseph Coss occurred at his residence at 263 Lake Street early Saturday morning after an illness of seven months.

For many years a machine fitter, Mr. Coss was a former employee of the Canadian General Electric Company. He was born in Quebec province, and was the son of the late John Coss and the late Margaret Burns.

He was a member of the Holy Name Society, and the Altar Society of the Church of the Sacred Heart, and has resided in Peterborough for the past 24 years.

Surviving him are, his sorrowing wife, the former Annie Goselin, two daughters, Rita and Doreen Coss, and one son, Kenneth, all of Peterborough. Four sisters, Mrs. John Creighton of Peterborough, Mrs. William Lambert, Miss Gertrude Coss and Miss Birdie Coss of Quebec, and three brothers, Edward of Peterborough and James and Martin of Quebec.

The funeral will leave the family residence, 263 Lake street at 8:45 a.m. on Monday for the Church of the Sacred Heart for requiem mass at 9:00 a.m. Interment will be in St. Peter's Cemetery.

Milliken and Miss Edwith Guiry entertained at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club, and the bride-to-be was presented with a silver tea service.

Among those who entertained for Miss Marion Ovens, whose marriage to Private William Houston of Headquarters Company, Midland Regiment, Ottawa, is to take place shortly, were Miss Norma Dunford, who was hostess to members of the bridge club, when Miss Ovens was presented with a crystal sandwich plate; Mrs. McMillan and Miss Berna Stainton, who entertained jointly at a miscellaneous shower, and Miss Margaret Skitch, who also gave a miscellaneous shower.

✧ ✧ ✧

Guests at the wedding to-day of Miss Patricia McCarrell to Petty Officer John A. Archibald of the R.C.N.V.R., included Mr. and Mrs. George Gebbie, Mr. and Mrs. F. Gebbie, and Miss Frances Gebbie of Montreal; Mr. and Mrs. M. Connell, Mis Margaret Connell, and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Connell of Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. G. Young, Mr. Roy Perritt, Hamilton; Miss Agnes and Miss Betty Barrie of Toronto.

✧ ✧ ✧

An appeal was presented from the Dr. Barnardo Homes in England (of which the King and Queen are patrons), for help for their destitute children who were in eight branches of the homes which have been bombed, and in connection with which food and winter clothing in their depots have been lost, at the national executive committee meeting of the I.O.D.E., held in Toronto. It was noted in the appeal that 2,730 old Barnardo boys are now on active service, and that 700 former "Barnardos" gave their lives in the last war. The meeting was unanimous in the decision to acquaint chapters with the need of the homes, and to recommend that help be given.

Stevens—Williamson

St. George's Anglican church was the scene of a pretty wedding this Saturday afternoon, when the marriage of Miss Florence Mae Williamson to Mr. William Edgar Stevens, was solemnized by Rev. T. H. Floyd. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Williamson, and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. G. Stevens and the late Mr. George Stevens.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, and attended by her sister, Mrs. Arnold Guerin, the wedding music was played by Mrs. King and during the signing of the register Jackie Flagher sang "I love you truly."

A street length gown of cornflower blue crepe was worn by the bride, and a hat trimmed with pink and blue flowers, and a blue veil. Her shoes were of blue suede, with gloves to match, and she wore a corsage of pink roses. The matron of honor wore a blue crepe dress, with effective black accessories, a straw hat, blue, and trimmed with flowers and a veil.

The best man was Mr. Arnold Guerin, and the ushers were Messrs. George and Albert Stevens, brothers of the groom.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, 235 Park street. Mr. and Mrs. Stevens will reside at 261 King street.

Letter Tells of Comfort Brought by Clothing Gifts

Writing to her mother in Peterborough from a village in England now flooded with evacuees from bombed areas, Mrs. E. Neynoe Willyms, R.R.C., tells of how much the clothing and blankets forwarded by the Peter Robinson Chapter, I.O.D.E., means to suffering and homeless British families. The clothing was collected under the name of the "Beatrice Willyms Blewett Appeal."

Dated February 5, the letter follows: "How kind of you to find clothes for our evacuees. These are not only for the people in our parish, but also in twenty-eight other parishes where I work. You know that we are going through very serious times, and although there are many who are homeless and clotheless, there isn't one person who is down-hearted or discouraged over our fight for victory.

Thousands have benefitted from the gifts of my kind friends in Canada, and although it is almost twenty-four hour a day job examining, unpacking, listing and issuing clothes it is a work of tremendous service to people who need them very badly. All I can say is that I wish the people who have worked so hard to provide these garments could see for themselves the joy and comfort they give to the needy.

I can only thank you and everyone from the bottom of my heart for helping me.

My dearest love to you,
(signed) Beatrice Willyms.

Gar Wood, Jr. to Wed Starlet

Gar Wood, Jr., son of the great motorboat racer and a stellar driver in his own right will soon wed June Preisser, Hollywood starlet. Here are the young couple after announcing their engagement.

Metropolitan Star To Be Heard On Monday Night

The appearance in Peterborough next Monday night of Miss Susanne Fisher, a Metropolitan Opera Singer who possesses a lovely voice of freshness and strength, will conclude the series of Canadian Concert Association programs in Peterborough for this season.

Concerts arranged for next year will be all the more eagerly anticipated when it is known that Ruth Draper, famous actress and writer, will present her inimitable character sketches, a piano recital will be given by Percy Grainger, a unique figure among contemporary musicians, and Thomas L. Thomas, who made his debut at the Metropolitan Opera House, and has gained an enviable reputation as a result of his radio work, will be heard in person.

Members will be asked to fill in the form on the back of their membership tickets at Monday night's concert, pledging their membership in the Concert Association for another season, and tickets will be collected during intermission. A fourth concert is to be arranged if membership is sufficient.

Pat M. McCarrell Is Bride Of J. A. Archibald

Daffodils and ferns decked St. John's Anglican Church today for the wedding of Miss Patricia May McCarrell, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. McCarrell, who became the bride of Petty Officer John Alexander Archibald of the R.C.N.V.R., Halifax, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Archibald, Canon W. P. Robertson officiating. F. G. Mann, L.Mus., played the wedding music, and Miss Isabel Duthie sang "Because."

The bride was given in marriage by her father, and wore a dressmaker suit of beige boucle with brown accessories, mink furs, the gift of the bridegroom, and corsage of orchids. Miss Lorraine McCarrell, who attended her sister, wore a Nassau pink frock with black straw poke-bonnet, black accessories and corsage of Premier Supreme roses. Mr. John Mervin, Jr., was groomsman, and ushers were Mr. W. Archibald, brother of the bridegroom, and Mr. E. McCarrell, brother of the bride.

Afterward a reception was held at Walkerfield House, Mrs. McCarrell receiving in a gown of black crepe, with joy rose accessories and corsage of Premier Supreme roses. Mrs. Archibald was in aqua blue crepe with smart hat of black straw and corsage of Briarcliff roses. The bride and bridegroom left on a short motor trip, and will live at Halifax, Nova Scotia. For travelling the bride donned a frock of heaven blue jersey, matching accessories, and tailored tweed topcoat.

Bertha Ash Weds Wm. E. Gibson

A quiet marriage was solemnized in George Street United Church at two-thirty o'clock this (Saturday) afternoon, when Bertha Marguerite, youngest daughter of Mrs. M. A. Ash and the late Arthur Ash, 617 Aylmer street, became the bride of Aircraftsman William Earle Gibson, R.C.A.F., St. Thomas, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Gibson, Peterborough. Rev. H. L. Roberts performing the ceremony. Mrs. Chas. Renaud was at the organ.

Mr. Fred Ash gave his sister in marriage. She wore an ensemble of cornflower blue chenille, with corsage of Briarcliffe roses, and was attended by her sister, Mrs. Morley Smith of Toronto, wearing a frock of appeal rose laricha with black accessories and corsage of Talisman roses. Mr. Ken Gibson, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman.

Aircraftsman Gibson and his bride left for Toronto, and will make their home at 617 Aylmer street, Peterborough.

I.O.D.E. Chapter Holds Bridge

A successful bridge was held on Thursday under the arrangement of the Otonabee Chapter, I.O.D.E., and directed by Mrs. F. A. Gray and Mrs. R. J. Martin. The guests were received by the Regent, Mrs. F. L. Robinson, Mrs. A. Leach, and Mrs. G. A. Borland.

Assisting the two directors were Mesdames G. A. Borland, M. C. Sherwood, H. Beattie, R. G. Coleman, Sr., W. Burrell, and D. E. Bell.

During the evening the Regent announced that the Peter Robinson Chapter will conduct a fashion show in the Green Room of the Y. W.C.A. on March 29. The bridge prize-winners were Mrs. A. J. Weams, Mrs. I. Rattenbury, and Mrs. R. P. Wellman.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, March 9.

Sunday's horoscope is an exceptionally delightful, promising, and propitious one, which should make glad the heart, soul and the more material riches of talent, merit, high aspiration, and humanitarian impulses. There are subtle and intriguing aspects to these perhaps unique or mysterious expressions, manifesting in love, religious or spiritual satisfactions as well as material forms of attainment and gratification.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of extraordinary achievement and satisfaction, with all phses and desires of life rising to advanced levels of gratification. The financial, domestic, and social as well as psychological and aspirational aims and ambitions, are sure to come to happy fruition.

A child born on this day should be richly endowed with the talents, skills and aspirations of great achievement. This equipment may have deep spiritual or emotional sources expressed in genius, and sure to attain due acclaim.

For Monday, March 10.

Monday's astrological forecast is for certain reactionary experiences, with a slowing down of high exuberations, by sober reflection, calm attention to workaday affairs, like possessions, investments and financial "balancing the budget." There may be some pressure in this direction, with hints of litigation, and the menace of an elder or superior.

Those whose birthday it is should be ready for rather trying though not disastrous situations to be negotiated, with determination, sound judgment, industry and fortitude. Perhaps financial anxiety with litigation in view, from threatening superiors or elders. Possessions may be imperilled.

A child born on (dhdv thm dwk

A child born on this day should be steady, persistent, ambitious and fairly fortunate, although it may have to placate an elder or superior. Its private life should be satisfactory.

1914 Tin Hats Go To Britain

"This tin hat served from 1914 to 1918, and is good for one more trip" reads the message in one of the steel helmets received at the Women's Volunteer Reserve Corps, 14 Weredale Park Westmount. It is the knowledge that in Canada there are many such helmets "good for one more trip," much needed in England and unobtainable there, that the W.V.R.C. continues its campaign for the collection to send to Britain.

Women, with saucepans on their heads, present a comic but not unusual picture in the streets. Civilian defence workers carry on with their work with resolute courage amid a rain of anti-aircraft shrapnel and falling masonry, lacking the protection afforded by a steel helmet. The W.V.R.C. calls for tin hats—to send overseas for use of civilians in the front line of defence.

The steady flow of tin hats from all over the country with their messages of good luck firmly attached, keeps the headquarters humming with activity. The first consignment is already on its way to the Hon. Vincent Massey, Canada House, London, England, who agreed to receive and distribute the helmets.

Individuals and groups in other cities, as well as branch units of the W.V.R.C., are assisting in the collection in local centres. Merchants have generously donated cases for packing; art pupils have made posters to help publicize the appeal. The Women's Volunteer Reserve Corps appreciates the welcome co-operation of all those joining in saying and sending—"Hats off to Britain."

Housewife Must Plan Her Tasks

The thrifty housewife is likely to feel that if she could do a task herself she is saving money for her family, but she must figure carefully to be certain about this. She may overlook the fact that her time has its commercial value. If she spends several hours doing a certain task, perhaps she neglects other work which she must hire done or go without and which is more to her household than the amount saved in doing the task.

There are some operations done at home in which there are far greater savings than in others. For example, she may save money in doing dishes and cooking meals, because it would cost considerable to hire this work done, but she will save only a few pennies in making a garment, baking a batch of bread or in canning fruit, since the commercial product is offered at a price which is little more than the cost of the raw materials. The individual cannot hope to compete with a thoroughly mechanized industry. The housewife who values her time must look thoughtfully at the problem of what it is worth while for her to do and what should be given to outside agencies.

DOROTHY DIX

DON'T NAG YOUR HUSBAND ABOUT ODD JOBS AT HOME.

Dear Miss Dix—I am a successful business man and provide my wife with a good home, a good car and servants. I am tired when I come home at night and want to loaf and play with the children and read and let the handyman cut the grass, put up the screens and clean the bathtub. It makes my wife furious because I won't do chores around the house. She calls me lazy and no-account and yellow, and says if she has to darn the stockings at night I should be at some job instead of reading. This continual nagging is breaking down my morale. She says that a lazy man who won't do jobs around the house doesn't DESERVE an amiable wife. What do you make of this?—JOHN.

ANSWER—Well, I should say that your wife was in a fair way of losing a perfectly good husband and a mighty comfortable meal ticket, for if you are not a lineal descendant of Job—the breed seems to have run out in these days—you won't stand being perpetually nagged for the sins you haven't committed. You have been liberal with your family and certainly deserve more than to be called a loafer by a wife you maintain in luxury. It is hard lines for a man to toil hard all day to support his family and then to get a kick instead of a caress as his reward, and I don't wonder that you feel sore about it.

As for a man doing odd jobs around the house after he comes home in the evening, that's up to the man himself and not a thing his wife has a right to expect of him unless they are too poor to hire any one else to do it.

Men Who Like To Putter.

There are men who are handy with tools and who like to putter around and put up shelves and hang pictures. There are men who have a passion for gardening and who delight in raising flowers and vegetables and cutting the lawn. Fine for them and convenient for the wife. They get relaxation following their hobbies.

But there are other men, like yourself, who loathe doing these household tasks and who want to relax entirely when they get home and do no work of any kind whatever. They have a right to their idleness. They have earned it by their concentration on their work at the office, and they will be better able to grapple with their business problems the next day if they can go back utterly refreshed in body and mind.

It is curious that it is only the occasional woman who ever seems to realize that her husband's health and mental attitude are just as much a part of his working capital as his money is, and that it is just as important to conserve the one as it is the other.

The average woman can see how she must save up the dollars to put into investments, but she does not see that she must save up her husband's strength and energy, and that if he spends these on beating rugs, or washing the dishes, or getting up in the night with the children, that he has just that much less ability and pep to put into his work the next day.

How Wives Can Help.

If women only knew that it was actual money in their pockets to keep their husbands happy and contented and to send them away from home feeling that their wives, at least, believed them to be Napoleons of finance or capable of any achievement, it would make many a wife hold her nagging tongue and it would turn many a poor, discouraged man from a failure into a success.

Perhaps if you make your wife realize that she is killing the goose that lays the golden egg by shaking your faith in yourself, she will cease accusing you of being a shirker. And you might also tell her that any woman who has servants to help her with her housework is an awfully poor manager if she has to work at night.

AVOID HUNTRESS

Dear Dorothy Dix—I have a job that I like very much and I would feel very downhearted if I had to give it up. Also, I have a mother and two younger brothers to support and I cannot afford to be out of work. The gentleman whom I work for is a great man and I think the world of him, but here is the trouble:

He has a beautiful wife and three children, and the wife has fallen in love with me. I have tried to discourage her and told her that her husband would find out about it sooner or later. She realizes what the outcome would be, but can't seem to keep away from me. What can I do? How can I avoid her? Will I have to give up my job? — UNHAPPY MAN.

ANSWER — Accept my sympathy. I know of no predicament worse than that of a youth who is pursued by a married woman. There is no possible safety for him except in flight, and as in your case, so often he has no place to which to flee.

It would seem that when a married woman falls in love with a boy that a sort of madness possesses her and she takes leave of every particle of common sense she ever had. She cannot hide her infatuation and it soon becomes known to all her little world.

She knows that she will not only bring scandal upon herself but ruin upon the young man. She knows that the end of it is bound to be disgrace for herself and her children and a broken-up home, yet nothing stops her.

So you have no hope of mercy from the woman. She will not be stayed by the thought of wrecking your life or by the necessities of your poor mother and little brothers, and when you try to break away she will flatter you and cajole you and weep upon your breast and use all the armory of feminine weapons from which you are too young to know how to defend yourself. So your situation is really a more desperate one than you apprehend.

But the only thing you can do is, as I said, flee. Give up your job, because you will lose it anyway when her husband finds out about the affair. So go while the going is good and you can leave yourself instead of being kicked out and when you can go with your employer's good opinion. You will find it easier to get a situation now, for business men are not keen on hiring clerks who have had affairs with their former bosses' wives.

WHEN IT'S BEST TO BREAK ENGAGEMENT.

Dear Miss Dix — I am a woman of 27. Have been engaged to a man who has tired of me and shows that he wishes to break the engagement. Before meeting this man I belonged to a young people's association in a church and had many friends, but I gave them all up for him. Now I would like to go back among them again, but I am afraid they will laugh at me. Should I go back to them, or join some other church where nobody knows anything about me? — MARTHA.

ANSWER — Break the engagement with the young man before he has time to do so. Beat him to it. Then go back to your old friends and just say that you found the engagement a mistake. Only that and nothing more. Never tell them any details, and if the curious ask questions, just say that it is a subject that you don't care to talk about.

Nobody will ridicule you and in a week everybody will have forgotten all about it. Other people are not half as much interested in our affairs as we think they are.

Refers to Personality As Expressed in Clay

Why artists's pottery is not treated with the same respect as are artists's paintings, especially when such objects are far more within the means of the average person than a fine picture, is even more difficult to understand since Margaret C. Baines pointed out the personality which can be exuressed in clay at Friday's meeting of the Women's Art Association.

It is not the perfect pieces one should look for in pottery, Mrs. Baines told members, but the "freak" pieces which possess interest and individuality, and which have resulted from "something queer that happens in the kiln." To illustrate, she exhibited a charming little jug which was really glazed to be dark brown, but which had taken on a lovely beige-green tone because it did not get the full heat of the kiln. A delf blue plate on display was a pottery example perfect in detail, and a breakfast set of handmade pottery, of which each piece was individual was displayed by Mrs. Baines with pride as a product of "Canadian clay by a Canadian potter." She deplored the fact that so many beautiful objects are passed over in favor of more expensive but less interesting imported articles, remarking that every time a piece of Canadian pottery is bought it inspires the Canadian potter to go on and produce something else.

For those who did not care for pottery pieces, there were delightful necklaces of pottery beads made "in the back streets of Toronto." A bowl demonstrating the charm of simplicity in form was an interesting example done by a student who had never had any art training before taking up pottery, and a pretty blue jar on display had beeen cut out of clay slabs.

Mrs. Baines referred to pottery as one of the oldest crafts in the world. It has exercised the minds of artists and craftsmen since the very earliet times, the potential beauties in the use of clay having been tried since time immemorial. "Clay is a medium for the most infinite self-expression," she said, "and one in which a potter can express her personality and taste. Potters are experimenting every day with the hope of discovering some new effect."

Mrs. John Terrace, president of the Canadian Potters' Guild to which Mrs. Baines belong, accompanied the speaker.

Applause greeted the information given by the president of the local Art Association, Mrs. C. S. Thompson, that a $100 bond intended as a nucleus for art club rooms in Peterborough had been used for the purchase of War Savings Certificates, but would, it is hoped, be still used for its original purpose. Familiar designs of oriental art will be traced from their beginning by Mr. R. C. Allison at a meeting on March 21. An illustrative display of priceless Chinese designs will be a feature of this studio program.

Peru estimates that 8,000,000 of its 12,000,000 sheep were clipped last year and yielded 16,000,000 pounds of wool.

Forger Labelled Great Crook, Given 5 Years

TORONTO, March 8 — (CP). — Robert Roy Wood, who pleaded guilty to 16 charges of false pretences, 14 charges of uttering and 10 of forgery, was termed "one of the greatest crooks in the country" by Crown Attorney F. I. Malone in court yesterday.

"He has an international reputation," Malone said.

In sentencing Wood to five years in Penitentiary on the forgery and uttering charges and six month on the false pretences charges, Magistrate F. C. Gullen remarked that "forgery and pttering is the worst kind of deception."

The sentences will run concurrently with a two-year term imposed on Wood in Montreal on January 16 for false pretences. When arrested he had 15 National Registration cards in his possession. Police said Wood told them he had purchased the cards in blank in Montreal and had filled them out with different names and then used them as identification when he cashed worthless cheques.

Wood operated through Ontario starting last November, and visited Hamilton, Fort Erie, Niagara Falls, Cornwall, Kitchener, Ridgeway, Prescott and Port Hope as well as Toronto. Altogether he obtained $648 of which $43 was obtained by worthless cheques. The balance was obtained through raised money orders.

Police said Wood's criminal record began in 1915 and that he had served numerous terms in United States prisons. He had been deported to Canada several times.

P.C.V.S. PRESENTS - - -

Special The Examiner
By Two Students of the P.C.V.S.

A Reverie

Well! It's over!! One of the finest plays ever presented by the P.C.V.S. Dramatic Club under the direction of Mr. R. L. Hale, B.A., has faded into the line of highly successful plays presented by this group. You have seen the play and have enjoyed it immensely, therefore we will not dwell on the plot.

The cast was in tip-top shape as could be seen by their natural and effortless acting. Tony Lumpkin, played by Frank Foley, appealed to everyone with his roguishness and indignant reactions to the attentions of Miss Neville; very ably portrayed by Sylvia Boorman. Bill Graham as Marlow was quite the dapper young man and must have been the Beau Brummel of that age. If one was to believe both Miss Hardcastle (Barbara Bothwell) and Mr. Hardcastle (Earle Armstrong) Marlow must have taken on the character of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, since their opinions seemed to differ of him most drastically. Barbara Bothwell stole everyone's hearts and appeared in several very beautiful dresses which showed her love of fineries as Miss Hardcastle. Earle Armstrong was the tottering old gentleman who saw all his hopes come crashing down at everything he did. Irene Mick and Mrs. Hardcastle had all the love of her daughter for clothes. Her many condemnations of poor Tony brought down the house when the audience saw how unimpressionable Tony was to her threats, etc. Stewart Brown, Orville Sellon and Leslie Groombridge gave a very creditable example of the boisterous fellows one would expect to find at an English inn, 1770. Alan Johnson as Hastings was excellent and gained the sympathy of everyone as he courted Miss Neville. A long line of remarkable servants brought gales of laughter as each one demonstrated his or her particular brand of stupidity. They were Alan Boate, Diggory; Bill Crowe, Roger, First Servant; Barbara Nicholls and Second Servant, Maurice Fisher. Eleanor Bigelow was Miss Hardcastle's maid servant and Molly Brown as "Mistress of the Inn" portrayed this typical English character very ably. Last, but not least, we have Sir Charles Marlow as played by none other than Alden Gourley.

In appreciation of the work of Mr. R. L. Hale, Miss D. M. White and Mr. F. E. Johnston, a letter of thanks was read to them by Warren Gamble on behalf of the cast. The three leaders excelled themselves and were responsible for the marvellous production of "She Stoops to Conquer" on Thursday and Friday nights. Congratulations!!!

Glee Club

One feature of the annual school play which many look forward to is the Glee Club's songs. We wish that more girls liked to sing, for those who have already joined the Glee Club have made marvellous use of their talent.

The girls are not chosen according to their ability at singing, but go to the practices of their own free will. The three short songs they sang during the intermission of the play were very beautiful. The perfectly blended harmony of their well practiced voice was most pleasing. No doubt, at the end of the songs, everyone wished that there was more yet to come.

The girls presented Miss Waddell with a pretty bouquet on Friday evening, as a token of their appreciation for the interest she has taken in them. We hope to hear the Glee Club at some morning entertainment in the near future.

Orchestration

Our school orchestra made its first appearance at the opening night of the play. This year the orchestra is much smaller, as may be judged by the fact that the entire group fits snugly (we feel that this word describes it nicely) into the orchestra pit. Also, it is well to bear in mind that their are two pianoes in the pit.

However, lack of space did not cramp the orchestra's style and the numbers which were played were received with great applause. All these are well-known and were very well played. They are: "On Parade", "All the World is Waiting for the Sunrise"; A medley of "Monastery Garden" and "I Love You Truly"; "The Bells of St. Mary"; "My Buddy"; "The Waltz You Saved for Me"; "Perfect Day".

A specially arranged version was used for "The Bells of St. Mary" and on both nights drew loud applause. Obviously this is one of the best of the old favourites. The medley was also specially arranged.

Considering the short time allowed for preparation, the ensemble has made wonderful progress, and has added greatly to the play. Mr. Maybee deserves much thanks for the pains he has taken, although if you were to question him, he would probably reply casually: "No trouble at all, and I hope the whole orchestra enjoyed it as much as I did."

Mr. Weames also deserves the thanks of all concerned, for it must be remembered that most of the members of the new orchestra were members of the original, in which, under Mr. Weames' able direction, and by frequent practice, they developed their talent and acquired more skill.

The task of removing the piano from the stage to the pit required a lot of man power, for the piano was moved three times rather than once. This may be explained by necessity for a piano on the stage for the Y's Men's Club Concert of February 28. The piano had already been put in the pit for the school play, and had to be put on the stage for the concert. Next day it was returned to the pit where it has remained since.

Fortunately, no squashed fingers or toes resulted from this lifting, shoving, prying, etc. and all will be serene 'till the next moving.

Teasettes

The sale of War Savings Stamps this week was $975 and of Certificates $352, making a total of $1,327. Good work.

Arrangements for the Echoes Circulation are under way and order blanks were sent around on Friday.

The new 1941 Echoes is rapidly taking shape and promises to be even better than other years. As a measure of war-time economy the price has been lowered from 35c to 25c per copy. Although the price has been cut greatly, the magazine itself is only slightly smaller. The many changes brought into our publication for the first time make up for this small reduction in size. A new style, dull finish paper will make reading much easier than the shiny finish of other years. Our new Echoes will be the first to boast of special picture sections, featuring various school activities. Our publication will also include good editorials, a fine literary section and very interesting School and Form news departments. Due to the fine cooperation given us by our advertisers this year's "Echoes" promises to be in the same high category as previous issues.

Drafted For Love

By RUTH AYERS

YESTERDAY: Luckily, Kent's aunt and Ann have never met, so April's worries were groundless. But the old lady hardly believes April the type for outdoor amusements. Finally, she asks April to sing. April rushes away, saying: "I hate singing."

FIND THE SOLUTION.

CHAPTER XI.

All the way down the hill to Elm Street, April remembered the last sight of Kent's face.

He had gone white and following her to the gate, had reached out an imploring hand. "Then I'm to blame if you never sing again. I thought you understood I loved your voice, Ann, that I wanted you to sing for your people, our friends and me. You even said you'd forgotten the stupid quarrel."

The walk was slippery. April crunched the hailstones under her heel. "Please, Kent," she had said, "I don't want to talk about it."

When she hurtled the car away from his door, she found the storm-washed air like a cold draught in her feverish brain. Yes, that had been her downfall, going into Kent's house. He was suspicious already, hurt, bewildered, and there was nothing she could do.

Then something struck her. What was it Kent had said in those last words?. "I thought you understood I loved your voice, Ann, that I wanted you to sing for your people, your friends and me."

Her mind seized a second thought. When she had talked to Ann on long distance last night, Ann had said, "As a matter of fact, Kent only knew it, he was the one who spurred me on to take this New York venture."

So that was it. Kent hadn't wanted Ann to have a career. He'd opposed the idea of her going on her own to New York. So they had quarreddel and in the end Ann had started off in hurt defiance.

Octavia was waiting for April, as usual. "Been pacing here," she dramatized, "not knowing what sort of wreck or trouble you was in.""

"Well, it wasn't a wreck."

"The Lawd be praised. You's safe. And a bad storm it is, Miss April. Your father done send word he and your mother won't be back for another day. Snowed in, ah reckons."

And April had been counting on Mother and Dad. "Oh," she said.

Nip wagged back to the kitchen, barking for food and drink. "Jes' soon's Ah gives this hound something to quiet his bark down, you can tell me about this here outing," Octavia said.

"There isn't much to tell."

Octavia, sure that April was sound in neck and limb, was breathing easier. "From the looks of you," she said, "seems like you wasn't 'xactly cut out to be a Campfire Girl."

"Or a Girl Scout either," April snapped as she started for her room upstairs.

A hot bath, a hair-brush, a bottle of cologne drenched over her aching forehead, and then the comfort of her white terry robe. That's what she needed, and sleep, plenty of it when she wouldn't have to think about to-day or to-morrow or any days to come.

An hour afterwards, April was sitting before her mirror. The yellow curls were brushed upward in her own way, the white robe, tight bodiced, swept out in a full skirt that was like a fan framing her figure.

Octavia moved in her mountainous fashion to the doorway. "Ah clean forgets to tell you that Mister Hal Parks' been a 'phoning all day."

"Hal Parks?" For a minute, April's eyes, horizon blue now like the hills she and Kent had seen to-day, flickered with interest. Then the flicker faded. "If he calls again," she said, "ask him if he will please excuse me to-night."

Any other time she would have welcomed seeing Hal. To-night, the memory of Kent, their day, the fatal anti-climax, was too fresh in her mind.

"He's a handsom' gentleman," Octavia was saying. "Seems like Ah finds him most in my favor of the gentlemen courtin' you, Miss April."

"Yes," said April, "yes, indeed." Then she spun around. "Ever hear of a Glitterbug, Octavia?"

"Well, you will," April predicted, "and plenty."

When Octavia had gone, April still sat the the looking glass, where words like demons began to prance in front of her. "The trouble with April is that she never looks beyond her mirror." "Everyone raves at how beautiful she is. Personally, I could never see it."

The powder puff which April held automatically in her hand as she leaned forward to dust her small, pert and perfect nose, went flying. She tore off the white robe and snapped out the light. Then with her face buried deep in the pillows, she began to cry, softly at first and then with sobs that shook the bed.

It was almost noon when she awoke. Outside the storm which had started off with a spitfire of hailstones yesterday, had calmed to a steady snow. Trees were white; house tops coated in the same fine-powdered silver.

April stared and then away. Perhaps Kent had called while she was asleep. Maybe Octavia had answered the telephone and blundered out the whole secret, Kent. The picture of him in his dark glasses, the way he smiled, came before her. He'd had a three-day leave against the darkness. Suddenly, she wanted to hold him in her arms, comfort him, laugh away the stinging, unkind tirade he had launched against her. There was that picture, and then, on the bureau was the picture of Ann, her sister. It seemed as if Ann were looking at her with a wistful reproach.

Octavia brought orange juice, coffee and toast, quite a concession on her part but which she explained by saying she'd had to postpone the family wash on account of the storm.

"What sort of plans you got for the day, Miss April?"

"This is my day to sit by the fire and knit."

"You sure talking strange talk, Miss April."

"It's the weather, it's got me down. By the way, any cables, radiograms, telegrams, money orders, or telephone calls for me?"

Kent would be leaving on the 7 o'clock evening train. Well, let him leave. The young conscript would see that he got on the train and be his eyes for him on the trip back to the base hospital.

Nothing she could do at this eleventh hour would help.

It was near the dinner hour when a postman brought an air-mail, special delivery letter. April fastened her wavering eyes on it—saw that it was from her sister, Ann, in New York.

AN ACTIVE LIVER MAY GIVE YOU MORE PEP

A liver that fails to secrete all the bile it should may be the cause of much of the misery of temporary constipation. It is important therefore that the laxative you take also helps stimulate sufficient bile flow to act on intestinal waste. This is why Beechams Pills are increasingly favored as a laxative. By helping stimulate bile flow, this purely vegetable compound helps drive away the headachy, tired feeling that comes from faulty elimination. Buy Beechams Pills at your druggist's

Curling Notes

By HERB MARTIN

Our main event for the coming week is the playing for the Canada Packers Trophy on Wednesday, March 12th.

As this will be our last important bonspiel of the season, we are looking forward to a big entry. Many skips from outside points have entered, but we are, up to the present, lacking in local entries.

There will be three games for all with the first round getting away at 9 a.m.

The two best finishes in the vice-skips' spiel last night were played on ice No. 2 and 3.

On Ice No. 2 Jimmy Hall and Tom Ryan were tied coming home. Hall has played his last stone and was laying three shots. Ryan might have elected to draw to the tee with an out-turn, but after due deliberation he decided to split two of Hall's rocks in the hope of hitting them just enough to allow his own stone to fall towards the tee. He did just that. He called the shot, he played the shot and he made the shot.

On Ice No. 3 Dr. Lawrence, two down playing the last end, made a beautiful shot to touch the four-foot ring to count three and win the game. H. Darling, his opponent skip, missed with both his stones.

Vice-Skips' Bonspiel.

Wallpaper Tricks

A little trick to make your small room appear larger is the use of scenic wallpaper. The result obtained is due to the perspective of the design, which carries the eye back toward the horizon line in the paper. The same effect is attained when gazing through an open window over a landscape. The design seems to push the walls, out, as it were, and makes an interior appear more spacious.

Don't use side-lights with such wallpaper, however, or your effect will be ruined. These fixtures have no place in the design of scenic wallpaper, and cut into it. Candles on the table and overhead lighting are to be used in such a room.

Cadi Is Anxious To Assist Execute Ripper

NEW YORK, Mar. 8 — (AP). — George Joseph Ovek, 23-year-old wanderer, whom Mayor LaGuardia called a "hitch-hiking ripper," heard Magistrate Michael Ford offer yesterday to "pull the switch" if Ovek was convicted of first-degree murder and sentenced to die for the strangulation of a Bronx housewife.

The Magistrate gave vent to his wrath when Ovek appeared for arraignment on a charge of suspicion of homicide in the death a month ago of Mrs. Catharine G. Pappas.

Ford dismissed the charge so that Ovek could be re-arrested on a first-degree murder indictment which had just been returned. Then he turned upon the prisoner, who District Attorney Samuel J. Foley said had acknowledged a career of assault and robbery upon a score of women in eastern cities.

"Well, Mr. Ovek," the magistrate said, "you've started on your way, and after District Attorney Sam Foley gets through with you and the law has taken its course and you are transferred up the river to Sing-Sing....Tell the warden that if he is short-handed and needs somebody to pull the switch, send for me and I'll gladly do it."

The Mayor's attack upon the vagabond came earlier when three detectives, who captured Ovek on Monday night in a midtown hotel, were promoted at ceremonies citing them for their detection.

"I suppose you will be confronted with a defence of insanity," said the Mayor to Foley. "That may be, but it is the kind of insanity that needs the treatment of the electric chair."

A Help to Those Who Are Past Middle Age

When men and women get past middle age their energy and activity, in many instances, begin to decline, and their general vitality is on the wane.

Little ailments and sicknesses seem harder to shake off than formerly, and, here and there, evidences of a breakdown begin to appear.

Now is the time those wishing to help maintain their health and vigour should take a course of Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills.

Look for our trade mark a "Red Heart" on the package.

DIED

COSS, Michael Joseph.—In Peterborough early Saturday morning, at the family residence, 263 Lake street, Michael Coss, beloved husband of Annie Gosselin, and son of the late John Coss and Margaret Byrns and father of Rita, Doreen, and Kenneth Coss of this city. Mr. Coss will repose at the family residence until 8.45 a.m. D.S.T. Monday, March 10, thence to the Church of the Sacred Heart for Requiem Mass at 9 a.m. Interment in St. Peter's Cemetery.

HICKEY, Thomas.—At his residence, 289½ George street, on Friday, March 7, age 85 years. Father of Mrs. William Russell of this city. The remains will rest at the J. J. Duffus Funeral Parlors until 8.45 a.m., Monday. Funeral will proceed to St. Peter's Cathedral for Mass at 9.00 a.m. Interment St. Peter's Cemetery.

IN MEMORIAM

SOLMES.—In loving memory of my father, Gilbert Solmes, who died two years ago, March 9, 1939.
We miss him at a thousand turns
Along life's weary way;
For life to us is not the same
Since he was called away.
The world may change from year to year,
And friends from day to day,
But never will the one we loved
From memory pass away.
—Ever fondly remembered by his daughter, Mrs. W. Jarvis and family.

ROBERTSHAW—In loving memory of my dear wife, who passed away two years ago to-morrow.
—Sadly missed by her husband, E. J. Robertshaw.

DUNFORD.—In loving memory of Mrs. Alfred Dunford, who passed away March 8, 1926.
Deep in our hearts lies a picture
Of a mother gone to rest,
In memory's frame we'll keep it,
Because she was one of the best.
Our lips cannot speak how we miss her,
Our hearts do not know what to say,
God alone knows how we miss her
In our hearts that are lonesome to-day.
—Sadly missed by her husband and daughters, Leah and Ida.

THIRNBECK.—In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, who died one year ago to-day.
Loving and kind in all her ways,
Upright and just to the end of her days;
Sincere and true in heart and mind,
Beautiful memories she left behind.
—Fondly remembered by Husband and Family.

HALL.—In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Warren Hall, who passed away March 9, 1940.
God knew that she was suffering,
That the hills were hard to climb.
So He closed her weary eyelids
And whispered, "Peace be thine."
Away in the beautiful Hills of God,
By the Valley of Rest so fair,
Sometime, someday, we know not when,
We will meet our loved one there.
—Ever fondly remembered by her Family.

the gland to cancer. Indeed some authorities believe that the denial of the normal function of the breast predisposes to cancer.

There are other factors than this which have to do with physiology that interfere with breast feeding. The makers of artificial foods loudly proclaim the value of their particular products. The whirlwind of propaganda in advertising, if not carefully weighed, is enough to convince almost any woman that the only safety for her child lies in the use of some one patented preparation. As a result, too many women are almost convinced before the baby is born that he will fare much better if he is fed one of these allegedly human milk duplicating materials than if fed at nature's source.

Breast feeding is a function that depends in the first place on good general health. The general health of the community is improved with better habits of dieting, hygiene and a raised standard of living. When mothers have proper food, rest and exercise, their health is improved by nursing their babies.

The functions of the body are controlled by the glands which we call those of internal secretion. Pregnancy and lactation are controlled by these glands and the body is so constitute that when pregnancy is completed, the follow-up factors begin to operate and the act of nursing in itself assists in the return, following delivery, of the body to normal.

In addition to this, nursing mothers must learn to look after themselves. Some of them have to lose many bad habits. They cannot afford to be nervous of temperamental as this affects the secretion of milk. She must exercise strict self-discipline. She has less time for outside work, social pleasures, travelling and recreation. Many mothers believe their work, their careers, their social pleasures are more important than the care of their children and are unwilling to sacrifice any of these actually unimportant things, even if for only a few short months, in exchange for the health and better development of the new human being for whose existence they are responsible.

Such Pets a Credit to You

Fine responsive pets! You see at once that their master knows dogs, the proper but simple care that brings out the best in them.

Lessons in manners begin with short words of command — "Come," "Go," "Down" — taught one at a time and by one person only, using the same tone of voice.

No whippings! When a dog becomes confused, the thing to do is to pet him. Then, when he catches on, give him a tasty bit of food as reward.

The right diet for your dog is a sensible, natural one. Meat is his mainstay from the time he's a pup of three weeks, for a dog is a carnivorous animal. Other foods he enjoys are milk, fish, eggs, but go lightly on starchy foods. Too many bring on stomach, skin troubles.

Properly fed and cared for, your pet should put up a jolly fight against such ills as distemper — that particular enemy of puppies which often strikes at grown dogs, too. Do you know how distemper starts? Its symptoms?

Our 32-page booklet explains symptoms and treatment of distemper and many other doggish ills. Tells how to raise a dog from puppyhood on, give him proper diet, grooming, training. Explains the teaching of amusing tricks.

Send 15c in coins or stamps for our copy of HOW to CHOOSE AND CARE FOR YOUR DOG to Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

"The Authority on Authorities"

TWO TRICKS FOR ONE

IF YOU held the singly guarded trump king and saw the ace and another trump in the dummy at your right, wouldn't you naturally expect to take a trick ultimately in the suit? Offhand, you would say that leading away from that king would be suicidal, wantonly wasting a sure trick. But if you reckoned the declarer hoped to use dummy's trumps to ruff a couple of tricks in a side suit, your lead could not prove costly. In fact, it might gain your side a trick. It could prevent the declarer from ruffing more than one side trick, and oblige him to do that with the dummy's ace, so that he couldn't pick up your king.

Exactly that bidding developed at all three tables of a little duplicate game, and the first three tricks were the same at all three—diamond 3 to the K, diamond A and club A. Then at two tables East led his heart A, which South ruffed. The club K, a club ruff, a heart ruff, a second club ruff with the A, a heart ruff, then a spade to East's K followed, South winning the rest of the tricks with trumps and making his contract right on the head.

At the remaining table, after the first two diamonds and club A, on which West played the 4, East switched to his spade 10. Declarer took that, cashed the club K and ruffed one club with the A. But he had nothing in dummy with which to trump another club, so had to lose one at the end, plus another trick to the spade K. He was therefore set a trick because of East's clear-seeing defense.

Your Week-End Lesson

With both sides vulnerable, if South bid 1-Spade, you doubled in the West, North passed, East bid 2-Diamonds and South passed, what would you now do with each of the two hands given here, and why?

LAKEFIELD

Junior Institute Donates Quilt

LAKEFIELD, March 8—(ENS)—A completed quilt was handed to the local Red Cross Society by the Lakefield Junior Institute at the regular meeting held in the Memorial Hall on Thursday afternoon. The members answered the roll call by each giving 5 cents toward the general fund. The treasurer's report showed cash on hand of $36.62.

Miss Fern Mullen invited the members to her home on March 26 for a quilting in aid of the Red Cross, the secretary to purchase the lining and batt for the same. Each member was asked to bring used woollen articles to the next meeting to be made into two woollen blankets, also for the Red Cross.

The April roll call will be answered by each member bringing a donation of soap, face cloths, towels, pillow cases, or handkerchiefs for Red Cross purposes.

EXILED GOVERNMENTS

LONDON—(CP). — Britain is a haven for five "free" governments—Poland, Norway, Belgium, Netherlands, and the Czechs. Each government has a provisional prime minister, foreign and finance ministers.

Santander, Spain, After Hurricane and Fire Raged

Hundreds were killed and millions of dollars in damage was caused by the hurricane that swept across Northern Spain. Hardest hit was the city of Santander, which was razed by the fire that came on the heels of the storm. These are the ruins of Santander when the flames died down. German troops occupied Santander for the purpose of helping bring order out of the ruin. Many observers felt that in reality German troops in Spain would eventually move against Gibraltar in the south, from the land side. The soldiers shown are Spanish.

Norwood Names W. B. Parcels As Constable

NORWOOD, Mar. 8—(ENS). — The Municipal Council of the Village of Norwood met on Monday, with Reeve R. S. Ferguson in the chair, and all the councillors present.

The minutes of the last Council meeting were read and on motion of Col. Pakenham and Baker were approved.

Several accounts were then presented, and were moved by Councillors Bitten and Lockhead to be paid.

On motion of Councillors Lockhead and Baker, William Parcels was authorized to procure a police uniform from Alexander Kempt.

A by-law to confirm the appointment of Wiliam B. Parcels as constable, street commissioner, caretaker of the Town Hall, etc., was passed.

Council then discussed the various phases of the plan of collecting current taxes in two instalments. The matter was finally left over for the next regular meeting when more information would be available.

The meeting then adjourned.

Willing Workers Meet.

The Willing Workers met this week at the home of Mrs. S. S. Breckon, with twenty-two members present. The president Betty Wright conducted the meeting. Minutes were read by Marian Cuthbertson, secretary, and the treasurer's report was given by Eleanor Carleton.

It was reported that the girls had now completed three afghans, three quilts, and several baby garments. They are now working on another afghan and quilt.

Following their work period an enjoyable little program was provided, consisting of songs and recitations.

Board of Education.

The monthly meeting of the Board of Education was held on Monday evening, members present were John Marks, chairman, Mrs. J. McMillan, T. P. Rork, Earl Hamblin, G. H. Wright, W. B. Tucker, W. H. Montgomery, R. Nevins, E. T. Buck, Dr. H. G. Carleton, and W. H. Giffen.

The Property Committee reported that it had been arranged to supply help for Mr. Rogers to wheel coal from the shed to the furnace room. Estimates of the year's expenditures were presented by the Finance Committee, showing an estimated expenditure of $3,395 for High School purposes and $5,535 for the Public School. On motion of Messrs. Montgomery and Tucker, the local branch of the Red Cross were given authority to use the school for their monthly meetings.

The Public School Inspector's report, also the boiler inspector's report were read. On motion of Nevins and Hamblin, Mr. Breckon was instructed to act regarding the farm labor situation according to instructions from the Department.

A Junior I.O.D.E.

Nineteen young women gathered at the home of Mrs. B. W. Tucker on Wednesday evening for the purpose of organizing a Junior Chapter of the I.O.D.E. Helen Watson was chosen regent, Eileen Giffen first vice-regent, Nona Breckon second vice-regent, Margaret Leeper secretary, Jean Baker treasurer, and Anne Giffen standard-bearer.

Three suggested mottos for the Chapter were chosen, which will be sent in to headquarters for selection. Mrs. Tucker and Mrs. W. H. Giffen served refreshments at the close.

W.M.S. Session.

The W.M.S. of Norwood Presbyterian Church met at the home of Mrs. R. Tedford on Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. Borland, president, in the chair. Mrs. Borland read part of the Presbytery report and discussion regarding thankoffering and ways of raising money followed. The lesson was read by Mrs. George McNaughton, followed by a circle of prayer led by Miss J. Clysdale and Mrs. Small. A solo was rendered by Mrs. Ken Tedford entitled "The Lord is My Shepherd." A prayer was given by Mrs. Roxburgh on the report of the Madras Conference of 1939. Readings from Glad Tidings were rendered by Mrs. J. Rogers and Mrs. Small. Lunch was then served by the hostess.

Couple Honored.

A large gathering of the members of Norwood Presbyterian Church met at the home of Mrs. J. Thompson on Wednesday evening to bid farewell to Mr. and Mrs. William Buchanan, who are leaving Norwood very shortly to take up residence in Peterborough. Mr. Buchanan having been made turnkey at the jail there. The evening was spent in a social way with the playing of games and contests. Toward the close Mr. and Mrs. Buchanan were presented with a prayer and hymn book as a mark of the esteem in which they were held. They will be very much missed in the church life, for they were for many years faithful members, besides Mr. Buchanan being caretaker of the church and Mrs. Buchanan treasurer of the Ladies' Aid. At the close a dainty lunch was served.

Three Brothers All In Canadian Army

Three sons of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Hill of Havelock are serving in Canada's Active Army. On the LEFT is George Newcombe, who is with an artillery unit at Petawawa, CENTRE is Kenneth, while on the RIGHT is Percy, both with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment now at Camp Borden.

A Rome "Bombing"

ROME, Mar. 8 — (AP). — The Italian High Command claimed yesterday that Italian bombing planes attacked a strongly escorted British convoy in the Eastern Mediterranean, hitting a cruiser, a destroyer and three merchant ships.

(Comment on the Italian claim was not available immediately in London.)

Italian planes also bombed a British air base in North Africa, the daily war bulletin claimed, while German planes attacked marching columns and troop concentrations there.

Supply.

Mr. Ilsley also gave the House a breakdown of the estimates submitted by the various departments involved in the war effort. These amounted to $1,460,402,232 — $160,402,232 more than the war appropriation measure now before the House.

Previously Mr. Ilsley had told the House he had lopped about $150,000,000 from the original departmental estimates, and that he might be back for more money before the 1941-42 fiscal year ended.

"A Fascist Trend"

Mr. Hanson said the government should give the information on war expenditures without being asked. He said the suggestion that the opposition had to ask for the information before it would be given was "Fascism in an incipient form."

Defence Minister Ralston recalled that Mr. Hanson had described the general statements given by war ministers on the work of their departments at the pre-Christmas part of the session as "eye-wash." Because of this remark, he said, he had decided not to make a general statement but to be prepared to answer all questions as they were asked.

Mr. Graydon said the carrying on of experimental and educational work at the Ontario Agricultural College was an important phase of the war effort and the institution should not be closed unless there was no other place at which the proposed air force wireless school could be accommodated.

Mr. Pouliot said there were too many uniformed men drawing pay and allowances while performing non-military work. "There are some pilot officers who only fly to the door and I could continue at great length.

"Just A Parade"

"I do not see why a man should wear a uniform when he is performing duties which were performed yesterday by a young girl in civilian clothes, duties which may be performed tomorrow by the same young girl. This is not the army at all. This is just a parade which is absurd in times like these."

The greater part of yesterday's short sitting was taken up by Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Minister of National War Services, who gave an outline of the work of his department, particularly the bureau of information and the regulation of war charities.

He told the House there would be only one charities campaign in 1941 —the joint campaign for $5,500,000 for the Canadian Legion War Services, Y.M.C.A., Y.W.C.A., Knights of Columbus, and Salvation Army —starting March 24. The Red Cross had agreed not to make an appeal for funds in 1941. The campaign, he said, had the full support of the government and the Red Cross.

The minister declined to go into the attitude of the Red Cross towards participation in a joint campaign beyond saying:

"The Red Cross is an organization that has been built up across Canada, having a good reputation and a long period of service and it is thought wise to allow that organization at least to consider the matter in their own national meetings before making any announcement as to what they think or any one else thinks with respect to what they ought to do."

The minister said only a small part of the work of the Bureau of Information was preparing releases for the press. It organized radio programs, prepared motion pictures, and distributed posters and pamphlets.

Commenting on a suggestion advanced the previous day by Dr. Harry Fleming (Lib. Humboldt) that Canada needed a ministry of enlightenment the minister said he doubted if it would be possible.

"I do not think any ministry of any kind could really enlighten the people in general because they must get the information and then study it and arrive at their own conclusions," he said.

O.A.C. To Carry On

Referring to a section in the Conservative leader's motion that wooden hutments be constructed for the wireless operators, Premier Hepburn said this would cost $1,000,000 and they would be useless after the war.

A Principle Involved.

Col. Drew said he would never have introduced his resolution if the Premier had indicated in his original statement the work of the O.A.C. would be continued. However, that wasn't the main criticism, he said, because there was a principle involved.

As a member of the organization of national resources committee, along with Lieutenant-Governor Albert Matthews and the Premier, Col. Drew said he was entitled to know beforehand of the government's intentions regarding the Guelph College. The committee was established by legislation enacted at the last session to give Ontario's full cooperation in the war effort.

"The Premier's attitude in the present matter shows he is wholly incapable of cooperating, either with other governments or within the provisions of the Act," declared the Conservative leader.

Mr. Nixon's resolution, based on an offer made by Premier Hepburn to Prime Minister Mackenzie King in September, 1939, said the Legislature offers every cooperation releasing for use of the militia all assets of the province, including the provincial alar service and six tubercular clinics fully equipped for assisting in medical inspection of army recruits.

Before the debate ended Col. F. Fraser Hunter (Lib. Toronto St. Patrick) said both parties had wasted all afternoon in a discussion that appeared to be nothing but "political window dressing." The farmers, he said, had been placed at a disadvantage by the inference they were protesting the transfer of the buildings.

Others heard were Agriculture Minister Dewan, Public Works Minister Farquahar Oliver, Labor Minister Hipel; Ross A. McEwing (Lib. Wellington North) in whose constituency the O.A.C. is situated; Leopold Macaulay, Col. T. L. Kennedy, A. H. Acres, William J. Stewart and William Duckworth, all Conservatives.

Mr. Acres who followed Premier Hepburn, said the official who reported the cost of erecting the wooden buildings would be $1,000,000 should have "his mind read."

Mr. Hipel and Mr. Oliver both deplored what they said was a "slanderous attack" on the deputy minister of works by Mr. Acres. Mr. Hipel said the cost of constructing the buildings within two months would approximate the figure given.

Mr. Oliver said he couldn't agree that the closing of buildings would hurt the farmer as far as his war effort was concerned. But he did believe, he said, that it would bring home to the people a realization of the fact that "we are in a war."

Col. Kennedy, who seconded Col. Drew's motion, appealed to the Premier to press for an alternative to the use of the buildings and suggested the use instead of such institutions as the University of Western Ontario at London or Queen's at Kingston.

Only one classroom, that in the mechanics' building, will be required for the wireless school, Dr. Dewan said, and girl students would be the only ones not able to continue their classes. These girls, he said, may be able to carry on at the Kemptive School of Agriculture.

which the German press quoted, carried a story under a Washington dateline with a headline saying "Yugoslavia Refuses Help From Roosevelt." The story was credited to "special service" and was the first "special despatch" from Washington the newspaper ever has carried.

President Roosevelt, the paper said, "promised assistance to Yugoslavia the same day" her Premier and Foreign Minister conferred with Hitler at Berchtesgaden.

"M. (Constantin) Fotitch, the Yugoslav Minister to Washington, was summoned on February 14 by urgent telephone call to go to the home of Sumner Welles (United States Under-Secretary of State) where he was given a personal message from Mr. Roosevelt," the Magyarsag story alleged.

"Mr. Fotitch....was informed that it was time to tell the Prince Regent and the Yugoslav government that in President Roosevelt's opinion it was time to put an end to the successes of the Axis powers, even if they were only diplomatic successes.

"Mr. Roosevelt also was said to have made known that the Lease-Lend Bill would certainly be accepted by Congress and the American Government then would have the means to curb efforts designed to create a new order."

BRITISH SUB TORPEDOES ANOTHER ITALIAN CRUISER

Darlan Threatens To Convoy French Food Freighters; Holds "Blockade Imbecile"

Says Huns More Generous, Understanding Of Humanity's Needs Than England; Notifies U.S. 18 Million Bus. Wheat Needed

VICHY, France, March 10 — (AP). — Vice-Premier Jean Darlan told United States press representatives today that French ships would be convoyed if the British blockade of Vichy, France, continued.

"If the British continue this blockade, which I consider imbecile, I will be obliged to ask permission to provide armed protection for our merchantmen. I will let nothing stand in the way of the French people's eating."

Marshal Petain said the Germans had released 2,000,000 quintals (220,400 tons) of wheat out of 2,700,000 which had been requisitioned for the German army.

Darlan said he considered the blockade against Germany useless and declared he had told that to the United States Ambassador, Admiral William Leahy, last night.

"A few boatloads of wheat" will not affect the outcome of the war, he said.

Food Minister Peeved.

Food Miniser Jean Achard read a prepared statement in which he said 5,000,000 quintals 18,348,300 bushels) of wheat from the United States were needed for the unoccupied zone of France.

The Vichy government has communicated to the United States government the "urgency of obtaining and transporting" that amount of wheat, he said.

The wheat, the Minister continued, would go to the unoccupied zone only, not to the Nazi-held area, and would be distributed under United States supervision.

"I don't want to consider what would happen if we were obliged to reduce bread rations to 200 or perhaps 150 grams (seven ounces or five ounces) daily," Achard said, adding that the French are the world's heaviest bread eaters.

Darlan remarked that he did not know how Britain expected to blockade Germany by blockading French Indo-China and in a truculent tone repeated:

"My duty is to see that the French eat."

Achard said the 1940 harvest amounted to 42,000,000 quintals (154,125,000 bushels) of wheat of mediocre quality against a normal harvest of 75,000,000 quintals.

British Nearing Rail Line Jibuti-Ababa

CAIRO, Egypt, March 10—(AP)—A British force driving out of conquered Italian Somaliland has captured a town 145 miles inside the Ethiopian frontier and a military spokesman said the unit appeared on its way to cut the vital railway line running from coastal Jibuti to Addis Ababa.

A British communique yesterday announced the fall of the Ethiopian town of Gabre-Darra, on the coast and arid Ogaden plateau, about 270 miles southeast of Diredawa where the railway dips to the south on its way to the Ethiopian capital from French Somaliland.

This thrust into another portion of Italy's East African empire began March 5 after the capture of Fer-Fer, just inside the Somaliland border.

Mexico City, March 10 (AP)

AN unco-operative bull almost ruined Lorenza (El Magnifico) Garza's attempt to come back from "supreme disgrace" Sunday but only succeeded in tearing the matador's pants, after which Garza promptly slew the bull—and two others.

El Magnifico was still pretty much in the doghouse today, though. The big noise started a week ago yesterday when, after nine plunges of the matador's sword, a bull refused to roll over and die, the first in 10 years, and, amid approving cheers, was led out to spend the rest of his days on a stud farm.

Failure to kill the bull is the low of bullfighting, a great humiliation punishable up to last week by a fine of 1,500 pesos (about $300), which is what it cost Garza.

'Night Raids Done'--McNab

AN EAST COAST CANADIAN PORT, March 10—(CP).—Night bombing oven the British Isles will be "wiped out" by next month, Wing Commander Ernest A. McNab predicted last night on his arrival from Britain.

Wing Commander McNab, holder of the Distinguished Flying Cross and leader of the first fighter squadron of the Royal Canadian Air Force during the defence of London, told newsmen flatly "the Nazis have been whipped in the air."

"We stopped the day bombing, and within the next month you will see the night bombing wiped out," he declared. He declined comment on the nature of Britain's new weapon against night marauders.

Wing Commander McNab had words of high praise for the members of the first fighter squadron and the entire personnel of the Allied air fleets.

"The difference between the Allies and the Germans is our fellows know they are fighting for something very dear to them, while the Germans don't really care, I think.

"Take the September battle when the odds were five to one—our fellows knew what the odds were but I never saw a lad falter. Why I have seen one fellow attack a dozen Germans himself, pick off several and drive the rest away. That is what you call fighting."

He said that out of the original fighter squadron of 23, five have been killed and 12 were casualties from burns or wounds suffered in battle. The squadron bagged 70 planes.

He said the Germans have not come out looking for a fight since the epic air battles of September 16, when 183 Nazi planes were downed.

"They learned their lesson," he said. "Now they come over after dark, drop their eggs and beat it for home."

R.A.F. After Boulogne; Ship Crews Down 2 Attacking Bombers

LONDON, March 10—(CP).—The Admiralty announced today that one of Italy's fastest cruisers, a sistership of the ill-fated Bartolomeo Colleoni, had "almost certainly" been sunk by submarine attack in the Mediterranean.

"An Italian cruiser of the Condottieri 'A' class has been torpedoed and almost certainly sunk by one of our submarines," the Admiralty said, adding that an escort of Italian destroyers apparently had picked up some of the survivors.

The Bartholomeo Colleoni and her three sister ships were reported to be among the fastest cruisers in the world, with a speed that was designed to permit them to overtake destroyers. In their trials one of them was reported to have reached a speed of 42 knots.

An Australian cruiser and British destroyers sank the Bartolomeo Colleoni in the Mediterranean last July 19.

SOUTHEAST COAST, England, March 10—(CP).—A formation of bombers sweeping over the Dover Strait in brilliant sunshine indicated that the Royal Air Force was raiding the Nazi-held French port of Boulogne today.

Explosions were heard from the direction of Boulogne soon after the bombers sped across the water. R.A.F. fighters patrolled constantly overhead.

An Admiralty communique asserted a German Heinkel bomber was "hotly engaged and almost certainly destroyed" Saturday by the trawler Nadine. Visibility was poor but the plane was last seen enveloped in flames and diving out of control.

Another Nazi bomber was credited to the crew of a Norwegian merchant ship which it had attacked with bombs and machine guns.

11 Firemen Die As Roof Caves In

BROCKTON, Mass., March 10—(AP).—Eleven firemen were killed and 16 injured early today when the snow-laden roof of the 30-year-old Strand Theatre collapsed during a fire which destroyed the building.

Approximately 25 men were trapped when the roof over the theatre balcony caved in. Most were released quickly and given emergency hospital treatment. Hundreds of Sunday night movie goers had left the theatre less than two hours before the fire took hold.

A Catholic priest, Rev. Lawrence Morrisoe of St. Patrick's Church, borrowed a fireman's helmet and rubber coat and went into the burning building to administer last rites to the dying and most seriously injured.

Berlin Claims Navy Raid Is Beaten Off

Reports Army Guns Along Coast Turned Ships Back

BERLIN, March 10.—Nazi sources reported to-day that German army guns fired on several vessels in the English channel early to-day, forcing them to turn off, informed Germans reported to-day.

They said army and navy long-range guns engaged a convoy in the channel during the night. No claims were made as a result of the fire.

The German High Command claimed bombs had been dropped on a "big merchant ship south of Plymouth" and said a convoy off the Scottish east coast was attacked by reconnaissance planes.

Of the artillery action along the strait, the High Command said:

"Army batteries turned back British ships which tried to approach the channel coast last night."

(The communique did not elaborate as to whether these ships might have been attempting to land British troops for raids along the coast.)

Envoy To Eire John Kelly Dies

DUBLIN, March 10.—(CP Cable.)—John Hall Kelly, Canadian High Commissioner in Eire, died early to-day. He was 61. Mr. Kelly died in hospital after an operation.

First Canadian High Commissioner to Eire, he was appointed Dec. 29, 1939. A month later he resigned as a member of the Quebec Legislative Council—Provincial Upper House—for Granville division.

His appointment as Commissioner had followed by a few months the naming of an Irish High Commissioner to Canada.

An Irish Catholic, Mr. Kelly was born at St. Godfrey, Bonaventure County, Que. He was educated at the University of St. Joseph's College, St. Joseph, N.B., and Laval University, Quebec.

He was admitted to the Quebec Bar in 1903 and the following year was elected Liberal member for Bonaventure in the Quebec Legislative Assembly. Re-elected in 1908 and 1912, he was elevated to the Legislative Council in 1914.

Aid Bill's Passing Echoes Hope To The World

LONDON, March 10—(CP)—Britain's Labor Minister Ernest Bevin declared Sunday that the United States Senate passage of the Lend-Lease Bill with its promise of "overwhelming" American material aid to Britain would be a "psychological" blow to German's war effort.

The Greeks and Chinese, fighting wars against the Italian and Japanese members of the Tri-partite pact, hailed the measure. Officials quarters in Berlin, Rome and Tokyo were silent. Mr. Bevin, charged with the vast mobilization of British Labor in accelerated war industries, said:

"Now that the great productive machine of America is going in with the British Commonwealth to pour out airplanes, ships and guns, this overwhelming force and the knowledge in Germany that the forces they started with cannot win will create a psychological effect which will help to break down the spirit of aggression in middle Europe."

The British Broadcasting Corporation said an American professor named A. Newell (otherwise unidentified), in a German language talk to Germany from London, declared the Senate's action amounted to "an unformal declaration of war against Hitler."

Columbia Broadcasting System in New York heard a B.B.C. broadcast in English which quoted Newell as telling the Germans:

Battle Of Atlantic On

"Politely we call it leasing and lending, but actually it is our declaration of war on the economic front . . . the Battle of the Atlantic is on. America, now fully aroused, will not stand by and watch their own weapons sunk by U-boats without taking action.

"Our bridge to Britain will be protected, and it won't be too late . . . Hitler says you will be back in your homes by Christmas . . . you won't be . . . and you can't win a long war . . . American's decision last night seals the issue."

The Greek broadcast heard by CBS said Greece received the news "with deep satisfaction," and added:

Strange Politics

London, March 10 (CP)

UNITED STATES flags were broken out today in various sections of London to show British satisfaction at passage of the British aid bill in the United States senate.

The press glowed with praise for the United States, but the attitude of the average Briton in stores, government offices, and hotel lobbies was expressed in the comment, "What strange politics you have over there."

The thing that interested them was a picture featured in morning papers showing Senator Burton Wheeler, leader of the opposition to the bill, and Senators Alben Barkley and Walter George, leaders for the bill, shaking hands in a friendly fashion after weeks of heated language.

"This is all very strange to us coming on top of the Willkie-Roosevelt campaign," said a clerk. "But it probably explains the rapid advance of your country."

Vichy Protests

THE government announced that the French merchant ship Ville De Majunga had been captured by a British cruiser south of Cape Town, making 106 French merchantmen seized by the British authorities since the French-German armistice, 14 of them since the start of this year.

It was indicated the Vichy government had sent a protest to the South African government, claiming that such ships captured were inexcusable and could have no influence on the outcome of the war.

Captives From Crack Divisions Say Musso Toured Tepeleni

WITH GREEK FORCES ON THE CENTRAL ALBANIAN FRONT, March 10—(AP).—Captured Fascist officers declare Mussolini visited besieged Telepeni in an armored car last week before a renewed Greek drive which Greeks claimed smashed two of his Elite divisions.

The Greeks predicted the heavily fortified town, where the Italian 11th Army has held on grimly since last December, was about to fall under pressure of the stepped-up drive in which 2,835 prisoners were reported taken in the past three days.

At least two high fascist officials sent from government duty at Rome to the fighting line were said by Italian prisoners to have been killed or wounded in the Greek onslaught over the week-end.

That attack, following weeks of restricted activity because of unfavorable weather, was credited in Greek reports with smashing the Julia division, already once reorganized, and the Ferrara division. Both divisions were said to have been sent into the line with orders to hold out to the last.

Captured officers of the divisions said Mussolini—closely guarded and unheralded—arrived behind the line early last week and stayed at the village of Dragoti, a few miles from Tepeleni, which is 28 miles southeast of the port of Valona.

They said Mussolini's presence was made known to virtually all Italian officers in the sector and that his visit brought him within range of Greek artillery and through areas frequently bombed.

Italian Government officials reported killed or captured during the subsequent fighting were identified as the Minister of Education, Giuseppe Bottai, battalion leader in the Julia division, and the Undersecretary of Corporations, Tullio Cianett, captain of a Julia artillery battery.

Besides these, it was reported that National Councillor Pellegrini had

Nazis Try New Coup on Petain

Seek French Fleet By Embroiling Vichy, U.K. Over Blockade

LONDON, March 10.—(CP Cable.)—Hitler, balked by Marshal Petain's stubborn resistance to his attempt to gain the French fleet, may be changing his tactics to achieve his end by seeking to embroil Britain and France over the question of the British blockade, informed souces suggested to-night.

It was pointed out the recent German and Vichy propaganda line has been one of "very violent criticism of the British blockade" and the entire French press has been "bitterly anti-British" over this subject.

It was suggested the Germans would try to induce the French to send naval units from the Mediterranean to convoy foodships and if British ships intercepted them conflict might develop.

The British blockade of France has been tight except for allowing through a shipload of medical supplies from the United States.

Altogether the Vichy situation, as far as Britain is concerned, is described as "extraordinarily unsatisfactory."

This may be due to the ascendancy of Admiral Darlan. He has been anti-British since Oran and German pressure aided by Pierre Laval's intrigues may have made him more amenable than is Marshal Petain.

Admiral Darlan's importance increases as reports of Marshal Petain's failing health persist. The News of the World said an operation "often fatal to men of his age" can no longer be delayed and may force the Marshal, who will be 85 in April, to relinquish his post as head of the French State.

Admiral Darlan appears to believe that so long as he controls the navy no irreparable harm can be done to France if in exchange for various German economic concessions he offers them something in North Africa.

Claim Yugoslavia To Sign Pact With Hun, Tuesday; 'Not The Usual Axis Deal'

Belgrade Hopes To Escape Overrunning Rumania, Bulgaria Suffered; More Russians Appear Along Prut River

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, March 10—(AP).—Week-end advices to diplomatic quarters asserted that Soviet Russian troops were moving into positions along Turkey's eastern frontier—between the Black Sea and the Caspian—as a German troop thrust into Greece, and perhaps Turkey, was feared imminent.

At the same time reports circulated that Yugoslavia would send Foreign Minister Alkander Sincar-Markovic to Berlin or Berchtesgaden tomorrow to sign a friendship treaty with Germany.

This would mean Yugoslavia's alignment in the German sphere but would not place the country in the same class with Rumania, Hungary, Slovakia and Bulgaria as adherents to the military alliance of Germany, Italy and Japan.

The reports of Russian troops movements in the Caucasus, coinciding with the strengthening of Red army forces along the Prut River frontier or German-occupied Rumania, were said to reflect the Moscow Government's desire to make sure of Russian defences if Germany should strike at Turkey.

Concentrations on Turkey's Asiatic border also might mean a Russian effort to bluff Germany out of a stab at the strategic Dardanelles, some sources said, by suggesting that the Red army would come to Turkey's aid in such a case

ROME, March 10—(AP).—Stefani, Italian news and propaganda agency, reported today the beginning of spring-like weather in Albania, which is expected here to bring a big Italian offensive against the Greeks.

Hundreds of Italian bombing planes were said to be pounding the Greek lines with bombs of all sizes in one of the biggest air attacks on that front thus far. The agency said this air offensive began two days ago.

The Italian High Command claimed four Gloster type (British) planes were shot down in air fights yesterday as "our numerous air formations intensely bombed and machine-gunned artillery emplacements, motor trucks, tent encampments and enemy troops."

(An R.A.F. communique said no British planes were lost in operations in support of the Greek army).

Capt. George D'Argenlieu, officer-priest of the French navy who led the "Free French" landing party at Dakar and was wounded there, arrived on special mission. He will explain to French-Canadians and Frenchmen living in Canada the objectives of Gen. Charles de Gaulle's movement.

Brig. Armand Smith, commander of an infantry brigade in the 1st Canadian Division, returned from special treatment after an automobile accident. His condition forced him to abandon command in the field but he expressed the expectation he would be serving in an administrative capacity in about a month.

Col. Edmund Blais, who gave up his New York job to rejoin the 22nd Regiment of Quebec, came back with "the war over" as far as he is concerned. A heart attack forced him out of service while he was in charge of officer training for Canadian non-commissioned soldiers in Britain.

Capt. D'Argenlieu had little to say about his Dakar experience. But it was recalled that it was he who, though wounded, stood erect in a small boat under machine-gun fire and directed the withdrawal of the Free French landing party when it was fired on.

He had been taken prisoner at the time of the fall of France but eluded captors by leaping from a car. He crossed the channel to Britain with some French naval ratings.

Deny Churchill's Daughter Killed

LONDON, March 10.—(CP)—A report circulated in London today that Sarah Churchill Oliver, daughter of Prime Minister Churchill, had been killed in a recent bombing, but her husband's secretary said later: "She is quite all right."

She was reported en route to Bradford to appear at a concert.

Mrs. Oliver, 27, an actress, was married to Vic Oliver, American comedian, on Christmas Eve, 1936, in New York, where she made her debut on the United States stage in that year.

The Downing Street press bureau also announced in referring to the report of Mrs. Oliver's death:

"There was a rumor to that effect, but there is no truth in it."

The false report was circulated by a neutral embassy. First attempts to confirm or deny it met failure. A call to the press officer at Downing street was fruitless. Later, however, both Downing street and Oliver's secretary said the report was true.

Local controls in shipyard areas will act as clearing houses for these short notice transfers of men. They will operate under a central committee representing the Admiralty, the ship-building industry, the ministry of labor, employers and trades union.

Dunville Nurse

Dressed in the light blue dress uniform of the Nursing Sisters, the 23-year-old Miss Stevens moved about the debris binding gaping wounds with table cloths and clothing and putting broken limbs in makeshift splints.

Miss Stevens, who was not injured herself, had visited the place with Canadian friends, including Nursing Sister Thelma Stewart of Toronto, Lieut. J. C. Cunie of Sarnia, Ont., and Lieut. J. D. Wright, also of Sarnia, who was killed.

When the bomb fell Miss Stewart, who was injured, and Lieut. Wright were dancing, but the others, not liking the song "Oh Johnny" that was being played by the orchestra, were sitting out at a balcony table.

"The crash sounded like a bunch of firecrackers and stunned me for a few minutes," Miss Stevens said. "The whole place filled with smoke fumes. I thought at first it was gas."

Lieut. Wright shielded Miss Stewart as soon as he heard the bomb screaming.

"He died protecting the Canadian Nurse," said Miss Stevens.

Miss Stewart, who is 23, suffered a hand injury and is expected to be released from hospital in a day or two.

Miss Stevens is not a nurse who deals with blood wounds every day. Along with Miss Stewart, she is a physiotherapist at a Canadian military hospital, but she pitched in working desperately and nervelessly with an army doctor, whose name she did not learn.

She had no thought of doing anything heroic—"I did what any Canadian Nurse would be proud to do."

Her uniform tattered and white-starched cuffs blotted with blood, she ministered to the injured for more than an hour as Lieut. Cunie moved ahead in the glimmering light, seeking injured under the debris. Cunie found Lieut. Wright's body, made sure that Nurse Stewart and other Canadians reached safety, and then walked through the destruction pouring champagne over wounds as an antiseptic.

"Jack and those who helped were as cool as a Canadian Spring breeze," said Miss Stevens. "They worked with might and main. It seemed to give me courage too."

Loses Part of Finger

TORONTO, March 10 (CP) — Nursing Sister Thelma Stewart, injured in Saturday's bombing of the Cafe de Paris in London, suffered the loss of part of one finger according to word received here by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Stewart. She also suffered a back injury, "probably slight," they were informed.

Nursing Sister Stewart, aged 23, left Toronto in November with another physiotherapist, Nursing Sister Helen Stevens of Dunnville, Ont., for overseas. They were the first physiotherapists to go to England for service with the Canadian army.

AN ELECTRIC POOL

Dave White's fox terrier will walk around all puddles of water on the street and road for the next few weeks. He has a fear of them that is well founded though unusual. The dog stuck his paw in a pool of water on the sidewalk in front of the Quaker Oats Sunday, and suddenly let out a howl of pain. On the return journey he walked into the same puddle and was flipped completely off his feet. His actions and condition attracted the attention of his owner, who found the pool of water charged with electricity, probably from the light circuit on the bridge. Now the dog carefully skirts all puddles.—McG.

Stukas Show Up On Rhodes Threaten Turks

ISTANBUL, March 10.—Appearance of German Stuka dive-bombers on the Island of Rhodes within sight of Turkey's southern coast and arrival of more Nazi troops at the Thracian frontier last night hastened wartime measures bringing Turkey close to a state of emergency.

Air-raid tests were ordered for all civilian centres and preparations were understood to have been made to evacuate, in event of war, the entire 740,000 civilians of Istanbul, Turkey's metropolis on the Dardanelles, barely 150 miles east of where Adolf Hitler's troops are massing.

The arrival of squadrons of Stukas on Rhodes in the Italian Dodecanese, perhaps for attacks on any British expeditionary force attempting to land in Turkey or British warships trying to move through the Dardanelles into the Black Sea, injected fresh tension into the Turkish situation.

Watch For Defeatism.

The numbers of bombers based on Rhodes, seventy-five miles west of the Italian airbase of Castelorizzo which British forces seized recently and held for a few days, was not disclosed here.

The Government ordered a series of defence measures as the semi-official newspaper Ulus, in an apparently inspired article, warned the Turkish people and particularly those of Istanbul to be "watchful against provocation and defeatism."

Turkey and Britain agreed, informed diplomatic quarters said, that it was in the interests of both countries to keep Turkey out of war as long as possible and this

Chinese circles in Hong Kong hailed the measure and said any action tending to fortify Britain's position probably will make Japan think twice before embarking on international "toe-treading adventures."

Clear Way to Support

In Chungking, official Chinese circles said the end of the Senate legislative battle freed American armed forces to establish closer relations with the "Allies," and to lend concrete support to any part of the Globe.

The Rome radio in the first axis comment on the bill late Sunday took the view that United States aid would be slow in forthcoming, and that passage of the bill was a foregone conclusion.

"And for this reason the Axis powers already have taken appropriate measures," the commentator claimed in a broadcast heard by CBS.

In Australia Acting Prime Minister A. W. Fadden said the bill is a sign that "our American cousins are a part of us," while the press said it was one of the most important events of the war.

Die At Dance In Fierce Bomb Raid

Scores Others Killed As Hitler Opens Spring Drive

LONDON, March 10 (CP Cable) —Three members of the Canadian army were killed and one is missing as the result of Saturday night's bombing of the Cafe de Paris. Two officers and a Canadian Nursing Sister were injured.

Capt. Phil Seagram of Toronto, Lieut. J. D. Wright of Sarnia, Ont., and Sgt. R. A. Bradshaw died when a bomb exploded on the dance floor. Cpl. G. W. Quinn of Toronto, who is known planned to accompany Bradshaw, is missing.

Lieut. R. R. Young of Toronto, Capt. R. G. Robarts of London, Ont., and Nursing Sister Thelma Stewart of Toronto are in hospital with injuries.

Lieut. J. C. Cluny of Sarnia, Ont., and Nursing Sister H. M. Stevens of Dunnville, Ont., members of the same party, were not injured. They did heroic work treating casualties and helping extricate dead and injured.

Spring Assault On

LONDON, March 10 (CP)—The scream of sirens warned of Nazi raiders over London in mid-morning today after the heaviest weekend of air attacks since the fire bomb raid of last Dec. 29.

One daylight raider machine-gunned the streets of an East Coast town, then was driven off by anti-aircraft fire from a ship it attempted to attack off the coast.

Rescue crews dug into the bomb-strewn debris of a three-storey London building, looking for two fire watchers believed on the roof when the bomb hit.

Another explosive damaged a theatre last night. Four policemen were killed in a hit on a station house. Another building was destroyed but 150 persons, mostly women and children, escaped unhurt from a shelter in the basement.

Some Londoners regarded the quickened pace of the raids, concentrated on the capital for two suc-

Two Complaints

Ottawa, March 10 (CP)

THE Royal Canadian Mounted Police laid two complaints under the Defence of Canada Regulations against the Citizen Publishing Company Limited.

J. Coldwell, C.C.F. House Leader, referred to in the House of Commons, charging it was "subversive."

One of the complaints laid today against the paper charged that the editorial, in part, was prejudicial to recruiting and the other that it was prejudicial to the safety of the state and the efficient prosecution of the war.

Expect F.D.R. To Sign By Wednesday Start Flood Of Aid

WASHINGTON, March 10—(CP).—The Senate late Saturday approved the lease-lend bill authorizing President Roosevelt to mobilize the industrial capacity of the United States and throw its products into Britain's war against aggression. The vote, coming after three weeks of oratory and dispute, was 60 to 31.

The measure went back to the House of Representatives, which has already approved it, with a request that the House concur in a series of Administration-approved amendments which the Senate added. All indications were that the House would agree to do so by Tuesday—Wednesday at the latest—with the bill then going immediately to the White House for President Roosevelt's signature.

Administration leaders indicated that the program of assisting Britain with war supplies would begin on a large scale the moment the President signs the measure. From other sources there were reports that a $10,000,000,000 three-year program is being drafted.

While Administration leaders arranged to speed final Congressional action, opponents announced to-day a nation-wide speaking campaign aimed at arousing public sentiment against possible involvement of the United States in war.

Senator Burton Wheeler (Dem., Montana), one of the leaders of the opposition to the measure, said he had asked colleagues of like views to meet at his office early this week to map an extensive speaking drive.

British naval circles said that the speed and armament of the Ramb I made her capable of heavy damage on shipping.

The War Today

By J. F. SANDERSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Germany's Balkan diplomatic offensive appears to have been at least a partial failure, for she has not taken Yugoslavia into the Axis nor frightened Turkey into a promise of neutrality. Furthermore, Greece is still fighting and winning victories over Italy.

Failure of the German diplomats and clearing weather have brought a renewed air onslaught on Britain, an onslaught staged by low-flying bombers, difficult for anti-aircraft gunners to hit.

Reasons for the diplomatic failure were not clear. Hitherto Germany had forced country after country to do its bidding, ever since the conquest of the Low Countries and Norway. This time, however, efforts to coerce Yugoslavia into the Axis resulted only in a non-aggression pact and efforts to "look after" the interests of Turkey brought a retort that Turkey could look after her own.

It was significant that Germany launched its diplomatic pressure in full force at a time when the British Foreign Secretary, Anthony Eden, was visiting the Middle East, going from Cairo to Athens and then returning to the Egyptian metropolis.

It became increasingly apparent that Mr. Eden had arrived in time to spike the Germany talk offensive after it had obtained a bloodless surrender from an already pro-German Bulgaria.

The comparative settlement of the Balkan situation looked unfortunate for Mussolini. For one thing it spoiled an apparent German plan to rescue his Albanian forces by launching a pincers move through Bulgaria and Yugoslavia simultaneously, a move which would have engaged a large Greek or Anglo-Greek force on the frontier of Thrace and Macedonia. Some such development may yet occur, but it appears to be held up for the moment.

Lummiss—Boyd

MARMORA, Mar. 10—(ENS). — At Grace United Church parsonage, Napanee, on Friday, February 28, the marriage of Thelma, daughter of Mr. Alexander Boyd of Belmont Township, to George, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Lummiss, of Marmora, took place. Rev. Mr. McLellan was the officiating minister.

The young couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. John Gray (nee Jean Boyd), whose wedding took place that morning. After a short motor trip to Ottawa, the newlyweds returned to their new apartment over the Dominion Bank, Marmora.

Ray—Spittle

BONARLAW, Mar. 10—(ENS). — An interesting wedding took place in England on February 15, 1941, when Miss Doris Spittle, England, became the bride of L.-Cpl. Stanley Ray, Canadian Provost Corps, No. 7 Company, Canadian Active Service Force, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Ray, Springbrook, Ontario.

Stephenson—Donnelly

A wedding of local interest took place at the parsonage of the Sydenham Street United Church, Brantford, on Saturday at 4 p.m., the bride, Kathryn Victoria, younger daughter of the late Mr. S. Donnelly, and Mrs. Donnelly, now of Kirkland Lake, having lived until recent years at Millbrook, where she was a popular member of the younger set in school, social and other activities. The groom, Albert Howard Stephenson, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Stephenson of Cathcart, was teller in the local branch of the Bank of Toronto for some time.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. D. C. Amos, and the bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Lieut. Robert B. Shaw of Cornwall, looked attractive in a street length dress of soldier blue, with matching hat and black accessories, with corsage of dusky pink roses.

Mrs. Kenneth Terryberry, of Brantford, the groom's sister, was matron of honor, her dress being of Air Force blue, street length, blue hat and accessories, and corsage of dark crimson Briarcliffe roses. Mr. Kenneth Terryberry was the groomsman.

The reception following the ceremony at the parsonage, was held in the Barbara Kent Tea Room, Brantford, where the bride's table was centred by a handsome three-storey wedding cake and effectively arranged with white candles in silver holders and spring flowers.

The groom's gift to the matron of honor was an initialled gold compact, and to the groomsman a watch chain in yellow gold. After the reception Mr. and Mrs. Stephenson left by motor on their wedding trip and on their return will reside at Welland.

Give Biography Of Dr. Dan Norman, D.D.

The life of Dr. Dan Norman, D.D., one of the first to use lantern slides to propogate the Christian message, was sketched by Mrs. D. J. McLellan, guest speaker, at the March meeting of Group C., George Street W.M.S., held at the church parsonage, with Mrs. H. L. Roberts as hostess, and Mrs. C. Renaud in the chair. Mrs. W. Dorrington presided for the devotional period, of which the theme was "Christianity in the Home." A gem on the creed of Christian living was contributed by Mrs. Schaus, the bible reading by Mrs. R. Parnell, and a sacred hymn was softly played by Mrs. A. B. Burrows, pianist. Mrs. Pitt-Smith, guest soloist, was heard in "Take Time to be Holy." Thanks to the hostess was expressed by Mrs. S. Armstrong.

Ladies' Aid Plans War Work Tea

Arrangements for a war work tea on March 26 were made at a meeting of St. Paul's Ladies' Aid on Friday in the Guild Room of the church. Mrs. W. A. Burrell, Bethune street, was appointed social convener. Miss Mary Ross of the Victorian Order of Nurses addressed the meeting on the duties and aims of the Order, established in 1897 to do bedside nursing in homes and educate the public to rules which provide a basis for health.

Mrs. R. Pulkinghorn read verses of scripture, and prayer was led by the president, Mrs. James Dutton. Mrs. Board was heard in a vocal solo with Mrs. W. Taylor at the piano.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, March 11

A RATHER fluctuating state of affairs is read from the predominant astral figures. There may be a strongly disruptive and disintegrating influence that may spell disaster, even ruin, unless handled judiciously and on sound principles of integrity and honor. Snap judgments would be fatal, as well as rash and impulsive conduct of affairs that might possibly thrive by the use of finesse, strategy or through the sympathetic understanding of elders, friends or well-disposed organizations.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those Whose Birthday it is should be on the threshold of a year of sudden uprooting or upheaval, with probably unusual circumstances to cope with. This should be done in an honest and forthright manner since any attempt at cleverness, duplicity, or "easy methods" would prove disastrous. Tact, sound judgment and the cooperation and understanding of relatives, good friends or superiors would prove more constructive and profitable. Be careful with writings and also in travel. Shun impulsive moves.

A child born on this day should be clever, bright and ingenuous. It may be excitable, highstrung, erratic. It may have the sympathetic support of its friends and relatives as well as superiors.

WE . . . NOTICED

....Next to red shoes for every hour of the day, stoles are the most interest spring fashion news in accessories. New York designers do them in all furs and in wool embroidered with colored stones in floral patterns.

✧ ✧ ✧

....New and interesting ideas are reflected in free cape-type sleeves, sometimes pleated. This type of sleeve was often allied with a round shoulder treatment.

✧ ✧ ✧

....In place of small patterned prints, a spring collection gives prominence to dots, dotted costumes, also dotted dresses with solid color jackets, with larger prints reserved for interesting appliques, to make a gay spot of color.

DO YOU KNOW . . .

Pails of zinc or tin which have become shabby should be painted in any bright color. Clean thoroughly first—if very dirty scrub with a paste paraffin and bath-brick and rinse in very hot water. Two coats of paint and one of enamel ensure good wear. If the pail is filled with cold water after each application of paint it will dry more quickly.

✧ ✧ ✧

✧ ✧ ✧

To help prevent cold contagion, all dishes and silver and other utensils used by the person having the cold should be washed separately. Wash in plenty of hot water and soapsuds, and rinse in scalding water.

Branch Notes

ST. JAMES, EMILY

The regular meeting of the St. James' A.Y.P.A. was held in the parish hall with the president leading in prayer. After the business discussion the program "Back to School" was enjoyed by all. Reading by Helen Franks. The story of the Alphabet. Quiz contest, Nelson Davis and John Franks. Contest, On the New Testament. The rest of the evening took the form of a spelling bee. This proved very interesting. The meeting was closed with prayer.

The next meeting will be literary and dramatic.

ST. GEORGE'S BRANCH.

The monthly business meeting was held on Thursday evening with the president, B. Curtis, in the chair.

The conveners for the next three months were elected as follows: Social, M. Welsh and E. Kelly; Worship, K. Gibson; Literary, Mel Holden and Ivan Pearson; Program, H. Falls and K. Gibson. It was decided to send Sunday School papers to four children of the Sunday School by post.

A shield is being made bearing the A.Y.P.A. crest and the names of the boys from the organization who are on active service.

The Lenten rally will be at St. John's on Wednesday, March 19. There will be an executive meeting on Wednesday, March 12.

McKinstry-Behan Vows Pledged

A charming wedding took place at seven-thirty Saturday evening, March 8th, at the home of Mrs. Elizabeth McKinstry, 6 Orpington Road, when her younger son, Mr. Clifford Irlam McKinstry of Ottawa, was united in marriage to Miss Eileen Mildred Behan, daughter of Mr. Joseph and the late Mrs. Behan of Maryland, Quebec. Rev. P. W. Craik of St. James' United Church performed the ceremony, and Mrs. E. Kitney, A.T.C.M. played the wedding music.

The bride wore a street-length dress of sweetheart blue with small matching hat, and black accessories. Her corsage was of Briarcliff roses. She was attended by Mrs. Eric McKinstry, wearing an air force blue dress, with black accessories, and corsage of Talisman roses. Mr. Eric McKinstry was groomsman for his brother.

At the reception following, the bridegroom's mother received wearing a dress of maroon crepe with accessories to match, and corsage of Talisman roses.

British Women In The News

Sticking to their job: cheerful waitresses in many London teashops sleep in basement shelters on premises, ready to serve breakfasts to Tube shelterers.

DOROTHY DIX

✧ ✧ ✧

Dear Dorothy Dix.—We are a group of college boys who need your help very much. I guess the trouble is we have grown up and the girls we have always gone with are still nitwit kids. And we are dead tired of 'em. We enjoyed them for a time, but now this type of girl frankly nauseates us. These girls are high school graduates, but they came through with perfect blanks. All they know is how to cuddle and kiss and muss up our hair. Can you think of anything quite as disgusting for a whole evening's entertainment? We want to go with the more intelligent class of girls who can fill the evening with something besides goo-goo, but our old girls and their parents smother us with their attentions and we don't know the best way out. Please show us the exit.—The Ten Group.

Answer.—Thanks, boys, for your letter. It revives my faith in the youth of the land, for I had about come to the conclusion that all that modern boys thought about was kissing, petting and necking, and that they passed up any girl who had two lobes to her brain and any decent code of conduct or serious aim in life.

Being of the old-fashioned school that regarded lovemaking and kissing as an occasional occupation to give variety and flavor to life instead of being a perpetual chore, I have often wondered how any intelligent boy could stand the grind of handing out the same line of soft talk to every girl he met: how he could stand telling every little flossie he saw how beautiful and wonderful she was and wondering where she had been all this time, and so on and so forth. And I marveled that any human stomach could stand being gorged on a never-ending diet of greasy and nauseating lipstick.

No Longer Kissing Bugs

So it is heartening to learn that even a few college boys are revolting at being kissing bugs and are thinking of forsaking the Dumb Doras for girls who have something inside their heads as well as outside.

Of course, you are aware that this is a man's world, and one of the greatest advantages that men have over women is that they can choose whatever companionship they wish. They can go with clever girls, or dull ones. They can date girls with high principles, or girls with none.

They can go with girls who can stimulate their ambition and help them making something of themselves, or girls who will drag them down to failure. Whereas a girl has no such privilege of picking out her boy companions. She has to take what she can get, or go without.

So it is up to you to pick and choose your girl friends, and believe me, it is far more important to you than you realize. For, although we do not talk about women's sacred influence as they used to do in the Victorian era, it exists just the same, and what kind of a man you will make, and whether you will be a success or a failure in life depends largely upon the type of girl with whom you associate in your formative years.

Pick Your Companions

If Sally studies and reads; if she talks to you about new books and what's happening in the world, you will have to be on your tiptoes to keep up with her. If she is going to make something of herself, she will light the fires of ambition in your soul and you will be ashamed to let a girl have more backbone and grit and intelligence than you have. But if you spend your time hanging about little philanderers, you are sunk. You will never amount to a row of pins.

I admit that it is hard for a man at any time of his life between the cradle and the grave, to break away from a woman who wants him and who thinks she has a claim upon him.

If he undertakes to do it gradually, he will never do it, she will always pull him back. If he tries to argue about it, she will kiss his lips shut. The only way it can be done is just by breaking the affair off swiftly, cleanly and definitely. And at once.

✧ ✧ ✧

If Love Is Waning, "Doll" Yourself Up

Dear Miss Dix — What does a woman do when she knows her husband is tired of her?—A Reader.

✧ ✧ ✧

Answer.—Different women solve the problem in different ways. Some women meet it with floods of tears and reproaches. They tell their husbands what good wives they have been; how they have given them the best years of their lives; how they have borne them children and pinched pennies and cooked, and washed and sewed and darned for them, and they sob out that this is a poor return for all their devotion.

When other women find out that their husbands are tired of them, they get mad, take their children and go back home to mother and sue their husbands for divorce and alimony.

When still other women find out that their husbands are tired of them, they go on a diet, and buy themselves a lot of new clothes, and take the whole works at the beauty shops and get busy trying to refascinate their husbands and turn them into lovers once more.

Whether any one of these recipes for regaining a husband's affections is effective, it is impossible to say. For while love is an easy thing to keep, it is a hard thing to find again once you have lost it.

Possibly there are husbands who are floated back to their wives again on floods of tears, but I doubt it. Most men fly from a weeping woman as they would from the plague. And there is nothing in the knowledge that if they go home, they will be met by a wife filled with righteous indignation, and reproaches that will turn their feet in the right direction.

Nor is there anything in divorce proceedings calculated to revive a man's tsate for his wife. And, alas, the wife who turns herself from a sloven into a siren does it too late. She should have bought the pink negligees and quit nagging before she got on her husband's nerves.

It is hard, nay impossible, to kindle dead ashes, but you can keep the fire going if you will feed it with fuel.

No Cure for Dumb Man.

Dear Dorothy Dix.—I have been married for 18 years to one of these great silent men and, believe it or not, it has been 100 per cent failure. He is a good man. He provides comfortably. He is not grouchy or ill natured. He loves me. But he has NOTHING to say to me, and I crave conversation, affectionate by preference, but any kind of talk just so it is talk.

We sometimes take trips together and he will drive for hours and not say one word. If I say: "Why don't you talk to me?" he will be so surprised and sweet, and answer: "Why, there was nothing I had to say." So then we go on driving along in silence. My husband is nice looking, six feet two tall, good disposition, if you like living with a dummy, but, Sister, I would live with a magpie and love it after the years I have spent with him in silence.

—Disgusted.

Answer.—Alas, I fear there is no cure for a man who was just born dumb. All you can do is to turn on the radio, and that is jumping out of the frying pan into the fire.

—Dorothy Dix.

Dinners Of The Week . .

By MARY MOORE

(Special note: These menus are actually prepared and used in our own home. This week's ideas are a little more economical than usual. We are on a budget and having had more guests last week than we expected we have to stretch this week's allowance to make up for our indulgences.)

SUNDAY

Pot Roast of Beef
(Square end of Rump)
Whole Boiled Potatoes
Mashed Turnips with Chopped Parsley
Shredded Lettuce and Mayonnaise
Tomato Jelly Salad
Pumpkin Pie Coffee

MONDAY

Shredded Carrots Mixed with Canned Corn
Fruit Cup Coffee

NOTE: The two-crust meat pie I think is an innovation of my mother's: grind the leftover Pot roast and add a few finely chopped raw potatoes and onions and salt and pepper and enough gravy or water to make it moist enough for a pie filling. Put between two crusts just as you would an apple pie and bake at 500 deg. for 15 minutes, and at 350 for 25 to 30 minutes. Serve with Hot Chili Sauce.

TUESDAY (Hasty)

Eggs Benedict (see note)
Canned Green Peas
Canned Plums and Cookies
Coffee

NOTE: Eggs Benedict consist of placing bacon or ham fried, on toast or bath bun, placing fried or poached egg on ham or bacon and covering all with Hollandaise or Rich Egg Sauce.

WEDNESDAY (Vegetarian)

Boiled Buttered Onions
Succotash Piquante (Lima Bean and Corn Casserole—see note)
Cabbage and Parsley Slaw
Steamed Carrot Pudding
Hard Sauce Coffee

NOTE: For the Succotash you need 5 small spring onions or shallots finely sliced, 3 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, ; cup lima bean stock, 1½ cups cooked lima beans, 1½ cups cooked or fresh corn, ¾ teaspoon salt, dash of black pepper, 1 tablespoon finely chopped parsley. Fry onions in butter until yellow but not brown, stir in flour, add bean stock gradually and cook 2 minutes, stirring frequently. Add lima beans, corn, salt and pepper, and simmer about 10 minutes. Add parsley and serve.

THURSDAY

Turkish Pilaf with Lamb (see note)
Boiled Cabbage
Baked Apples Coffee

NOTE: Pilaf is well known to most of you—to those who have never made it; parch raw rice and onions, in butter until golden, add 1 can tomatoes, cook until rice is tender, add chopped cooked lamb if desired. One-third to ½ cup rice, 1 to 8 cups chopped onions, salt and pepper, amounts are all optional.

FRIDAY

Homemade Jellied Veal Loaf
(See Wednesday's Vegetable Dinner if this is a Fast Day for you)
Homefried Potatoes

Wool For Sweden

Heavy shipments of wool from Argentine to Sweden via Vladivostok are being made weekly for exporters are receiving more and more attractive propositions for shipments especially wool and hides. All wool being shipped is being bought through the Swedish Government for the State Reserve Supply Board but Allied authorities are pointing to Sweden's close trading association with Germany and believe the ultimate benefit of these and other "via Vladivostok" shipments redound to the benefit of the Nazis.

Then there is the price being paid for this wool. London newspapers report that as high an embarkation tariff as $500 a bale is being charged. It is only logic that such charge would be shouldered by countries at war or desperately in need of the products.

Cordell Hull, Secretary of State for the United States recently told Great Britain when she protested the exports to the Soviet Union that they were so insufficient they would be of no great military value to Germany. This also must be true of Argentine but when all these are put together with Germany getting wool and hides from the Argentine and other products from the United States, products which she is desperately in need of they all add up to the sum total that this aid is only prolonging the war.

The Price Of Carelessness

Figures that tragically illustrate the carelessness of many motorists show that last year in Canada there were 346 accidents involving motor vehicles at railway crossings, resulting in death to 133 persons and injury to 458.

The figures speak for themselves. Everyone of those accidents was caused because some one was negligent or reckless; because some one failed to exercise elementary common sense. Railway crossings are all marked and their presence should be apparent to every driver who is keeping a proper lookout. Some of them admittedly are what are commonly called "bad" crossings. Visibility is limited and it is difficult for motorists to get a view down the tracks. But the very fact that these conditions exist should make all drivers careful in their approach. If they cannot see properly along the right-of-way then clearly their responsibility is to stop and make sure before crossing.

Because drivers did not stop, look and listen, 133 persons lost their lives last year, a ghastly penalty for carelessness. Some of the motorists thought they could beat the train over the crossing, others argued to themselves that there would be no trains coming along at that particular time and found their mistake too late, and still more didn't do much thinking but blundered out on the crossing at the wrong time.

A record is kept every year of the number of accidents at protected crossings. The list of drivers who manage to get into trouble at these points despite bells and wigwags and watchmen is surprisingly large. And serves to show that even where the railways have tried to protect the motoring fraternity from its own carelessness there are drivers who are negligent enough to get into accidents nevertheless.

$195 a Week—Minimum

Girls who are hoping for the thrill of having diamond rings slipped over significant fingers probably paid no attention to a news item from New York this week that the members of the diamond cutters' union have just received an increase of 60 per cent. in their wages. It seems the war has caused a shortage of these union men, and their minimum pay has been elevated to a range of from $120 to $195 for a 35-hour week.

The diamond cutters are now the highest paid craftsmen in the United States, if that is any comfort to the men who buy at least one diamond in their lives, and, although the news did not glance back at their past, the beginning of the art of gem cutting is lost in antiquity. It may have been developed in Scriptural times, for diamonds were one of the twelve precious stones in the High Priest's breastplate.

The Gem Cutters' Guild was a close corporation in the thirteenth century, and if further evidence is required to indicate that people and their customs and desires do not change much through the ages it may be pointed out that there are crude stones in the Cairo museum that trace back forty-five centuries before Christ.

This present-day Diamond Cutters' Protective Union arouses a passing curiosity as to how it selects its apprentices. It sounds like an extremely exclusive craft association, and the man who gets a card in that union should not have to worry about such things as fuel and rent on a minimum wage of $195 a week. You wonder, too, how the brilliance of diamonds was discovered, because the crude stones are dull things. Through the years experiments probably established certain facts in splitting and faceting and polishing diamonds which have become the basis of the knowledge and art of these enviable craftsmen. They do not often make the headlines, but when they do they make most other workers feel that fate has treated them shabbily.

It Leaves a Gap

From Queen's Park comes the intimation of possible legislation to take care of part of the trouble caused by automobile owners who do not carry insurance. It is proposed to levy $2 from every car-owner who has no insurance and the money collected in this way will go into a fund out of which persons who receive personal injury as the result of the negligence of drivers who are not protected by insurance will be helped. These drivers in turn would be expected to repay to the fund on a time payment plan the amount paid out or else forfeit their right to drive.

The plan has merit but it does not go far enough. It does not touch at all the problem of property damage caused by financially irresponsible motorists. Any man who has enough money to pay for his markers and driver's permit can still trundle an ancient wreck out into the highway and ruin a good car and leave the owner of the damaged machine holding the bag.

There are thousands of dilapidated cars running around Ontario highways, carrying no insurance and driven by persons who have no means to pay for any damage they may 'cause. Court judgments against such persons are not worth the paper they are written on because there are no assets from which to collect. A bad accident, of course, eliminates the delinquent because he cannot drive again until he has put up evidence of financial responsibility. But that is not much solace to the car-owner whose good machine has been ruined by the carelessness of some person who is utterly unable to pay for the damage he has caused.

The proposed law will help the person who has suffered personal injury and to that extent is good. But it still leaves the bigger end of the problem unsolved. It fails to help take care of the thousands who persist in driving without any insurance and who do not fear a suit for damages because they realize they have nothing to lose anyway.

Farm Radio Forum

Some city folks may read with envy a story in today's Examiner by a Cavan township girl of a series of meetings this winter at the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. William Seymour. They are linked with a farm radio forum, broadcast from Toronto, and their purpose is frankly to stimulate rural thought on present-day problems of farmers and their industry. The domestic forum at the Seymour home has been typical of many others in the townships adjoining Peterborough.

The Examiner's correspondent creates an attractive impression not only of intelligent discussions, but also of a glowing stimulus to community spirit, of warm hospitality and sociability, in the most wholesome conditions, that is bound to have a compensating effect beyond calculating as the series approach their end. The old-fashioned winter persisted in filling the roads with snow, and the visiting members had to tramp through drifts in the bright moonlight. One of the rewards of this experience is hinted by the writer in the comment, "we found that difficulties overcome together cemented a deeper friendship."

Credit the radio with the bringing together of these farm people in an ideal atmosphere of home and community life. The automobile tends to disperse them, to create vague and dubiously profitable interests elsewhere, to distract the younger generation from home life and influence. Whoever proposed the Farm Radio Forum was happily inspired, and this winter's experience is likely to ensure its continuance when the snow goes and comes again.

The social value of these home meetings has been almost sufficient return in itself, but it is altogether likely that new and helpful ideas have been sown by these broadcasts and discussions which may bring other rewards. A recent radio subject dealt with health services, involving the protection of health insurance and state medicine, practical aspects which farmers are going to think about between times this summer. For the farm and its operation were never more dependent upon the health of its owner than at present, and the shadow of the possibility of illness or accident must leave feelings of uneasiness in the midst of the busy routine of farm work. If modern health services have something to offer that is adequately protective and of moderate cost, there is going to be more enquiry about it as a result of this recent forum discussion.

They Will All Come

The prophecy of Hon. Thane Campbell that there will be a record influx of American tourists into Canada this year is the sort of news Canadians can absorb with a great deal of satisfaction. While Mr. Campbell's prediction may be in some measure a case of wistful thinking yet the evidence all points to the accuracy of his forecast. The tourist business fell off badly last summer, largely because of the utterly unwarranted stories that were circulated across the border of war conditions, restrictions and regulations in Canada. Many of the things that were said were ridiculous but unfortunately they were believed and although strenuous efforts were made to acquaint our American friends of the real facts in the case, the attempt did not quite catch up with the crop of stories in time to take the sting out of them.

Happily there is little reason this year to fear the effect of similar yarns. The fact that in spite of the rumor-factory millions of Americans did come into Canada as usual last summer and found the fishing just as good, the scenery just as beautiful, the people just as hospitable and friendly, and the restrictions on their movements just as non-existent as they had ever been, should completely change the situation this year. When those visitors of last summer went home they were able to paint the real picture of Canada in war time for the benefit of their friends and neighbors and to show them that the reports that had been so widely circulated were sheer nonsense.

That word-of-mouth advertising is bound to be reflected in a bigger influx of tourists. Many of them who wanted to come to Canada last summer remained away because of absurd stories. They all know now that the yarns were absurd and they will be heading north when the summer playtime arrives.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Italians are being warned not to talk. Fascist leaders are probably afraid the enemy will learn which way the Italian armies are going to run next.

The Senate has adjourned for three week but somehow or other the affairs of Canada will go along just about the same as usual during the recess.

The Nazis have raided London by air 500 times. And still the cheery message, "This is London calling," is heard daily from the centre of the Empire.

The export of eggs from Canada to Britain is reported high. It is to be hoped the eggs are not in the same condition.

Toronto officials are budgeting for the heaviest drinking this year in the history of the city. And that in the face of constant appeals to save and lend to the government.

No new taxation is to be levied by the provincial budget, Premier Hepburn intimates. If there are any reductions the folk who are predicting an early election will have their worst fears confirmed.

Col. George Drew spoke to a Toronto club on "Canada at the Crossroads" which serves to remind us that the last time Canada was at the crossroads Mitch Hepburn ran a truck right through the traffic signals.

TO LONDON

Your time of travail drags, but does not dim
Your splendid vision of a world made free
From all this evil and fierce cruelty
Born of mad ego and sadistic whim.
Through searing days (their like unseen in hell!)
You have not faltered in your firm resolve;
Instead, a surer purpose you evolve
Which ruthless Nazi wrath can never quell.

Far friends, long watching with admiring eyes,
Now share your purpose with increasing measure,
And reach to aid you in your brave endeavor
To halt the vicious onslaught from the skies
Of your malignant foe, who grows at length
More baffled by your calm and splendid strength.

Japanese Wary About Adding Orient Enemies

By CHARLES P. STEWART

THAT Uncle Sam should fully consider and be prepared against every possible danger to his Pacific interests which may develop from Japanese activity in the Orient is disputed by none.

Josef Stalin

Nevertheless, American observers of the situation, observers of long experience in the Far East, from residence there and familiarity with its psychology and politics, incline to the view that the Japs will be pretty cautious as to precipitating an out-and-out fight with the United States and Britain.

It's a recognized fact that they doubtless think this country would be seriously handicapped by having to wage a campaign at such long range. And England is preoccupied in its own more immediate vicinity.

Australia is tolerably formidable, however, and its recent strengthening of the British garrison at Singapore can't have failed to impress Tokyo. Indeed, Japanese have said it did.

Waive all that, though.

Isn't it extremely noticeable how hard the mikado's ambassador in Moscow has been trying to frame up some sort of a Russo-Japanese non-aggression pact?—a pact guaranteeing that the Soviet aggregation won't jump on the Japs from behind the minute the latter are thoroughly involved elsewhere.

RUMORS OF A PACT

RUMORS are current that such a pact's been concluded, but they're decidedly vague. And even if it has been concluded or is concluded presently, the best guess is that Comrade Stalin will pay no attention to it the instant he senses a favorable opportunity to effect a grab, at Nippon's expense, all over the northern Asiatic mainland. Another good guess is that Tokyo knows it can't trust him, either.

It's to be remembered that Japan made a huge cleanup of Russia's Asiatic territory at the end of the Russo-Japanese war. It was a war that Japan won on the face of the returns, but it wasn't so much that the Japs licked the Russians as that the then czar had a near-revolution on his hands at home and had to quit for that reason.

It stands to reason that Russia has been wanting to get it back ever since.

Among other areas that Comrade Stalin surely wants to recover is the vast Jap-dominated realm of Manchukuo. He surely must especially want to recover the Yellow sea outlet of Port Arthur, right in Japan's maritime front yard—as valuable to the Japs as Sandy Hook is to the United States. True, he has Vladivostok, as a Russian window on the Pacific, but Vladivostok harbor is frozen up a good part of the year. Port Arthur is ice-free.

RUSS NOT TOO STRONG

NOW, the Russians don't seem to be military very strong. Individually they may be good fighters, but evidently there's something the matter with their organization. They lost the Russo-Japanese war. Even little Finland stood them off for quite a while. The indications are that they're afraid of Germany on their western front and in the Balkans, but Germany, though allied with Japan, couldn't do much to help the Japs in Asia. Geography speaks for itself. And presumably the Muscovites wouldn't care to tackle the Japs, either, in an exclusive fight between those two countries.

But let the Japs have the United States and the Australians on their hands, plus their war with China!

The Japs, be it said, haven't a reputation for being as effective as they look. They're great imitators. They can build an ocean liner or a warship that answers all specifications, simply envisaged by the naked eye, but, in practice, there usually is difficulty in persuading these craft to float right side up and such things. They're very "cruel to machinery," as I've heard it expressed.

In short, expert students of the empire don't rate them 100 per cent.

BOOTLEGGERS BUSY

The decision of the Nova Scotia Liquor Commission to close all its stores every week-end from Friday night to Monday morning was prompted doubtless by some idea of encouragin gtemperance. Many fear that it will have just the opposite effect.

Certainly the decision will be hailed with glee by the bootleggers.... The bootleggers have been active already. There is no secret about that. —Halifax Chronicle.

Letter To The Editor

BOUNTY ON WOLVES

The following letter concerning the new bounty on wolves has been written by the Hon. Harry Nixon, Minister of Game and Fisheries to the Northern Ontario Tourist Outfitters:

Gentlemen:

For some years your organization has been pressing for an increased bounty on wolves. I am pleased to inform you that on Thursday the Legislature gave third reading to an Act to amend The Wolf Bounty Act under which the Province will now pay a bounty of twenty-five dollars each on wolves taken since the First of March, 1941, the pelts to remain the property of the trapper.

There has been a rather startling decrease in the annual number of wolves killed in Ontario. In the past eleven moths, the take was only 988 and only $13,823 has been paid in bounties out of the $27,000 voted by the Legislature for this purpose. When one contrasts this with the $53,000 paid in 1933 and $68,800 paid in 1932 for some 2 880 pelts offered each year for bounty, it will be readily seen the difference is rather striking.

I believe it is explained in part this year by the fact that there are 710 fewer trappers who have taken out licenses and a great many of those who have taken out their annual licenses take them only for the short beaver season, so that, because of enlistments in the Active Service, employment in war industries and for other obvious reasons, fewer people are in the bush shooting and trapping the occasional wolf in connection with their other activities.

Ontario has enjoyed two or three very favorable winters for the deer and undoubtedly their numbers have greatly increased. Our advice is that the snow in the North is much deeper this year and conditions in the bush are such that there is every likelihood of great losses to the deer herds from the depredation of the wolves.

I need not remind you what a great asset the deer and other game are to the province and to your own industry of catering to the tourists and the purpose of this letter is to ask for your co-operation in organizing a concerted drive during the months of March and April to take as many wolves as possible.

You and your guides know your particular district better than anyone else and how this can be best accomplished. The Department of Game and Fisheries will co-operate to the extent of paying the additional bounty as indicated above. Should there be any questions as to the best methods of taking wolves at this time of the year, a letter addressed to the Department will receive immediate attention and the best knowledge and advice that we have will be placed at your disposal.

Trusting to receive your enthusiastic co-operation in this matter, I remain,

Yours sincerely,
H. C. NIXON.
Minister in charge of Game and Fisheries.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth. And the earth was without ferm, and void; and darkness was upon the face of the deep. And the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters. And God said, Let there be light: and there was light....

And God said, Let there be a firmament in the midst of the waters, and let it divide the waters from the waters....And God said, Let the waters under the heaven be gathered together unto one place, and let the dry land appear: and it was so....

And God made two great lights; the greater light to rule the day, and the lesser light to rule the night: he made the stars also.... And God said, Let the waters bring forth abundantly the moving creature that hath life, and fowl that may fly above the earth in the open firmament of heaven....And God said, Let the earth bring forth the living creature after his kind, cattle, and creeping things, and beast of the earth after his kind: and it was so....

And God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness: and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth....

And God saw every thing that he had made, and, behold, it was very good.—Gen. 1, 1-3, 6, 9, 16, 20, 24, 26, 31.

Hoover's Relief Idea Turned Down By Britain

WASHINGTON, March 10 (AP)—The British Government, declaring that it would be "false humanitarianism" to admit foodstuffs into any German - occupied territory, last night announced rejection of Herbert Hoover's new proposal to establish soup kitchens in Belgium as an experiment in European relief.

The British Embassy in a statement here said the Government had "considered afresh the whole problem of relief, including the proposal for the institution of soup kitchens in Belgium" and still is determined not weaken or undermine the blockade "by the admission of supplies from overseas into any territory under enemy control."

In replay, the former President said "the stark fact is that millions of children, and the weak, are threatened with stunted bodies and death in the occupied lands unless relief is brought to them....It is no false humanity which saves the lives of countless children."

The British Embassy supplied Mr. Hoover, honorary chairman of the Committee on Food for the Small Democracies, with a copy of its statement in advance of its general release.

In his reply, which was released simultaneously, Hoover said his committee believed the British officials had prepared their statement "before they were fully informed upon the undertakings we have now secured."

The food situation in the occupied countries, Hoover said, "is far worse than the British statement would seem to indicate," adding that the Belgian ration is down to "less than half necessary to maintain life."

The Hoover proposal, made Feb. 16, was submitted to both the British and German Governments. The United States State Department immediately disclaimed any support of it, declaring that Germany alone is responsible for the welfare and feeding of the civilian populations in conquered territory.

"No form of relief can be devised which would not directly or indirectly assist the enemy's war effort ....Every import of foodstuffs into occupied territory conflicts directly with the objectives of depriving Germany of imported goods, forcing it into 'uneconomic' use of goods possessed or produced and aggravating the enemy's transport difficulties. The surplus products of the occupied countries are taken by Germany and this helps to create the disparity which exists today between rations in Germany and those allowed to the civilian populations of occupied territories."

Hoover said that in arguing for the plan "we wish no misunderstanding of our sympathy with the British cause, or that we have any doubt that the original plight of the people in the small democracies is due to the German invasion. The purpose of this committee is to raise a voice for those millions of helpless among the little nations who have been our lifelong national friends."

DRAFTED FOR LOVE

By RUTH AYERS

YESTERDAY: April discovers Ann's singing caused the quarrel with Kent. The storm has prevented her parents' return from their trip so April is alone with her grief and her problem. But Kent will be leaving soon. Then a letter comes—It is from Ann.

✧ ✧ ✧

KENT FINDS OUT

CHAPTER XII

Ann's letter was a brief scrawl, written in a shaky hand.

"Dear Ones: I will be home in a few days. It's no use staying any longer. The audition with Vivano was a miserable failure. It seems as if all I want now is to have you close to me, so I can forget these last two weeks with my foolish hopes and dreams of success. Perhaps it was necessary to teach me a lesson. For the rest of my life I will ask nothing more than to be happy in the real blessings of my family and my beloved Kent."

It was signed "Ann" and it looked suspiciously as if a tear had blotted it.

Octavia burst into such a hallelujah of song that if Vivano had heard her, he might have thought he had the find of a century.

At last, April Burnett knew there was only one thing to do. Ann was returning, to be, as she had written it, "happy in the real blessings of my family and my beloved Kent."

Ann's beloved Kent.

✧ ✧ ✧

April must reach Kent at once, confess to him what she had done and beg his promise never to tell Ann.

"Don't bother with supper for me," she told Octavia. "I'm going out."

Octavia's cream and chocolate smile vanished. "Not tonight, Miss April! You clean out of your wits?"

"I think I am."

"For what for you goin' to sail out in a storm like this?"

April was reaching for her own fur jacket and the tiny calot she wore like a monk's cap on the back of her shining hair. "If you must know," she said, "it's to bring a little breath of April to the winter blizzard."

Octavia coaxed, cajoled, threatened, and finally glowered suspiciously. "Wait 'til you mother hear about this. And your father, why he's like to clean to get rid of me after 20 years Ah's spent raising you and Miss Ann."

April was to remember this afterwards, even to the questioning look in Octavia's hurt eyes and the last words, "Lawd help us—Lawd help us all."

The sentence started ringing in April's head. If Ann hadn't written, if the letter hadn't arrived at this deadly psychological time with its pathetic appeal, April knew she would have remained stubbornly silent. Frankly, as she told herself, she would have lacked the courage to have confessed to Kent. Ann's letter changed everything.

This time when April started out there was no pretense of being Ann. From the calot and the jaunty coat with its lingering scent of the corsages that had been pinned on it, right down to the suede shoes with the high heels, she was all April. Yes, April Burnett on her way for the reckoning with Kent Carter

The trip up the hill in the roadster would always remain something out of a nightmare

At a garage along the way, April stood ankle deep in snow while a mechanic put on chains "Bad night for driving, isn't it?" he asked with a bumptious cheeriness

"What—oh, yes, very bad."

"Should I charge this to your father, Miss Burnett?"

"To my father? Yes, please."

"Better take it easy on the road up to the Carter place." The mechanic grinned knowingly.

Vaguely, she wondered how he should know she was going to the Carter home. Small towns were funny. They knew everything.

Ann would never honk a horn. She thought it rude, bad-mannered. But April honked tonight until the home on the hill opened—and a wrinkled face appeared briefly. Then the door opened again and Kent came out, a stooped old Negro beside him to help him to the car with his bags.

"Kent," April found herself saynig, "I'll take you to the train. There's something I must tell you."

"There wasn't any call for you to chauffeur me," Kent answered in an expressionless voice. "I've been trying to get you all day by telephone, but I guess you know the storm's put the lines out of order."

"Quite a storm we started yesterday, wasn't it?" she forced a bitter laugh. "Yes, quite a storm."

April turned to Kent. Did she imagine it or had he changed. He was back in uniform and the broad-shouldered coat had a certain swagger. The visor of the officer's cap shadowed his face and made the dark glasses less noticeable.

That wasn't all. April saw the turn of his chin; was aware that his mouth was set in an uncompromising line.

"I'm a little early so we'd have plenty of time to make the train," she began haltingly.

"Maybe we have plenty of time for this, too," he said.

Before April could move, Kent's arms encircled hers, arms without gentleness. Slowly, his lips brushed across her cheek and then came down to crush her mouth.

She tried to push away, but the hammering of her heart made her limp. This wasn't the kiss he had given her yesterday on the hilltop. This was something different, a searing, shattering kiss.

✧ ✧ ✧

When it was over, April pressed one hand to her lips. Kent had no right to do this unless—unless he knew. He'd said he hated cheap love-making. By the dashboard light, she saw he was shaken too, and sat remote, aloof in his corner of the seat.

"Better start," he advised in the same expressionless tone.

Automatically, she set off. The snow was a blessing; the treacherous roads an escape. Intent on the driving, she could push every other thought and question from her except the memory of that shattering kiss.

The windshield wiper labored as it cleared an arc in the glass and the tire chains rattled with a steely, discordant clatter.

Neither April nor Kent spoke until the car had reached the foot of the hill.

Then Kent broke the deadlock. "What was it you wanted to tell me?"

Deep within her, April sensed what was coming, so on impulse she stopped the car. The white night came down like a curtain as she turned to Kent. What she read in his tense face made her realize there wasn't any need for her to speak at all. Kent Carter knew!

"You're April," he said. "That's why I kissed you as I did, to let you know I knew. Why did you do it, April? Was it to annex another scalp to your belt. Did you think your charm would be fatal?"

Mobile Kitchen To Be Aided By Norwood WI

NORWOOD, March 10 (ENS)—The March meeting of the Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Wildman on Friday, with an attendance of 14.

The treasurer reported a balance of $32.93.

It was moved by Mrs. Goden and seconded by Mrs. Stewart that $6.25 be sent to the British War Victims' Fund and a similar amount to the War Charities Fund of the Federated Women's Institute of Ontario. Carried.

It was decided to hold another euchre and Mrs. Innes, Mrs. Golloher, Mrs. Annis and Mrs. Baker were named a committee to make the necessary arrangements.

Two quilts were reported ready for the Red Cross, and it was decided to get material for making pyjamas for the sewing meetings.

It was moved by Mrs. Gill seconded by Mrs. Innes that pamphlets be sent for at a cost of $1, and also song sheets. Carried.

Mrs. Ammis became a member of the W. I.

A letter was received from Mrs. E. M. Dutce, president and convener of the Central Fund Committee, in which notice was given of the unanimous decision of the Provincial Board of Directors to answer an urgent appeal to supply a mobile field kitchen for the Red Cross to be used in England at a cost of approximately $3,100. In part the letter read:—

"With homes and places of business being bombed all the time, home preparation of food is an impossibility in some sections. The efficient and speedy way to supply food to the hundreds of people, it has been found is by mobile kitchens.

The hospital ward plan has not been abandoned. We can do both, but at present this need is not paramount.

An appeal has come from the Lady Tweedsmuir for Garden Vegetable seeds for Great Britain. In accordance with this $500 (approximately) has been spent on 2,000 pounds of seeds and their transportation. These include peas, two varieties of beans, onions and carrots. As you know Spring comes earlier in England than it does in Ontario, so it was necessary to take quick action to get the seeds over there in time for planting as soon as possible."

Miss Buck, the convener, then called on Mrs. Hubble for a solo, Mrs. Stares, the Home Economics convener, had Mrs. Innes read a paper on "Foods necessary to good health" and appealed to the members to use as many Canadian Products as possible. Afterwards the members answered questions on "Foods" in a questionaire.

Mrs. Golloher gave a recitation "Our Neighbors." Mrs. Hubble then sang another solo "I sing the old Songs." A vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Wildman and Miss Annis, moved by Miss Buck and seconded by Mrs. Baker. A dainty lunch was served by the hostesses and a social time enjoyed.

Baptist Mission Circle

The monthly meeting of the Baptist Mission Circle was held on Thursday at the home of Mrs. Oakly, the president, Mrs. R. Baker, in the chair.

Mrs. Stevens was in charge of the program, with prayer led by Mrs. J. Nixon, Mrs. Rorebeck and Mrs. William Hubble. Mrs. Nixon sang a solo "He keeps me singing" and a reading was given by Mrs. Stevens "Just between us Women." Lunch was served.

Obituary

MRS. MARY PORTEOUS.

BETHANY, Mar. 10— (ENS). — The passing of Mrs. Charles Porteous, whose maiden name was Mary Ledisa Wood of Cavan before her marriage, has removed another highly respected citizen from the village. She had been ill for about a year, confined almost constantly in bed, which ultimately resulted in her death on Wednesday, March 4.

The funeral was held from her residence to St. Paul's Anglican Church, where she had been a faithful attender while health permitted. Service was conducted by the rector, Rev. E. Mason, and was very largely attended. Rev. Mr. Mason based his address on the words, "He that cometh to Me I will in no wise cast out.

Mrs. Porteous was in her 74th year and was predeceased by her husband about nine years. She is survived by her foster-sister Miss Maud Wood, and two brothers, Wesley Wood of Cavan and Louis Wood of Bowmanville. Interment was made at the Fallis Cemetery in the family plot. Flower-bearers were Carl Porteous, Fergus Porter, Melville Wood, Ross Wood, and Otway Porteous.

Among those who attended from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Armstrong and son Tom, Millbrook, Fergus Porter and Iona, Willie Porter, Mrs. C. Deyell, Mr. and Mrs. Wright, Arnold Hickson, Harry Armstrong, Elsie Armstrong, Janetville, Mr. and Mrs. E. Armstrong, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Fallis, Mr. and Mrs. Allie Fallis, Mrs. Harry Fallis, Aubrey Fallis, Stewart Fallis, Harvey O'Briens, Walter Fallis, Mrs. Wesley Sanderson, Sid Powers, Millbrook, Harold Wood, Toronto, F. W. Galbraith, Port Hope, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Armstrong, Otonabee, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Wood, Henrietta and Melville Marsh, Wilbert Wood and Ross Marsh, Lou Wood, Bowmanville, Wesley Wood and Allan, Trinity and Mrs. Cecil Bryant, Trenton.

Christian Endeavor Meets At Lakevale

FOWLER'S CORNERS, Mar. 10—(ENS). — A very inspiring topic on "Meditation" was given by Mrs. J. M. Young at the meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society of Lakevale held on Wednesday evening. Mrs. G. Tully conducted the meeting when the Scripture was read by Mrs. R. McAdam and the roll call responded to with a verse of Scripture, this being consecration night. Miss Marjorie Carew, devotional convener, read a poem, followed by the business period and the singing of the National Anthem. Rev. J. M. Young conducted a number of contests, winners of first prize being Mrs. G. Tully and Mrs. R. McAdam, and consolation awards to Mrs. D. McAdam and Joyce Deyell.

After the social period lunch was served.

Belmont Council Meets Briefly

HAVELOCK, March 10 (ENS).—The March meeting of the Belmont and Methuen Council was held in the Pirie Hotel this week, with all members present and Reeve Anderson prisiding.

Moved by Purdy and Steenburg, that the clerk notify Dr. J. T. Phair that in regard to the appointment of a medical oficer of health for the Belmont and Methuen Townships, the views of this Council as expressed to your Department in 1940 have not materially changed. Carried.

The school attendance officer's report was read and adopted.

Moved by Purdy and McNeely that the following accounts be paid:

M. McArthur, taking A. McArthur for examination, $5.00; R. Barrons, to hospital, Mrs. Embleton and Mrs. Brown, $5.00; W. Forsythe, relief, $14.00; Toronto Stamp and Stencil, dog tags, $11.34; R. Williams, relief, $41.00; J. A. Batten, deeds 1939 tax sale, $52.92; M. Dafoe, assessor postage, $10.00.

The Parish Guild of St. John's Anglican Church met in the Parish Room on Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, with an attendance of eight, and the president Mrs. Roche presiding. The afternoon was spent in various kinds of work and plans were discussed as to what might be done during the season of Lent.

OUTBOARDS HAVE 17-POINT LEAD ON TRENTON IN FIRST GAME

Marines Win 64 to 47 From Airmen

Outboard Marines will carry a 17-point lead into the second game of their Intermediate O.A.B.A. group finals after hanging up a 64-47 triumph over Trenton Air Force in the first playoff fixture at the Y.M.C.A. on Saturday night. Marines turned in another of their high scoring, high speed efforts to win convincingly, but an improved and re-arranged Air Force team forced them all the way before the locals were able to record their final margin.

Took Early Lead.

The driving, offensive power of Marines showed itself in the opening minutes as the locals caught Trenton off balance and broke from the barrier into a ten-point lead before Air Force could get untracked. The Fliers began to throw in the odd one, but Outboard Marines kept the pressure on and slowly but surely drew away. They had built up a 40-22 margin at the rest mark and for the first ten minutes of the final period did Air Force seriously cut into their lead. At this point the Fliers played their best ball and outplayed the winners to cut down their deficit to 10 points at one time. The rally died there, however, and Marines took charge once more to bring up their final edge to 17.

Shooting Was Good.

The winners' passing and shooting was at top form over the route, and the sniping of McPherson, Thorburn, et al, nothing short of spectacular at times. Trenton never stopped trying and with Brian Casey and Alex Breathet, who led the last half rally standing out, made it a ball game all the way. The lesser nnown power of the winners, their defensive strength was shown in that Trenton scored practically two-thirds of their points on long shooting.

Marines made two of their six free throws and Air Force two in seven.

It would be impossible to pick stars from the winners' lineup, the whole team turning in a fine effort.

Lead With 46 Points.

Thorburn and McPherson led the winners offensively with 26 and 20 respectively, and Marsh stood out at guard. Easily the pick of the losers was Brian Casey, who scored 14 points and stood out at guard, while Reekie, Breathet, and Breman also were prominent.

The teams:

Outboard Marines 64 — Thorburn 26, McPherson 20, McArthur 10, McIntyre 2, Marsh 2, Stewart 4, Johnston.

Trenton R.C.A.F. 47 — Casey 14, Reekie 8, Carson 4, Gibson 4, Brennan 3, Thompson 2, Leech, McLauchlan, Verkirk 6, Breathet 1.

Juniors Win 31-24.

Peterborough's other O.A.B.A. representatives, the Y.M.C.A. Juniors, won a 31-24 decision over the Dominions of the Senior City League in an exhibition preliminary to the Peterborough-Trenton feature attraction. After falling behind 18-13 in the first half, the Juniors' fast passing and some fine sharpshooting began to pay off and they gradually pulled up on even terms and then into the lead. Dominions carried an edge through the first half as poor shooting spoiled some fine plays by the winners, but after the rest period the losers could score but six points from the field, while the Juniors ran wild to count 19 and take the decision. Dyer with 19 led the winners with Ferguson, points, C. Gillespie and K. Gillespie Burns, and Wolstenholme best for Dominions.

The teams:

Dominions 24 — Ferguson 10, Grose 2, Wolstenholme, Stanger 4, Gardner 2, Burns 6.

Junior O.A.B.A. 31 — C. Gillespie 4, K. Gillespie 6, Dyer 19, Rogow Craig 2, Currie.

Referee—D. McPherson.

North Refused Allan Cup Entry

TORONTO, March 10.—W. A. Hewitt, registrar of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and secretary of the Ontario Hockey Association, said last night there was no chance of the Northern Ontario senior winners going into Allan Cup playdowns.

He was commenting on the report that Northern Ontario hockey officials had asked the C.A.H.A. for a direct entry into the playdowns following an unsuccessful attempting to arrange suitable dates for a series with the O.H.A. winners.

St. Catharines Saints and Toronto Marlboros at present are engaged in a best-of-seven series for the Senior O.H.A. title and each team has won two games.

Hewitt said, however, that the Northern winners could engage the O.H.A. Senior "B" winners in a series if the North so wished. He said that due to lack of time it was impossible to arrange a series between the O.H.A. Senior "A" winners and the Northern champions. Winners of the present series between St. Catharines and Marlboros will represent Ontario in the interprovincial playdowns.

George Dudley, president of the C.A.H.A., said the O.H.A. and the N.O.H.A. would have to settle "this between themselves."

He added, however, that if the North were given separate direct entry into Allan Cup playdowns "there would be endless confusion."

Goalie Required By Glace Bay

GLACE BAY, N.S., Mar. 10 — (CP) — After many a tribulation, Glace Bay Miners were ready today to resume their Cape Breton Hockey League playoffs with Sidney Millionaires, except for one deficiency.

They still need a goaltender.

All the hullabaloo of the last few weeks, climaxing with last week's suspension of the final series, had left them without a man between the pipes. Three goalers had been lost to them for various reasons, and that about exhausted the local supply.

The club was understood to be trying to bring back Earl Boates, young sub-goalie who left the team as the playoffs started. Failing that, they might have to put Defenceman Hal McBride in the nets, as they did in one late league game.

Hockey officials last week barred them from using Bill Fraser, borrowed from North Sydney, though they let Miners keep the three victories they got in the opening play-of games with Fraser in the nets. The teams are playing a best-in-seven round.

The series was due to resume here to-night.

Les Macmitchell Is No Match For Walter Mehl

By BILL BONI
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

NEW YORK, March 10 —(AP)— Les Macmitchell still is more than a year away from getting his degree at New York University, and is just about the same distance short of being a fully-developed miler.

That he has the necessary speed is obvious. He showed that three weeks ago at Madison Suare Garden, when he became the third man ever to run the mile indoors in 4 minutes 7.4 seconds. But it was equally obvious at the Garden last Saturday night, in the K. of C. carnival that ended the New York season, that he still doesn't have the "savvy" which distinguished Glenn Cunningham and Chuck Fenske and now has made Walter Mehl the winter's top man.

Even Coach Emil Von Elling of N.Y.U., who has an almost paternal interest in the youngster, conceded he'd shown poor judgment. Against a man like Mehl, whose finishing kick is as good as any man's, Macmitchell lagged too far off a fairly leisurely pace, moved up only when Mehl did, and then found he didn't have enough sprint to overtake the national indoor champion as they wheeled through the last lap and a half.

New Mile King

Mehl's record of four victories to Macmitchell's three, with Leslie through for the season, makes him the mile king as successor to Fenske.

That 4:07.4 was the best of the winter's miles. New records produced this winter were:

By Greg Rice: 8:53.4 for two miles, 11:39.5 for two and a half, 12:49 for two and three-quarters, 13:51 for three.

By Fred Wilcott: 7.2 for 60-yard high hurdles (5 hurdles), 6.1 for 50, 5.6 for 45.

By John Borican: 1:10.2 for 600 yards (in Saturday night's meet, in which he scored an epic double by also taking the 1,000).

By Earle Meadows: 14 feet 6⅞ inches in the pole vault, which he topped Saturday with 14 feet 7⅛ inches.

By Al Blozis: 56 feet 6 inches in the shot put, for which he probably won't get credit, and 56 feet 2⅞ inches Saturday night, for which he probably will.

Indians Beaten By New Haven

(By the Canadian Press.)

With just four more playing nights in the lengthy American Hockey League schedule, the playoff picture in the Eastern Section was virtually decided today but there still remained a brisk three-team fight for the last berth in the Western Division.

Hard - pressed by Philadelphia Ramblers' late drive, New Haven Eagles clinched a berth in the Eastern Division by whipping Springfield Indians, 3-1, last night. The result dropped the Indians into third place behind the Eagles but the last-place Ramblers are five points behind Springfield and have only three more games to go.

In the three-team fight for the Western Division's last playoff berth last night, Indianapolis Capitals beat Cleveland Barons, 7-3, to tie for the third position with Buffalo Bisons, who meanwhile tied Hershey Bears, 2-2. Pittsburgh Hornets whipped Providence Reds, 4-1, in the other game last night to stay one point behind the Bisons and the Capitals.

In Saturday's games, Pittsburgh defeated Springfield 4-3; Indianapolis and Hershey played a 2-2 draw; New Haven whipped Philadelphia, 4-2, and Buffalo took a 2-1 decision from from Cleveland.

SPORTS — DAY BY DAY

Outboard Marines managed to pick up a 17 point lead over Trenton R.C.A.F. in the first game of the O.A.B.A. group semi-finals Saturday night defeating the Flyers 64 to 47 in a sizzling game. The margin looks fairly large but on the other hand the Petes' lead was picked up in the first half of the game and in the second session the Airmen came back in spectacular style to outscore Outboards by a point in the final stanza. After being down 18 points at the half the Flyers staged a surprising rally and they gave the home talent a memorable battle all through the final round. At one time indeed they had whittled the Petes' lead to ten points and were threatening to reduce it further when the homesters turned on the heat again to finish strong and pick up seven more points margin before the final whistle. The second game will be played in Trenton tonight with total points to settle the round and the undefeated Outboards are expecting a tense, hard battle.

* * * * * *

The Flyers introduced a number of new players Saturday night and as was expected their club was materially stronger and better balanced than in their earlier appearances here. Early in the game they found difficulty in solving the Petes' fast-breaking quick passing attack and the Outboards ran up a score in quick order. They came back after the rest period with a driving attack of their own and from then on the ultimate winners had trouble in holding their own. Led by Brian Casey, former Western star whose long-rage shooting was right on the mark and by Breathit, former Broadview senior player, the Flyers made a great bid in the second half. The Petes, however, played fine basketball, with Thorburn and McPherson hitting the basket consistently for a total of 46 points between them and that seventeen-point margin should be enough to send them into the next round against the Toronto winners.

The Belleville ladies' basketball team will play the Westclox girls in an exhibition game this evening in the Y.W.C.A. at 9 o'clock. The visitors are the same team that was in the O.L.B.A. last season with the Peterborough Orfuns and should provide fine opposition for the local Westclox squad. They are not entered in the provincial playdowns this season but have been playing in their own city league. According to Ed Shortt, secretary of the Belleville Y and coach of the Quinte girls his team was anxious to play against one of the local teams to obtain revenge for their defeat at the hands of the Orfuns last year. This contest will be the first of home-and-home games with the return in Belleville next week. Hymie Smith will referee the game and Sybil Ecobichon will handle the scoring and timer's duties. St. John's and Y Cadets will play a regular league game at 7 o'clock this evening.

Back From Hockey Wars

Don Coughlin, forward of last season's Peterborough Eastern Canada intermediate championship team is home from the hockey wars across the border after a season with the Baltimore Orioles and the Atlantic City club of the Eastern United States League. Don who started the season with Baltimore after a tryout with the Hershey Bears, was shifted to Atlantic City under Manager Con Corbeau for a while and then returned to Pick Hines' Orioles. Before returning home Coughlin visited Bill Caladine at Philadelphia and reports the Peterborough boy going strong at right wing for the Ramblers, who have been making a great uphill fight for a playoff position after a dismal start. Don also says that Ned Vitarelli is having a good season at Baltimore and reports meeting Lefty McNally, former Peterborough southpaw pitcher at Boston this winter. McNally is living at Hudson, Mass.

* * * * * *

Honey Tompkins, Petes' right-winger has been invited to finish the season with the Kingston Combines, under a somewhat liberal interpretation of the special legislation this season that allows clubs to replace players who have enlisted for overseas service. Kingston wants Tompkins to take the place of Walter Gerow who has been transferred to Petawawa Camp by the military authorities and whose services are therefore lost to Kingston. It is doubtful whether this replacement rule was ever intended to apply to a case like Gerow's but the Combines' management evidently believe there is nothing like trying. The idea was that if a player enlisted after the season got under way his club was to be allowed to replace him but Gerow was only eligible to play for Kingston in the first place because he was a soldier and now that he is moved the Combines are trying to get full benefit from the soldier rule worked both ways. They may succeed at that.

* * * * * *

If complaints that came from Belleville and Lindsay last week of players being beaten up and officials assaulted are anywhere near correct there is plenty of work ahead for the officials of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association. The Belleville juveniles returned from a game in Campbellford claiming that six of their players had been battered up and the Lindsay Midgets brought a story of trouble in Barrie. It is bad enough to have rough play and interference with officials in senior and professional hockey but if that sort of thing is going to be allowed to get going in the midget, bantam and juvenile teams of the province, there is trouble ahead. Players of that age should be taught self control and the value of staying on the ice; if on the contrary they are being encouraged to cut down the opposition and indulge in rough tactics it is easy to predict that the minor association will not last very long.

Leafs Chances Fade

The Leafs' chances for the N.H.L. championship faded badly over the week-end when the Day men were walloped 8 to 5 by the Rangers while the Boston Bruins were whitewashing the Canadiens 8 to 0. As a result of these dire doings Art Ross's club is a game ahead of the Leafs with a game in hand and that practically spells curtains for the Toronto club so far as first place is concerned. They would have to win their three remaining games and the Bruins lose two out of the four they have left to tie Boston for the top rung. As the Bruins have been beaten only once in the last 26 games it would be asking too much to expect them to drop two out of the next four. The Leafs play in Boston tomorrow night and if they fail to grab off a win there the battle for first place will be as good as over. Detroit with a win over Canadiens Saturday night look to be sure of third place. They are a game in front of the Rangers with three to play while the New Yorkers have only one more scheduled game.

* * * * * *

The Rangers machine-gunned Turk Broda out of first place in the battle for the Vezina trophy last night when they rattled eight goals pass the Toronto goalie in a high-scoring affair at Madison Square Garden. Less than a week ago Broda was apparently sitting pretty with an eleven goal lead over Johnny Mowers of Detroit, with Frankie Brimsek still further back. However, over the week-end both Mowers and Brimsek pulled off shutouts while Broda allowed nine goals in two games and as a result he is now a goal behind both Mowers and Brimsek. He and Mowers have a little edge in that they have only three more games to go while Brimsek has four, but it is still anybody's battle for the coveted honors.

Sporting Chili Con Carne: Bill Calladine's team, the Philadelphia Ramblers were virtually eliminated from the running over the week-end when they failed to win from New Haven....The local junior O.A.B.A. squad have been billed against Royal Military College, Kingston, in the provincial playdowns....The arrangements for the series will be completed today....Toronto defence men had a great time scoring against Amerks Saturday night and a nightmare trying to stop the Rangers scoring against them Sunday night....Detroit has lost Eddie Wares for the rest of the season. He crashed into the boards at Montreal and broke his collar-bone....Bill Cowley of Boston picked up three more points last night. He is running the assist total so high that it is not likely to be challenged for some time.

Playing Rules To Be Given One-Year Trial

HAMILTON, Mar. 10 — (CP). — The Interprovincial Rugby Union will give a one-year trial to the playing-rule changes proposed by the Canadian Rugby Union in an effort to settle the old rules argument between Eastern and Western Canada.

The annual meeting of the Eastern Big Four group here on Saturday in its resolution on a one-year trial of the amended rules declared that the decision is contingent on acceptance by the Western Union of the amended C.R.U. code. The Big Four said it should be understood that the Interprovincial Union does not agree these changes are necessarily an improvement, and that it reserves the right to review the situation a year hence.

McCaffrey New President.

Decision to use the amended rules for one year was made "in view of the evident contribution that Canadian rugby can made to the welfare of the nation through supplying healthful and worthwhile relaxation to the public in time of war, and in view of the effort being made by the Canadian Rugby Union to reconcile differences of opinion over the playing rules to the end that harmony should prevail between East and West."

The meeting agreed that the 1941 Big Four schedule would open on September 27, two weeks earlier than usual, in order that a champion might be decided by November 15 with Eastern playoffs commencing the Saturday following that date. In the initial fixtures Ottawa, the Big Four and C.R.U. titleholders last season, will entertain Montreal, and Toronto Argonauts will be at Hamilton Tigers.

The meeting decided that an attempt should be made to revive interest in junior rugby in Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto and Hamilton, and the Big Four will sponsor playoffs beween East and West junior champions if Eastern junior leagues can be formed.

J. P. McCaffrey of Ottawa was unanimously elected president in succession to Clint Wigle of Hamilton, with R. C. Gamble of Toronto as first vice-president and Len Peto of Montreal second vice-president, F. M. Hatch, Hamilton, E. K. Emerson, Ottawa, and P. H. Allison of Toronto were named to the executive committee, with a fourth member to be named later from Montreal. Billy Foulds of Toronto was again appointed chairman of the refereeing board.

George Sullivan Dies In Kingston

KINGSTON, Ont., Mar. 10—(CP)—Deputy-Warden George Sullivan of Kingston Penitentiary died on Sunday night following a short illness. Mr. Sullivan was on the staff of the Kingston Penitentiary for more than 30 years.

Previously he had been a star baseball pitcher for Kingston and shortly after the turn of the century went to Toronto to become a member of the Leafs in the old Eastern League. Later he went to Providence where he pitched brilliant ball, but injured his arm and retired from the game.

He became one of the best known umpires in Eastern Ontario and for several years performed in the Central Ontario Baseball League.

Southend Finals At Brock Street

It has been arranged to use the Brock Street Arena for the finals of the South-end League on Tuesday, March 10, the Bantam game, King Edward vs. Canucks at 7, the Midget game, Colts vs. Royals, at 8, and the Juvenile game, St. Peter's vs. The Aces at 9. All three first-mentioned teams hold a one-goal lead, and all three undefeated league-leaders go into this game with a one-goal deficit. The finals are a two-game series, total goals on the round.

Soccer Trophy Placed In Play

MONTREAL, March 10.—(CP).—The National Soccer League, in a quiet and routine annual meeting, here Saturday, elected executive officers and approved the treasurer's financial report.

After adjourning in the afternoon the meeting was resumed Saturday evening and it was decided at this second session that the Lord Athlolston trophy will again be put into competition for the league championship in the coming season. Although contrary to the association's constitution, the trophy had not been put into competition for the two seasons previous to last.

In the afternoon session, Arthur Arnold of Hamilton was re-elected president. Mr. Arnold was not present at the meeting. H. Pickering of Montreal was elected vice-president, while the eastern section will appoint another vice-president of its own choosing. G. McBain, Toronto, was returned as secretary-treasurer.

L. A. Peto of Montreal was elected honorary president, while honorary vice-presidents elected were Dr. F. J. Conboy, Mayor of Toronto; Brigadier-General F. S. Meighen, Montreal, and C. S. Richardson, Toronto. Another honorary vice-president will be appointed by the eastern section.

Hockey's Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press).

Bill Cowley of Boston Bruins, already holder of a new assist record, added three more during a free - scoring National Hockey League week-end to virtually clinch the individual scoring crown. Syl Apps of Toronto, 11 points behind Cowley, is out for the rest of the season, while Bryan Hextall of the Rangers remained in third position by bagging one goal during the week-end. Syd Howe of Detroit picked up a goal and an assist to hold the next berth, and two Rangers, Lynn Patrick and Neil Colville, tied for fifth place when Patrick scored two goals and an assist and Colville got three assists. Gord Drillon of Toronto took over the last big seven berth by scoring three goals and helping in two others.

The leaders:

King's Plate Is Worth $8,000 And Some More

TORONTO, March 10.—Directors of Ontario Jockey club have taken another step forward by boosting value of the historic King's Plate to $8,000 added, an increase of $500. The increase will be added to the first money. Thus the 1941 winner will receive $5,500 in added money, as well as the plate and the 50 guineas.

It is the hope of the directors to gradually build up the value of the King's Plate to its previous mark of $15,000 added, at which figure it stood during the prosperous years of 1927 to 1930. The stake has come back from its modern "low" of $5,000 added in 1935 to $8,000 added this year, as conditions permitted.

The latest increase is expected to encourage Ontario breeders whose stock qualify for this race. The industry deserves this encouragement, for the quality of the stock produced in recent years has been improving and the splendid new crop of juveniles coming to the races in Canada this year bears testimony to the fact that thoroughbred breeding is in a flourishing condition in this country. Richer prizes are the greatest incentive of all toward this improvement.

There has been no change made in the conditions of the King's Plate. It will be run on Saturday, May 17. Entries close on Wednesday, April 2.

BOSTON CONTINUES DRIVE TOWARD THIRD CONSECUTIVE TITLE

Toronto Splits Weekend Tilts; Chances Fading

By JACK MITCHELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

The history - making Boston Bruins, two records already behind them, drove today toward a third all-time mark of becoming the first team ever to win three straight National Hockey League titles—with the final obstacle presented by Toronto Maple Leafs growing smaller as the time to hurdle it neared.

Beaten only once since starting their record sequence of 23 games without a loss December 21, the Bruins crushed Montreal Canadiens, 8-0, last night in a week-end that also saw ownership of each of the last four playoff berths virtually decided. The best the Leafs could do meanwhile was a split, losing 8-5 to New York Rangers after beating the Americans, 6-1.

Must Win Tuesday

The results left Toronto facing a "do or die" effort in their final game with the Bruins at Boston Tuesday. Two points behind the Bruins, the Leafs could pull into a tie by winning, but Boston would still have an extra game to play. A loss or tie would all but eliminate Toronto for the championship.

Two other games were played during the week-end, with Detroit Red Wings defeating the Canadiens, 4-0, and Chicago Black Hawks playing a 2-2 draw with the Americans, and the results decided the final standing of the last four teams to all but one mathematical possibility.

Chicago's draw made them sure of finishing fifth ahead of their first-round playoff opponents, the Canadiens, certain of the last berth. Detroit's victory left them needing only a draw in their final three matches to keep third place from the Rangers, two points behind the Wings with only one more match to go.

Race Now Wide Open

The race for the Vezina Trophy, awarded to the goalie with the least goals scored against, was thrown wide open, however, by the eight goals Rangers poured by Walter (Turk) Broda of Toronto last night. From the leading candidate, Broda fell into third place—with one more tally against him than Frankie Brimsek of Boston and Detroit's Johnny Mowers, tied at 94.

Last Minute Goals

A crowd of 11,514 at New York watched the Rangers demonstrate against the Leafs the form that won them the Stanley Cup last season as the time neared to defend it. At that, the game was hard-fought until a pair of last-moment goals by Lynn Patrick with the Rangers ahead 6-5 but the game on ice.

The other Ranger markers went to Captain Art Coulter, Dutch Hiller, Alex Shibicky, Mac Colville, Clint Smith and Bryan Hextall, leading N.H.L. marksman, whose counter was his 26th of the season. For the Leafs, Gordie Drillin scored twice and the other three were shared by Nick Mets, Billy Taylor and Dave Schriner.

Cowley Adds On Three

Bill Cowley, whose brilliant playmaking already has given the Bruins their second all-time mark, helped on three goals against the Canadiens at Boston to stretch his assist recorded to 41. With four more games to go, the league-leading individual scorer has marked up four more assists than the record of 37 set by Joe Primeau with Toronto in 1931-32.

Other Bruin tallies went to Art Jackson and Bobby Bauer, who each bagged a brace; Flash Hollett, Herbie Cain, Captain Dit Clapper, and Roy Conacher.

At Chicago, the Hawks needed only a draw to clinch fifth place and they got it in an uninspiring overtime decision over the Americans, already eliminated from post-season doings. The Hawks built up a 2-0 lead on counters by Rookie Joe Papike and Doug Bentley, allowing Lorne Carr and Buzz Boll to tally for the Amerks and cause a scoreless overtime.

Easy Winners

In Saturday's games, neither Detroit nor Toronto had any trouble disposing of the Canadiens and the Americans. At Montreal, the Wings got goals in the initial session by Mud Bruneteau and Syd Howe, adding two more in the final frame by Gus Giesebrecht and Alex Motter while protecting Goalie Mowers' fourth shutout of the season.

A feature for the crowd of 11,261 as the Leafs polished off the Amerks at Toronto meanwhile was a tally by Drillon, sharp-shooting winger, that brought his N.H.L. life-time total to 100. Bucko McDonald got two of the Toronto counters, with Wally Stanowski, Reg Hamilton and Nick Mets rounding out the scoring.

Week-End Stars

By The Canadian Press

Johnny Mowers, Detroit, turned in his fourth shutout of the season to back the Wings to a 4-0 triumph over Canadiens in Montreal Saturday night.

Wilfred (Bucko) McDonald, Toronto, played a steady game on defence and rushed for two tallies to lead the Leafs to a 6-1 victory over the Americans in Toronto Saturday night.

Frankie Brimsek and Aubrey (Dit) Clapper, Boston, the former getting his sixth shutout and the latter lending able support on the defence while figuring in three goals as the Bruins beat the Canadiens, 8-0, in Boston last night.

Doug Bentley, Chicago, figured in both goals, scoring the second one unassisted, as the Hawks tied the Americans, 2-2, last night.

Mioland Wins $50,000 Capistrano Race

Beaten in a head-to-head duel a week ago in the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap, the Charles S. Howard 4-year-old came back and made a show of sixteen rivals in the $50,000 San Juan Capistrano Handicap.

Running in track-record time, Mioland, with Jockey Buddy Haas aboard, ran his conqueror of a week ago, Bay View, into the ground in a torrid battle that lasted for one mile, and then came on to break the heart of another challenger, General Manager, in the drive for home.

Fifty thousand fans out in balmy weather for the big finals of the regular season at Santa Anita Park, broke attendance records for the year.

Packing top weight of 130 pounds, 23 more than General Manager, Mioland ran the 1½ miles in 2 minutes 29 1-5 seconds. It broke the track record, set by Townsend B. Martin's Cravat in winning this same event in 1939 in 2 minutes 30 2-5 seconds.

Mioland, backed down to 5-2 in the parimutuel betting, paid $6.60, $5.20 and $4.20. General Manager, a disappointment in the "Hundred Grand," finishing sixth, paid $18.20 and $12.60, and Barrancosa, the Argentine-bred mare, paid $7.20.

Dukes Eliminate Guelph Juniors

TORONTO, March 10.—One gift from the gods of fortune was all Hal Cotton's Marlboro Juniors required to start them on the way to a 9 to 2 victory over Guelph Biltmores at the Gardens Saturday. That victory marked completion of a courageous comeback that saw the Dukes win three successive games after losing the first two of a 3 of 5 O.H.A. semi-final series.

The Dukes got the break of the game when a hotly disputed goal was allowed to stand, a goal, incidentally, which broke a 2 to 2 tie. It came from a scramble near the midway mark in the second period, and whether the red light flashed on first or whether Referee McKay blew his whistle first is just as contentious to the 3,260 fans as whether or not the puck went in.

Trouble Rears Head

McKay consulted the goal-judge, and ruled it a goal. That precipitated a stormy scene. Incensed Guelph players, arguing with fans back of the net, started poking their sticks through the wire netting. They poked so viciously that attendants had to repair the damage. Rollie McLenahan became so angry he made for the sideboards, intent on going after one of his tormentors. He was stopped by Dickens of the Dukes and other players.

The goal-judge and fans back of the net were the only ones who could tell whether or not the puck crossed the line. Those in the immediate vicinity said Goalie Bishop carried it across by turning when the puck was nestled in his arm. But the majority said it wasn't a goal.

It was an unfortunate incident and there's no denying it had a telling effect on the Guelph players. Then minutes elapsed before McKay was able to face off the puck and inside a minute, the Dukes had rapped in a clean-cut goal to go ahead 4-2. Fro mthen on, Guelph cracked wide open.

Felt Cup Won By Oshawa

LINDSAY, March 10.—A fast-skating and clever band of hockeyists from Oshawa marched into action here Friday night against the Peterborough Kadunks, and when the smoke had cleared away, they were in possession of the Felt Cup for the period of 12 months.

The Petes entered the final round of the tournament by defeating a fighting crowd of players from down east. They were playing under the banner of Smithfield but they were gathered up here and there by Manager Wib Thomas of Cobourg.

They put on the gamest struggle seen here in some time as they fought the classy Peterborough team, composed of many senior players, to a standstill for two tough periods and then collapsed to superior pressure in the third. It was a game that provided many thrilling moments with the Peterborough Seniors always pressing the attack but muffing many opportunities.

In the final game, the Oshawa team took a commanding lead in the first but were held by the tiring Petes after that session. The score in the game was 7 to 4 for the Motor City crew although they appeared to be away to an easy win in the first period.

There was a large crowd on hand for the final night of the tournament and it is believed the prizes will be quite substantial for the two teams, first and second in the tournament.

Warkworth Seniors Group Champions

WARKWORTH, March 10. — (ENS) — The Warkworth hockey team won the senior Northumberland hockey league championship on Thursday night when they were victorious in the second game of the playoffs at Colborne with a score of 2-1.

Sailors Shade Foxes 3-1 In The Opener

TWEED, March 10—(ENS). — In the first game of the best two of three games for the championship of the Centre Hastings League, Glen Ross Sailors edged Foxboro Foxes 3-1 on Friday night.

Foxboro went into a one-goal lead when Wright tallied on a pass from Tummon at the ten-minute mark. Tummon went to the bench.

The same pair combined early in the last frame to put the Sailors in the lead. Pyear passed to Martin as he was taken out of the play by Walt and Martin rapped it home. It was the Sailors' turn now to put up the barrier, and the remaining portion of the period found the Foxes swarming in on Brooks and trying him from every angle.

Lineups:

Glen Ross—Goal, V. Brooks; defence, H. Brown, J. Armstrong; centre, Martin; wings, Vandervoort and R. Pyear; subs: G. Pyear, A. Macdonald, D. Tucker.

Foxboro—Goal, G. Gay; defence, subs: Wright, Spencer, Tummon and J. Guay, G. Walt; centre, Elder; wings, C. Thompson, Noley Guay; Sine.

Referees: Earl Wallace, Ed. Simms.

Tweed School Whips Madoc 6-1

TWEED, March 10—(ENS). — In their first game of the season at the local arena on Saturday night, Madoc High School was soundly trounced 6-1 by the Tweed High School boys.

Tweed High School went into a two-goal lead in the first period, with E. Doyle scoring unassisted, and Arber taking a pass from D. Meraw and Luffman for the second counter.

The Tweed boys tallied three counters in the second period with Meraw banging in a pass from Arber and Luffman, Doyle flipping in a shot from the corner, and Luffman rapping home a pass from D. Meraw.

In the last frame, Tweed tallied their sixth counter with Arber banging in a pass from Luffman, while the last counter of the game was tallied by Thompson, when he broke through the defence to drive a waist high shot past Wager.

Lineups:

Madoc High School—Goal, Poulter; defence, White, P. Nickle; forwards, Stewart, Thompson, L. Vance; subs: A. Watson, Harris, Fleming, White.

Tweed High School—Goal, J. Wager; defence, D. Connor, F. Hayes; forwards, Luffman, D. Meraw, J. Arber; subs: Barnett, G. Connor, Morrison, Vance, Cassidy, Rivers, E. Doyle.

Referees—G. Wager, Tweed; W. Hawthorne, Madoc.

14 PRIZES WEEKLY

RULES OF THE CONTEST

The "Shop-O-Gram" Page will appear in The Peterborough Examiner every Monday. In the numbered spaces of the heading there appears phrases or slogans which have been taken from the advertisements appearing on this page.

WHAT TO DO—The reader must find among the advertisements appearing on this page the ones from which the "Shop-O-Grams" have been taken. In making up a solution, first write down the number of the "Shop-O-Gram" as it appears in the heading. Then opposite the number write the name and address of the Advertiser from whose advertisement it has been taken. Repeat this for each of the "Shop-O-Grams." To make your solution eligible for entry, attach to it a receipt or label showing that goods or service have been purchased from any one of the Advertisers on this page.

AWARDING OF PRIZES from all correct and eligible solutions received during the week, 14 will be drawn. The first two will receive a War Savings Certificate of five dollars, the third and 4th merchandise orders of $3 and $2 respectively on any Advertiser on this page (mention in your reply what Advertiser you desire order on), while the next 10 will receive a ticket to the Capitol Theatre. SPECIAL PRIZES at the end of each 13-week period two special prizes will be awarded. These special prizes will be awarded to the two contestants who send in each 13-week period the greatest number of correct answers, accompanied by the greatest number of receipts from the largest variety of advertisers on this page. The first will be a War Savings Certificate of twenty dollars and the second a War Savings Certificate of ten dollars. The total given away for the year in War Savings Certificates is $640, and the total in merchandise orders is $260.

The first 13-week period is February 3 to April 28, the second May 5 to July 28, the third August 4 to October 27, and the fourth November 3 to January 26, 1942.

Replies must reach this office by noon next Friday. Address same to the "Shop-O-Gram Editor."

OAK FLOORING

The best oak flooring comes from the Southern States. There is a possibility before the end of this year, due to the exchange situation, that this most excellent oak will not be allowed to be imported. Therefore it would be wise to plan to lay new oak floors now while there is still quantities available. Prices have not advanced — a room 10 x 10 would cost approximately $9.50 for the flooring.

MAIN STREET TOPICS

WINS SWIM MEET.

Jack Thirnbeck was successful in wining the handicap shield for the month of February, in the Y.M. C.A. junior competition.

SIGN OF SPRING.

Seeing a chipmunk in the trees at Jackson Park this morning, R. L. Orde, caretaker of Jackson Park, telephoned the Examiner that this is a definite sign of Spring, and that winter may be considered as definitely on the wane.

MENINGITIS PATIENT.

A young patient with meningitis was admitted to the Queen Mary Isolation Hospital over the week-end, the first of its type since Dr. L. A. Clarke assumed the duties of Medical Officer of Health. There is also a new scarlet fever case, and some German measles.

CLUB COMPETITIONS.

Ski competitions in most of the classes were held by the members of the Peterborough Ski Club at Bethany and Nassau over the week-end. A good turnout of the members evidenced the interest in the runs this year and it is expected that several of the club championships were broken. As yet, no figures have been released, because the scores have not yet been computed.

THE FUND GROWS DAILY

Many splendid co-operative efforts of all kinds continue to help swell the fund for British War Victims. At this time F. G. Mann points out that individual contributions, no matter how small, are welcome. Contributors may use a pen name if they wish for public acknowledgement of any donations, or they may give their right name, which is of course the better way.

INTERSECTION ACCIDENT

Two cars were damaged in a traffic accident at George and Charlotte street Saturday. Antoine Valade, 232 Rubidge street was driving south on George street when his car collided with the rear of another machine driven by Arthur Thompson, Aylmer street, which had stopped at the Charlotte street intersection. Valade's bumper and windshield suffered and the rear bumper of the other car was damaged.

WAR SAVERS

Peterborough citizens were interested to see in George street this morning, one of the huge moving trucks operated by Smith Transport decorated with war scenes and advertising war savings. One side of the vehicle depicted a steamer, having been torpedoed, sinking, and the other side had a bomber painted onit. The words "War Savings" were given prominence on the truck and with its size the affect was remarkable.

SPLASHERS BEWARE

A few motorists in this city and particularly truck drivers, are going to have a few dry cleaning bills to pay if they don't slow down when they drive through pools of water on the city streets. Several residents of Ashburnham have complained that motorists driving across the Hunter street bridge drive so fast through the pools of water that pedestrians have to hug the wall of the bridge to avoid being splashed. Police promise prompt action if given license numbers.

GIVE HORSES A CHANCE.

Local riders of saddle horses get scant consideration from motorists, according to comments that are heard from time to time. "Horses are not mechanical things like the cars, taking no notice of what passes them," one rider said today. "Some car drivers seem to try to skim by as closely as they can without actually striking a horse, and that is because they never have had anything to do with one themselves. It is just as easy to swing out a little bit as a margin of safety, even as a precaution against the possibility that one of these saddle horses may be frightened and swerve into a car that comes too close, and the one may be killed. A little thoughtfulness is all that is needed to avoid a mishap of that kind."

TRUCK DAMAGED

JUST AROUND THE CORNER

Flocks of wild geese and ducks have been seen during the past week, winging in typical V formations and on Saturday a large flock of geese wheeled over the city in a northerly direction. The optimists look on this as sign that spring is just around the corner.

HE WAS REMANDED

When a local man appeared in court this morning to answer a charge of drunkenness as a second offender he pointed out that his case had been adjourned until tomorrow. However, he was then charged with creating a disturbance and on that charge was remanded until tomorrow.

BROADCASTS TO-NIGHT

Daphne du Marier, author of "Rebecca" and "Come Wind, Come Weather," is scheduled to broadcast to Canada this evening at 7.45 over the CBC network. Her topic will be "Britain Behind the Scenes," and she will be broadcasting from an air raid shelter. Miss du Marier was scheduled to broadcast a week ago Saturday, but interference forced the broadcast to be cancelled.

W. B. GORDON IS SPEAKER

W. B. Gordon, young Peterborough lawyer, gave an interesting and highly instructive talk on parliamentary procedure and how to conduct a meeting, at the regular Sunday afternoon session of the H.N.S. public speaking class yesterday. About fifty men and boys attended Jack Primeau introduced the speaker and Paul Roche voiced the thanks of the Club.

NICER IN APRIL

John J. O'Brien, a transient, who is not an unknown figure in local police court circles, appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning on a charge of second offence drunkenness. A plea of guilty resulted in a fine of $50 or one month in jail. "Could you give me a little time to get the money for my fine" O'Brien asked. "It must be paid immediately," replied Magistrate Langley. "It will be nice weather by April 10," he added.

SKIDS INTO CAR

When H. S. Finnie, 19 Dennistoun avenue, who was driving west on Hunter street in East City Saturday he slowed down to stop for a passenger and a truck driven by Gerald Lowes, R.R. 6, Peterborough, also travelling west skidded on the slipper street when the brakes were applied, colliding with the rear of Finnie's car, the rear bumper and trunk carrier suffering. The grill of the truck was damaged.

JACK OF ALL JOBS

Policemen in this city apparently are called on to do al manner of jobs, even to helping the Board of Works department keep the water flowing off the city streets. On Sunday afternoon Detective Sergeant Wiliam Meagher and Constable Clair McGillen were seen wielding shovels on Hunter street east opening a drain to a catch basin so that a large puddle of water might drain off. Rumor has it too, that a wild driving motorist ducked the pair before the job was finished.

HEALTH POSTERS

The north window of Hall's Store is brightened today with a display of art posters produced by students of the Collegiate Institute in a competition sponsored by the Peterborough Health Department. The winners are Marion E. Barrett, June Freeman, and Jack W. P. Harvey, and honorable mention is made of the work of June Willis and Barbara Wyatt. The posters were judged by Charles Saunders, and it is understood that some of them will be used next fall in another special edition of the Examiner which Dr. Clarke has in mind.

Obituary

JOHN FRANCIS LEESON

A lifelong resident of Douro Township passed away early Monday morning in Nicholls Hospital, in the person of John Francis Leeson. He had been ill for a short time only, and his passing comes as a shock to his many friends.

Born at Nassau 67 years ago, Mr. Leeson had farmed in his native township all of his life until a few years ago when he became a foreman for the county roads. He was the son of the late William Leeson and the late Mary Hetherington, and husband of Martha Jane Newell, who predeceased him some years ago.

He was a member of Mark Street United Church.

Surviving are four daughters, Mrs. Joseph McGee of Peterborough, Mrs. E. Sparling, Toronto; Mrs. Percy McNaughton of Nassau, and Miss Viola Leeson of Toronto; one son, Jack of R.R. No. 10 Peterborough; and one sister, Mrs. George Hall of Otonabee.

The funeral will be from the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Percy McNaughton, Nassau, on Tuesday, at 3.00 p.m.; Rev. E. W. Rowland of Mark Street United Church will officiate, and interment will be in Little Lake Cemetery.

Visitor Drowns

WEST VANCOUVER, B.C., March 10—(CP).—George King, a visitor from California, was drowned and three other persons rescued yesterday when their canoe capsized in Burrard Inlet as they attempted to negotiate the first Narrows entrance to Vancouver harbor.

Indecent Books Not Found; Plenty Of Trash

Taking for his text Paul's words to Timothy, asking him to bring to him the lost cloak, the books, and the parchments, Dr. E. W. Young spoke to St. Andrew's congregation Sunday night on: Literature, Decent and Indecent.

He began by showing that the books of that time were really rolls, made probably from animal skins, and in some cases from papyrus leaves taken from the banks of the River Nile. These were the possession of the privileged few, whilst the masses were ignorant and unlettered.

He spoke of the two requirements of human life, the cloak to cover the body, and the books to furnish the mind. Many persons gave much thought to the clothes they wear, but little concern to the literature they read. The cloak has often obscured the book, and the latter is the more important of the two. There are people whose bodies are well clad, but whose minds are shallow. It is a false sense of values which concentrates on the decorative and neglects the cultural side of life.

Dr. Young went on to speak of the various types of good literature available today. The newspaper with its story of the world in which we live. No man is uneducated who reads the papers regularly. Magazines are an advance on papers, in that the articles are longer, and are selected for the discussion of definite subjects.

Finest Contribution

The book, however, gives the finest contribution to human knowledge. In a book the author passes forth his best thought. It is far more enlightening even than conversations with literary men.

An outline was given of the merits of different kinds of literature. The novelist unfolded his plot of human life. The historian brings to us the drama of human life in the past. Mr. Churchill says that history is the best antidote to pessimism, and finds in it lessons for the present and the future. There are popular works on science, poetry and essays with which young people should be familiar. Ruskin says in "Sesame and Lilies" that we talk with the groom and the stable boy in the coach house and fail to enter the castle to talk to the duke and duchess in their gilded apartments. There are books of the moment and books for all time. There are few great speeches in the British House of Commons in which illustrations from the Bible are not used. The speakers know that their audience will understand the allusion. Young people sometimes imagine that when they have left school their education is completed, whereas it has only begun. To get a livelihood is not as great a boon as to gain a real life with wide interests and noble outlook.

Not in Peterborough

Speaking on indecent literature, Dr. Young said that he had failed to find it on the bookstalls in Peterborough, "most of what I bought is trash, but that is the worst that one can say about it."

There were stories of ill-conceived, hasty marriages which went on the rocks. These pictures were all right. If one came looking for evil, one might find it, but it did not appear upon the surface, and most people do not study pictures closely. They only glance at them.

There are some art magazines published which contain many beautiful pictures, and beauty is one of God's attributes. Some of these, however, are of doubtful morality. The artist sees nothing in them but the beauty of the man body. His fine sensibility, however, has little counterpart in the mind of the ordinary man or woman. God made very few artists. Exhibitions of these nude figures were given some years in the Fall fair in an Ontario city. Crowds of young people trooped in to see them with a sensual leer on their faces. They wanted to see things they had never seen before. Curiocity may be carried too far. There are some sights that should be forbidden. A book had come into his hands a few days ago that was utterly vile. These books are handed around in some colleges from one student to another; at least that was the history of this book.

Taints and Corrupts

The worst feature of indecent literature is that it taints and corrupts the imagination. We have known people who ran riot in their early life and later on were led to a right mind. They never could get away, however, the blight of their early life. We should not expose ourselves unnecessarily to temptation. If we put our hands into the lion's mouth we are apt to be bitten.

Joins Nurses-In-Training

CAMPBELLFORD, Mar. 10. — (ENS). — Miss Margaret McCulloch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McCulloch, was honored by friends in Seymour Township at a tea and quilting held at the home of Miss Jessie Anderson. Mrs. James Clark read an address in which tribute was paid to Miss McCulloch for her interest in community work, and Mrs. Douglas Rutherford presented her with a lovely morocco-bound travelling set on behalf of the Ladies' Aid. Miss McCulloch, who left last week to enter as nurse-in-training at Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, responded appropriately.

Bomb Splinters Riddle Cabin Near Petawawa

"We're being bombed—pray as hard as you can." This injunction was not given in a London bomb shelter, but in the kitchen of a Quebec farmhouse, across the Ottawa River from Petawawa camp. That's how Mrs. Baptiste King reacted when two 500-pound bombs dropped in the front yard of her nephew's house where she was minding the children. The double blast came as she sat by the stove rocking her nephew's small baby. Three other children of her nephew and two children of her own were playing on the floor and outside. The bombs dropped accidentally from an R.C.A.F. plane. At LEFT is the cabin farm home of William Meeham, where Mrs. King was minding the children. A bomb fragment pierced the 12-inch logs and tore through the attic of the roof. Another fragment whistled through the kitchen, narrowly missing the occupants. At RIGHT is Mrs. King's home, in which all the window-glass on the side facing the Meeham's cabin, 200 yards away, was blown out. CENTRE is an aerial view, showing what happened when the bombs dropped. The bomb craters and the two houses are indicated by the arrows.

Various Types Of Aircraft Are Described

A description of the different tpyes of aircraft used by the British and German Air Forces was given by Pilot Officer Gerald Wooll at to-day's luncheon of the Peterborough Rotary Club. Pilot Officer Wooll, who is home on furlough after many months' service with the coastal command of the Royal Air Force illustrated his address with pictures of the various aircraft used by the opposing air forces, giving the characteristics, speed, climbing speed, armament and use of these machines. British Spitfires, Hurricanes, Blenheims, Wellingtons and other types were pictured as well as German Messerschmitts, Dorniers, Heinkels, etc. The speaker told how all these machines could be identified in the air.

Pilot Officer Wooll was introduced by Rotarian J. L. Gillespie and the thanks of the club were extended to him by Rotarian Ross L. Dobbin.

President T. J. Carley announced that thanks had been sent by the Liverpool Rotary Club for entertaining the relatives of the Liverpool members at Christmas and also that a message had been received from the New York Rotary club congratulating the Peterborough club on its 20th birthday this month.

Cavan Societies Meet Together

CAVAN, March 10 — (ENS). — Cavan W.M.S. and W.A. held their monthly meeting at Miss Annie Tinney's home on Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. W. E. Honey conducted the devotional period. The theme was, "Thy Kingdom Come." Mrs. Ray Syer read an article on Christian stewardship. It emphasized the fact, that we are not only stewards of money, but also of our time and talents. Mrs. F. M. Staples read an article on "Christian Women at Work in Korea." There was discussion concerning the special W.M.S. Easter service.

A quilt top, batt and lining for the same was donated and plans made for quilting it for the annual W.M.S. bale.

Miss A. Tinney presided for the W.A. period.

Reports were given of the series of pot luck dinners under the auspices of the W.A. during the past two months. Twenty dollars were added to the W.A. treasury by these social functions. Plans were made for the annual pancake social, which this year will be held on the evening of March 19. A committee to make arrangements for supper and program includes the president, Miss Tinney, Mrs. L. Pritchard, Mrs. K. Braithwaite and Mrs. M. Byers.

An invitation from Mrs. James Douglas to hold the April meeting at her home was gratefully accepted.

Afternoon tea was served by the W.A., which gave the opportunity for a half-hour of visiting and added $2.90 to the W.A. funds.

There were twenty-seven ladies present.

Gordon S. Evans Dies Out Skiing

Gordon S. Evans, of A. E. Wilson and Company, Ltd., insurance brokers, Toronto, was stricken with a heart attack while skiing at the Summit Club near Thornhill, and died before medical help could be summoned

Mr. Evans is well-known here, having covered the Peterborough district for his company since entering their employment in 1928. He looked after the public liability insurance for Peterborough county and for several of the townships and for the city of Peterborough as well. He was well-known to all members of the county council and city council, and was genuinely well liked by all. He had a nice manner and his advice in matters concerning insurance was sound.

He was a close friend of Alderman Herbert Bradburn, who was his classmate at the University of Toronto and they played rugby and baseball on the same teams during their college days.

36 Years Old.

Mr. Evans was 36 years of age and his wife was skiing with him when he collapsed. He was born in Toronto, where he received his early education, then attended University of Toronto, graduating in 1927. He was active in sports, playing baseball, hockey and basketball at college. He played quarterback with the junior O.R.F.U. and later in 1926 held the same position on the senior O.R.F.U. team U. of T.

He joined the firm of A. E. Wilson and Company in 1926, and a few years later was appointed a director. His home is at 31 Elmsthorpe Avenue.

Surviving are his widow; two children, James and Janet, and his parents, Professor and Mrs. George A. Evans, of Toronto.

March 10, 1916—Germany declared war on Portugal. British attempting to relieve General Sir Charles Townshend's force at Kut-el-Amara fell back on River Tigris owing to lack of water. King of Belgium conferred Grand Cordon of Order of Leopold on Sir Robert Borden.

R.C.A.F. Interviews Prospective Recruits

As the doors opened into the committee rooms of the City Hall on Monday morning, a group of anxious young Peterborough men sought an interview by the recruiting officers of the Royal Canadian Air Force. The quest for men will continue until Tuesday evening, and it has been announced that the officer and N.C.O.'s doing the job will return to Peterborough each month in the future.

It has been proven that this method of recruiting is bearing fruit. More and more young Canadians are thinking seriously of the R.C.A.F., and when the recruiting office is brought to them, so to speak, it is said that more apply. The old method by which men were obliged to go to Toronto to seek enlistment would seem to be outmoded, as in the present set-up it is not necessary for them to take time off their jobs except for the hour or so necessary for the arranging of an interview.

Flags Intertwined

OTTAWA, March 10—(CP).—The Stars and Stripes was intertwined with the Union Jack in St. Barnabas Anglican Church last night as Rev. H. W. Browne led the congregation in prayers of thanksgiving at passage of the Lease-Lend Bill at Washington. Prayers were said for President Roosvelt and the United States National Anthem was played.

Decorations, Icing Used On Wedding Cake Now Placed On Cake For Golden Anniversary

When Mr. and Mrs. Taylor, Warsaw, celebrate their golden wedding on Wednesday they will cut a cake that will be a replica of the one that was supplied for their marriage 50 years ago. To be more accurate, the cake will be more than a replica, for part of it will be the original cake. The icing and ornaments in fact will be the same that were used in 1891 when Mr. and Mrs. Taylor were married. The cake and the icing and trimmings were made on that occasion by T. H. Hooper. The cake was scooped out of the icing and the latter preserved, and now the Hooper firm which made the first cake have completed another for the golden wedding, using the original ornamentation. The new-old cake was on exhibition in the middle Hooper store last week.

Douro Citizens Contribute $75 To Aid Fund

Douro took the spotlight today in the list of contributors to the British War Victims' Fund when three separate organizations turned in substantial donations. Apparently these people have been working quietly at raising money for the fund and the first intimation F. G. Mann had of it was when they walked in and handed over more than $75.00.

The Catholic Women's League of Douro Church contributed $41.80, and the pupils of school section No. 3, Douro, added $10.00 which is a splendid piece for work by pupils. A dance sponsored by the Douro Township Council brought in $24.10 more for the fund, and was handed over by Garfield Crowe.

The Dramatic Society of School Section 11 sent along a contribution of $9.57.

Sponsor Dance

On the 17th of March, a St. Patrick's Day dance is being sponsored by the local branch of the Canadian Department Stores and all proceeds go to this fund. Invitations have been sent to all branches of the store and it will be real Irish night, with green ties galore. There will be a $5.00 War Savings Certificate for a door prize and the prizes for novelty dances will be War Savings Stamps. Tickets are $1.50 and may be obtained from any member of the CDS. staff or at the store office. Jimmy Duffus and his band will provide the music.

He's Got Something

Charley Herkimer, unofficial industrial commissioner of Buckhorn comes to bat today with a good idea, aimed at benefitting the War Victims' Fund.

With the announcement of donations for the fund of birds, cages, cows, canoes, tea services, dogs and many other items, which have been either sold at auction or raffled off, Mr. Herkimer has turned his mind to summer and suggests the building of a cottage on one of the lakes to the north of Peterborough. Tickets could be sold, Mr. Herkimer believes, like hot cakes and an amount in the hundreds of dollars would be realized.

If the venture began now, the cottage would have an occupant this summer, and perhaps would open the way for another of similar nature while the expected wave of American tourists are in the district. These tourists would no doubt welcome the opportunity to help the British Victims of Hitler's War and at the same time take the chance of winning a summer home on a beautiful lake.

The list to date is follows:

Previously acknowledged	$10,130.49
Proceeds Dance, sponsored by Municipal Council of Douro Township, per Garfield Crowe	24.10
Pupils of S.S. No. 3, Douro	10.00

Total to date	$10,236.96

'Road' Elephant Dies

AMHERST, N.S., March 10—(CP)—The Maritime Provinces lost their only resident elephant and the road department a trusted helper when "Lindy" died here Saturday. A circus performer, she has been kept here since her owner, Jan. W. Schultz, was interned as an enemy alien last Spring. Lindy earned her keep in the Winter by opening up snow-clogged roads in this district.

Wolf Bounty Increased By Ten Dollars

Wolf hunters can start their campaign of extermination any time now, and expect a suitable remuneration for their work, should they nab a wolf or two in the wilds of Peterborough county.

This morning word was received by Miss Jennie Batten, county clerk and treasurer from the Ontario Department of Game and Fisheries, that the bounty on wolves had been raised from $15.00 to $25.00. This change is effective from March 1st of this year, although the bill is still under consideration.

Formerly the county paid $7.00 and the government $6.00, but no mention has been made as yet on how the bounty will be divided. It is thought that the Government will assume a proportionate share.

Fewer Bounties Claimed.

The action was taken because there has been a marked falling off in the number of bounties claimed this year and since the war started. Enlistments and a stepping up of the industrial wheels has taken men from the woods and trap lines but the wolves are just as numerous, perhaps a little more so than a year ago.

For some time back, conservationists and sportsmen have been clamoring for an increase in the wolf bounty, because wolf packs have been harrying the deer in the Crown Game Preserve and at other points throughout the county. The Government hesitated to raise the price because Quebec province was paying a lower bounty and it was thought some bootlegging of furs between provinces might take place. However, today conditions are such that the action is imperative if the wolf population is to be kept down and wolf hunters will get the benefit of it.

Call For Diver On New Bridge

After getting a large portion of the steel work of the footbridge across the river at London street into position, the contractor doing the work ran into an unexpected snag last week that has delayed the job. In placing the pier closest to the west bank of the river, difficulty has been experienced in getting the pier level, owing to a pile of stones at the bottom. A diver was at work all day Sunday trying to improve the footing on the bed of the stream so that the pier can be placed satisfactorily. Once that is done the task of erecting the steel work can be completed before the ice goes out and after that the completion of the structure will be a comparatively simple task. Hundreds of citizens visited the scene yesterday and watched the diver at work.

Boy Robber Gang

MONCTON, N.B., March 10 — A series of thefts here has been solved with the rounding up of 11 boys ranging from 10 to 15 years. They appeared in Juvenile Court Saturday charged with theft of baby carriages, skiis, cigarettes, pastry and numerous other articles and were remanded for a month.

Western Union Approves Code

CALGARY, March 10—(CP). — Western Canada, prevented last Fall from taking part in a national football final because the West's teams refused to follow the Canadian Rugby Union's playing Code, today prepared for 1941 after unanimously endorsing the amended C.R.U. rules.

On February 22 at the annual meeting of the C.R.U. in Toronto the rules were changed as a compromise between Eastern and Western viewpoints which induced the Western Interprovincial Football Union to withdraw its resignation from the C.R.U.

The new C.R.U. code, effective for a one-year trial, must be approved by all senior leagues by March 15. The W.I.F.U. in approving the code at its annual meeting here yesterday, became the first league to take action.

The W.I.F.U. agreed to operate on the same schedule as 1940 in the three Prairie Provinces, with Winnipeg Blue Bombers, Western champions; Regina Roughriders and Calgary Bronks meeting each other four times. However, provision was made for entry of a British Columbia team from Vancouver.

Curling Notes

All we need now for a successful bonspiel on Wednesday next is the co-operation of the weather man and just a few more entries.

Many from outside telephone in on Saturday afternoon and with a little cold weather we feel confident we will have our full quota.

It's for the Canada Packers Trophy and good prizes. The entry fee is $4.00 per rink. The first draw is at 9 a.m. and the second about 11 a.m. When making your entry state which draw preferred.

Another bumper crowd turned out on Saturday afternoon for the mixed bonspiel. The ice was fairly good and they all seemed to be having a good time. The following were the successful skips: D. Davis, J. McWilliams, G. Green and Dr. Green.

The vice-skips' bonspiel carries on to-night at 7 p.m. Another draw will be at 9 p.m. and when the draw is finished we expect we will be down to the semi-finals.

The following entries have been received so far for our bonspiel on Wednesday; J. Edward Colborne; J. Thurston, Dunsford; H. Lucas, Cobourg; B. Wan, Oshawa; D. Charlton Lakefield; C. W. Lees, Lindsay; E. Dobson, Beaverton; R. Barry, Oakwood; H. Foster, Fenelon Falls; D. Gordon, Fenelon Falls; W. Weldon Oakwood; H. C. Giroux, Peterborough; J. H. Sedgwick, Peterborough; S. A. Lowe, Peterborough; H. Clegg, Peterborough; N. Hamley Peterborough; T. McArthur, Peterborough; G. Green, Peterborough; R. Best, Peterborough; E. Thomas, Peterborough.

Sports Spice

NEW YORK, March 10—(CP)—Too bad about Van Mungo. But sometimes birds which can sing just won't.... The newspaper "PM" says when Bill Terry's contract (which runs through 1942) expires, Bill will get the air and not a front office job. And, says "PM," the contract could be bought up in the meantime. Toughest job in Florida belongs to Jewel Ens. Red coach, who has been assigned to take 20 pounds of Johnny Hutchings, who reported weighing 148.

And now to get an infield
Before it is too late.

Today's Guest Star

John Wentworth, Bangor (Me.) Daily News: "Bill Terry is trying to make an outfielder out of Harry Danning and Joe McCarthy is trying to convert Joe Gordon into a first sacker.... But Doc Prothro of the Phils still has the toughest job on his hands—trying to make something out of nothing."

Sports Cocktail

Poll of Indians and newspaper men with the club gives Cleveland the bunting by ten games.... Bill Cunningham, star sports columnist of the Boston Post, is shifting to the Boston Herald for considerably more than the $21,000 per he has been collecting.... Gabby Hartnett will be behind the plate for the Giants every time Harry Gumbert and Cliff Melton pitches.

Week's best line was turned out by Bob Considine: "Washington saw Cann in a fight long to be dismembered."

Home Practice Cure for Awkwardness in Dancing

Diagram Explains Tango Step

Winning laughter instead of admiration! She literally leaps after her embarrassed partner as he tries to lead her in a tango. And she'd hoped she could dance it by just "following along."

Naturally, no one can follow a dance smoothly without some definite idea of how it goes. That's why dance diagrams for home practice are so helpful. You can see at once from our diagram how to do the tango side-close step.

This pause is important—in the tango you always pause after bringing your feet together. And you step firmly but smoothly, NEVER hopping or leaping.

The other tango movements are as easy to learn. With diagrams, in fact, you can learn to do any popular step well—make your partners proud of you.

Our 32-page booklet has clear diagrams and instructions for all the smart dances, the tango, fox trot, Westchester, waltz, rhumba, Conga, Samba, Lindy, Peabody and shag. Reading, following.

Send 15c in coins or stamps for your copy of HOW TO DO THE NEWEST DANCE STEPS AND VARIATIONS to the Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER
By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

YOUR BUMP OF CAUTION

IF PHRENOLOGISTS can pick out good bridge players by the size, number, shape and location of bumps on the head, one of the first things they would have to look for is a well-developed bump of caution. For sound bridge demands two opposite requisites—the positive attributes which enable one to sally forth and earn points for his side, and the negative qualifications which enable him to safeguard his side from disasters. For what profits it a man to pile up a lot of points on his side of the score, if he shortly kicks away all of those and more, too, by lack of protective instinct?

All-around players are always alert to the risk involved in a possible misfit hand, in which neither you nor your partner can find a declaration which dovetails satisfactorily in the two holdings. A partial fit in some suit named by your partner makes it safe in many cases to bid your own suit, whereas lack of such a fit might make your own bid over-venturesome. Note these West hands:

1. ♠ 7 4 ♥ A K 6 5 2 ♦ Q 9 6 ♣ A 5 2
2. ♠ 7 6 4 ♥ A K 6 5 2 ♦ Q 9 ♣ A 5 2

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Dbl	Pass	2 ♦
Pass	(?)

Those hands look so much alike that many very fair players, sitting in the West position, would take exactly the same action with either of them on their second turn. Actually the possession of one more diamond in No. 1 makes a tremendous difference in the way they would be bid by players of high rank.

Hand No. 2 was held by a pretty good average player in a rubber game. On his second turn he bid 2-Hearts and was doubled by North, who had waited for him with quite a hand. He took only four tricks and was set four, for a score of 1,100 points. If East had taken him out into 3-Diamonds, five tricks could have been taken, but that would have been doubled by South and would have been set the same 1,100 points.

If the player, instead, had held hand No. 1, and he bid 2-Hearts, which a dozen fine players all agreed they would do, a double by North would have resulted in his taking out into 3-Diamonds and saving a lot of points by it. The extra diamond, if taken away from the opponent with the long string, in the suit, would have saved two trump tricks, and the shorter spades would have produced an extra ruff—three tricks.

* * *

Tomorrow's Problem

	♠ K 4 3 ♥ K Q J 6 2 ♦ A 4 3 2 ♣ 4
♠ 9 6 ♥ 10 9 8 7 3 ♦ Q 10 9 8 ♣ 10 7	W. N. E. S.	♠ Q J 10 8 5 ♥ None ♦ J 7 ♣ Q J 9 8 5 3
	♠ A 7 2 ♥ A 5 4 ♦ K 6 5 ♣ A K 6 2

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

If West, who had doubled 6-Hearts, leads the club 10 against South's escape into 6-No Trumps, how many tricks can South take by correct play of this hand?

In three months of last year Jamaica shipped nearly 1,700,000 pounds of pimiento to other countries.

HERO 16-YEAR-OLDS

2 Fliers Killed At Crossing; Weekend Toll 6

TORONTO, March 10 (CP)—Six fatalities were reported in Ontario during the week-end, two of them results of a level-crossing accident near Belleville, two others from traffic accidents, one from electrocution and one by freezing.

LAC. John Martin of Hamilton and AC2 A. R. Stevens of Niagara Falls were killed in the level crossing crash Sunday when an automobile driven by LAC. Martin smashed into the side of a Canadian Pacific Railway freight train three miles west of Belleville. Both were believed killed instantly.

Also near Belleville, 15-year-old Peter Vanderwater suffered fatal injuries Sunday when he touched a high-tension wire after climbing a power pole while playing with three other boys. He died in hospital in Belleville from burns, shock and injuries suffered when the shock knocked him to the ground.

Near Agincourt Hemming Ala-Ak-kali, 45-year-old veteran of the Russo-Finnish war, was killed instantly Sunday when struck by an automobile said by police to have been driven by Wylie C. Wilder of Toronto.

Near Brantford Saturday the frozen body of Leon Lavigne, 31, of Dalkeith was found in the loft of a little-used barn. He had left Ontario Hospital at Woodstock about six weeks ago.

Ryerson McKenny, 25, of Crowland township, was killed Saturday when an automobile he was driving crashed into a post and overturned while he was returning from work at a St. Catharines plant.

Acreage Bonus Is Considered

OTTAWA, March 10 (CP).—With a double-barrelled announcement on the government's wheat policy scheduled for this week, possibly Tuesday, by Trade Minister MacKinnon and Agriculture Minister Gardiner, messages have gone out to Agriculture Ministers of the prairie provinces to come to Ottawa for further discussions.

The problem confronting the government is to provide a price for wheat that will enable wheat-growers to carry on and at the same time not result in an increased acreage that would pile up a wheat surplus out of all proportion to storage space available.

The cabinet is considering an acreage bonus on land summer-fallowed or used to grow hay.

To be effective, it was said, a bonus to encourage farmers to build up the quality of their farm lands by leaving more of it idle would have to be about equal in value to 10 bushels of wheat per acre less part of the cost of growing that wheat, but the government has not yet got down to considering actual figures.

It was learned the cabinet has not definitely decided yet, what it will do about the processing tax, now at 15 cents a bushel, on wheat ground into flour for domestic consumption. "We are likely either to drop it altogether or increase it," one minister said today.

Two Easy Chairs Given Hospital

The March meeting of the Lily Lake W.A. was held at the home of Mrs. Arthur Hancock on Thursday afternoon with seventeen members and three visitors present. The president, Mrs. Gordon Hancock, was in the chair.

The roll call was answered by a verse or story relating to St. Patrick. Mrs. Harry Fowler, jr., led in prayer and the Scripture lesson was taken by Mrs A. Beardsmore and Miss M. Robson. Two hymns were sung, after which Mrs. W. C. Steinkrauss gave a splendid address on the Life of Madam Chiang Kai-shek of China.

Through talent money received, the society decided to donate two easy chairs for the sitting-room at Nicholls Hospital.

Plans were made to hold a bazaar and afternoon tea in June and the society also hopes to have a booth at the International Plowing Match in the Fall, the money to be used for war purposes.

A special drive is being made through the year, for the purchase of War Savings Stamps among the members.

The usual allottment of knitting was handed in, also 2 large quilts, 3 cot quilts, 1 pair pillows and a quantity of children's clothing.

Forty-nine Democrats voted for the bill, as did ten Republicans and one Independent, the veteran George Norris of Nebraska. Against it were thirteen Democrats, seventeen Republicans and one Progressive.

Senator Charles McNary, the Republican Vice-Presidential candidate in 1940, was among those who supported the bill, as was Henry Cabot Lodge, Massachusetts Republican who voted for every amendment to limits its powers but broke with the Isolationists on the final roll call.

For all practical purposes the Opposition collapsed Friday night, and Saturday's session consisted of a routine of throwing out remaining Opposition amendments as rapidly as they were offered, and then capping the debate with the passage of the bill.

Rev. W. A. Filer Starts Ministry At All Saints'

A large congregation gathered in All Saints' Church Sunday morning, to hear Rev. W. A. Filer preach his first sermon as rector. Mr. Filer, formerly of St. Luke's Church in Saint John, N.B., succeeds Canon J. A. Paterson, who has retired and is now in Toronto.

In acquainting himself with his new parishioners, the new minister asked that they consider him as being more than their rector, and said that his earnest wish is that they also consider him their friend. Mr. Filer spoke words of invitation in the direction of his new friends approaching him when in distress, and in this way, he said, benefits would no doubt be derived by both parties.

As a text for his sermon, Mr. Filer chose, "Where there is no vision, the people perish." The things in the past are sometimes those which cannot be forgotten, he said, but the necessity of a vision is ever present. It is best to look forward, for it is by those with an object in life, a goal to be reached, that worthwhile things are accomplished.

Sight Greatest Sense.

Of the five senses, the speaker went on, the senses of smell, taste, hearing, touch and sight, the sense of sight may well be said to be the most important. Those without the other faculties can live well, but it is the blind man who is severely handicapped.

Great men in the past were sighted as being those with a vision. Raphael, one of the greatest painters who ever lived, was once asked how he was able to paint such wonderful pictures, and his answer came: "I dream dreams, and then well Booth, the founder of the Sal-I paint them." Others of past greatness referred to were General Bramvation Army, and Sir Christopher Wren. Booth had a vision of the saving of human derelicts, and his sincere persistence was such that today his great institution thrives in the work contained in his vision. Sir Christopher Wren, the designer of St. Paul's Cathedral in London, had a vision of greater things; things in the heavens, and that great structure is the living symbol of the power in his vision.

The divine vision of Christ related by Mr. Filer, and because of the sins of the multitudes, past and present, He died. His perfect vision was such that the world today has a mediator in Him.

British troops operating along the main road from the captured Somali capital of Mogadiscio to Harar, in Central Ethiopia, not far from Diredawa, moved at the rate of almost 50 miles a day in reaching Gabre-Darra.

British dispatches from this region said the Italians were in full flight through the Ethiopian hills, and pilots on reconnaissance patrol said they could see white flags 100 miles in advance of the rolling British troops.

Successes also were reported in the Gojjam district northwest of Addis Ababa, where, a communique said, native Ethiopian forces were pursuing retreating Italians.

A military spokesman said approximately 30 per cent. of Italy's East African Empire now lies in the hands of the British after two months of fighting in which he said more than 21,000 Italian prisoners were taken. He said the British control 188,200 square miles of a total of 620,000 in Italian East Africa.

Although he acknowledged the Italians were holding strongly at Cheren, in Eritrea, barring the way to Asmara and Massaua, he said 29-000 square miles of that colony already is in British hands.

(The Italian High Command last night reported that the Italian dead in the East African fighting in February totalled only 127. In North Africa, a communique added, 140 were killed in the month, including 35 in the navy and 37 in the air corps. The number of missing in North Africa was placed at 12,280).

In North Africa, British authorities reported a bombing attack on the harbor at Tripoli in Western Libya and on airdromes in Tripolitania, while other bombers in East Africa struck at Cheren and Asmara. South African fighting planes machine-gunned and burned two oil dumps at Asmara.

Toy Trade Helping War Effort

Canadian and British toy manufacturers, with an eye toward wider export trade, are striking into markets previously dominated by the Axis powers. These tanks and tractor are among the motorized military toys which faithfully reproduce the methods in modern total war shown at Toronto's toy fair. They come from the largest toy factory in the Empire. Management of the British firm reports that no shipment has been destroyed by submarine warfare, and the increasing export of toys brings Canada and the Empire much needed foreign exchange for conduct of the war.

500 Farm Forums Are Organized

Clifford Johnston of North Monaghan, one of the young farmers of the district who put extra effort and mileage into the kindling of interest in the radio forums this winter, informed the Examiner Saturday that five hundred of these forums were organized throughout the province. Smaller home groups which listened to the debates were probably greatly in excess of that number, but those which are known to have been more or less organized are known to have been five hundred, according to information from Toronto headquarters.

After the winter weekly series is completed, broadcasts will be given monthly to keep alive the interest which has been created, and eventually to prepare for next winter.

A correspondent with the pen name of "Emerald Isle" has given the Examiner an interesting account of the active group who were fortunate in obtaining the patronage of Mr. and Mrs. Will Seymour, of Cavan township. Their meetings and studies began at the outset of the series with representatives from "all the homes west of what we call the middle road," and including Howdens, Nils, Seymours, Swains, Hunters, Wraggs Mortons (the old Braithwaite farm) and Snyders.

The members of this group listened to the Forum discussion, discussed the weekly subjects, formed their own opinions and forwarded them to the Forum headquarters. A committee arranged other details of the weekly programs for the sake of variety, with games, community singing, readings, followed by lunch served by Mrs. Seymour and the committee.

Attendance at these meetings in winter conditions put most of the members of the Seymour group to a real test, as indicated in the following details supplied by "Emerald Isle."

"Those who do not live in the neighborhood but drive by occasionally may remember a large red brick house on the north side of the line, a big red barn, fully equipped with electricity, and a fine herd of Holsteins sunning themselves on the south side of the building before going back to be milked by the electric milking machine.

This is only one of the farms around here equipped with Hydro power and machinery. Having a house spacious enough for two radios to be set up the Seymours very kindly invited the group each Tuesday evening. This has been a pretty steady winter of cold winds and snow. It has been a tremendous undertaking keeping the roads open on the side lines. Men have worked hard with their own snow plows and shovels and would just get the road in fine shape with teams, discs and anything that would do the job, when another big blow would come, and the roads would be filled in again to the top. This has happened over and over again.

Nevertheless, one or two Tuesday nights the moon rode high and clear, and teams and sleighs and the occasional car did get through, but for the most part we walked.

Did any of you happen to be abroad Tuesday night, March 4? Sunday was mild, but by Monday it as blowing again, filling the roads. It was really a challenge to the sincerity of any group of people. A few days before that, the road had been a bee-hive of activity, and the men did a "de luxe" job of opening it for traffic. Each side was about three feet deep with hard snow, making a wide lane to be drifted in again. Tuesday night the weather blew it full of snow. The night was clear as crystal, a silvery white moonlight shining over the expanse of snow. When we ventured out a strong wind was blowing. The northern lights showed clear and bright. It was a tiring job of walking. You put one foot down and pulled the other up. It was tough going, but we finally reached the Seymour home. It looked cheerful. The big house was bright with electric lights, and warm and hospitable within. The radio broadcast was particularly good, and was greatly enjoyed.

Vernon Hunter, William Seymour and William Swain went over the reports and filled them in. The entertainment was splendid. Mrs. V. Hunter played piano for the singing, and we laughed off the hardships of getting there, and found that difficulties overcome together cement a deeper friendship."

cessive nights, as signalling the start of a long-predicted full force Spring air siege.

The capital had three alarms last night—one starting shortly before nightfall and lasting four hours, and two short alarms after midnight.

Sections along the South Coast also were bombed and the roar of planes was heard overhead at scores of communities from Northeastern Scotland to South Wales. In many of these places, as at Liverpool which had its longest alarm in two months, there were no reports of bombings. Liverpool's anti-aircraft barrage was credited with beating back raiders there.

Reports from Southeastern England, where Nazi planes streamed across the Strait of Dover through moonlit skies, indicated the attackers came in large numbers.

Depite the intensity of the attacks, however, a British communique declared the night's casualties "were not numerous."

More were killed Saturday night, when bombs exploded on a highway near a number of pedestrians and one heavy explosive crashed through the roof of a popular west-end cabaret filled with dancers.

Among those killed in the cabaret were two Canadian officers and other uniformed Canadians. A social centre for Canadian soldiers also was hit, but some 40 men in the building escaped injury.

Other victims in the cabaret—the Cafe de Paris—were Martin Poulsen, 51, owner; Ken Johnson, 27, leader of the cafe orchestra, and several of the orchestra members.

Many incendiary bombs were dropped last night, and authorities in London warned volunteer fire fighting groups again to perfect their organizations and stand ready for greater action.

Obituary

CHARLES SHANNON.

MARMORA, March 10—(ENS). — The passing of Charles Shannon of Deloro in the early hours of Sunday morning removes one of the popular young men of this district.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Shannon, he was born in Marmora on October 9, 1916. He attended Deloro Separate School, Marmora High School, and Iroquois High School. He was stricken ill about four years ago, and was confined to his bed since. He was of a quiet and friendly nature, and his long illness was deeply regretted by the community who now mourn his death and extend their deepest sympathy to his bereaved parents.

He is survived by his parents; one brother, John, at home; two sisters, Margaret at home and Theresa, nurse-in-training at Hotel Dieu Hospital, Kingston. A member of the Sacred Heart Church, he also was a member of the Holy Name Society.

The funeral will be held on Tuesday, requiem mass at the Sacred Heart Church, Marmora, at 9 a.m., D.S.T., being followed by interment in the Sacred Heart Cemetery.

Market Closes With Eggs Selling At 18

The farm produce market Saturday closed on a rather low note of eighteen cents a dozen for eggs, after holding fairly steady at 20 to 25 cents for most of the morning. Increasing supplies extended beyond the active demand, and first selling at 22 to 25 cents gradually retreated to 20 cents and ended two cents lower.

Butter was steady at 35 and 36 cents, and poultry seemed to be scarce. Broilers were 35 cents a pound, and year-old hens 23 cents. Even the restaurant trade toward noon was paying 23 cents.

On the outdoor market potatoes were firm at $1 to $1.25 a bag. Clifford Johnston of North Monaghan offered Chippewas at $1; Cobblers were $1.10, and White Stars $1.15 to $1.25.

Fresh meat was plentiful and business brisk. George Mullen and Son sold pork at 12 and 14 cents, and H. N. Gill's prices were: beef 12 and 15 cents, pork 12 to 14 cents, veal 18 and 20 cents and lamb 20 and 22 cents.

Northern Spy apples were 50 cents a peck, Starks 40 cents, McIntosh Reds, small, 45 cents and Snows 40 cents.

Herb Doig's prices included: Northern Spy apples at $1.50 a bushel; Starks $1.25; parsnips 75 cents a bushel; carrots 25 cents a peck; cabbage 5 cents each.

policy will be followed even if the Germans should invade Greece.

Some Turkish political commentators said they believed that a German attack on Greece might be delayed if Turkish policy remains more or less obscure and the Germans were "kept guessing."

Should Turkey enter the war now on Britain's side, according to military experts here and in Ankara, Germany would be almost certain to throw impressive and perhaps overpowering weight of arms against the Turks and British and Britain would risk losing her last toehold on the European continent.

A landing of British forces, it was added, would stand a better chance of success later, perhaps when Germany attempts an invasion of the British Isles and is less able to mass her resources in Southeastern Europe.

In present circumstances, these military experts said, the 300,000 or more men which the British have in the Near East would simply run the risk of incurring another Norwegian or Dunkirk fiasco.

This was said to explain why no British forces have landed at Greek Salonika.

At this "precise moment," the Turkish informant said, the nation could make the best defensive use of her army and geographical position.

Guest Speaker Urges Fearless Faith

CAMPBELLFORD, March 10 — (ENS) — An exhortation to let "quietness and fearlessness be our faith"" was contained in the remarks of Mrs. K. Hutchinson who was guest speaker at the regular meeting of St. John's Evening Auxiliary, at the home of Mrs. Earl Craighead on Thursday. Mrs. Hutchinson delivered a carefully prepared address to members, taking her text from the Book of Isaiah, and recalling the promise that the time will come when nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more.

The meeting opened with a devotional period, after which business matters were discussed with Mrs. C. K. Stephen presiding, and Mrs. W. Brady and Mrs. W. F. Scott took the Scripture lesson with the former leading in prayer. Another item was a reading by Miss Ruth Taylor, entitled "Spring." At the close of the meeting lunch was served by the hostess.

Are You a Sufferer From Rheumatic Pains?

These pains come from an inflammation in the muscles and are generally caused by a deposit of poison in the blood called uric acid which produces the irritating and painful effect that causes many days and nights heavy with pain.

During the past 60 years Canadian people have found that by purifying the blood stream, Burdock Blood Bitters aids them to enjoy freer body movement with less rheumatic pain, as B. B. Half Hun, Italian Top Planes Already Been Wiped Out; US Planes To Arrive On Time

Better R.A.F. Fighters Now Ready For Test Air Secretary Cheers House As He Warns Grimmer Phase Now On

LONDON, March 11 (CP Cable)—The Royal Air Force has destroyed "much more than half the first-line air strength) with which the Germans entered the war" and half of the Italian first line air force, Air Secretary Sir Archibald Sinclair told the House of Commons today in presenting the token air estimates.

The Air Secretary did not give the destruction figures since the start of the war but announced that in the last 10 months the Royal Air Force has destroyed 4,250 German and 1,100 Italian aircraft and lost "fewer than 1,00 aircraft of our own."

"Leaving out of account reserves, we have destroyed half the Italian first line," he said. "We have certainly destroyed much more than half the first line with which Germany entered the war."

While Sir Charles Portal, chief of the air staff, listened intently from the gallery, Sir Archibald told the cheering House the R.A.F. "is now on the threshold of its period of greatest expansion."

Unless Hitler has a "more effective secret weapon than any he has yet managed to produce," R.A.F. planes going into the battle of the Atlantic will be better than German craft, the Air Secretary declared.

Ready for the Test

Moreover, the strength of the R.A.F. "in spite of tremendous battles and continuous offensive is very much greater now than it was when the battle of Britain began last August—greater in numbers of aircraft and pilots under training—greater both absolutely and relatively to the air strength of Germany."

Paying tribute to the "dynamic leadership" given by Lord Beaverbrook, Minister of Aircraft Production, not only in increasing the flow of production but also in bringing forward new types of bombers and fighters, Sir Archibald referred guardedly to their merits.

He disclosed that new models of Spitfires and Hurricanes now in service have stronger engines which have considerably increased their speed and provided ability to fight at much greater heights while heavier armament has increased their fire power.

The new Hawker Tornado, he said, has engines "nearly twice the horsepower of the fighters which bore the brunt of the battle of Britain and can carry still heavier armament and yet obtain speeds well in excess of 400 miles per hour. Other engines of even greater power are coming on."

29 Merchantmen Sunk By Hun In Dark Week

LONDON, March 11 (CP)—Reporting the heaviest toll of merchant shipping in the sea war since last October, the Admiralty announced today the loss of 29 British, allied and neutral vessels totalling 148,038 tons in the week ended March 2.

It said its figures contrasted with German and Italian claims of having sunk 432,500 tons during their period.

An authoritative source said:—

"The Spring blitz which Hitler promised has begun."

He added that British countermeasures, nevertheless, were improving and had produced "particularly successful results."

The losses reported by the Admiralty were broken down as follows:

During the previous week, the total tonnage of merchantmen lost was given as 65,557.

Fine For Japan

Tokyo, March 11 (AP)

As Thailand and French Indo-China signed a Japanese-sponsored peace agreement today, ending their border dispute and giving Thailand parts of Cambodia and Laos embracing some of Indo-China's richest rice producing areas, diplomatic circles expressed belief Japan already had received assurance that she could purchase the total rice crop and timber output in the ceded areas. Japan is short in both products.

It was understood Thailand would acquire some 25,000 square miles of territory, somewhat short of the concessions she claimed.

Congress Passes Aid Bill

WASHINGTON, March 11—(AP).—The United States Congress completed action today on the historic British Aid Bill, just after President Roosevelt set $7,000,000,000 as its starting appropriation.

This round figure, which would be the largest peacetime appropriation ever requested in America's history, was announced by Congressional authorities who met with the President in anticipation of his signing the aid legislation late today or tonight.

The vote was 317 to 71 on House acceptance.

Chairman Carter Glass (Dem., Virginia) of the Senate appropriations committee, made the announcement that Mr. Roosevelt would recommend $7,000,000,000, and he said it would be "all cash." That would omit any contract authorizations.

What specific items the money would be used for was not disclosed, but members of the Congressional delegation which called at the White House said it would permit purchase of "all articles authorized in the British aid bill."

For Life of The Bill

Senator James Byrnes (Dem., South Carolina) when asked what period the appropriation would be for, said it would cover "the life of the bill."

Furthermore, the $7,000,000,000 total, Byrnes explained, is inclusive of $1,300,000,00 of present war supplies now in possession of the army and navy which may be transferred to Britain or other nations.

In other words Byrnes explained, if the President transferred to Britain $500,000,000 of army equipment, $500,000,000 of the new $7,000,000,000 fund could be turned over to the army for the acquisition of new equipment.

Actually, the $7,000,000,000 might vary up or down a slight amount, several of the Congressmen indicated, but it is the best round number available.

The $7,000,000,000 would be the

Airmen Make Forced Landing

Men Escape Injury When Plane Lands In a Monaghan Field

Caught in a blinding snowstorm and forced down when the carburetor of their Fairey bomber became snowed up and the engine stopped, two leading naval airmen of the Fleet Air Arm in training at the Norman Rogers Airport, Kingston, had a narrow escape from injury when they made a forced landing in a field south of Lansdowne Avenue and Western Avenue in North Monaghan Township at noon today.

Only a most skilful landing by Leading Naval Airman P. K. W. Nais, who was piloting the plane, and who pancaked his machine down and brought it to a stop in the deep snow close to a clump of bushes averted a more serious accident. As it was, neither the pilot nor his navigator Leading Naval Airman J. Pagdin was injured, and the plane escaped with minor damage to one wing and to the propellor. It remained right side up after hitting the ground.

Fifty yards west of where the plane was grounded and right in line with the nose of the machine is a clump of elms. Had the pilot not been able to get his plane down before reaching the trees his life and that of his companion might have been lost.

The two airmen had been on a training flight, leaving Kingston at 10 o'clock this morning. They were following their course on a map and had circled around Lakefield and were on their way back when they suddenly ran into a snowstorm that made visibility very difficult.

As their plane got over Peterborough engine trouble developed as a result of the driven snow on the carburetor and finally the engine stopped. Nias picked out what looked like a good landing place in a field north of the home of A. Glenn, and brought his machine down in expert fashion.

He himself was not hurt, and although his companion who was not strapped in, was rolled around the cockpit when the machine ploughed into the snow, he too escaped without even a bruise.

Leading Naval Airman Nias reported the forced landing by long distance telephone to the airport at Kingston with instructions to send a truck to bring the damaged machine back.

He and his companion were given shelter and dinner at the home of L. J. Hartman, Lansdowne Avenue grocer, near whose place the machine had come down.

The bomber is equipped with retractable landing gear and the pilot did not drop it into position for a landing, fearing that the machine might turn over if the wheels were used. His judgment was vindicated by the small amount of damage done to the plane.

Naribo Murder Laid To Baronet

NAIROBI, Kenya Colony, East Africa, March 11 (CP-Reuters)—A charge of murder was laid today against newly-married Major Sir Delves Broughton in the mysterious death of the Earl of Erroll, hereditary high constable of Scotland.

When Lord Erroll was found dead Jan. 24 it was first believed he had been killed in an automobile accident. It later was established that a revolver bullet killed him.

Sir Delves, who fought with the Irish Guards in the first Great War, previously had testified at an inquest only that he and three other persons had dined with the Earl the night before the shooting.

Enough For A Fleet

London, March 11 (CP)

The Associated Press quoted a high British naval source today as saying that Britain has enough trained personnel to man the whole United States fleet if it were turned over to Britain for the battle of the Atlantic, which he said has now begun.

That the battle of the Atlantic now has started, the source said, is evidenced by the intensified submarine war, by the intensified air attack on British shipping and by Britain's counter measures. The counter measures were not outlined.

This informant said, however, that surface raiders were less a problem to British shipping than submarines and bombing planes.

Blizzard Ties Up Toronto Area

TORONTO, March 11 — (CP). — A blizzard driven by a 42-mile-an-hour gale combined with a power failure to disrupt traffic and hold up factory production in Toronto to-day. The blizzard touched most of Western Ontario.

Hydro officials said there was a possibility the storm might have caused the power failure which originated at a sub-station. At any rate, they said, the storm hampered their efforts to feed the affected areas from other stations.

The power failure affected the city for more than an hour and was the longest blackout the city has had in years. It occurred during the morning rush hour, stopping street cars and disrupting traffice because of the failure of automatic street lights.

Some factories were idle for periods of half an hour to an hour. Most elevators in downtown buildings were stopped and only those with auxiliary power were able to operate. Workers who fought their way through the driving snow found their offices blacked out.

Streets in Bad Shape

The gale struck Toronto early in the morning, and by noon the streets were sleet-covered. At Fort Erie the snow was so heavy that extra men had to be called out to keep switches clear in the terminals at the Canadian end of the International railway bridge. At Windsor the weather was mild and

Weygand Goes Back

Vichy, France, March 11 (AP)

The Petain government news agency announced today that Vichy leaders had reached "complete agreement" on questions relating to the "defence of Africa."

Usually reliable sources said they believed this included resistance to Axis demands for use of Bizerte, French naval base in Tunisia.

The agreement was reached, the agency said, at conferences here among Marshal Petain, Vice-Premier Jean Darlan and Gen. Maxime Weygand, commander of French forces in Africa. It added that Gen. Weygand, who came to Vichy last week, had returned to his post, arriving in Algeria last night.

Admiral Jean - Marie Abrail, governor general of Algeria, arrived here yesterday to explain administrative measures taken there and the news agency said his report "satisfactorily completed that of Gen. Weygand."

Seven Raiders Blasted Down In Dark

R.A.F. Thunders Bombs On Cologne's Hohenzollern Bridge

LONDON, March 11 (CP)—Seven night-raiding German aircraft were destroyed in attacks on Britain overnight, an authoritative source announced today.

Four of these were shot down by anti-aircraft fire in the Portsmouth area, this source said.

PORTSMOUTH, England, March 11 ((CP)—The heaviest assault of the war on this important south coast naval station was made during the night by the German air force. For six hours, Nazi fliers unloaded high explosive and incendiary bombs, setting fires that raged uncontrolled for hours.

A bright moon and the glare of fires started by the first wave of attackers aided the Germans. More than 30 fires were started.

One of the city's oldest shopping centres was badly damaged. Buildings destroyed included churches, a synagogue, a service hotel and a sailors' club. Two post offices were damaged and fires started in lumber yards.

Three persons were killed in one shelter and there were two casualties when a hit was scored on another. Rescue squads dug into the debris of wrecked homes and brought out many who had been pinned in the wreckage.

Bombs also were dropped during the night at widely separately points in the country, but they have caused little damage and "very few casualties."

London had four alarms, but saw and heard no planes. The raiders were driven back by intense anti-aircraft fire along the Thames estuary.

Saving $44,000

Toronto, March 11 (CP)

Attorney-General Gordon Conant said in the Ontario Legislature Monday an estimated saving of $44,000 a year in court costs alone will be possible under proposed legislation permitting service of traffic summonses by mail rather than personally.

He was speaking on the second reading of the bill and added that the proposed change would save police officers considerable time now spent delivering summonses.

The attorney-general also gave second reading to a bill to require would-be bailiffs to pass examinations on their fitness before county judges.

Urge Canada Turn Shipmaker

M.P.'s Urge Move To Counteract Subs–Shape Industry

OTTAWA, March 11 (CP)—Restoration of Canada's once-flourishing shipbuilding industry is the hope expressed by members of the House of Commons from Atlantic and Pacific coast ridings.

Yesterday's sitting was largely occupied with arguments for a great shipyards program advanced by both Liberals and Conservatives from the Maritime provinces and British Columbia.

It was contended the program would be a means of countering the submarine warfare and of providing an industry for the post-war period.

Continued debate on the $1,300,000,000 war appropriation resolution on which no progress was made, provided an opportunity for this discussion.

Although the House was in committee throughout, it heard scarcely any questions asked, but heard a series of speeches, several of them occupying the full 40-minute limit set by the rules.

Munitions Minister Howe told of the difficulties in getting skilled labor for shipyards, the construction problems involved, and said the program would be expanded as circumstances permit.

He said an investigation was going made to see if construction could be speeded up and the answer would be known in a week or two.

Howard Green (Con. Vancouver South) initiated the debate on shipbuilding. He was supported by A. J. Brooks (Con. Royal), V. J. Pottier (Lib. Shelburne-Yarmouth-Clare), Tom Reid (Lib. New Westminster), J. J. Kinley (Lib. Queens-Lunenburg) and Opposition leader Hanson.

Mr. Hanson urged the Maritime province members of the cabinet (Defence Minister Ralston, Navy Minister Macdonald, Finance Minister Ilsley, all native Nova Scotians, and Fisheries Minister Michaud of New Brunswick) to use what

Duce's Commissioner Captive

Brigadier and Staff, Hundreds Others Also Taken In Ethiopia

CAIRO, Egypt, March 11—(AP).—A brigade commander, a resident commissioner, their staffs and "many hundreds of additional prisoners" have been captured by British and native forces in deep drives into Ethiopia, British general headquarters announced today.

Imperial forces in Western Ethiopia "have captured the Afodu Escarpment and are now advancing toward Asosa," its communique said, and farther east "patriot forces have captured the town of Dambracha and are continuing their pursuit of the Italian columns retreating towards Debra-Harkos."

Asosa is just inside the Ethiopian frontier from the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan and south of the frontier outpost of Kurmuk, where British forces entered Ethiopian soil. Dambracha is about midway between British-captured Burye and Debra-Marcos in the Gojjam area.

Retreating Italians have abandoned quantities of war material, including six guns and an armored car, the communique said.

It reported also that the advance on the opposite side of Ethiopia, inland from Italian Somaliliand, "is developing satisfactorily." This push is aimed toward the Addis Ababa-Jibuti railroad.

Apparently in line with this thrust, which is aimed at the provincial capital of Harar, the South African air force raided that city March 8, bombing barracks and other military buildings, an R.A.F. communique said.

British planes also bombed and machine-gunned Italian positions near Cheren, Eritrea, a bridge on the Cheren-Asmara road, and a gasoline dump southwest of Asmara, the Eritrean capital.

ALGECIRAS, Spain—(AP). — A single bomber dropped several bombs on Gibraltar today. The plane escaped through heavy anti-aircraft fire.

Huns See Bill Jew-Drafted

Blame Bullitt For Any Danger Facing U.S.

BERLIN, March 11 (AP)—The first direct Nazi comment on the United States Senate's passage of the aid-to-Britain measure came in a foreign press conference today, in two observations by authorized spokesmen.

The first was to the effect that Justice Felix Frankfurter, a Vienna-born Jew, helped President Roosevelt draft the bill.

"This indicates that the bill is offensive rather than defensive," the sources asserted, "because the Jews hope to regain the position in Europe which they fortunately lost."

The second was that "Bullitt (William Bullitt, former United

RAF, Army, Navy All Ready For U.S. Supplies

LONDON, March 11 (CP).—Great Britain has trained vast skeleton formations of fliers, sailors and soldiers to man immediately a great flood of airplanes, ships and guns expected from the United States, it was disclosed today.

A vast pool of manpower, well-informed neutral sources said, will be ready as soon as the United States opens stores of equipment under the aid-to-Britain measure.

It was said that United States military, naval and air experts have been working here more than four months in close co-operation with British authorities so the Empire's forces can absorb American equipment quickly.

Ready For Everything

These sources said:—

1. Britain's naval forces are prepared to man a mosquito boat fleet to patrol the Channel against any invasion and use any additional destroyers for convoy and other purposes.

2. There is a huge reservoir of pilots trained in the use of United States planes and ready to fly patrol bombers described as needed for "defence in depth of the Atlantic" against attacks on British shipping.

3. There are tank formations without tanks, machine-gunners without guns, and riflemen without rifles who are ready to be fitted into operating units as soon as they are equipped.

"It's lack of equipment that's been holding us back," a British source said.

Available material has been distributed among as many men as possible so that all could familiarize themselves with the use of weapons in training.

That is one reason why more United States planes have not actually been used in combat, informed sources said.

These sources added, "The British want a pool of reservists ready to handle the equipment they are building in increasing amounts themselves, and to be prepared for any sudden flood from any source."

Official circles recalled Prime Minister Churchill's broadcast February 9, urging the United States to "give us tools and we will finish the job."

Save 250 Fishers

FORT ERIE, March 11.—(CP).—Some 250 fishermen were rescued, with a few of them suffering only a ducking into the icy waters of Lake Erie, when a large section of ice broke away from the main body off Buffalo harbor late Sunday.

The United States' coast guard was called to the scene and brought all off safely after a shoulder gun was used to shoot a line from the safer ice along shore. A continuous ferry line was established under the direction of Captain John J. Daly and his men, and after nearly three hours of hard work, all were safely taken off.

Nearly 30,000 acres of tobacco land in Sumatra is being converted into food-producing fields.

WAKE UP COUGHING? HERE'S SPEEDY RELIEF

Did you wake up this morning coughing—your throat scratchy and irritated because of a cold? Then do something to ease that cough! Don't torture yourself and annoy others! Take a spoonful of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral as needed. See how quickly it relieves that rasping—helps keep the throat clearer—soothes irritated membranes, eases that feeling of tightness, aids in clearing the air passages. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral has been giving millions this grand relief since 1841. Pleasant to take because of its wild-cherry flavor. Ask for it at your druggists.

types Britain possesses the Whirlwind and Beau fighter, the latter for long range fighter operations, and the night fighting Hampden.

The Wellington and Whitley bombers which in the past constituted the R.A.F.'s main offensive arm have been fitted with more powerful engines which give them increased performance and striking power.

"Some of them indeed—although the name remains—are different aircraft from those that flew under the same names last year, but these are being replaced by a range of very much heavier bombers including the Manchester, Stirling and Halifax, all three of which have already proved their worth, the first against enemy targets."

Sir Archibald said these new bombers are twice the size of an earlier type, faster and carry heavier defensive armament and bomb loads."

Men trained in the Commonwealth Air Training Plan now are flying against the enemy, he said, "and in battles this year our cause will be sustained by Canadians, Australians, New Zealanders and men from this country, trained side by side."

The plan has "surpassed all expectations" and together with other training schemes in the Dominions it is making "an increasing contribution to our air strength."

He made the statement in asking the House to approve token estimates of £100 ($446) for the Air Ministry. The real amount is kept a secret.

U.S. Planes Will Arrive in Time

"But I tell the House that splendid aircraft—the choicest fruits of American design and craftsmanship—will get here in time.

"And I hope that the House will not have long to wait for further news of American aircraft which are now in service or coming into service overseas and in all four operational commands of the R.A.F. at home.

"I cannot conceal from the House my own belief that the war is about to enter a grimmer phase. It will be no easy task to defeat Nazi Germany, but it can and will be done and my confidence is primarily based on the achievements of the R.A.F. and its sister services in the last twelve months."

The American Martin Maryland medium bomber has been outrunning Italian fighters, he said, and the Douglas Boston medium bomber has proved so fast and manoeuverable that it is being used as a night fighter.

The four-motored Consolidated land plane and Consolidated patrol bombers also received his praise.

The President, moving rapidly ahead with plans to put the aid program into full and immediate operation, began a conference with the senior officials of the War and Navy Departments immediately after informing the delegation from Capitol Hill of the huge appropriation he planned to ask.

With the executive branch of the Government emphasizing speed, Representative C. A. Woodrum (Dem.-Virginia) indicated an attempt would be made to match it in Congress. He said a bill covering the appropriation would be introduced tomorrow, that committee hearings would begin Thursday and that he hoped to have the bill before the House itself next Monday.

of the flames awakened Foulger, who was sleeping in a room at the southeast corner of the apartments.

At the rear of the three apartments is a shed on the second floor and it was here that the fire originated. Chief Gimblett believes that the cause was a box of hot ashes. At all events the blaze obtained quite a start before it was discovered, and the flames were beginning to shoot through the doorway into the hall of the apartments when Foulger was aroused.

Heard Flames Crackling.

"I woke up," he said, "and thought I heard something crackling. I went out into the hall to investigate and I could see the fire in the shed. The door was open and I tried to shut it. Then I ran back and wakened by wife and told her to arouse the people in the other apartments while I put in an alarm. I pulled a sweater on over my pyjamas and ran downstairs. There was a car passing and I yelled to the driver to tell the fire department. He was a stranger and started to go east on Hunter street but then turned and went down to the hall."

Meanwhile Mrs. Foulger had awakened the other occupants of the apartments. Mrs. Cinese, attired only in a slip and carrying her baby, was able to run past the doorway to the shed which is at the top of the only stairway in the place and then down to the street. She was given shelter in a nearby residence.

"I got the children out of the apartment," said Mrs. Munroe, "and when we got into the hall I could see the flames. I shoved the door into the shed shut and got my hand burned. I told Betty and Marion, the two older children, to run downstairs and I took Dorothy back into the kitchen of the apartment until I could get my breath. Then I held my breath and ran past the doorway with Betty and got out all right although my hair and face were scorched."

The fire department soon had the blaze extinguished. The fire itself was confined chiefly to the shed but considerable smoke damage was done in the apartments. The smoke was very heavy and walls and furniture were covered with a thick deposit.

It was fortunate indeed that Foulger awakened when he did. A little later and the fire would have been raging in the apartments with the only stairway leading outside completely shut off.

Two Chinese employed in the laundry of Sing Lee were flooded out. They were sleeping in a room at the rear of the laundry directly underneath the burning shed and their bed was drenched with water that poured down through the ceiling. They had to find shelter for the night.

It was learned yesterday that Germany had informed Yugoslavia she must sign the Axis pact as Slovakia, Hungary, Rumania and Bulgaria have done.

Nazis were said to have found "unacceptable" Yugoslavia's compromise offer to sign a non-aggression pact with Germany.

Rotary Club Has Quiz Program

CAMPBELLFORD, March 11.—(ENS).—Rotarians spiced their program with an unusual feature this week when they held a quiz contest as a means of determining just how many of their members were reading the monthly publication the "Rotarian." The contest served a very useful purpose, since it disclosed that not more than one member had read and found interesting enough to bother remembering. It was Rotarian Doug Watson who was the single member not being called on to pay a fine for his failure to answer questions based on the February issue. The program was in charge of Ken Graham, Doug. Watson, and Mort. Sayers.

Next week the club will hold its annual nominations which precede the election of officers by one month. Rotarian Bert Taylor is arranging a special program of music for this meeting.

How To Overcome Piles And Rectal Soreness

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the same or run the risk of letting these conditions become chronic. Any itching, soreness or painful passage of stool, is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from McDermid & Jury and Bond's Drug Store or any druggist, a package of Hem-Roid and use as directed. This formula, which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spots. Hem-Roid is highly recommended, is easy to use, and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk a chronic pile condition when a simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost.—(Advt.)

France Yielding To Japan Signs Thai Deal

TOKYO, March 11. — (AP).—Thailand and French Indo-China signed to-day a Japanese-mediated "peace protocol" ending their frontier fight and giving Thailand some, but not all, of the territory she claimed in Cambodia and Laos provinces.

The agreement, signed in a ceremony at the official residence of Japanese Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye, marked Japan's first successful task of mediation undertaken in her proclaimed role of leader of a sphere of influence in Greater East Asia.

The pact procided for a boundary demarcation committee to work out details of a new frontier which would return to Thailand the Pak-Lay district of Laos and one-fourth of Cambodia.

That represented some last-minute concessions by the French, but fell far short of Thailand's original demand for approximately one-third of all Laos and Cambodia provinces.

The men who signed the pact after 40 days of conferences gave little sign of their feelings. None smiled. The French representatives were particularly stern-faced.

Approximately 40 representatives of Indo-China, Thailand and Japan and newspapermen were the only witnesses to the brief, austere ceremony in the Premier's ballroom.

"By this signature, friendly relations between France and Thailand have been restored, and a bond of co-existance and co-prosperity between Japan on one side and those two nations on the other has been

No evidence was presented against the 57-year-old baronet and the case was adjourned to March 19.

At an inquiry Feb. 26, a government pathologist testified that two shots had been fired at the 39-year-old Earl and that he had dodged the first and been killed by the second.

After his death, the pathologist continued, the body was taken from the driver's seat of the automobile in which it was found and placed on the front floorboards.

According to a pyhsician's testimony, death was caused by a bullet which entered the head behind the left ear and scarcely could have been a self-inflicted wound.

When the Earl died, the ancient title of Lord High Constable of Scotland, granted by King Robert the Bruce in 1314, fell to his 15-year-old daughter, Lady Diana Denyse Hay.

She now is the Countess of Erroll and the second woman to hold the constable's title. In 1717 when Charles, the 13th earl and a bachelor, died, he was succeeded by his sister, May, as countess.

The rank of high constable gives the countess precedence in Scotland over all peers or holders of other hereditary titles except members of the Royal Family.

time they could spare from the war effort to map out a long-range plan for restoring the shipbuilding industry.

C. E. Johnston (N.D. Bow River) discussed the newspapers which have recently been under fire from the government an expressed opinion that although one had been described as Canada's No. 1 Saboteur, he was convinced nothing would be done about them by the government.

(Munitions Minister Howe, in the House of Commons, recently referred to the Financial Post of Toronto as "No. 1 saboteur" in Canada since the war began).

If the Federal government had adopted on a national scale the Alberta Press Act of some years ago, instead of opposing it, there would not be the present trouble over alleged misrepresentatons by the press, Mr. Johnston said.

(Under the Alberta Act, newspapers would have been required to publish corrective or amplifying statements at the demand of the Social Credit Board, relating to statement published previously concerning Alberta government policies.

(The Act was held unconstitutional on a reference to the Supreme Court of Canada.)

Will Be Expanded

Mr. Howe told the advocates of an increased shipbuilding effort that the industry has expanded remarkably since the war and would be expanded more. He said where 1,500 were working in shipyards at the start of the war there now were 20,000.

He believed all the shipyards could use more men and he knew there was a real shortage in the Maritime Provinces where it had been impossible to put the big dockyards at Halifax and Saint John, N.B., on a 24-hour-a-day basis.

Mr. Brooks said the Maritimes had been overlooked in the industrial expansion of Canada and the use of Maritime shipyards was an opportunity to offset the concentration of industry in Central Canada.

"We cannot keep Canada united with one section prosperous and another struggling for existence," he said.

A plea for the use of wooden ships and composite ships made of steel and wood, was voiced by Mr. Pottier. He urged that capital assistance be given the shipyards as it was being given other war industries to get them started.

Officialdom was "protecting itself" by demanding certain specifications for boats which could be substituted with materials readily available in Nova Scotia, Mr. Kinley said, in arguing for more wooden ship construction.

Trouble With Labor

Angus MacInnis (C.C.F., Vancouver East) took the Government to task for what he said were very unsatisfactory conditions in Labor's ranks. He contrasted the situation with that in England, where he claimed the Government consulted with organized Labor at every stage of industrial development.

"I do not think I have ever known so much discontent among working people as during this time," Mr. MacInnis said. "Indeed, now in Canada, we are witnessing a repetition of those things that have been either fatal or nearly fatal to the war effort of our Allies all over the world.

Mr. MacInnis described conditions as reported to him by workers in several war industries to support his claim that wages, hours and relations between employer and employee were unsatisfactory.

Mr. Howe reminded him that labor laws are provincial but Mr. MacInnis retorted that the Federal government could and should move under the War Measures Act so that "freedom would be given the working classes of Canada."

Ruhr for Cologne.

LONDON, Mar. 11—(CP).—Large fires were started in the German Rhineland city of Cologne in an overnight British air raid, the Air Ministry announced to-day.

Docks at Boulogne, Cherbourg, and Brest, along the Nazi-held invasion coast, also were bombed, its communique said, while R.A.F. fighters carried out offensive patrols over airdromes in Northern France.

The Hohenzollern Bridge in Cologne was mentioned as a specific target of the British night raiders and the communique said large fires were started by bombs "seen to burst on the approaches."

Many of the fires in Cologne, it added, "were observed in the industrial centre and there were several explosions."

The Hohenzollern Bridge is an important Rhine River crossing for both automobiles and trains. Its approach on the western side of the river is close to the main Cologne Station.

The communique said three British planes are missing.

Final of Concert Series Is Presented by Susanne Fisher

Closing the fourth season of Canadian Concert Association programs in Peterborough, the recital presented Monday night by Susanne Fisher, American singer of the Metropolitan Opera, made a pleasant impression on her hearers.

Born in Sutton, West Virginia, Miss Fisher began her musical training at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music. Later she went to Europe for further coaching and the launching of her operatic career, where she appeared at a number of leading European opera houses. Her husband, Clifford Menz, is a tenor of note, and last season they appeared together in concert work while on tour of the United States. Miss Fisher came to Peterborough from Winnipeg, and from here her engagements take her to Massachusettes and Tennessee.

The singer had as her pianist Gwendolyn Williams of Toronto, an artist whose fine gifts are always acknowledged with appreciation by a Peterborough audience. Miss Williams is well-known for her sympathetic accompaniments, and provided a musical background of brilliance.

Susanne Fisher's enviable interpretative gifts and sense of style were brought into play in a program of numbers simpler than one expects in a concert of this kind, with Massenet's Air of Salome from "Herodiade" as her only excursion into opera. Originally written for the lute, her Elizabethan love songs were charmingly sung with ease and lightness. Other favorites included Carey's familiar Pastorale, in which the exquisite artistry and intelligence of her technique were admirably displayed.

Among the most interesting of her second group were Grieg's dramatic "Autumn Storm" in which her phrasing was finally descriptive, Worth's "Midsummer" and Tscherpnin's "A Kiss," sung with rare understanding. Several encores generously given included Harriet Mair's "Mammy Song" in which the mood of the South was delightfully revealed.

Dr. J. J. Craig, president of the Peterborough branch of the Canadian Concert Association, announced the continuation of the series next season, and appealed for co-operation in bringing the best in music and drama to the city. Three brilliant artists, Ruth Draper, Percy Grainger and Thomas L. Thomas, are scheduled for appearance here, and a fourth program is to be arranged should membership permit.

Home and School Association News

KING EDWARD SCHOOL

Because of the opportunity offered to express themselves physically, mentally and socially, a period of time spent in camp works wonders for boys or girls, Mr. Hamilton H. Gosse, boys' secretary at the Y.M.C.A., told members of King Edward Home and School Association Monday night, explaining that the lessons learned in mental and physical tidiness and self-reliance are truly worth while. His address dealt with camping and education. Mr. F. H. Dearborn introduced the speaker.

Two delightful solos by Mrs. F. H. Doig were also features of the meeting.

More gifts for the babies' of Britain layettes were received and displayed. The president, Mrs. E. Chambers, announced with pleasure that five layettes are almost completed. A table of homemade cooking and candy was quickly disposed of under the capable supervision of Mrs. J. Murray and her helpers, and proceeds will go to the special war work fund. A vote of thanks to the guest speaker and soloist was moved by Mrs. G. Wallace.

Following the National Anthem, refreshments were served by the social convener, Mrs. J. Crocker.

CONFEDERATION SCHOOL.

The sharp contrast between school and home life of Indian boys and girls at Moosonee School, Moose Factory, was apparent in slides shown by a former teacher of the northern school Miss Dorothy Allen, at Monday's meeting of Confederation Home and School Association. Miss Allen, who was teacher at the school during 1940, is now on the staff of May's School. The Indian school at Moose Factory is sponsored by the A.Y.P.A. of the Anglican Church. Two delightful piano solos were played by Miss Guthie.

Mrs. H. Naish was in the chair for the meeting, and announced that the next meeting date was changed from Monday, April 7, to Tuesday, April 8. The attendance banner was won by Miss V. Squire's room. A display of layettes made by Home and School members for British babies was an interesting feature.

Will Respond To Appeal From Peterboro, Eng.

Members of the Women's Auxiliary to the Peterborough Civic War Service Council were unanimous in their decision to assume responsibility in connection with an appeal for war assistance from Lady Craig, wife of the former Mayor of Peterborough, England, sent to Mayor Hamilton of this city. Miss Mabel Patterson was named convener of a committee appointed to contact affiliated societies in connection with the appeal, assisted by Mrs. K. Simpson, Mrs. A. Heckman, Mrs. George Benton, Jr. Mrs. Halliwell will head the sewing group.

Mrs. E. Wand presided at a meeting of the Auxiliary, held Monday night in the Canadian Legion Hall. Announcement was made that since Christmas the following articles have been completed by the sewing committee for overseas shipment: 8 pillow cases; 18 quilts, 1 afghan, 6 bloomers, 2 pairs pyjamas, 2 skirts and sweaters, trousers for small boy, 29 pieces of new underwear, 2 new sets of adult underwear. Miss Isabel Harvey made the draw on a quilt won by Miss Merrett, Burnham street.

Mrs. Montgomery reported 127 pairs of mitts and 64 toques made out of materials left in two local stores, now ready for shipment overseas through the Red Shield Auxiliary.

Plans were discussed for a raffle of donations made to the Auxiliary, such as furniture, a genuine Indian shawl, a clock, etc., which is to be held shortly.

Love May Be a Frill, But It Is Needed in the Home—Sentiment and Common Sense Vie for Top Place in Reasons Why People Marry Nowadays.

An interesting parlor guessing game is why people marry. The conventional and romantic answer is because they were in love, or thought they were at the time they took the fatal trip to the altar. But it appears that is only one of many reasons that set the wedding bells ringing. According to a questionnaire sent out by the Institute of Marital Relations to 18,000 applicants for marriage licenses, only 56 per cent. stated that they married for love. The others said they married for "financial security," "desire of children," "social prstige," "companionship," "sympathy" and so on. To those of us who have been brought up on the treacly, six-best-seller, romantic diet, where, after 400 pages of chills and thrills, misunderstandings, cruel parents and separations a man and woman are finally united in the holy bonds of matrimony, it seems quite shocking to learn that any one ever marries for any reason whatsoever except love. Or what they mistook for love, for in the face of divorce statistics we are bound to admit that quite a few guess wrong. Of course, when we consider the subject dispassionately, we are bound to admit that there are many of our fellow travers who are not romantically inclined and who could not possibly qualify as great lovers. Also, we must concede that there are a great many more things in life than sentiment and that most of us are fed up more quickly on lollypops than we were on roast beef.

So, why in heaven's name shouldn't a man marry a woman because she is a good cook instead of because she has blue eyes and naturally wavy hair? And why shouldn't a woman pick out a go-getter for a husband instead of a poet who might feed her soul on white hyacinths, but would starve her for filet mignon?

The Matrimonial Bet.

But, stitll and all, these figures on what people marry for should mean something or other, and we can only wish that they had indicated which is the better matrimonial bet — sentiment or common sense; whether we should pick out our mates with our hearts or our heads, and particularly which wears better in marriage—a husband or wife who fires our fancies, or one who comes up to our ideals and meets our needs.

There is much to be said on both sides of the subject. Most of us are born with a sweet tooth and crave at least a bite of angel's food. Many starve to death if they are not fed continually on the flatteries and cajoleries and kisses and thrills of love.

Also, admittedly marriage is a hard road to travel, mostly uphill and full of bumps, and love lubricates the domestic machinery and makes the going easier and pleasanter. In a word, love is the fancy icing on the wedding cake, but it isn't the cake itself.

Sentiment Often Fleeting.

And the catch in marrying for love alone is that no one can guarantee how long it will last. Sometimes it as good as new after the wear and tear of 50 years' hard usage. Often it is in shreds and tatters before the bride's trousseau is out of fashion. Sometimes one or the other outgrows it as they do their wedding clothes. And sometimes they just lose their taste for each other for no reason except that their appetites change. Love is just gone. And what of it And what's to do about it? Nothing.

On the other hand, we have the vast number of people who regard love as a frill instead of a necessity in the home, and who would rather have a cabbage in the pantry than an orchid in the parlor any day, and who marry to get a working partner instead of a lady love or a gigolo.

Some Reasons For Marriage.

There is the man who marries because he wants a good cook and home comforts, and the man who marries because he wants children, and the man who marries because he is lonesome, and the man wo marries because he wants somebody to mother him, and the man who marries because he wants somebody to support him.

And among women, there is the woman who marries for fear she will be an old maid; the woman who marries because she hates office work and loves domesticity and wants a home of her own; the woman who is afraid of the future and marries to get a husband to support her; the woman who marries for companionship.

That these marriages turn out, as the phrase goes, as well as the love marriages, is not to be denied. Possibly they have a shade better chance because they are not tangled up with any intangible emotions.

They are all on the practical side, and as long as the woman who was married because she was a good cook keeps on turning out culinary masterpieces her husband is satisfied, and as long as the woman who married for a shopping ticket still has a charge account at the best stores, all is well.

But it leaves the question of what to marry for still unsettled.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, March 12

A PARTICULARLY progressive and promising day, with much of an expansive and stabilising nature in operation among the major planets. It should be a time for definite action in putting over ambitious programs through sound judgment, hard work annd the intervention of those of prestige and financial standing. Political, diplomatic or welfare organizations may be approached confidently for support.

Those whose birthday it is may find a year in which opportunity knocks ab the door with decisive and definite insistence. It is a time for launching worthy propositions of a practical and constructive nature, with the good prospect of cooperation, financial as well as influential, of those in high places.

A child born on this day should have much efficiency and ambition, with practical abilities to substantiate its objectives. While generous, expansive and trustworthy, it may be easily victimized by its friends.

The Problem Of The Transient

In police court here the other day Magistrate Gee told an able-bodied transient who admitted that he had been wandering about the country that there should be a concentration camp for men like him, a camp where transients could be given some useful work to do.

Whether a camp of that nature would solve the problem or not we do not profess to know but it is obvious that in spite of the increased demand for industrial workers and the need of farm labor around the country there is still a comparatively large number of these transients—or tramps if you prefer the old description—who are on the trail from town to town, pan-handling enough money to keep them in tobacco and alcoholic refreshment. Work is the last thing most of them think of until they get before a magistrate and then they suddenly discover that they are looking for a job.

Many of these men could do useful work if some way could be devised of getting them at it. They have got into a rut, after being driven to the road during the depression period and now they seem unable to snap out of it and become good citizens again.

How to reclaim the best of these men and set them to work in this period when the labor of every available pair of hands will be required should be somebody's problem in the present crisis. These transients have lost the initiative; they will not do much to help themselves even in wartime unless some power stronger than their own will is set to work upon the problem. They will merely continue to drift, in and out of jail, while work that they might be doing awaits for the labor needed to complete it.

Farm Incomes

Many things are being said these days about farm incomes and it may be interesting to note that according to figures issued by the Bureau of Business Conditions the total cash income of Canadian farmers last year was higher than in 1939 and much greater than the average of the years 1931-34.

Last year's cash income for the farmers of the whole Dominion is given by the Bureau as $714,700,000 as against $702,800,000 for 1939, and the annual average of $423,100,000 during the years 1931-34.

The greatest increase was in Ontario and Quebec. On the other hand in the wheat producing provinces of Saskatchewan and Manitoba farm income was lower than in 1939.

Producers of livestock and dairy products benefited the most from the gain in farm income last year. Dairy products and bacon were favorably affected by large sales to Britain. As a result of this gain in sales marketing of hogs during 1940 rose to 5,500,000 units. At the same time since the price of pork sold to Great Britain was reduced from $9.00 per hundredweight (Toronto basis) to $8.00 a considerable decline in the breeding of hogs occurred in those provinces where feed has to be bought. On the other hand where feed is produced locally as is the case in the prairie provinces the breeding of pigs showed an increase.

Of the various farm groups only the wheat producers did not fare as well in 1940 as during the previous year. However the total income of this group of farmers is not yet certain, according to the Bureau because the entire crop has not been marketed and there are still considerable quantities of wheat waiting to be shipped.

A Seasonal Pest

Just as the coming of early summer brings the mosquito, the advent of the first days of spring brings that other pest, the motorist who blitherly drives through puddles of dirty water and bespatters the unfortunate pedestrian who happens to be in range. He is with us already. Everywhere where there are puddles and that is just about everywhere on city streets these days the puddle splasher is in his element. He sees in front of him a large pool of water and walking on the sidewalk near it one or two unfortunate individuals on foot. An anticipatory gleam comes into the eye of the man at the wheel, he aims for the centre of the puddle, puts on speed and has his reward when his car wheels dunks the unlucky pedestrian. If it happens to be a woman with an expensive fur coat that gets the benefit of the shower bath the motorist registers a grand slam.

That kind of thing long ago ceased to be funny. It's time it was stopped and fortunately the police now have the weapon to use in stopping it. The careless driving section of the Highway Traffic Act fits the case exactly. The driver who splashes pedestrians is driving in a manner that causes inconvenience to others and comes squarely withing the careless driving section. If every person who is bespattered by the carelessness of motorists will take the number of the offending car and turn it over to the police, it will not be long before that section of the motoring fraternity that has been dousing pedestrians at intersections and elsewhere will arrive at the conclusion that it is not only more courteous to slow up when driving through pools of water but it is also a great deal cheaper.

Four Billions Gone

Probably few of the four hundred Durham farmers who attended the organization meeting of the county branch of the Federation of Agriculture at Orono yesterday afternoon had the opportunity of delving into the Sirois report which was cast aside at the recent interprovincial meeting in Ottawa. At this meeting Monday afternoon they were afforded only a glimpse of its findings, and the facts presented to them by H. H. Hannam, graphically summarized in chart form, tended to corrobbrate all their experience and grievance of the long years of the depression.

During that painful decade, during which their industry was reduced to penury, loans and mortgages, they were told that the average net income was $400 a farm, as compared with $1,000 a farm in 1926. Mr. Hannam's deduction was this: "For the last ten years every farm family in Canada earned another $600 which it did not get." As a result of that tragic deprivation Canada lost in purchasing four billions of dollars. Part of that huge loss to farmers is reflected today in needed repairs to the collective Canadian agricultural plant. Mr. Hannam estimated that one billion dollars could be spent on farm buildings, ordinary maintenance which farmers had to forego.

Most of those four hundred Durham farmers knew from their own experience that their individual revenues had sharply declined during the depression. This chart from the Sirois report information confirmed their opinions, and heaped the loss to their industry, to themselves and all their fellow farmers of Canada, into a vast void instead of the substance which would have enabled them to meet the demands of war financing without the protests of inequality and of economic unbalance which they have been uttering of late.

Some observers have pointed out that in the last war farmers responded to the very first Victory Loan campaign with generous purchase of bonds out of the resources they had on hand. Bonds of five hundred and one thousand dollar denominations were not exceptional in the assistance the farmers were able to give in that emergency. Today, the contrast is held up to their buying of War Savings Certificates, even the minimum stamps, as a trickle of loyal support which is not characteristic of them.

The spirit is willing enough, but the bank account has run too low, and the Sirois report evidently tells the story to those who sift its mass of detail.

Treatment Of Captives

During the past few years international law has been in abeyance in many ways owing to the persistent flouting of it by the totalitarian powers, but it still operates successfully in regards to the prisoners of war. Regulations governing torpedoing of vessels at sea may be ignored but the treatment of prisoners of war still remains governed largely by international agreement.

We do not know just how much the Canadians have been taught about this convention which was signed in 1931 by 47 nations but one thing we have learned is that the German prisoners of war are well coached. They know exactly just what their rights are and they intend to insist that this convention be recognized. Prisoners at Fort Henry only recently are alleged to have lodged complaints with the proper authorities.

It is in accordance with international procedure that prisoners of war in Britain, Canada or Germany and elsewhere are receiving up to 10 pounds of articles of food or clothing weekly and are free from the inhuman treatment charged against domestic concentration camps in various parts of Europe.

The international Red Cross carries out regular inspections and according to the convention: "Prisoners of war shall have the right to address themselves to representatives of the protecting powers to indicate to them the points on which they have complaints, and even if they are found to be unfounded after due investigation they may not occasion any punishment."

To facilitate the lodging of such complaints regular monthly inspections are carried out by the protecting power—that is the power handling the affairs of the country to which the prisoners belong in the detaining country and by delegates of the International Red Cross.

Should a nation not carry out the international agreement the danger of retaliation is the only power besides moral persuasion and public opinion that can be used to bring the offender into line.

Official spokesmen of the Red Cross after investigating conditions in the various prison camps have reported no intentional violations of the agreement and that the belligerents in many cases go beyond the requirements of the convention.

Modes of warfare have progressed vastly since 1914-18, but this is one mode that has made progress in the right direction.

Stalin Is Crafty

The Examiner had opportunity recently of obtaining the view of a gentleman well versed in international affairs regarding the policy of Russia in the present war. That country has been an enigma for months. When war started it did appear that Moscow and Berlin had signed some sort of a document which was to bind them, but that document was for the purpose of giving Stalin a slice of Poland and making it possible for him to go in and take control of three Baltic states without any interference.

How Stalin managed later on to take possession of Bessarabia from Rumania and draw no fire is not easily explained. It may have been because Germany was then was not anxious to have conditions in the Balkans disturbed.

Russian policy, as viewed in these columns previously has been to straddle the fence. Our belief has been that it would suit the purpose of Stalin to see Germany and Britain fight to the point of exhaustion, and when that point was reached the way would be open to Stalin to spread communism and enlarge territory as he has not done before.

We were assured that this belief is substantially correct. It is not anticipated that Russia will be drawn into the war, and Russia will go to great lengths to see that nothing like that takes place. If Britain appears to be gaining, then Russian policy will tilt slightly toward the Germans. If Germany's successes are notable then Russia will lean slightly toward Britain. Stalin is regarded as being above all else crafty and he is interested now in the success of Russia. And nothing else.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Gayda says that Canadian troops are in Greece. That is a very good reason for believing that they are not.

Two of Mussolini's ministers are reported killed in Albania. The Greeks are hoping the Duce will take over one of their positions in person.

Britain is to have two hours daylight saving every day this summer. That goes in accordance with the theory that if sixty minutes is good one hundred and twenty is better.

All the brains in Parliament are not in the House of Commons, says the Ottawa Journal. Let us hope that statement does not bring Grattan O'Leary before the bar of the House.

EASY ENOUGH

(By A.R.K.)

¶ When I lived on Concession Ten, and went to school with little men, perhaps some things we lacked; but teachers there they always said, if we were going to get ahead, we must add and substract.

¶ I used to have long sums to do, took quite a while in getting through, I'd work on them at night; and then I'd take them back next day, and hear the teacher rise and say, that most of them weren't right.

¶ The teacher said that I was dumb, and could not do a simple sum, and that was plain to see; when I went out to fight my way, I'd reach the poor house door some day, there was no chance for me.

¶ I should divide and I should add, my failure made the teacher sad, and future hopes looked dim; I'd knock at doors without success, of everything I'd make a mess, no place where I'd get in.

¶ The teacher had not looked ahead, there was defect in all she said, I've worked for forty years; and I can't do my sums right yet, strange answers I am sure to get, I travel without fears.

¶ For there are good machines today, the answers come like pitching hay, I really think they're fine; you punch the keys both east and west, and those machines will do the rest—and be right every time.

CAP and BELLS . .

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

THE newspaper reports and the newscasts make reference every day to "the occupied zones," by which they mean the lands once called Norway, Poland, Denmark, Holland, Belgium, Austria, Czecho Slovakia and so forth. Gradually we find these areas becoming shadowy in our minds. They are lands from which we have no news, only rumor. What, we wonder, is happening there? How are the inhabitants faring?

C & B

At least we have some first-hand information. An American citizen, Mr. Lars Moen, was in Belgium when the Low Countries fell, and last December he was permitted to return to his native land. He is a man of intelligence and education, a scientist by profession, and a neutral — the very man, in short, whom we would choose to tell us the truth about the German occupation. Mr. Moen has lived in almost every country in Northern Europe; he knows the languages and the people intimately. He has compared his views with those of scores of Americans who were in a similar position to his own. Now he has published his revelations and his opinions in "Under the Iron Heel," which I think the best book on the present European situation that I have read.

C & B

If you want tales of atrocity and horror upon which to feed your hatred of Germany, this book will be of no use to you. Mr. Moen is not interested in cases of isolated brutality, which happen in every war and which may happen on either side. There are brutes in every army. But he has much to say about the German technique of using refugees to block roads and hinder rapid movement in warfare. He saw that heartbreaking procession from Holland pass the windows of his hotel in Antwerp; he saw many of them return, perhaps to find their homes in ruins, perhaps to find them intact and carefully guarded from looting by German military police.

C & B

Mr. Moen dispells any notion we may have had that the German Army of Occupation is a rabble of drunken roisterers, baiting the burghers and raping their daughters. Looting is punishable by immediate execution, and it is shocking to be told that the Allied armies did more looting in Belgium than did the Germans. The troops are insolent to the natives of occupied areas, for insolence is part of German nature, but small-scale dishonesty is rare. As for the girls—humanity is the same now as ever, and rape is quite unnecessary—conquerors with money in their pockets are irresistible to a certain section of feminine nature. Drunkenness is not common among privates; officers are the heavy drinkers and German fliers, according to Mr. Moen, live in a continual state of alcoholic stupor, owing to attempts to quiet their overstrained nerves.

C & B

The food situation in Belgium is bad and is growing worse. It is typical of Nazi politics that the troops pay for everything they buy in completely worthless "occupation money." This gives an air of legality and fair dealing which is most misleading. The capture of Antwerp was complete at 8 a.m. on the morning of May 18, 1940, and by 3 p.m. army trucks were carting all goods from the warehouses of that rich harbor to Germany. The owners were paid — in worthless occupation money, redeemable at some vague future date. This money is printed as it is needed and has no standard value whatever. The rationing of foodstuffs applies only to natives of occupied countries, and troops are kept well-fed. When Mr. Moen left Belgium mere undernourishment was merging into slow starvation. And yet the Belgians see no hope of relief from America; during the last war such aid was laughable, for so much good American food was stolen by the Germans that the Belgians got only such as was spoiled and unfit for use. At least, that is the Belgian story, and Mr. Moen doubts if a similar situation would not arise in this war, unless American aid were dispensed by a far greater number of Americans than would ever be permitted into an occupied zone.

C & B

Mr. Moen sees the Army of Occupation as a potential menace to German might. Most of the men in the occupied zones have been in the army for two of three years, and they want to go home. When the Germans made their spectacular dash through the Low Countries they thought they saw the end in sight; the Feuhrer had promised them that they would be in London by August 15 and they believed him. Then he changed the date to September 15, and again they believed. But the winter came, and with it came news of air-raids in Germany, and the destruction of some of the homes for which they longed with typical German homesickness. And so they became restless and fearful. The destruction by the R.A.F. was terrifying. Mr. Moen makes it amply clear that the R.A.F. destruction was by no means as much "confined to military objectives" as we think. Hospitals, schools and churches are being wrecked on the continent as well as in England.

C & B

It would be fatal, however, to overestimate the significance of the unrest in the German Army of Occupation. Any army becomes fidgetty if it has no objectives before it. The army's loyalty to Hitler is fanatical, though other Nazi leaders are not popular and Goering is definitely hated for his wealth and ostentation. Of the discomfort and hopelessness of life in an occupied zone Mr. Moen writes eloquently. As he speaks German, Flemish and French fluently the German soldiers took him for a Belgian and spoke freely to him, never assuming that he might get to America and spill the beans. But that is precisely what he has done; I shall continue this commentary on his book on Thursday.

Letter To The Editor

"JOHANNES' PROPHECY"

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—The following remarkable prophecy was made nearly 400 years ago by Johannes, an itinerant scribe, who was well known throughout middle Europe for his devoutness and apt sayings. The records in many French and Swiss towns contain writings and letters by him, but among them all not one is so remarkable as the "prophecy." Close students of political history will see a wonderful picture, part of which has been fulfilled before our own eyes and part is nearing fulfillment.

Key to the prophecy:—

France is represented by a Cock. England is represented by the Leopard. Russia is represented by the White Eagle. Germany is represented by the Black Eagle. Austria is represented by the other Eagle. The Lamb stands for Justice, Mercy, and Truth.

Towards the year two thousands the Anti-Christ will manifest himself and his army will surpass in numbers all that can be imagined. There will be Christians among his legions, and Mohammedans and savages among the defenders of the Lamb.

For the first time the Lamb will be all red. There will not be a single spot in the Christian world that will not be red, and red will be in the heavens, the earth, the waters and even the air for blood will flow in the domains of the four elements at once.

The Black Eagle will throw himself on the Cock, who will lose many of his feathers but will strike back heroically with his spurs, but would soon be crushed were it not for the Leopard and his claws.

The Black Eagle will come from the country of the Lutherans, will surprise the Cock and will invade the country of the Cock up to the middle of it. The White Eagle coming from the North will surprise the Black Eagle and the other Eagle will invade the country of the Black Eagle from one end to the other. The Black Eagle will see himself forced to liberate the Cock in order to fight the White Eagle and the Cock will pursue the Black Eagle into the country of the Anti-Christ in order to help the White Eagle.

The battles fought up to this time will be as nothing compared to those which will take place in the country of the Lutherans, for the seven angels will pour in their censures on the impious earth, which signifies that the Lamb will order the extermination of the races of the Anti-Christ.

When the beast sees that he is lost he will become furious and for many months the beak of the White Eagle, the claws of the Leopard and the spurs of the Cock will cross the rivers over the bodies of the slain, and these in places will change the course of the waters. They will bury only the men of noble family and leading commanders, because to the carnage made by the armies will be joined the wholesale death of those who die of hunger and of pest.

The Anti-Christ will ask many times for peace but the seven angels who walk in front of the three animals defending the Lamb have declared that peace will only be granted on the condition that the Anti-Christ be crushed like straw on the barn floor. The executors of the Justice of the Lamb cannot stop fighting as long as the Anti-Christ has soldiers to fight against them. That which makes the decrees of the Lamb so implacable is that the Anti-Christ has pretended to be a follower of Christ and to act in his name. If he does not perish the fruit of the Redeemer will be lost and the doors of Hades would prevail against the Saviour.

The fight which will take place where the Anti-Christ forges his arms will not be in any way a human fight.

The three animals defending the Lamb will exterminate the last army of the Anti-Christ, but they will be forced to erect a pyre as large as a city for the bodies of the dead will change the aspects of the country more as there will be mounds of the slain.

The Anti-Christ will lose his crown and will die in solitude and madness. His empire will be divided into 22 states but none of them will posses fortresses, armies or vessels.

The White Eagle by the order of St. Michael, will drive the crescent from Europe and will install himself at Constantinople. Then will begin an era of peace and prosperity for the earth, and there will be no more wars each nation being governed according to its desires and living according to the rules of Justice.

There will no longer be Lutherans or schismatics. The Lamb will reign and the supreme happiness of humanity will begin. Happy will be those, who, escaping the perils of that period, will be able to enjoy the fruit of the reign of the Spirit and the purging of humanity which can only come after the defeat of the Anti-Christ.

A READER.

• Travelling In Britain

By ERIC PYLE
Special London Correspondent

THERE are 30 passenger trains daily between London and Scotland. The trains are terrifically long and they are always packed.

There are no restrictions on travel in England. You don't have to get special permission or anything. You just get on a train and go. I've never had to show my multitudinous special papers since the day I got them.

When I register at a hotel I have to put down my nationality, my passport number, where I've just come from and where I'm going. The English do, too, except instead of a passport number they put down their national registration number.

The better trains carry restaurant cars at dinner time. The diners are nicer than those in the U.S., with deep easy chairs. They bring you soup, lamb, boiled potatoes, cabbage, canned fruit and coffee for about 85 cents.

For a stranger like me, it is hard to know when you get to where you're going. You almost never see a conductor or a porter.

Only occasionally do they call out a station, and the names have been taken off most of the stations in order not to give pointers to the Germans if the invasion comes. At night, of course, the train windows are blacked out so you can't see the station you're coming into anyhow.

I've worked out a scheme of just eavesdropping till I spot somebody who is going where I'm going, and then when he starts putting on his coat to get off I start putting on mine.

Some people know the railroad by heart. The other night, on the way from London to York, our train slowed down and we all thought we were coming into York.

"Wait a minute," said a man in our compartment. "I'll tell you in a minute."

He sat listening as the train crept forward. Suddenly we could tell we were crossing a bridge.

From the time we left London, four hours earlier, he had never looked up from his book, but just from the sound of the wheels he knew exactly where we were.

Considering the fact that the country is throwing everything into the war, it seems to me the railroads do mighty well.

There is actually more rail traffic now than in peacetime, but of course this increase is in freight trains. Passenger service has been cut down, but not as much as I had thought.

STUBBORN HOLLANDER

THE spectacle of a defenceless people unafraid of the tyrant in their midst is an exhilarating sign of the resoluteness of the Dutch democracy. But it is what one had come to expect from Holland. Non-co-operation has been the watchword of the people since the invasion of May 10. This is bad enough for the Nazis, but the solid moral support which the Netherlands are giving to the British must be even more galling. Everybody is said to be listening in on the B.B.C. broadcasts. According to one account, after an anniversary ceremony around the statue of Erasmus, the Hollander who counseled people to say "Yes" to life, the Nazis discovered tags on all the wreaths saying, "To the only person in Holland who doesn't listen to the B.B.C." The Dutch are doing their bit, moreover, to prosecute the war from within. It is said, for instance, that the grapevine between the Netherlands and London works so effectively that R.A.F. pilots appear over new airdromes within a few hours of their construction. — Washington Post.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

And one of the elders answered, saying unto me, What are these which are arrayed in white robes? and whence came they? And I said unto him, Sir, thou knowest: And he said to me, These are they which came out of great tribulation, and have washed their robes, and made them white in the blood of the Lamb. Therefore are they before the throne of God, and serve him day and night in his temple: and he that sitteth on the throne shall dwell among them. They shall hunger no more, neither thirst any more; neither shall the sun light on them, nor any heat. For the Lamb which is in the midst of the throne shall feed them, and shall lead them unto living fountains of water: and God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes....

He that overcometh shall inherit all things; and I will be his God, and he shall be my son.—Rev. vii, 9-17; xxi, 7.

WOMAN-POWER AT WORK

MR. BEVIN rolls up his sleeves. Good. For sixteen months we have been asking for orders, pleading for total war. Now we are going to get it. "No man in a job which can be done by a woman." That is a first-class slogan. It would have sounded well a long time ago. Let us hope that it will not, like so many other slogans, become a catch-phrase and nothing more. By drafting more men to the Fighting and Civil Defence Services and transferring others from non-essential work to jobs of national importance, the Government is using the powers which it has long had and neglected.

This use is still welcome, though it is late, if the lateness does not lead to nation-wide muddle in an effort to catch up. Wholesale redistribution of men must not lead to putting large batches of them to work for which they are unsuitable. Training facilities for new men and women in industry must be provided on a properly large scale. The classification of non-essential industries must be carefully made, with especial reference to our export trade.

The war must be paid for, and our exports provide us with the money to pay. If the new classes which are now to register, together with those who are being combed out of reserved occupations, are to be called up for service in the immediate future, we must beware of the danger of being caught between two stools in our invasion defence plans. — Sunday Chronicle, London

Horse Fanciers Carry On Despite War

LONDON, March 11—(CP). — Stripped of the Grand National, jockeys and stablehands, the remnants of Britain's "Sport of Kings" has been geared for another year of war.

Owners and breeders have never considered discontinuing horse racing. They are following the advice of Lord Rosebery, president of the Breeders' Association:—

"Hang on as long as you can. After the war is won there will be a demand for thoroughbreds. As long as we are doing nothing to hinder the war we must do all we can to keep going."

As jockeys and stable help were called to the colors, 'teen-aged boys, old men and even girls were called to fill the breaches. Britain's horse-loving public will not be dismayed.

The war caused cancellation of racing in the south, but in the north counties the smell of liniment and well-oiled leather hovers about stables and race tracks.

Decision to cancel the Grand National after 104 years without a break caused general disappointment. During the first Great War the gruelling four miles and 856 yards race was transferred to Gatwick where a substitute was held.

Busy For Derby

Trainers are busy training thoroughbreds for the Derby, which will be run as a substitute at a northern course. The time has not been definitely decided as dates for the flat-racing season have only been set tentatively. The season is expected to open later in March and continue into November.

Before the war about 10,000 thoroughbreds were in training each year. Not more than 2,000 including some from the King's stable and other big racing establishments, will be conditioned this year.

Most of the horses will never return to the English turf. Some have been destroyed, others sold abroad or to the army.

Tommy Gorman, secretary of the Quebec Racing Association, offered to handle 600 horses for the duration, but the invitation did not receive unanimous approval. Most owners felt they could not afford shipping expenses.

Jockeys who joined the army include Bruce Hobbs, F. Welyn and Eric Williams, Grand National winners.

Canadian "Gale" Marks Anniversary Of Beaver Club

With a mighty blow, members of the Beaver Club, London, blow out the giant candle on top of the cake that marked celebration of the first anniversary of the founding of the Canadian Club in London. Canadians from the air forces, navy, infantry and other branches of the fighting services are represented in the group ABOVE.

Now's The Time To Pick Stars In N.H.L. Lists

By SYDNEY GRUSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

TORONTO, March 11 (CP) — There is no surer sign of the closeness of the National Hockey League's playoffs than the opening of the balloting for the annual Canadian Press all-star teams, now under way among the circuit's hockey writers.

There have been enough outstanding players in a season noteworthy for the tenseness of the fight for the league championship to assure a close vote struggle for nearly every position. The consensus of the sports writers who chose the team will be published in the latter part of this month.

Goalies Three

The best goalies this season have been Walter Broda of Toronto Maple Leafs, the sensational Detroit rookie, Johnny Mowers, and Frank Brimsek of Boston. In a game where first-year goalies barely manage to survive, Mowers' performance has been extraordinary but the balloting will tell whether it overshadowed the work of the two veterans.

Most of the older greats of the blueline have had better-than-average seasons, with some like Clapper, Goodfellow, Earl Seibert of Chicago and Bingo Kampman of Toronto apparently able to go on forever without showing the ravages of time. Injuries hurt the chances of Rangers' Ott Heller and Wilf Field of New York Americans.

Shining so brightly that it could not help but attract notice was the star of Walter Stanowski, the whirling dervish of Toronto's rearguard. The young Winnipeg Pole, in his second year, has been brilliant from the opening game. He is perhaps the most dangerous threat to the hold the oldtimers have fastened on the all-star defence jobs.

As to Centres

The controversy over the league's leading centre has blown around the heads of Bill Cowley of Boston and Syl Apps of Toronto, with Schmidt and Neil Colville and Phil Watson of Rangers skating fast behind them for consideration. Cowley and Apps ran one-two in the scoring race most of the season.

Along right wing the selectors have Bobby Bauer of Boston, Gord Drillon of Toronto and the sharpshooting Hextall, bidding to retain the goal-scoring championship, as the logical choices. To patrol the other side of the boards on this mythical squad, there are Dave Schriner of Toronto, Woody Dumart of Boston or Syd Howe of Detroit.

No doubt there are others whose fancy deeds have taken hold of the writers. Certain it is that they must be impressed by the coaching jobs done by Clarence (Happy) Day, who had Toronto in first place most of the season, Cooney Weiland, whose Bruins set up a record of 23 unbeaten games, and Dick Irvin, who took half-a-dozen green rookies and moulded them into a hard-skating band for Montreal Canadiens.

Credited with a hero role when a bomb crashed into a London restaurant was Lieut. J. D. Wright of Sarnia. He was dancing with Miss Thelma Stewart of Toronto, a physiotherapist attached to the Canadian Army Medical Corps, and shielded his companion from the blast. Miss Stewart was slightly injured.

Y.M.C.A. Ladies Take Lead In City League

Marion Timm and Francis Margueratt swung a 3 to 1 victory to the Outboard Marine girls with 740 and 710 scores in last night's Ladies' City League at Duffus' Alleys. The Outboards were matched against the Commercial ladies, who went out in earnest to crash the win column for the first time. Their efforts were rewarded once when they took the second game in spite of Miss Timm's 320 single.

The Y.M.C.A. took over sole possession of top place as they added 4 points against no opposition. Kawartha's won 3 to 1 from the Examiner entry and Westclox duplicated the feat against Lucky Strikes.

DRAFTED FOR LOVE

By RUTH AYERS

YESTERDAY: Ann is coming home. The audition was a failure. She is coming back to her Kent. April decides to confess, goes to take Kent to the train. He has changed. He kisses her again—but this is an entirely different kiss. At last he asks: "Why did you do it, April? To annex another scalp?"

✧ ✧ ✧

"ANN WILL NEVER KNOW—"

CHAPTER XIII

APRIL felt her fingers freezing, and after awhile she realized her feet were numb and soggy wet from standing in the snow back at the garage.

"You have it all wrong, Kent," she whimpered, much as Nip, the puppy, did when he was hurt.

"No, I think not." Kent's words chipped like icicles. "You stumbled on a situation which amused you and you made the most of it."

"Please, you're not being fair."

"Fair?" He gave a short laugh and went on, "You fooled me, of course. Your voice and Ann's are alike. You wore her coat. You had some diabolical way of discovering where we had our favorite outing."

"You'll understand, if you'll let me explain."

He ignored this and with a quick, hurtful grip on her arm, demanded, "Where's Ann?"

"Ann—she went away."

By some miracle, April stopped short. Ann didn't want Kent to know about the audition. It would be even worse to tell him now that the great hour with Vivano had been a failure. Besides, Kent was opposed to Ann's hoped-for career. White night, she thought, white lie.

"You see," she was stammering, "Ann didn't know you were coming home. She was on a little—vacation. They're all away, Mother and Dad and Ann."

"When will Ann be back?"

"Soon—oh, very soon." April's teeth were clicking, her tongue numb, like the rest of her. "Tell me, how—when did you know I was April?"

For one small word spoken kindly! For one second when that harsh mask on his face lifted! Then she could speak to him out of her heart.

✧ ✧ ✧

BUT not Kent. He repeated her words. "When did I know?" He was speaking as if he relished hurting her. "I'll say this for you, April, you'd make a great actress. I think you've missed a career. You've wasted your talents being the town belle. How is it you haven't heard the call of Broadway or Hollywood?"

The red temper under the yellow hair began to rise in self-defense. "We can skip that," April said.

"Naturally, I'm not proud of the things I said about you," he spoke gruffly. "I apologize."

"Oh, think nothing of it." If he could be brittle, so could she. "Just hurry on with the story of how you discovered my true colors."

"If it hadn't been for the shock of that accident at camp, you couldn't have fooled me, blind or not. Maybe my nerves were on edge; maybe I wasn't clicking. But looking back, I can see where I should have known who you were right from the start. The trick you used to get out of the date the first night I was home. The clumsy way you built the fire on the hill. The crazy speeding you did on the drive home last night. It was Aunt Elizabeth Carter who gave the final clue. No wonder you didn't want to face her."

"And what did Aunt Elizabeth say?" She was fighting to keep the break out of her voice.

Kent snorted and at that minute he wasn't unlike his great aunt. "She said," he began, "a girl like Ann Burnett with such a Dresden doll face and that head of yellow curls must love you a great deal to burn her fingers over a barbecue."

April saw the clock on the dashboard. Fifteen minutes to train time. She pushed her numb foot on the gas pedal. It didn't seem to matter any more whether she kept up the bravado.

"I see," she said. "Then your Aunt Elizabeth hates me, too."

Kent looked away. "No, as a matter of fact, she admired your spirit. But never mind what she thinks. I'll be on that train in a few minutes and there's one thing you'll have to answer to me about."

"Yes."

"What possessed you to pretend to me that you were Ann?"

✧ ✧ ✧

APRIL started the car. It jolted, wheels spinning, churning, so that for a minute it seemed as if it would never pull away. Once safely moving again, April was so cold, so near the breaking point, that she couldn't think clearly. The only thing that was sharp in her mind was Ann's letter. Ann was coming home to her beloved Kent.

She said the first thing that floated through her brain. "I did it because I felt sorry for you."

The one thing he hated! Pity, sympathy.

But when she tried to stammer a further explanation, he cut her short. "Never mind," he said, "I think we understand each other perfectly."

The roadster chain - clattered across the bridge, neared the track siding and the station. There was something else. Something important that had made April see Kent tonight. In the daze of fast falling snow, in the nightmare of her own cold and feverishness, she tried to grasp it.

"Kent," she began, "whatever I've done, I'm sorry."

No, that wasn't it. That wasn't what she'd meant to say. In the fog of her thoughts, the name "Ann" leaped out again.

"It's Ann!" she cried. "Ann! Promise you'll never tell Ann that I let you make love to me, Kent. I couldn't bear for her to know. I'd die rather than hurt her. You've got to promise."

Nothing else was of any importance. She felt the tiny hat slipping off her head; she was sure her hands were frozen stiff to the steering wheel; but otherwise, she was lost in the white confetti shower that danced before her eyes.

"No, I'll never tell Ann," she heard Kent say. "What happened between us, is over, dead, wiped out. It's as if it never happened."

"Thank you Kent. Thank you."

"I love Ann," Kent was saying. "If I come out of this operation all right, I'm going to marry her."

"She loves you, too, Kent." And now April was crying openly, bawling like a baby as she was to remember it afterwards.

"You mean it?"

"I know it. She's going to be waiting for you, Kent, praying you'll be all right. You're good, oh, you're very good, Kent, to say that what happened between us really never happened at all."

✧ ✧ ✧

AND now April's face was frozen with tears and tears stuck on her lashes, blinding her eyes as she wheeled the roadster up to the station platform.

Wheeled and stopped. But not in time to hold back the terrible thud against the fender; the shocking, frightening lurch as the chain-banded tires struck something—struck someone.

Kent was out of the car in a flash as if second sight came to aid him in this emergency.

Blame Pneumonia In Lindsay Deaths

LINDSAY, March 11.—Bronchial pneumonia, and not starvation, was the cause of the death of Charlotte Shouldice, aged resident of the Township of Mariposa, who died in hospital a week ago, it was learned Saturday. Two brothers, Tom and Isaac, died a few hours later.

Dr. George C. R. Hall, M.O.H., performed an autopsy on Miss Shouldice, and later reported that there were no signs of starvation. It is believed that neither of the two brothers died from this cause. Township residents pointed out that neighbors of the unfortunate family had done everything possible to aid them.

The three aged persons rejected attempts of Dr. Hall to have them brought to hospital, and all efforts to provide them with food were unsuccessful, it was stated.

SWEDENS PULP LOSS

STOCKHOLM—(CP)—Owing to war blockade and lack of shipping Sweden's 1940 export of pulp and other products was barely one-half of that of a normal peacetime year.

40 Young Canucks Study Ordnance

LONDON, March 11 (CP Cable)—Forty Canadians have been trained in British ordnance factories to become the nucleus of a great labor force in Canadian ammunition filling plants.

Half of this total are already back in Canada after an instruction course lasting 2½ months and the remainder are about ready to return to pass on the knowledge gained to workers in the Dominion's expanding armaments industry.

Maj. Alex Young, former contractor, enlisted from his Grimsby, Ont., farm to head the group while they were in Britain.

This policy of learning from Britain follows a procedure adopted more than a year ago when a dozen Canadian Pacific shop foremen were sent here for instruction in the manufacture of bombers, which it was planned to make in Canada.

The initial contingent of munitions "students" were mainly young Northern Ontario mining engineers. The second and final lot also were mining engineers, recruited from Halifax to Victoria.

With The Boy Scouts

Scouters' Club

A meeting of the Scouters' Club will be held this evening, Monday, March 10, in the association headquarters at 8 p.m. All officers of the association are requested to attend.

All Saints' (Anglican)

The Scouts.—A good turnout of boys was on hand at the last meeting. Instruction in signalling and other matters were taken. We noticed two strange handkerchiefs among the boys and on inquiry found one was of the 1st Salisbury Troop of England and was being worn by David Debben, who has been in Canada just three months. David stood smartly to the alert during my talk with him. He is a tenderfoot and likes Canada. The second 'neckerchief is of the 11th St. Luke's Anglican troop of St. John, N.B., and was worn by Bill Filer, son of the Rev. Mr. Filer, the new rector of All Saints. Bill wore the Leaping Wolf badge and many proficiency badges. We wish them both good scouting.

Two new members were entered into the world brotherhood of scouting when Eric Martin and Jack Martin were invested at a ceremony just before the close of the meeting. The patrol standings are as follows: Crows, 221; Beavers, 220; Eagles, 211; Lynx, 204; Bulldogs, 198. This shows a big advance for the Crows who stood last in last week's reports.

Sacred Heart (Roman Catholic).

The Cubs.—The opening ceremony as outlined in the "Scout Leader" was followed at the meeting last Thursday. Awards for the cub craft show were given as follows: 1st, Michael Crowley; 2, Tom Drumm; 3, Vernon Grady. Patrol Leader Frank Lucano acted as knot instructor; Baloo taught time telling; Bagheera, signalling; Akela, skipping, and also Grand Howl to the new chums. Instructions were also given for Sunday morning church services.

George Street (United)

Cubs.—The first investiture ceremony of the new pack took place last week, when Don Foster, Gordon Beech, Brownie Monaghan, John Frise were made full fledged cubs, and Don Delahaye renewed his cub promise. The parents of all the boys were present for the ceremony, also Mr. Leo Copp, chairman of the group committee and Assistant Commissioner L. A. Grant.

The caps and neckerchiefs were presented to the boys by Akela Marshall, the cub pins and enrollment cards by Rakesha Dewart.

Many games were played including ball passing, British bulldog, skin the snake and roller race.

St. James' (United)

The Cubs.—Three new chums attended the jungle this week. Ronnie Wallis, Don Downer and Eddie Potter. Ray Palmer made another step forward as he received his first star, and Kelvin Pheonix passed his skipping tests. Relay races helped to cause some real fun. Baloo led in the Dance of Baloo. Ronnie Lish led in the opening, and Bill Harrison the closing grand howl.

St. Luke's (Anglican).

The Pack.—Another new chum added his name to the roll on Tuesday by transfer from All Saints'. Rudolph Pollock making St. Luke's his new home. Rev. Mr. Bousfield and Scouter Nokes paid a visit to the pack. The following tests were passed:

George Gough, leap frog; Wayne Ferguson, National Anthem; La Vergne Butcher passed savings account; Allan Payne, compass and ——; Don McKay, sommersault, leap frog and ball throwing; Rudolph Pollock, leap frog, Ball throwing, skipping, book balancing and somersault.

The sixers' meeting will be held on Friday at 6.30 in Akela's home.

St. John's (Anglican)

The Pack.—Once more another name was added to the roll of scouting as Fred Hills became a fully invested cub at a delightful ceremony on Friday last. Announcements of the coming scout craft show and a reminder to the boys going to Baloo's home on Thursday at 4.30 were made.

Arms and elbow inspection was the order of the night, and games of Detective by Baloo, and Circle Tug of War by Kim helped to pass the evening in good style.

The Crew.—It has been decided that the next crew meeting will be held in the den on Thursday, March 20. Also that a social will be held on Tuesday, April 22.

Scouts.—G. Grierson passed first aid. Vaughn Johnson passed scout laws.

J. Hooper taught signalling. G. Green taught tenderfoot work. G. Best took Kim's game. P.T. was had in the form of "Kelly Says."

There was a drill in signs. A. Dobson was invested at the end of the meeting.

—THE SKIPPER.

BUT TALKED TOO MUCH

ROCHESTER, England—(CP). — A 75-year-old sailor, who lost his barge at Dunkerque rescuing British troops, was fined $22.50 for communicating information concerning munitions.

ELSIE, THE BORDEN COW, SAYS:

Wheezing in the Chest Points to Bronchitis

The principal symptom of bronchitis is a dry, harsh, hacking cough accompanied by a rapid wheezing and tightness across the chest.

There is a raising of phlegm, especially in the morning. This phlegm is at first of a light colour, but as the trouble progresses becomes yellowish or greenish.

You may find in Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup a remedy to help stimulate the weakened bronchial organs, relieve the inflammation, soothe the irritated parts, loosen the phlegm and mucous, and aid nature to easily dislodge the morbid accumulation.

Price 35c a bottle; the large family size, about 3 times as much, 60c, at all drug counters.

RADIONICS

Radionics has at last come to Peterborough. This method of examination has been very successfully used throughout the cities and towns of Ontario for some years and now it is being introduced to this community.

The Radioclast is a scientific instrument developed and operated on the Radio principle. Every organ or tissue of the body has its own vibration rate or wave length. By tuning in with the Radioclast on any individual at the proper wave length, the presence of any kind of disease with which that person may be afflicted can readily be detected, located, its area or extent determined and its intensity measured. The various form of toxines and infections can be accurately determined, and the treatment given to eliminate the cause. Radionic examination fees are very moderate and we invite you to come to our office and learn more about this wonderful instrument without obligation.

2 Got To The Moat

Ottawa, March 11 (CP)

INTERNMENT officials said today that two German officers, prisoners in the internment camp at Fort Henry, Ont., would have had company on an attempted break for freedom Friday night if their original plans had been carried through.

"Four of them were mixed up in it but two of them never got outside the camp grounds," an official said.

Two prisoners used a rope to clamber over the ramparts of the fort and were captured in the moat after their rope broke. Officials, without giving details, said the two other prisoner-officers were balked before they were well-started at carrying out their escape plans.

Midland Laces Campbellford 12 to 6 In Opener

CAMPBELLFORD, March 11. — Campbellford was beaten by a 12 to 6 score when they tangled with Midland in the semi-finals of the Intermediate "A" section O.H.A. It was the first of a home and home series with the Midland sextette who gave a brilliant all around exhibition of fast hockey. The game was staged on a fast sheet of ice and in spite of plenty of heavy body checking there were but four penalties during the entire 60 minutes, and these were equally divided.

Sunocos Took Early Lead

The locals showed their best form in the opening stanza and everything pointed to a close contest as they headed the visitors by a 4 to 3 count, but in the second the visitors countered with a blazing attack that the hard pressed Sunocos who fought like Trojans were unable to stem. Midland boosted their score by seven tallies during the 20-minute period, and the final frame added two more as the losers strove desperately to organize for a counter-thrust.

Result of the game clinched a play-off berth for the visitors who will go into the final game in Midland next Friday with a 6-goal lead. Sager, Stewart, Toole O'Hearn, and St. Armand with two goals each, and Wilcox and Arbor with one were the visiting marksmen, while for the homesters Cournyea and McIlrath took scoring honors with a pair each, and Godden and Wilkes contributed the rest.

Campbellford looked mighty good in the first frame as they opened, led by Phillips, McIlrath, Hendy, their first string line. Cournyea, flashy Sunoco rearguard skated the length of the ice to register the opening counter on a neat passing play in which he combined with Phillips. Sager, unassisted, got the equalizer for the visitors at the five minute mark, and Stewart put Midland in the lead by slapping one into the rigging as a Campbellford player attempted to clear in front of the net. The teams again fought on an even footing after McIlrath weaved his way down the ice alone. Hendy was sent to the jug and the visitors tore in in an effort to capitalize on their one man advantage. They went in on McNabb, who gave a classy demonstration in the net, turning aside several thrusts that appeared labelled. The homesters were again at full strength when McIlrath slapped home Phillips' pass and a lightning attack by Wilkes and Reid widened the homesters' lead.

Second Period

It was during the second that the visitors really went on their scoring splurge pouring in to rain shots at McNabb from all angles. They turned on an attack of terrific pressure, seizing the lead in less than three minutes. With the exception of the occasional breakaway by their front line attack unit led by McIlrath and Blake, Sunocos were bottled up in their own area and the visitors dominated the play. Their forwards, Stewart, St. Armand and O'Hearn poured in on the Campbellford net, while their rearguards effectively broke up Sunoco attacks.

The visitors had notched five goals before the period reached the half-way mark, while the locals hung on grimly in an effort to seize the initiative. Not till 12.30 of the period had lapsed did Sunocos step into the scoring picture, then it was by the all-out effort of Ernie Godden, who punched one home in a speedy solo drive. Midland, continuing their all-out blitzkreig stretched their lead by two more. Undaunted the homesters repeatedly stormed the visitors on breakaways and before the period was over they were rewarded when Cournyea's well-aimed shot found its mark.

In the third, the visitors led off with an attack of terrific pressure which they sustained without let-up for the remainder of the contest and resulted in widening their lead by two more.

Max Baer, former heavyweight boxing champion, took a long stride along the comeback trail three years ago tonight when he handed Tommy Farr, British champion from Wales, a 15-round trimming. The inconsistent Baer turned down a second bout with Champion Joe Louis after impressive victories over Billy Coon and Tony Galento.

Some Ball Camp Training Notes

LAKELAND, Fla., March 11 — (CP).—They're still talking salaries in the Tiger camp. There was a Winter argument as to whether Buck Newsom or Bob Feller was baseball's highest paid pitcher. Now it's Newsom's stipend—reported up from last year's "more than $30,000 in salary and bonuses" against what Tiger Outfielder Hank Greenberg is getting. Gossip has Hank due for $40,000 in 1941.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.—It looks as though Nick Etten will supply some of the power the Phillies need. He blasted a couple of home runs over the fence in yesterday's workout.

SARASOTA, Fla. — Boston Red Sox found Ted Williams awaiting them when they returned to camp from Miami yesterday. Williams promptly participated in a long batting drill.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—Roberto Estalella, the Cuban, was the whole show as St. Louis Brown played a nine-inning intra-squad game yesterday. Estalella did all the batting for the pitchers, scored one run and knocked in another. It was his first day of practice.

AVALON, Calif.—Bill Lee's holdout siege has cost him $2,500 so far. The Cubs offered him $12,500 at first—a cut of $5,000—but the offer since has been sliced to $10,000. And that's said to be the final offer.

PASADENA, Calif. — Chicago White Sox camp is gloomy over the prospect of losing John Rigney to the army. He is due to be called not later than May. Rickey is a potential 20-game winner and was rounding into good condition this Spring.

If they are handing out any award for being the best bowling rookie of this year's City League they can pass it over to Jack Platt of Raine's team right now. The following averages (not including March 6 games) released by Secretary Walter Firth show the sharp-shooting Platt leading the group of around 70 pin-spillers with a fine 243 mark for 47 games. Trailing him by a matter of two points is Jack Playford, a member of the Nationals. Playford is rolling them off at a 241 clip while Firth is running third with 239 for Grafton's.

"Bud" White of the Capitols has the top three-game string 931, while Irvin Hanes of Huffman's squad has fired off the best single of the year, 427.

Three more weeks remain before the schedule is completed. Tamblyn's who are leading the pack of twelve teams, have only the Nationals to contend with for first honors, but the latter aggregation with four points to make up are on the well-known spot. Lower down positions are anybody's for the asking, the Big Five with a one-point advantage over Capitols for third place are scheduled to meet Nationals this week. It's sink or swim for either of these teams on Thursday night.

The team standing to date: Tamblyn's 62, Nationals 58, Big Five 44, Capitols 43, Grafton's 40, Westclox 36, Green's 36, Huffman's 34, Peterborough Lock 31, Raine's 26, Kinsmen 23, Centre 23.

Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational School senior team captured the championship of their section of the Lakeshore basketball loop last night in Port Hope when they defeated the Port Hope students 45 to 23 in a sudden death game. The Peterborough team will now meet Bowmanville, winners of the other section in home-and-home games for the group title, the first game to be played here Friday.

Peterborough C.V.S. carried the battle to the Port Hope team from the first whistle and outscored them in both halves to win handily. They led by 28 to 11 at half-time, and continued to pile up the points in the second period to win going away. The Peterborough students were breaking fast and passing nicely and their superior drive, ball-handling and good shooting when they got openings enabled them to draw away from a team that earlier in the season had defeated them on the same floor.

With Chum Gillespie and Hall leading the way, the winners went to town in the first period to run up a score of 28 points, Gillespie and Hall contributing ten points each to the total, while the best the Port Hope team could do was to come back with 11 points, R. Wheeler doing his best to save the day for his team by scoring three from the field and tossing in two free throws.

Port Hope did a little better in the second half, although they were outscored 17 to 12 after the rest period. Gillespie and Hall each looped in a couple more baskets, Moore added a pair and Eric Taylor cashed in on three free throws and Ferguson a field basket to complete the Collegiate scoring.

All the Collegiate squad turned in a nice card, with Gillespie and Hall top scorers with 14 points each. Wheeler was the big gun for the losers. His contribution was 12 points, over half of the total scored by his team. P.C.V.S. cashed in handsomely on free throws, converting seven out of eight, while Port Hope did nearly as well by registering five in seven attempts.

The teams:

Peterborough C.V.S. (45)—Taylor 5, Ferguson 6, Gillespie 14, Hall 14, Ayms, Moore 6, Kay.

Peterborough fans who want a chance to see some good future prospects for local O.H.A. squads would do well to drop into Brock St. Rink tonight when the South End League championships in the bantam, midget and juvenile divisions will be decided. An odd thing about the three playoffs is that in each case the team that came through the regular schedule without a loss starts tonight with a one-goal deficit, all of them having been beat by that margin in the first game of the finals. Goals count on the round in each case so that the championships are still a wide open affair. The schedule tonight calls for the Canucks and King Edward teams to meet at 7 o'clock in the bantam division, the Colts and Royals to clash at 8 o'clock in the midget section and the St. Peter's and Aces to battle in the juvenile finals at 9 o'clock.

The death in Kingston of George Sullivan will be regretted by older Peterborough baseball fans. The genial Irish-Canadian had a host of friends here, some of whom remember the long-ago days when he pitched for the Kingston Fonics against the Peterborough team when Dan McCabe and Chris Graham were the Petes' battery and many more of whom recall the later years when Sullivan umpired in the Central Ontario Baseball League. Big George was popular both with players and fans. They knew that he was thoroughly honest and called them as he saw them and the result was that he got along about as well as any arbitrator who ever worked in the Central Loop. Sullivan did not bother about wearing the convention blue suit that most umpires favor and he used a breast pad that looked about as big as a postage stamp on his expansive frame but he acted like a real umpire even although he did not quite look like one.

Bill Welshe of the Kingston Whig-Standard has been commenting on the scoring feats of Mel Williamson, the Combines' centre ice star and his comparisons with pro performances are interesting. Here is the Walshe dope: "The remarkable scoring record of Kingston's play-making Mel Williamson during the O.H.A. Senior B eastern group schedule of 17 goals and 21 assists in eight games, which has been improved by points in play-off tests, makes comparisons with professional records interesting, although there may be a vast difference in the class of hockey. Joe Malone while playing for Quebec in the N.H.L. scored 44 goals in 22 games in 1917-18. The N.H.L. schedule at that time was only 22 games, thus Malone averaged two goals a game. Williamson's average in actual goals scored is better than two goals a game. The nearest a modern player is to Malone's mark is Cooney Weiland's 43 goals in 44 games in 1929-30. Cowley, Boston centre, is at present leading the N.H.L. point getters with 14 goals and 36 assists for 43 games, while Hextall of the Rangers is the high scorer for this season with 25 goals in 46 games, an average far below the Malone mark. No one would even pretend that Mel Williamson is close to Malone's class or even a top ranking N.H.L. player of today but his scoring record this year must be a mark for amateur hockey and with experience in higher company the heady Kingston star would probably hold his own with the best."

An Important Game

The result of tonight's game between Leafs and Bruins at Boston will be awaited with unusual interest for it will have a bearing on two important N.H.L. features. In the first place of course, it would go a long way to settling the question of whether or not the Boston Bruins are to set a new record by becoming the first club to capture the N.H.L. championship three years in succession. A win for Boston or a tie game will mean that the Bruins will be virtually in while of course a loss would not put the Clapper-led team out because they have a game in hand on the Leafs and could drop tonight's fixture and still win out by capturing their three remaining games, even if the Leafs were victorious in their two battles to come. Tonight's game will have an effect too upon the race for the Vezina trophy. Turk Broda is a goal behind Mowers and Brimsek now and if the Leafs lose tonight he will be still further back.

Some of the old-timers in Peterborough will probably remember Jim McCracken, the former Cobourg ball player who is dead at Dundas at the age of 69 years. McCracken many years ago starred as an amateur player with the Cobourg ball club and later broke into professional ball with the New England League. Later he was signed by the Toronto club of the old Eastern League, now of course the International. Two brothers and a sister survive the old Cobourg star.

A Real Upset

The defeat of Outboard Marines by the Trenton R.C.A.F. last night by 46 to 25, giving the Flyers the O.A.B.A. round by 4 points must go down in the books as one of the major upsets of the sporting year. The Air Force team was beaten here Saturday night by 17 points, the third time this season that the Flyers had been defeated by the Marines and although they showed much improved form in this game, the Outboards' lead of seventeen points looked good enough to win the round. But Air Force, throwing up a rockbound defence that held the Outboards' attack to 25 points, one of the lowest totals the former Church League champions have ever registered, were good enough to pick up a margin of 21 points on their own floor last night and take it all by four points. The Peterborough players, although surprised at the outcome, declare there was nothing fluke about the Flyers' victory. Their close checking and the fine playing of Breathet, Casey and Carson was too much for the losers whose own gunners were spiked as they have never been at any other time this season. The Peterborough squad wish the R.C.A.F. every success in their quest for the Ontario title.

The annual hockey tournament at Fenelon Falls—this is the 28th—claimed to be the largest, oldest and best known tourneys in the country is to be held on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week and according to advance notices this year's competition is expected to be about the best ever. Last year's entries included teams from Toronto, Haliburton, Oshawa, Orillia, Campbellford and Lindsay and more are expected this time, including a Peterborough entry. Two silver trophies are offered as prizes for the tourney as well as individual prizes for the players of the teams finishing first and second. A year ago there were so many entries that the tournament had to be carried on for four nights instead of three as originally intended.

Sporting Chili Con Carne: We owe the good town of Barrie an apology. It was in Orillia and not in Barrie that the Lindsay midget team ran into a spot of trouble last week....It was bad enough for Jimmy Lehane's team to get beat in the Lindsay hockey tournament but to take a walloping from a team called Bill's Place was just a little too much.... Not a whisper of baseball has been heard around these parts yet. We intend to page Eddie Murphy in a day or two....They were apparently so sure in Toronto that the Outboard Marines would win this O.A.B.A. group that it was announced last night that the Earl Grey team, Toronto winners, would meet Peterborough in the next round....Jimmy Platt, novice bowler with Dick Raines team has the highest average in the City Bowling League, nice going for a first year man....Campbellford absorbed a lusty wallop from Midland intermediates last night.

Westclox Win By 29-20 Over Belleville

The Westclox team of the local Ladies' Basketball League outscored the Belleville ladies' team in an interesting and well-played exhibition game in the Y.W.C.A. gym here last night, 29 points to 20. The Belleville team provided plenty of opposition especially in the second half and it was a real battle over most of the journey. Westclox opened an early lead and were in front at the end of the first half by 17 points to 10 but the Belleville girls came back strong after the rest period and it was almost basket for basket, Westclox outscoring them by only two points in that sizzling last half.

Both teams handled the ball smartly and came through with some accurate shooting but the Westclockers broke faster than the visitors and their speed was the determining factor in their win over a well-balanced squad.

A feature of the game was the playing of J. Sherry for the losers. She looped in six baskets from the field and added another point from a successful free throw giving her a total of 13 points and making her high scorer not only for her own team but in the game. The Westclockers had trouble in trying to keep her off the score sheet, her fine shooting keeping her team in the fight all the way. None of the other Belleville players contributed more than a single basket to their team's total.

Audrey Flynn and J. Crowe led the Westclox attack but eight of the winners managed to get into the scoring column. Audrey Flynn was tops for the Westclox tossing in four baskets for a total of eight.

In the first half when Westclox had a decided edge on the play, Agnes Bowler had two basket, J. Crowe a basket and a foul score and B. Saunders, A. Flynn, Helen Tighe, F. Bestard and Elinor Craig all registered a basket each. The chief scoring for Belleville in that half was done by J. Sherry who hung up seven of her team's points. In the second half J. Crowe and Audrey Flynn almost monopolized the scoring for Westclox and again J. Sherry set the scoring pace for Belleville. The teams:

Belleville, 20: M. McLean, D. Stead, M. Miller (1), R. McClelland, J. Corby (2), H. Garrow (1), M. Rowbottom (2), D. Mansfield (1), J. Sherry (13).

Westclox, 29: B. Saunders (2), M. McFadden, J. Crowe (7), A. Flynn (8), D. Gibbs, H. Tighe (2), F. Bestard (2), E. Bestard (1), E. Craig (3), A. Bowler (4).

Referee—Hymie Smith.

St. John's Win

In a scheduled Ladies' League game St. John's handed the luckless Y Cadets who have yet to win a game a 25 to 9 defeat. Sparked by N. Smith who hit the hoop for three baskets the Cadets put up a battle in the first half, holding the Church team to nine points and it was only 9 to 6 at the end of the session but St. John's came back with a scoring surge after the rest and ran up sixteen points while the only comeback from the losers was a field basket by M. Lawless and a foul throw by N. Smith who thus scored seven out of her team's total of nine. The Cadets tried hard but the church team had too much experience and team play and won going away.

Agnes Bowler and Ellen Gynane, each with eight points and Eva Clark with six led the St. John's attack but the whole team played good basketball to hang up the win. The teams:

St. John's, 25: T. Law, H. Hart-Maxwell, E. Hart-Maxwell, F. Gynane, A. Bowler (8), E. Gynane (8), E. Foster (1), U. Chivas (2), D. Groombridge, E. Clarke (6).

Y Cadets, 9: M. Lawless (2), J. Collins, T. Stewart, N. Smith (7), S. Pringle, B. Pringle, S. Maguire, D. Saunders.

Referee, Whitty Thirnbeck; umpire, Hymie Smith.

23 Teams Remain In Hunt For Cup Honors

TORONTO, March 11 (CP) — Twenty-three teams remain today in the hunt for the Canadian Senior Hockey championship and the Allan Cup. Although play-offs were in progress at many points across Canada last night, only two teams were ousted from Allan Cup competition.

Petawawa Grenades won 8-6 over Ottawa Iroquois to capture the Ottawa district Senior title in straight games, having also won the first game of the best-of-three series. Yorkton Terriers shunted Saskatoon Quakers to the sidelines in Saskatchewan with a 3-1 victory that gave Yorkton the best-of-five provincial semi-final 3-1.

Other Allan Cup aspirants:

East—

Maritimes—Saint John, N.B.; Halifax, Sydney, Glace Bay, N.S.

Quebec-Sherbrooke, Quebec and St. Jerome Intermediates; Ottawa Senators, Montreal Royals.

Ontario—Toronto Marlboros, St. Catharines.

West—

Thunder Bay—Port Arthur, Geraldton.

Manitoba — Winnipeg Seventh Infantry.

Saskatchewan—Regina, Yorkton.

Alberta—Lethbridge, Calgary.

British Columbia — Kimberley, Trail.

Memorial Cup Survivors

Three teams were eliminated last night from competition for the Canadian junior hockey championship and the O.H.A. Memorial Cup.

Portage La Prairie Terriers lost 3-2 to Winnipeg Rangers in a Manitoba semi-final games, Rangers winning the three-of-five series 3-0. In an Ontario semi-final best-of-five series Oshawa defeated Toronto Rangers 4-2 in the fifth game to win the series 3-2. Pembroke Lumber Kings were awarded their series against Cornwall Flyers due to a 12-1 Pembroke victory in the first game of a two-game, total-goals round.

East

Maritimes—Charlottetown, P.E.I.; Truro, N.S.

Quebec—Montreal Royals Juniors, Clear Point Maple Leafs.

Ontario—Oshawa, Toronto Marlboros.

West

Thunder Bay—Port Arthur Juniors, Port Arthur West Ends, Port William Rangers.

Manitoba — Winnipeg Rangers.

Petes Beaten On Round By Five Points

Peterborough's hopes in the O.A.B.A. intermediate series vanished from the scene when the Outboard Marines, were defeated 46 to 25 at Trenton Monday night, losing the round to the Flyers by 93 to 89. It was the first defeat of the season for the Outboards in the O.A.B.A. series but it spelled curtains for the local entry.

Flyers' stubborn defense was the feature of the game. Their checking was so close that the whole Peterborough team failed to score as many points last night as Jimmy Thorburn did on his own account in the first game of the series here Saturday. The Air Force players stuck to their checks like glue and the Outboard sharpshooters were given few chances to get a shot away. On the attack the winners worked the ball in and passed back leaving a man clear and a good many of their points were scored on long shots.

Brian Casey and Alex Breathet, the former Broadview player, were outstanding on the attack for Flyers, particularly Breathet, who was all over the floor, playing the full game. He and Casey made the plays that set up Carson and the tall centre player for close-in shots and he also got several rebounds. Breathet was the best man of the floor.

Jimmy Thorburn, the Outboards' sniper, was held to 10 points, his smallest score of hs season. He was given few chances to get shots away. The Peterborough team finished strong but they were unable to overcome the lead set up early by the Flyers who were in front 24 to 10 at half time. McPherson, Marsh, Stewart and Thorburn looked good for the Outboards while for the Air Force Carson and Reekie were best, next of course to Breathet and Casey.

East Kildonan Bisons, St. Boniface Athletics.

Saskatchewan—Saskatoon, Prince Albert, Flin Flon.

Alberta—Edmonton Athletic Club, Edmonton Maple Leafs.

Victory Yields Motor Town Place In Finals

OSHAWA, Ont., Mar. 11 — (CP). —Supporters of Oshawa Generals to-day weighed Generals' chances against Toronto Marlboros in the forthcoming best-of-five series for the championship of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series and drew some confidence from the manner in which Generals defeated Toronto Rangers 4-2 last night here to win a place in the series' finals.

Generals were held even for two periods of the close game, but counted twice in the final period to win the best-of-seven semi-final round three wins to two. In the third period, when their power was needed the most, Generals had the dash and ice generalship which carried them to Eastern junior championships for the past three years and Canadian titles for the last two.

Ron Wilson scored twice for Oshawa, with Norm McAtee and Wally Wilson getting the others. McLean and Adamson scored for Rangers. The series between Oshawa and the junior Marlboros will decide Ontario's representative in the Canadian championship Memorial Cup playdowns.

When Dizzy Dean of the Chicago Cubs started to toss the ball during the second day of spring training, several of his teammates gathered around to watch and judge for themselves whether or not Dean's arm was all right. Dean seemed to be tossing the old apple right well, so now, the boys are waiting for the season to open to see how Dean stands under fire. After many throws, Dean said "This will be my big year."

Dukes Win 3-1 Over Saints To Edge Series

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., March 11 (CP)—St. Catharines Saints were wondering today whether their style of hard, open hockey was the right one after all as they surveyed the necessity of taking two straight games from Toronto Marlboros before winning the Ontario Hockey Association Senior "A" championship and the right to represent Ontario in Allan Cup playdowns.

Marlboros continued to illustrate the success of close-checking, cautious hockey here last night with a 3-1 victory over Saints in the fifth game of the best-of-seven title series, with each team having won two of the previous four games. When the series continues in Toronto Wednesday Marlboros could win the league crown with a victory.

Long-shots when they opened this series against the flashy Saints, Marlboros owe their success mainly to the great goaltending of Baz Bastien and the outstanding defence work of Bobby Copp and Jimmy Drummond. Copp branched out in another capacity last night, scoring two of Marlboros goals in addition to fulfillment of his usual steady chore on defence.

His counters were in the first and the third periods, with Murray Ezeard also scoring in the first. Rudy Pilous counted Saints' only goal on a shot which bounced into the Marlboros net from a Toronto player in the second period.

Miners Absorb 9-1 Beating By Millionaires

TORONTO, March 11 — (CP). — A brand new twist to the Maritime hockey situation, where talk of strikes and trade sanctions for a while overshadowed the Allan Cup issue, held the spotlight today in a race for Eastern Canada amateur honors that still had 14 entrants plus another unwilling to concede its elimination.

With the smoke of protest and counter-protest cleared, Glace Bay Miners' worst fears proved justified in their final playoff for the Cape Breton Colliery League title, with Sydney Millionaires. Instead of needing only one more victory for the title, the Miners were on the short end of a best-of-three series.

The switch came about last night when the Millionaires handed the Miners a 9-1 trimming at Glace Bay. It was the first game of a best-of-three series, substituted for a best-of-seven playoff which Glace Bay led 3-0 before Sydney's upheld protest of their use of Goalie Bill Fraser almost started a trade war between the two towns.

Sydney's victory left them needing one more win to advance into the Maritime final against either Saint John Beavers or Halifax Navy, who defeated the Beavers 6-3 last night in the first game of a total-goal series. Of ten other teams still in the Eastern Canada running, five are in Quebec and five in Ontario.

The Quebec Setup

In Quebec, either Montreal Royals, Ottawa Senators, St. Jerome, Quebec Beavers or Sherbrooke will represent the province. Ontario is divided into two districts, with Toronto Marlboros and St. Catharines playing off to declare a provincial representative and three teams—Ottawa R.C.A.F., Hull Volants and Petawa Grenades—fighting for the title of the Ottawa district, whose winner meets the Maritime champion.

Hopes of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association to have its champion meet the Marlboros-St. Catharines winner adds a possible entrant for the Ontario crown. The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association has ruled the N.O.H.A. out of the Allan Cup hunt, but the league refuses to give up without a fight. One team was eliminated in the Ottawa and District hunt, when Petawawa defeated Iroquois, 8-6, to sweep their series in two straight games. The victory gave Petawawa a layoff before meeting the Ottawa city champion, where a best-of-five final was forced to a fifth game this Wednesday, when Ottawa R.C.-A.F. beat Hull, 4-1.

Sherbrooke meanwhile played a 2-2 draw with the Beavers at Quebec in the first of a total-goal series for the right to meet St. Jerome in the Quebec Intermediate final. The Intermediate champion will meet the Senior Provincial title-holder, either Montreal Royals or Ottawa Senators, who resume a best-of-five series at Ottawa tonight tied at one game each.

The Memorial Cup hunt has narrowed to ten teams, with the Juniors in the finals except in the Ottawa district.

Leaf-Bruin Feud Revives In Tonight's Tilt

TORONTO, March 11 (CP)—The rivalry between Conn Smythe of Toronto Maple Leafs and Art Ross of Boston Bruins has enlivened many an interesting series between the two great National Hockey League clubs, but like many similar rivalries in hockey and other sports the actual man-to-man angle is more a figment of the general sportswriting imagination than an actuality.

The urge to win has moved many a sports official to pre-game statements which he would make whether the head of the immediate opposition was a bitter enemy or a respected friend. Thus the wills to win in Smythe and Ross over past hockey seasons have built up a sort of mythical rivalry between the two, mainly because Boston and Toronto so often have met in important series.

When the two clubs meet in Boston in the only N.H.L. game scheduled tonight, the Ross will to win will be augmented by the desire to put a clincher on the league championship for this season. Now two points up on the second-place Leafs, Boston could cinch the title for all practical purposes and would need only one point in its three remaining games to wipe out Leafs' last mathematical chance of finishing the season in first place.

It will be the final meeting of Toronto and Boston for this season's schedule, leaving Toronto with two games and Boston with three. Toronto meeting Chicago twice while Boston plays New York Americans once and Detroit twice.

Markham Shuts Cobourg Out 6-0

COBOURG, March 11 (Special). —Paced by the Bangay boys, who between them accounted for four of their team's goals, Markham blanked the local Juniors 6-0 here last night. It was the first game of a two-game goals-to-count series in the O.H.A. playdowns. A fistic flare-up occurred in the third period between Maher and Roche which earned the combatants major penalties.

Police Tear Gas Barrage Routs Unwelcome Suitor

Barricading himself in the home of his brother-in-law in West New Brighton, N.Y., and driving the family out, William Scheidel, Jr., 26, RIGHT, began taking pot shots from a window with a .22-calibre rifle. Some 35 policemen arrived and exchanged more than 50 shots with him then routed him with a tear gas barrage. Here the police have just hurled a gas bomb through a window and await Scheidel's emergence. Officer at front has his gun drawn. Scheidel blamed drink and disappointment in love for his rampage. At RIGHT he is closely held by police after his capture.

Durham Farmers Form Chamber Of Agriculture

(By a Staff Reporter)

ORONO, March 11—Farmers of Durham, nearly four hundred of them, including a score or so of women, organized here Monday afternoon a county branch of the Federation of Agriculture with Forbes Heyland of Darlington township, president.

Other officers elected are: Wilfird Bowles of Blackstock, first vice-president; Garnet Rickard, second vice-president Garnet Shield of Cavan third vice-president; Herman Smith, Port Hope, fourth vice-president; and Walter Reynolds secretary-treasurer.

Mr. Bowles was chairman of the meeting, and the guest speaker was Herb H. Hannam, president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, who was introduced by Dr. J. B. Reynolds of Port Hope, former head of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph.

Reeve James Gifford of Ennismore, former president of the Ontario Federation, also spoke briefly after his introduction by Frank C. Paterson of Peterborough. Among those present were W. F. Rickard, M.P., and Cecil G. Mercer, M.L.A.

All sections of Durham were well represented at the meeting, and it was the general opinion that the new county branch of the Federation is well equipped with officers, actively supported by a rank and file that includes some of the leading farmers of the province.

"The farmers of Canada do not need just another organization," Dr. Reynolds said, "but we do need one that will round out all which the others are trying to do. There are 340 farm organizations engaged in selling produce on behalf of farmers, 320 others buying goods for farmers, and there are 1,100 rural co-operative credit associations, more than half of which are in the province of Quebec. What we lack is unity of effort that will enable the farmers of Canada to go to Ottawa and speak with the weight of influence with which the Canadian Manufacturers' Association has been speaking for sixty years.

While we are meeting here this afternoon, the Wheat Board and the Agricultural Committee of the House of Commons are in conference in Ottawa to see what can be done about the wheat situation. This assembly of Durham farmers should not have the opinion that meeting in Ottawa is not their concern. Because of the accumulation of wheat, western farmers had to turn to other phases of production, and last year one-quarter of Canada's butter was produced in the west. Fifty per cent of the hogs shipped to the market in Canada were produced in the prairie provinces, and that number will be increased if we don't find a solution of this country's wheat problem."

Farmers Want Parity

In his address, Mr. Hannam reviewed the progress of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture since its inception five years ago, touched upon the recent meeting of farmers in London, Ontario, and their hearing of Hon. James Gardiner, federal Minister of Agriculture, asserted that ample evidence had already been given that farmers of divergent interests could meet in one common body, and finally outlined the method of organization and proposed financing.

Asserting that farmers had already borne more than their share of the cost of the war by continuing production of essential foodstuffs at less than cost, Mr. Hannam said that Canadian farmers were demanding parity in revenue with the other industrial groups. No individious question of patriotism was involved in this attitude, Mr. Hannam said. Canada is the main source of supply of food products in a great emergency like that which now faces the Empire and the democratic world.

"We will do our level best to send at low prices an abundance of food products to the people of Great Britain, but all Canada is at war, and all should share in any sacrifice that has to be made. If any loss is to be sustained it is obviously unfair to ask the farm people to carry the whole loss. It is unfair to peg our prices, and at the same time let other prices go up, and with them our cost of production, while the prices of our products are held down. We are not trying to impose any increased cost on the people of Great Britain. If Great Britain cannot pay more for cheese and bacon, we feel that it is the duty of the Dominion of Canada to make up the difference between what Britain can pay and what farmers ought to have as a fair price.

If any one group is to be given guarantees of certain increases in pay, then that standard should apply to other groups in this country."

1926 As Standard

Mr. Hannam said that last fall the Federal Government adopted the wage scale of the years 1926 to 1929 as the standard for labor, undertaking to see that they got that or the present wages.

"For that reason we farmers of the Federation of Agriculture say that if there is to be any question of where our wheat prices are to be pegged, let us go back to 1926-29. If that were done, then butter would have been pegged at 42 cents a pound instead of 35 cents. At that time the price of hogs was $11.50 live weight instead of what it is today. Cheese was 20 cents instead of 14 2-5 cents at the seaboard, and wheat was $1.40 at Fort William instead of 70 cents."

Mr. Hannam produced a chart based on information from the Sirois report showing that the average net income of farmers for the last ten years was $400 a farm, instead of $1,000 as in 1926.

"For the last ten years every farm family has earned another $600 they did not get. That has meant a difference of four billion dollars in the purchasing power of Canada as a whole."

With that $4,000,00,000 in the hands of the Canadian farmers "it would have been a fine thing for the cities and towns of this country," industry would have flourished, the railways would have been profitably busy. Mr. Hannam said that he had been told recently that it would take one billion dollars to pay for the necessary repairs of farm buildings in Canada today. He declared that farmers today are actually worse off than when the war began, because it has been shown that their revenue has increased only two per cent over 1939. that part of his address to an explanation of the financial background of the Canadian farmers during the depression years, the cumulative effect of depreciated revenue now aggravated by rising costs of labor and various commodities which they have to buy. He then discussed some of the substantial gains which have developed in the price of cheese, free freight on rough grains from Fort William east, which he said were a result of the London meeting. He concluded by explaining the proposed plan of financing on the basis of legislative amendment permitting the Federation to receive one cent an acre on all improved land or one-fifth of a mill on farm assessment.

Mr. Gifford told the meeting of the organization of the first county branch of the Federation, sponsored by the County Council of Peterborough, and congratulated Durham on making a place for representatives of the Women's Institutes at the outset of their movement. He spoke of what the Peterborough branch had endeavored to accomplish, its educational program which he admitted had not been as extensive as had been hoped, the fostering of co-operative enterprise, and other activities.

Cavan Township: Garnet Shield and Reginald Fallis. Manvers: W. J. Boggs of Pontypool and Ivan Wright of Janetville. Cartwright Township: Creighton Devitt and Wilfrid Bowles. Hope: W. R. Prouse and Edgar Nicholls. Millbrook Agricultural Society: I. W. Larmer. East Durham Women's Institute: Mrs. Ira Lowe and Mrs. William Armstrong. Durham Central Agricultural Society: M. H. Staples of Newcastle. Durham Plowmen's Association: Harry McCamus of Ida.

Other agricultural interests represented include: Harwood Co-operative Creamery, F. R. Currelley, Port Hope R.R. 3; Agricultural Council, George Annis; Junior Farmers' Association, Garnet Rickard; Crop Improvement Association, Russell Osborne, Newcastle; Whole Milk Producers' Association, Neil Mutton, Bowmanville; Holstein Breeders, Yorkshire Swine Breeders; Apple Growers. Durham Tobacco Plantation; Cartwright Agricultural Society, Darlington township, West Durham Institute and others.

IRVIN WELLS.

MARMORA, March 11—(ENS)—News of the passing of Irvin Wells in Belleville General Hospital about midnight on Sunday, following an operation for appendicitis for which he had been admitted the previous night came as a shock to a wide circle of relatives and friends.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wells of Marmora township, he was born on March 29, 1909, and spent all his life in this district. In recent years he was actively engaged with his brother Russell in lumbering operations, and was highly respected for his integrity of character by the men of the camps established by the brothers, as well as by the neighbors of the old homestead. He was a member of the Free Methodist Church, and resided near the home of his parents in Marmora township.

Due to poor condition of roads in the township, the remains of the late Mr. Wells are resting at the home of his brother, Russell, in Marmora village.

He is survived by his widow; one young son, Ronald; his parents; five brothers: Charles Albert, principal of Stirling Public School; Harold of Stirling, Ritchie of Harrowsmith, Russell of Marmora, Orval of Denbigh; two sisters, Mrs. Bruce Robinson of Eldorado, and Helen of Marmora township.

The funeral will leave the residence of his brother, Russell Wells, Marmora, for service at St. Andrew's United Church, Marmora, at 2.30 p.m., D.S.T., on Wednesday. The service will be conducted by Rev. C. W. Kay, Warkworth, assisted by Rev. C. Stevenson, Marmora. Interment will take place in Fox's Cemetery, Eldorado.

King Decorates Mike Lewis

PORT HOPE, March 11 (CP). — Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Lewis, of Welcome, whose son "Mike" was the first Port Hope boy to receive a D.F.C. in this war, are in receipt of a letter from their son in which he describes receiving his Distinguished Flying Cross from the King.

"He's grand," Mike wrote in regard to the King, "—and the Queen is so beautiful."

"I was talking to the King for 15 to 20 minutes," Mike wrote enthusiastically. He and the Queen came here a week ago and presented some decorations. I was presented to him in the mess room, for they stayed to lunch. Gosh! he's grand! The Queen is so beautiful with a lovely smile. They are a wonderful couple."

"Mike's" brother George, determined to follow in his footsteps, has joined the R.C.A.F.

The Foreign Minister added:

"This has been due to mutual concession by France and Thailand, which deeply understand the determination and responsibility of the mediating country (Japan)—a fact to be heartily congratulated upon for the sake of mankind."

1. France cedes to Thailand the district around the town of Pak-Law. (This would return to Thailand part of the section on both sides of the Mekong River which she lost by treaty in 1904. France would retain, however, much of the Luang-Prabang section east of the river and north of Pak-Law which Thailand originally demanded.)

2. France cedes a slice of northern and northwestern Cambodia. (Exact limits of this strip were not clear immediately, but first descriptions of the new boundary indicated it would run from the present frontier northeast to the northern tip of Tonle—(Grand Lake)—thence north for a short distance, thence east to the Mekong River in the vicinity of the town of Sung-Treng. This would give Thailand part of territory she lost in 1904 and 1907—the town of Battambang and, perhaps, the famed ruins at Angkor of a civilization more than 2,000 years old.)

BUSY LIFE-SAVERS

PORTSMOUTH, England—(CP). Lifeboats rescued 2,052 persons in 1940—854 more than ever before in one year—and helped to save 87 vessels for the busiest year in the 117-year history of the lifeboat service.

Grant Exemption For Child Guests

EDMONTON, March 11.—(CP)—Provincial Treasurer Solon Low announced today exemption from provincial income taxation of $400 for each child maintained by taxpayers under the co-operative "child guest" scheme of the United Kingdom, the Dominion Government and the provinces.

The treasurer also announced granting of income taxation exemption for the service pay and allowances of warrant officers, non-commissioned officers and all men of the Canadian (Active) Army, the Royal Canadian Navy and the Royal Canadian Air Force while such persons are on active service.

Service pay and allowances of all commissioned officers in the three services will be exempted while such officers are on active service beyond Canada or if their duties while on active service in Canada must be performed "afloat or in aicraft."

Ennismore News

Mrs. John Killen of Peterborough spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Murphy, Sr., her father having been seriously ill.

Miss Patricia Leahy of Peterborough was a week-end visitor with her sister, Mrs. Frank Corkery.

Mr. Gordon Orcutt of Nobel, Ont., spent the week-end with Mrs. Orcutt and their small son.

The many friends of Mrs. Mary Harrington and Miss Minnie Haggart are sorry to know that they continue in ill-health.

Friends of Miss Nora Killen of Peterborough and formerly of Ennismore regret to know of her illness in St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough, and extend to her their best wishes for a speedy recovery.

fered in October, when 205,000 tons of merchantmen went down in a single week, and in September, when one week's total was 176,000 tons.

Might Be Worse

An authoritative source said the week covered in today's report was a bad one, and described the position as "one of anxiety tempered with confidence," though he warned against being "unduly optimistic."

This source said Britain had to expect a heavier rate of loss in coming months than during the last few months because "the enemy will be making his supreme effort."

German and Italian claims of British and Allied merchant shipping for the week ended March 2 totalled 432,500 tons, the Admiralty said.

It gave the average weekly British losses in February as 75,000 tons, compared with 53,000 tons in January.

The average weekly loss since the beginning of the war, excluding operations in the withdrawal of the British forces from Dunkirk, was 63,342 tons.

No Fixed Rule

TORONTO, March 11.—(CP)—Attorney-General Gordon Conant expressed doubt yesterday that an arbitrary rule could be laid down for the purpose of determining whether a car driver was intoxicated. He was commenting on a suggestion by the North York Temperance Federation that 1.5 parts of alcohol to 1,000 parts of blood be made the basis for determining intoxication.

A rule of thumb proportion was favored by scientists and doctors and even this wasn't satisfactory.

Fairmount Pays Honor To Newlyweds

FAIRMOUNT, March 11—(ENS)—The Y.P.U. met Wednesday evening with a good attendance, the Fellowship conveners, Jean Hanbidge and Betty Turner, in charge. Readings were given by Jean Fair and Jean Hanbidge; prayer, Clark Armstrong; quartette, Gertrude McGee, Betty Turner, Audrey Fair and Agnes Downes; Bible questionnaire, Betty Turner; play by Gertrude McGee, Maurice McGee, Roger Hanbidge and Agnes Downes.

Mr. F. McIndoo called Mr. and Mrs. Stanford Brown forward, and Jean Hanbidge presented them with a silver tray of the Sheffield reproduction; the address being given by Edna Morrison. Mr. Brown made suitable reply, thanking all for their kindness.

Community Party

The many friends and relations of Mr. and Mrs. Stanford Brown called on them Friday evening and presented them with many useful and dainty gifts to welcome the young couple to the community.

The first part of the evening was enjoying in dancing and card playing, music being provided by John Patten and Nelson Ballantyne, with F. Ballantyne, master of ceremonies.

A dainty lunch was served to upwards of 100 guests, after which Mr. and Mrs. Brown, who were dressed in their wedding attire, were called into the dining room, and Harold Hooton read a jolly address.

"In YOUR Opinion"

A message from
The Newspaper Publishers Committee
HON. W. A. BUCHANAN, CHAIRMAN

YOU may or may not be completely content with the energy displayed by the government in its war effort . . .

You may favour or disapprove unemployment insurance legislation in war-time . . .

You have a perfect right to your own opinion on any subject that affects this community or this nation. But if your opinion is going to count, it must be based on knowledge!

For example, if you told us you favoured a law controlling traffic on Mars, we would question your right to that view—simply because we haven't any news reports on Mars.

But you can interest us in the post-war re-adjustment problem, or in the St. Lawrence Waterway, or in Cancer research. Those things have been duly reported by people we all know to be trustworthy and accurate in what they report.

In fact, it is your duty to have opinions—and to express them—on two important phases of life:

1. You must have opinions on the laws and the men and the policies of the government. We are a SELF-governing nation. If we don't watch and help and control, we don't deserve to be free!

2. You must know the value of money and what it will buy . . . in war even more than in peace. We cannot follow our every whim. We cannot buy wastefully. We must all of us save wisely . . .

Thus, unless you want to be the blind puppet of some dictator, and as thoughtless of tomorrow as a Hottentot, you have to know what is going on around you! Which means, of course, that you must have newspapers—and good ones, at that.

Germany's newspapers or Italy's wouldn't help you much. Perhaps, by constant propaganda, they might teach you to forget your ideas of freedom and to forego your dignity and competence as an individual created in God's image.

Read, for instance, these few sentences from Adolph Hitler's "Mein Kampf":

"Propaganda has always to be directed more and more towards the feeling, and only to a certain extent to so-called reason. All propaganda has to be popular and has to adapt its spiritual level to the perception of the least intelligent of those towards whom it intends to direct itself.

"The masses, however, with their inertia, always need a certain time before they are ready even to notice a thing, and they will lend their memories only to the thousandfold repetition of the most simple ideas."

Now turn through the newspaper you are reading. Notice the news. See how carefully it is put together to give you a quick and accurate picture of what actually happened everywhere. Look at the respectful way the merchants and manufacturers ask for your patronage. Can you imagine a Canadian advertiser commanding you or threatening you if you refused to like his wares?

Can you imagine your newspaper editor writing down to you, treating you like an animal, to be trained "by the thousandfold repetition of the most simple ideas?"

In your opinion, isn't your role as a free citizen, armed with accurate news and truthful facts about values, a rather desirable role?

It's your opinion that counts. If you and enough of your neighbours want some other system, you can have it. And if you like our present system, it's really up to you to preserve it!

MORE THANKS

Another letter in appreciation of the efforts of the Peterborough Boy Scout Association has been received by the executive; this time it comes from the members of the 4th Anti-Tank Battery, now in Debert, N.S. The "thank you" is occasioned by the receipt by the men of magazines sent to them by the scouts, and marks the second chapter in a service undertaken by the boys for men in khaki.

ON ACTIVE SERVICE

2nd Lieut. Harold Botnick, formerly of this city who was educated at the P.C.V.S. and later attended University of Toronto is wearing the uniform of an army officer. He took the C.O.T.C. course at university and is attached to one of the tank units now training at Camp Borden on active service. His father had a store on George street for several years and Lt. Botnick was in the city Monday renewing acquaintances.

SAFE MOVERS

Five husky men were seen on George street about 10:00 a.m. Tuesday morning, hoisting a huge safe unto a truck in front of the Chamber of Commerce building. It belongs to the Confederation Life Insurance Company, and was being removed to new premises.

TRANSIENTS CHARGED

Roy Flint and Andrew Ryan, two transients were charged in police court this morning with stealing a blanket from Herb. Asseltine. Both entered a plea of not guilty and at the request of the crown were remanded until next Monday.

AN EXTRA FINE

Because it was stated that although not driving he had been drunk in an automobile, a local man was fined $20 and costs when he pleaded guilty to being drunk in police court this morning. The alternative was fifteen days imprisonment. "I always make it more when liquor and cars are mixed up" said Magistrate Langley.

Obituaries

MICHAEL JOSEPH COSS

In the presence of a large gathering of friends and relatives the funeral services of the late Michael Coss were conducted at the Church of the Sacred Heart on Monday morning. Rev. J. Houlihan sang Requiem Mass and delivered an inspiring address to the congregation who came to play silent tribute to one who during life had endeared himself to a host of friends in the city and especially among his fellow employees in the Canadian General Electric Company, where he had worked for a number of years.

Rev. J. J. O'Brien, pastor of the church of the Sacred Heart, of which Mr. Coss had been a faithful attendant for the past 16 years, as well as Rev. Dr. Grant were present in the sanctuary.

The choir comprising children of the Sacred Heart school from the grades of which Rita. Doreen and Kenneth Coss were classmates, sang, and also attended in a body at the service.

The cortege then proceeded to St. Peter's Cemetery, where graveside services were conducted by Rev. Dr. Grant.

There was an exceptionally large offering of spiritual and floral tokens, exemplifying the friendship and goodwill enjoyed by Mr. Coss amongst his friends who will miss his kind smile and cheerful companionship.

MRS. EDGAR MATHEWS

BONARLAW, March 11 (ENS)—It was with deep regret that the residents of Stirling learned of the death of Mrs. Edgar Mathews, wife of Major E. W. Mathews, at present serving with His Majesty's forces somewhere in England. Mrs. Mathews was admitted to Belleville General Hospital on Monday where she passed away during an operation. Very few knew of her illness outside of her own family.

Formerly Bessie Lee Richardson, she was born in Rawdon Township, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Richardson and had spent her entire life in the community. She was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Stirling, and was an active worker in its various organizations.

She was of a pleasing personality, was popular and highly-esteemed.

To mourn are her husband; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Richardson, Stirling; four sisters, Mrs. C. L. Bedford of Cooksville, Ont.; Mrs. Lula Rodgers of Toronto; Mrs. Howard Munro, Sudbury; and Miss Mildred Richardson, Reg.N., Peterborough; and two brothers, Mr. Bruce Richardson, Oshawa, and Fred Richardson, Stirling. Two brothers, Morley, killed overseas in the last Great War, and Earl, predeceased her.

The funeral was held on Friday from the home of her parents, Church street, to St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Stirling, at 2.30 p.m. Interment was in Stirling Cemetery.

MRS. MARY HANLEY

ENNISMORE, March 11—(ENS).—The death of Mrs. Mary Hanley, a native daughter of Ennismore and sister of Mrs. William J. Scollard, occurred in Hamilton during the past week.

Formerly Mary Stockdale, the deceased went to Hamilton as a girl where later she married and has since resided.

For a number of years she returned as a visitor to her birthplace and was happy to meet the associates of her childhood.

About a year ago she fractured her hip as the result of a fall, and since that time has been in failing health.

The sincere sympathy of the community is extended to Mrs. Scollard who is the last surviving member of a family of nine children, whose parents were pioneer settlers of Ennismore.

Back To Britain

Twelve-year-old Ann Hooton is shown just before she took off in the transatlantic clipper from New York to embattled Britain, via Lisbon. The girl had been evacuated from London to Toronto, but her parents got lonesome without her and she's winging back to them—and the war.

Oshawa's Relief Wood Cost $12

As an example of the stewardship of Peterborough's unemployment relief committee, it was recently learned here that Oshawa relief authorities were paying $12 a cord for hardwood. Relief management in this city has a remnant stock of hundreds of cords of top quality maple for which the city paid $6.45 a cord, can sell it all at a profit tomorrow, and hand out slabwood until next November.

In fact Relief Officer Metheral has had calls from some citizens wanting to buy four or five cords each as stock for next winter. Mr. Metheral does not pretend to have the experience of established wood dealers, but he is winding up this winter with a reserve stock that was bought at a favorable price, and the city may not have to buy any hardwood for next winter. Some comments have been heard lately about this evidence of a community undertaking fulfilling its responsibility with provision for actual needs, as compared with some of the private dealers who are running short.

Two Chairs Given Emily Couple

EAST EMILY, Mar. 11—(ENS).—Sixty-five friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Parker on Thursday to bid them farewell before they move to their new home in Peterborough. The evening was most delightfully enjoyed in playing cards, games and contests under the leadership of Miss Ruth Worsley.

Later on in the evening Rev. Mr. Johnson, acting as chairman, gave a very appropriate speech and Clifford and Bill Faulkner gave a musical number, after which Mrs. Stanley Magee read an address and William Howden and Stanley Magee made the presentation of two beautiful upholstered chairs on behalf of the neighbors and members of St. John's Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Parker made very suitable replies. Mrs. William Howden gave a reading. Refreshments were served.

Cricketer Killed

Capt. Philip F. Seagram, of Toronto, was one of four Canadian army men killed when a bomb from a German raider crashed into a crowded London restaurant and exploded. Capt. Seagram served for some months as an aide-de-camp to Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton. He was a noted sportsman, and one of the finest cricketers in Canada.

Club Presents Ice Carnival

Peterborough contributed its share of the 13,000 people in Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto on Monday night, when the Toronto Skating Club presented its 1941 ice carnival for the first time. Upon ice, made green by master of color, played multi-colored lights, and across it glided a representation of what has been described as the best talent of its kind to be found anywhere.

An extravaganza probably without equal in the realm of rhythm was presented in 20 acts, and a myriad of tiny flashlights glimmered like fire-flies from the rows of seats above, as delightful patrons scanned their programs in the darkness during scene changes.

Captain Kidd and his cohorts of the southern seas competed with the ballroom scene in 'Cinderella" for favor in the eyes of the spectators.

Throughout the program a variation of individual talent was presented as each of the artists received ovation after ovation. The pride of the Toronto Skating Club, Ralph McCreath and Eleanor O'Meara captured the hearts of all who saw them, and the features by Theslof and Taylor, professional skaters are still unbeatable.

Donated To Red Cross

CAMPBELLFORD, March 11 (ENS)—Ladies of the English Line W.A. cleared eleven dollars as the result of a supper held in the church basement on Thursday evening last. The supper followed an afternoon of quilting by members who were joined by a number of ladies of the community. Following the supper guests spent the evening playing Chinese checkers. The W.A. President Mrs. Ernest Mitchell announced the proceeds together with two quilts quilted during the afternoon and another donated by the Misses Haig would be donated to the Red Cross.

Iroquois Trail Can Bring Many Tourists

H. L. Garner, chairman of the Peterborough Tourist Bureau, urged the local group Monday night, to follow closely the activities of the Huronia Society planning the restoration of Fort St. Marie, near the Five Martyr's Shrine on Georgian Bay. He pointed out that the Iroquois Trail from Trenton north of this point passes through the heart of the Kawartha district and every effort should be made to bring this trail into the spotlight, so that people visiting the old Fort will travel through the Peterborough district.

During the course of his remarks Mr. Garner said that the group at Midland planned to restore the old fort where the Canadian Martyrs were massacred, and also to restore the Indian settlement which surrounded the fort. Excavation work has uncovered several sections of the original walls and work should be started soon. They have already purchased the land where the ruins of the fort are located.

Historical Pageant

In 1942 the Huronia Association plans to stage a mammoth historical pageant in which the early life at the fort will be re-enacted, and thousands will flock from all parts of the continent to view this colorful spectacle. Added to this is the appeal which the scene has for all Catholics who revere the Jesuit saints who gave their lives in the cause of Christianity. Annually thousands of Catholics make pilgrimages to the shrine.

It was mentioned at the meeting that ten years ago the Iroquois Trail was a live issue with the local Chamber of Commerce and other civic organizations from Trenton to Orillia, and road signs marked the trail.

Following on his plan, Mr. Garner said the local group should tie in with the officials of the Ivy Lea Bridge, near Gananoque, with a view to routing American tourist traffic across this bridge then up through this section on the most direct route to the Shrine. Members agreed that this should be comparatively simple, because of the good roads and the fact that it is the logical route for anyone going to Midland from Eastern Ontario. It was hoped, too, that some scheme might be arranged in conjunction with the northern group whereby traffic going to the Shrine from Toronto and other Western Ontario points might be routed south over the historic Iroquois Trail, also made famous by Champlain in his voyage down the new Trent waterway.

It was tentatively suggested that the executive members of the Huronia Society be invited to Peterborough to see a showing of the colored film, "Call of the Kawarthas" and on the same evening might be tendered a dinner by the local group.

Denis Fitzgerald and H. L. Garner were authorized to arrange with the Board of Education for an evening in the Collegiate for the first public showing of the film at the earliest date possible.

Considerable discussion followed the report on the booklet, which has a blank space where resort owners may place their personal message to the people to whom they wish to mail the booklet. Ten thousand copies will be printed as soon as resort owners make their needs known to secretary of the Bureau, E. A. Outram, city clerk.

The plan of a central information bureau was discussed and Mr. Garner advised the meeting that the information bureau conducted by the Examiner last year was a success.

"We will provide this same service again this summer for our advertisers at no cost to them, and I propose to employ a man who knows the district well to answer questions and hand out maps and literature," said Mr. Garner.

Banners Across Highways

The plan of placing large banners across the highways at the strategic points near the three entrances was suggested by Mr. Sutherland, owner of the Weenonah Cabin Camp on the Lakefield Road. It was thought that possibly three service stations at the edge of the city might be used to fit into the scheme of disseminating free information on the district. This could be done in conjunction with the main downtown bureau at the Examiner, and thus a tourist who wished specific information would be on file.

The members took kindly to this suggestion and on motion of Alderman Bradburn and Alderman Gordon the secretary was instructed to write for information.

A letter was received from the Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Lands and Forests, setting forth that his department had the suggestion of free camp grounds on crown lands would be given every consideration.

Euchre Players Donate $10

Contributions to the British War Victims' Fund reported, today by Fred Mann, include the sum of $10 from a new group under the name of the Get Together Club. It is composed of young people who meet once a week to play euchre, and charge themselves a certain fee which is given to the fund. This is their first deposit, and they are hoping to exceed $10 in their next contribution.

The public is reminded that it can help the fund and also hold a chance on a silver set of four pieces donated by Mrs. David MacPhail, now on display in the window of Grafton and Company. Tickets for this draw may be obtained from members of the Business Professional Women's Club and the Junior Club.

MILLBROOK

Patching Party Reviews Red Cross Year

MILLBROOK, March 11 (ENS)—The weekly 'patching party' was held on Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. T. A. Campbell, local Red Cross president, with over twenty workers present, and a large number of quilt blocks made in readiness for the quilting on Tuesday, the regular Red Cross work afternoon.

Included in the report was the statement covering the activities of the Millbrook Branch for the year 1940, the amount of work accomplished being a distinct surprise to the listeners, the items including: Membership, 496; charter date, September 20, 1939; officers: Honorary president, Mrs. J. R. Eakins; president, Mrs. T. A. Campbell; vice-presidents, Mrs. C. Thorndyke, Miss Josie Sutton and Mrs. Lloyd Byam; secretary, Miss B. M. Turner, B.A.; treasurer, Mr. H. A. Kerr; campaign chairman, Percy Stinson.

War work: Workrooms operated, 1; number of volunteer workers, 100; number co-operating units, 3; number of articles made: knitted, 1,155; hospital, 1,240; refugee, 591.

Receipts: Balance of cash, Dec. 31, 1939, $1,063.62; donations and subscriptions, $2,436.20; permit "C" events, $47.16; fund-raising events, $35.11; material to work groups, $47.49; total $3,620.08.

Expenditures: To Ontario division, war work, $1,240.20; material purchased, from division, $1,250.37; other than from division, $517.05; sundry expenses, $22.46; total, $3,030.28.

Liabilities: Accounts payable, $71.50; balance 50 per cent division, $159.75; surplus account, $711.93; total, $943.18.

The next patching party will be on Friday, March 14, at the home of Mrs. J. R. Eakins, work beginning at 2 p.m. Mrs. Campbell and her mother, Mrs. Martin, served the lunch on Friday about 4 o'clock, the silver collection taken up each week after this welcome interlude in the afternoon's steady sewing, being used to purchase quilt linings, etc.

The articles knitted in wool, and the sewing done for the refugee work, by the girls' branch was on display, and much admired, as was also the 'chain letter" quilt put together by Mrs. J. W. Hilton; and the dainty dresses, coats, etc. for children which the hostess and her mother had made.

Other delegates who attended the convention at Toronto, besides Mrs. Barringer, were Miss A. Tinney, of the Cavan unit; Mrs. Ira Lowe, Mount Pleasant; Mrs. C. Fletcher, Bailleboro; and Miss Martha Lunn, Carmel.

Fire Department Gets Fognozzles

The Peterborough Fire Department has obtained two new fog nozzles, the type demonstrated last week at the corner of George and Sherbrooke streets. The action of the new nozzles, as explained by Fire Chief Gimblett, is to produce a fine spray of water which is played on the burning area. Only nine gallons of water were used in extinguishing the "home-made blaze" in the demonstration, and it is said that water used in the ordinary manner could not have done the job.

In spraying the affected area with the "fog," the necessary oxygen is denied the flames by virtue of the steam created, and soon they are put out. Many of those witnessing the demonstration last week were of the impression that a chemical was being used, but the mist they saw was only water. Five or six gallons of water, when used with the new nozzles will do work which could not be done with several thousands if the old type hose and fixtures were used, Chief Gimblett said, and the advantage where water is a commodity to be considered is self evident.

New C.D.N.A. Head

Many Seeking To Join R.C.A.F.

At the end of the first day of recruiting for the R.C.A.F. in Peterborough, a large number of names appeared on the roll book of the recruiting officer in the City Hall. On Monday, the total number of recruits accepted, pending medical and trade examinations, was 25. Of this number two are to be pilots, eight will be aircraftsmen, and the remainder are on the list of other ranks.

Flying Officer Key, in charge of the recruiting, told the Examiner that the response in Peterborough is excellent, and that the number seeking interviews on Monday was gratifying. With another day to go before the present session is closed it is expected that many more will enlist. Those who are interested, but have not been able to get down to the City Hall this time, will have another opportunity next month, for the monthly recruiting routine has now been established for Peterborough.

CampbellfordStudents Buy $222 In Stamps

CAMPBELLFORD, March 11 — (ENS).—High School students swelled their contributions toward the War Savings Certificate drive by a further $222.00 for the week ending March 7, according to figures released by Principal E. H. Greig on Monday. Total purchases made by students since the opening of the drive now amounts to $405.75, with last week's savings being the largest since the drive began, indicating increasing interest on the part of pupils. The drive is now beginning its fifth week.

Youth Is Given 22 Months For Burglary

Twenty-two months' definite and eighteen months' indefinite in the Ontario Reformatory was the sentence imposed by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning on Norman Roy Cross, 20, of Toronto, formerly of Peterborough, for burglarizing the store of Ed. Riley on the morning of Sunday, March 2.

On a charge of stealing an automobile, the property of Stuart Hallatt, Toronto, Cross was sentenced to one year definite and six months' indeterminate in the Ontario Reformatory, the two sentences to run concurrently.

Cross's companion, Harry Roberts, 18, Toronto, was sentenced to fifteen months definite and three months indeterminate on the Riley charge and to one year definite and three months indeterminate on the automobile theft charge, the sentences to run concurrently.

"You were just on the verge of a penitentiary sentence," Magistrate Langley told Cross before imposing sentence. "I was thinking of sending you to the penitentiary, but in view of your youth and the fact that the previous charges against you were not as serious as I had thought I am going to send you to the reformatory again. However, if you continue in this course your next sentence will undoubtedly be Kingston Penitentiary."

Pleaded For Leniency.

W. C. Grant spoke on behalf of Roberts, and pleaded for leniency.

"I am informed," he said, "that this boy comes from a good but very poor family. He has tried to get work and tried to enlist but so far has not succeeded. He is the product of city life under depression conditions; one of those boys who feel that they are driven to seek excitement in illegal channels, whereas boys in smaller centres have a more wholesome vent for their desire for excitement."

Magistrate Langley said that Roberts' record was not nearly so bad as that of his companion; in fact the only previous charge against him had been in connection with the theft of a battery in Toronto and that had been withdrawn. For that reason he said that he was not going to make the sentence as severe as that meted out to Cross.

Evidence Asked For.

Before the two prisoners who had previously pleaded guilty to both charges, were sentenced Magistrate Langley asked for some evidence in the cases and Ed. Riley, proprietor of the store, and Detective-Sergt. W. E. Meagher were called.

The former told how the burglars had gained entrance to his store and said that goods to the wholesale value of $927 had been stolen. A large quantity of this stolen clothing had been recovered but an overcoat, five suits and a number of shirts were still missing.

"They told me," said Detective Sergt. Meagher, in relating the details of a conversation with the two prisoners, "that they had stolen a car in Toronto, had driven to Bowmanville, where they abandoned the car and stole another one to drive to Peterborough. Here they broke into the Riley store, stole the goods and took it back to Toronto."

W.M.S. Of Omemee Holds Sewing Meet

OMEMEE, March 11 — (ENS). — The Women's Missionary Society met for its annual sewing meeting at the home of Mrs. R. H. Williamson Thursday afternoon, under the president, Mrs. S. T. Connell.

A letter of appreciation was read from Mr. T. C. Ivory for sympathy extended to him in the death of the late Mrs. Ivory.

Mrs. Connell read a letter from Mrs. Horn, thanking the society for supplies sent in bale.

It was decided that a study book be bought for the Mission Band.

The remainder of the afternoon was spent in sewing for the bale, after which refreshments were served by the ladies of Group Three.

Why the Spine?

Because it is the great central keyboard of the nervous system.

Because spinal segments may assume distorted positions and it has been definitely established that correction of these spinal derangements brings health and comfort to many sufferers.

Our treatments offer a logical and effective means of regaining and maintaining health.

Curling Notes

By HERB MARTIN

Just a few more entries and we will have our full quota for the Canada Packers Bonspiel, to be held tomorrow at our curling club.

With rinks coming from clubs all over Ontario this 'spiel looks to be tops for the year.

Late yesterday afternoon, E. T. Ellis from High Park, Toronto, phoned his entry in, as did the veteran, Fred Smith, Campbellford.

We doubt if we have ever had a better representation than we anticipate in tomorrow's 'spiel.

We would ask, particularly our local curlers, please be on time and co-operate with the committee. One late rink throws the whole system out of kilter. The first draw is at 9 a.m.

A rink from our ladies' club leaves this afternoon for Kingston to play, to-morrow, in a bonspiel sponsored by the ladies of the Kingston Curling Club.

We will watch with interest the progress of this rink; some of them playing on artificial ice for the first time. The personnel of the rink is: Mrs. H. Dulmage, Miss L. Lyle, Miss M. Patterson and Mrs. Dr. J. Green.

There was no curling last night, but we expect everything will be O.K. for to-morrow morning.

It Is No Cinch Picking The Best Rookie

By SYDNEY GRUSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

TORONTO, Mach 11—(CP)—The National Hockey League gardens are full of rookie plahts this season and the question of which has bloomed best is being decided now by the sports writers who pick the winner of the Calder Trophy for the season's best rookie.

When Montreal Canadiens, New York Americans and Chicago Black Hawks kept the emphasis on youth, they imported a flock of junior and senior amateurs, sprinkled them with some minor-league stars and sent them out against the N.H.L.'s best veterans. It is a tribute to the ivory hunters that most of the early-season rookies are still around.

Only those with no previous N.H.L. experience whatsoever are eligible for the Calder Trophy, won last season by Kilby MacDonald who patrols right wing for New York Rangers. It was a fairly dried-out voting race, Toronto's Walter Stanowski being the only one to give MacDonald a run for the honor.

They All Have 'Em.

But there is no chance of a walk-away in the fast-closing season of 1940-41. There is hardly a post in any National League rink which hasn't at least one promising rookie.

There were few who gave Detroit Wings much chance to stay out of the second division during the pre-season calculations. But the Red Wings spurted instead into the lead and have been hanging around since. The reason for this, everyone agrees, lies mostly with young Johnny Mowers.

Mowers is the goalkeeper Manager Jack Adams picked to succeed Tiny Thompson when the veteran decided to retire. His brilliant work cannot fail to recall the first-year play of Boston's Frank Brimsek, who replaced Thompson in the Boston nets and won the Calder Trophy in 1939.

Early in the season it became apparent that Mowers would make a strong bid for the rookie award. But he has not had things altogether his own way. From the Canadien camp at St. Hyacinthe last Fall came word to watch Johnny Quilty, and Mowers' admirers have been watching him with growing fear.

Other Candidates.

Quilty, a big, 20-year-old from Ottawa, has centred Canadiens' best line between Toe Blake at left wing and Joe Benoit, another rookie who has earned some consideration. As he hit his top stride in mid-season, Quilty raced into the circle of leading scorers and provided Canadiens with the punch Blake had been expected to deliver, but hadn't.

Canadiens have other candidates besides Benoit and Quilty. Big Ken Reardon has made a good fish of things on the Montreal team's defence and Elmer Lach, the speedball winger, was no drag on the team at any time.

Norm Larsen, the former Moose Jaw amateur, turned out to be the best of the Americans' newcomers along with Pete Slobodian, from Regina. Dave MacKay, Art Mcriucci, Max Bentley and Sam Lo Presti all proved their worth in their first season with Chicago Black Hawks.

It has been a good season for rookies. It will be a good rookie who wins the trophy.

Natives have been granted permission to sit on school boards in Northern Rhodesia.

Your Dreams May Tell Secrets About Yourself

Should He Ignore His Dream?

"Lucky that was just a dream," he thinks, "or I'd lose my job."

But he's wrong. No dream is "ju . a dream." Often it reveals something in yourself that you never knew—and perhaps should know.

You, too, may have dreamed that you FORGOT to go to work. You looked at the clock and it said 5 p.m.! That dream, coming from th secret storehouse of your mind, may mean that you're trying to evade some responsibility. Or you fear that inefficiency (in life itself) is c sing you to fail.

Another time you dream of pricing a hat finding it costs a thousan dollars. Think! Maybe you're about to take some rash step; your better judgment is warning you "The price is too high!"

Dreams, you see, can really help when you take them to heart. You m. dream of stains, inkspots, because you're feeling guilty about something. Thinking out what it is might relieve you greatly.

Instead of lightly dismissing these dreams, use them to help solve your problems. Our 32-page booklet gives the scientific explanations for several dreams — flying, falling off a cliff, running from wild animals and other typical dream situations. Tells why some dreams are "prophetic."

S... ... stamps for your c... of THE MEANING OF DREAMS to the Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

NOT A HERO'S PLAY

USUALLY a squeeze play is reported as the exploit of a heroic player who used it to make his contract or perhaps gain an extra trick. But the principles of the squeeze or any other play are just as valuable in keeping yourself from being beaten an undue number of tricks on a contract you cannot make.

East would have made a sound double of the 6-No Trumps if West had not made his unsound one. After West led his club 10 to the A and South led a heart to the K, the declarer regretted the whole thing, especially his own over-optimistic redouble, since East discarded a club on the trick. He could limit his losses to down one if the diamonds would break. So he played a diamond and ducked it, East winning with the J.

When the club Q came back to the K, North throwing off a spade, he played his two diamond tops, but they left West with a winner here, as East discarded another club. To build a squeeze now for down one, the declarer deliberately gave up a diamond to West, discarding a club from his own hand. West had nothing to return but a heart. So three hearts were run in the dummy, the last squeezing East between the black suits. At that stage, besides the heart J-6, North held the spade K-4 and South the spade A-7-2 and club 6.

East's four cards at that time were his top three spades and club J. If he threw the latter, South would throw a spade, then take two spades and a club. So he tossed a spade. Thereupon declarer cashed the spade K, spade A and spade 7, limiting his loss to one down.

If West, who had doubled the contract, leads the Q of the club suit which East had bid, how should South play for his 3-Diamonds?

Campbellford School Raises $200 For War Work

CAMPBELLFORD, March 11. — (ENS)—Capacity audiences greeted all three performances of the concert presented here by Public School pupils to raise money for war purposes. The entire proceeds estimated to be in the neighborhood of $200 will be turned over to organizations doing war work here.

Principal C. S. Haig explained the concert was the result of the decision reached at a teacher's convention that every school should play its part in the war effort by raising a minimum of ten dollars a room. The enthusiastic endorsement local citizens had given in the present instance combined with the support accorded previous undertakings of the school pupils would, he said, put them well above their objective.

Principal Haig expressed his thanks to the pupils who had cooperated. Also coming in for their well-deserved share of tribute were members of the teaching staff who had shouldered the entire responsibility of arranging, directing, and designing costumes and scenery. The stage scenery itself was made by W. Henson.

The program was divided into two part, an operetta, "Between the Book Ends" in whach various characters of childhood fairy tales appeared in costume to either sing, dance or enact the mythical roll; and "Canada on Parade" a series of choruses and tableau of national character in tribute to the various arms of Canada's fighting forces.

As the curtain opened for the operetta the stage was darkened to create the illusion of time and passage from the world of reality to the world of dreams and fancy. At one side of the stage stood two little girls in period costumes (Colleen Rowe and Kathryn Fox) representing the book-ends. Miss Helen Partridge stood at the centre of the stage to outlines the story while a chorus sang softly off stage to the accompaniment of piano music by Misses G. Stephen and Dorothy Henson. Each character was ushered from the books by the Herald (David MacEachern) after the two little book-ends had done a dance number. First came the Dutch Twins (Doris Hendricks and Shirley Perreault) who were costumed in blue dresses and white aprons and bonnets. Next was Alice in Wonderland (Margaret Rutledge) and the Caterpillar (Jack Gummo) who gave a brief dialogue from the story by Lewis Carrol. An interpretation of a dance done by the rag doll, Raggedy Ann, won the audience for Barbara Greig with her well-timed falls and carefully rehearsed movements. Faye Thomlison as Mother Goose complete with full skirted black dress and high-pointed hat ushered in the Three Blind Mice (Percy Bartley, Jimmy Carruthers, Billy Hay) who amused the audience with their tail-holding antics while Mother Goose sang.

Ronald Dooher and Jeanette Stuart as Jack and Jill enacted the proverbial story about the pail of water while a chorus sang the song. Old King Cole, obesse and smiling was Bobby Bennett and Mary and her Little Lamb were Joyce Dunk and Bobby Vessey. Organdy frocked Joan Bale was "Mistress Mary" (how does your garden grow) and at her summons came a troop of flowers and fairies the former representing daisies and daffodils wore colorful petal dresses of pink and yellow and the latter equally effective with net being being used to advantage over bright colored skirts. June Ames, Lois Ferrill, Marilyn Hopping, Nan Ingram, Barbara Loucks, Carole McArthur, Joan McInroy, Patsy Redden were the flowers and Margaret Flint, Betty Johnson, Barabara Lankin, Marion Maxwell, Ellen Messenger, Helen Weston were the fairies. Tom Sawyer and Huckleberry Finn (Alec. Johnson and Don Rogers (immortal heroes of youth entered swinging the proverbial dead cat and talking of warts and skunk oil after which a group of tin soldiers did a drill with mechanical movement. In this were Dermont Booth, Ronald Chapman, Tommy Fox, Donny Kerr, Grant MacColl, Dick Nesbitt, Teddy Sanders, Billy Scott.

Second Act

The second half of the program opened with a chorus of boys and girls singing "I Am A Canadian" while Keith Sutton representing the Boy Scouts and Shirley Burgiss of the Girl Guides walked across the stage each carrying a flag. Girls in the chorus wore blue blazers and white skirts or dresses. They included Evelyn Bailey, Doris Bertrand, Shirley Burgis, Lois Carruthers, Betty Dunk, Dorothy Grieg, Joan Haig, Muriel Osborne, Gaynel Petherick, Barbara Rowe, Beryl Spencer and the boys, Raymond Dunk, Teddy Dunk, Jack Ellis, Alec. Johnson, Arthur LaBrash, Billie Nesbitt, Ronald Pryke, Arthur Sanders. After these came a group of girls soldiers in navy slacks, red capes and stove pipe hats joined in singing "Wish Me Luck" with Donna Owens giving a very effective solo rendition of "There's Something About a Soldier." The chorus included Gloria Anderson, Yvonne Beatty, Elaine Carlaw, Georgie DeCarrol, Frances Hendy, Bernice McMullen, Donna Owens and Betty Scott. Boy soldiers in forage caps and summer drill were Bob Tweedie, Ken Messenger, Laurie Nesbitt, Alan Taylor, Glenn Nelson, Ronald Hay. As a prelude to the men of the navy Keith Gummo, Eddie Sutton, Pat Glenn, Jack Bartley, who were next to join the tableau, Gloria Anderson sang "All the Nice Girls Love a Sailor," and Rhea and Rheta Patrick did a hornpipe dance which was one of the highlights of this part of the program. Last group to join the others on the stage were the airmen, Ronald Reynolds, Jim Bell, Eddie Knox, Kenneth Campbell. Other members of the staff who assisted in the production were Miss Hazel Atkinson, Mr. Harold Dunk, Misses G. Irwin, A. Martin, H. Thomas, H. Wright, and Mrs. C. Stephens.

Total, $233.32.

It was moved by Councillors Lynch and Bonds that the public liability and property damage policy for the village be renewed with J. L. Doherty, the premium to be $100.

Moved by Lynch and Stevenson, that the insurance policy on weigh scales be not renewed. Carried.

Moved by McEachnie and Bonds, that Dr. W. N. Campbell be appointed medical health officer during the absence of Dr. J. A. MacDonald, who is on active service. The appointment and contract for the M.O.H. be the same as for Dr. J. A. MacDonald. Carried.

Moved by Stevenson and Bonds, that the collector's time be extended to the next regular meeting. Carried.

Moved by Bonds and Stevenson that $50 be transferred from the general account to relief account. Carried.

LINDSAY

$156 Fine Levied In Fenelon Liquor Raid

LINDSAY, March 11—(ENS). — Henry Webster of Fenelon Falls was on Monday fined $156.75 in police court for having liquor illegally. His residence was declared a public place, and the court also ordered the confiscation of the liquor seized. This case arose out of a visit made recently to the home of the accused by Provincial Officers Taylor and McBrien. They found 141 bottles of beer, 7 quarts of wine, 42 empties besides a large number of empty pint liquor bottles. While the police were making a search a truck driver was helping himself to a bottle of beer on the premises. According to the circumstances as outlined by Country Crown Attorney, the accused stated to the officers: "Well, you got me—I would like if the case was made as easy as possible for me." Accused also admitted that he had sold an odd bottle to customers and that he had purchased seven cases of the beer from a brewery representative, but refused to divulge his name. The County Crown Attorney further stated that the reason the Provincial Police figured in the case was because of complaints received and also because the municipal officer had apparently taken no action. Previous convictions had been registered against the accused.

A. T. Lacey, counsel for the accused, informed the court that his client was a man in his 68th year. He could not ask the accused to "squeal" on the brewery representative from whom he purchased the beer. Furthermore, he declared, the accused did not know that beer and wine was classified as liquor and that he felt it was quite proper for him to have it in his possession. Accused, Mr. Lacey said, was suffering from a weak heart and was on a diet prescribed by his physician.

County Crown Attorney described the sale of beer by brewery representatives as "infamous and irregular." He did not want to see the accused go back to Fenelon Falls and boast that he refused to give the name of the brewery representative and make a big fellow of himself.

The accused informed the court that he did not know the agent's name.

Mr. Lacey stated that the practice of sale by brewery agents was a regular practice.

"Yes," remarked County Crown Attorney Anderson, "but it is irregular and contrary to law."

Emily Township Is Free Of Debt

OMEMEE, March 11—(ENS). — The Emily Muncipal Council met in the Farmers' Club Rooms, Omemee, with members all present. W. J. Patrick, reeve, in the chair.

Mr. D. M. O'Leary presented the auditors' report and on motion of Fee and Wilson the clerk was instructed to procure the usual number of printed copies for distribution.

A perusal of the auditors' report shows that in January last the last telephone debenture was due, and as this has since been paid there is, therefore, no debenture debt now on any portion of the Township of Emily for any purpose.

On motion, the road accounts as presented by Walter Herlihey, road superintendent, were approved and ordered paid by the treasurer. Amount $67.00. By-law No. 700 amending by-law No. 690 and increasing the salary of the road superintendent from 38 cents an hour to 43 cents, was introduced, given its several readings, and passed.

Apsley WI Plans Busy Month

APSLEY, March 11 — (ENS). — Mrs. Howard Reid, Apsley House, was hostess on Thursday evening for the meeting of the Apsley Women's Institute. Nine members were present, Mrs. C. Smith, president, in charge.

The treasurer's report was very encourging, $37 being on hand. Over $5 was made at three parties, which will go toward the electric wiring to light the library. Librarians were appointed for March and two or three euchre parties were arranged for the next three Saturday nights. Mrs. Bob Tucker, secretary, gave a short talk on what the Federated Institutes were doing in war work, mentioning the mobile kitchen which has been purchased for that work.

Two quilt blocks were brought to the meeting and all members promised to make blocks. Mrs. C. Smith and Mrs. W. Lean to put them together and the quilt, when finished, is to be donated to the Apsley War Service Club. The roll call for this month was, "A Housecleaning Did ja Know?"

A library board was formed of four members. This board is to transact all business etc. After the business session three demonstrations under the committee for "home economics" were put on by Mrs. Roy Brown, who gave some interesting hints on how to polish furniture. Polishing a chair to demonstrate the polish she was using. She also give several ways of making home made polish for floor and furniture. The second demonstration was ironing a centre piece so it laid flat on the table when finished, was given by Mrs. Charles Smith. The third demonstration was given by Mrs. W. Lean on polishing silverware. She explained how different things will tarnishh silver, such as rubber or sulphur, etc. After her demonstration a bottle of silver polish was presented to each member by Mrs. Lean. A contest which comprised the three demonstrations was conducted by Mrs. Lean.

A short story with missing words to be filled in was entertaining the prize, which was a lovely silver bread tray, was won by Mrs. R. Tucker.

The women's day of prayer was observed by service held on Friday afternoon in the Apsley United church, both churches taking part. Mrs. Stuart Brown, Mrs. J. Downing Mrs. Don Newberry and Mrs. Stanley Windsor were leaders for the devotions. The organist was Miss M. Hales. Mrs. Cathcart gave an inspiring talk. Other members of the congregation read prayers and gave Bible readings.

Miss Mildred Hales spent Wednesday afternoon as the guest of her sister, Mrs. W. Lean.

Mrs. N. James Chandos was the guest on Thursday of Mrs. W. Hales.

Pte. E. Robertshaw of Ottawa, is visiting friends in the village.

Miss Daisy Pomeroy of Owenbrook, is the guest of Mrs. D. McColl this week.

Mrs. Stanley Windsor, Miss Audrey Windsor and Mrs. J. Downing visited Mrs. C. McColl on Thursday.

Mr. W. Lean Mr. N. Lean and Mr. Tom Lean are at Jack's Lake this week for the ice harvest.

Promising Young Canadians In Staff College

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, March 11—(CP).—Officers at the Canadian junior war office college will graduate in the early spring to take staff positions in the Canadian Corps.

Taught to handle administrative and operational problems of units, brigade and division, these young majors, captains and subalterns are slated for key posts.

In the first six weeks, instruction was given in elementary staff work. Student officers studied methods of writing messages, orders and military appreciations, which would be part of their duties as staff captains or brigade majors.

The rest of the term is taken up with exercises and demonstrations in lecture rooms and with troops in the field, where theoretical knowledge is applied.

The course keeps the officers abreast of current campaigns and they study both British and enemy tactics. Senior British officers who fought in France last year gave students intimate insights into operations at that time of infantry battalions, brigades and general headquarters.

Maj.-Gen. P. J. Montague, senior officer at Canadian military headquarters and lectures were given by Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, corps commander, Maj.-Gen. Victor Odlum, 2nd Division commander and Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, 1st division commander.

Sir Neville Henderson, last British ambassador to Berlin, talked on "Germany and her leaders."

"Armored units have shown themselves to be the decisive striking troops and our officers are learning how it is done," said the commandant.

"We strive to avoid any spoon-feeding of knowledge to the students. They do their own work.—By exchange of ideas in syndicates and general lectures and by directive reading, we hope to produce competent new staff officers for our army."

BOYS AIR-MINDED

Feels Like Different Person Since Syntona Built Her Up

Was Subject To Severe Nervous Disorders, Light-headed, Dizzy Spells and Headaches, Suffered With Stomach Pains, Gastritis and Acidity After Every Meal.

MRS. MARY CAGE

Nervousness and sleeplessness are among the most distressing of all symptoms of a rundown condition of the system. The causes are often so elusive that it is hard to get any one to understand that there is any real reason for complaint. To make matters more irksome, the sufferer must often listen to much useless advice from others who were never really sick in their whole lives, while some will even say that the those who have experienced this those who have exvperienced this condition know that it is very real, indeed. Syntona has proved to be a real blessing in many such cases. Here, for example, is the interesting experience of Mrs. Mary Cage, 5 Elgin Street, Hamilton:

"Four years ago I had a nervous breakdown and ever since that I was subject to such nervous spells that I didn't know what I would do. I couldn't get my proper sleep. I frequently felt lightheaded and dizzy and I was always having headaches. Although I would have hunger pains, the least bit of food I ate soured in my stomach and caused gas, cramps, and belching. More often I couldn't keep food on my stomach at all. My tongue was coated and my skin was rough and sallow.

"From the first bottle of Syntona, I didn't have a single one of those nervous or dizzy spells up to the present time. By the time I had taken seven bottles I was feeling like a new woman. I was able to eat regular meals, without all that stomach trouble. I slept well and my whose system was improved. It is certainly a great relief and I will be glad to have others know. Whenever I feel that trouble coming on again I will surely try Syntona first."

A special Syntona Representative will be located in Peterborough at Elliott's Drug Store. Make up your mind to go down and talk to him. Find out how Syntona can help you, too.—(Advt.)

St. Andrew's W.M.S. Study Bible Message

CAMPBELLFORD, March 11. — Mrs. P. B. Nelson's group was in charge of the program at the monthly meeting of St. Andrew's W.M.S. when a new feature was inaugurated. From the first chapter of their study book the group leader told the message the Bible had to offer in war time and linked this with the prophecy of Amos. To create interest among all those attending the meeting, discussion was then invited on the subject.

Assisting Mrs. Nelson with the program were Mrs. J. R. Battisby, Mrs. Fred Adamson, Mrs. A. Hay, Mrs. Raymond Free, Mrs. Henry Hay, Mrs. Andrew Milne, Miss Jessie Neill and Mrs. I. Walkinshaw.

During the business period, for which Mrs. Robert McCulloch, the president, presided, a summary of the business of the presbyterial officer for the year was discussed.

Italian Dead Litter Battlefield As Greek Lines Smash Six Fierce Albanian Drives

Only 187 Survive In One Fascist Battalion; Roman Captives Estimate Musso's Losses In Campaign At 130,000

ATHENS, March 12—(AP). — Italians using the biggest force they have thus far employed attacked at six different points in Albania yesterday after careful artillery preparation, but all thrusts were repulsed, Greek military dispatches said today.

One entire blackshirt battalion attacking yesterday afternoon was declared wiped out with the exception of 187 men taken as prisoners.

Captured Italians said one of the blackshirt units taking part in the operations was the "Bruno Mussolini" battalion, named for a son of Mussolini.

Greeks said they were able not only to throw the Fascists back, but to advance their own lines in the Tepeleni sector. (The Greeks have been attempting to take Tepeleni since December).

Royal Air Force headquarters announced that five Italian planes were downed and others severely damaged in a battle over the Central Albanian sector yesterday.

Italian troops and motor transports were again attacked on the Glava-Buzi road, but the pilots said they were unable to determine the results because of low clouds.

20 Officers Taken.

Greeks said Italian wounded were so numerous that stretcher-bearers were unable to clear the battlefield. Twenty Italian officers were listed among the prisoners.

In one Fascist battalion the Greeks said only 70 officers and 70 men survived out of a total of 738 men.

A Greek spokesman announced earlier that 450 more Italian prisoners had been taken in Albania, and said some of the captives estimated Italy's losses in the campaign at 130,000 men.

The new prisoners, including three senior officers, were taken in Greek counter attacks after an "intensive effort of great violence" by the Italians was "repulsed with considerable losses," the high command said.

The spokesman commented: "We did not yield an inch in yesterday's fighting. The mountains are covered with hundreds of dead and wounded."

(The reports did not specify where the fighting occurred, but dispatches from Yugoslavia said the Greeks gained with "recklessly successful" attacks in the Tepeleni and Lake Ochrid sectors).

'New Magna Carta - Inspiring Act of Faith' Says Churchill Of U.S. Lease-Lend Bill

LONDON, March 12—(CP).—Prime Minister Churchill formally thanked the United States today for the lease and lend bill which he termed "a new Magna Carta . . . an inspiring act of faith."

To the House of Commons, Mr. Churchill solemnly read this statement:

"The lease and lend bill as the House is aware became law yesterday when it received immediately the signature of the President.

"I am sure the House would wish me to express on their behalf and on behalf of the nation our deep and respectful appreciation of this monument of generous and far-seeing statesmanship.

"The most powerful democracy has, in effect, declared in solemn statute that they will devote their overwhelming industrial and financial strength to ensuring the defeat of Nazism in order that nations, great and small, may live in security, tolerance and freedom.

"By so doing the Governmnt and people of the United States have in fact, written a new Magna Carta which not only has regard to the rights and laws upon which a healthy and advancing civilization can alone be erected but also proclaims by precept and example the duty of free men

Moscow Tips Turkey Not To Fear Reds If She Fights

BELGRADE, Mar. 12 — (AP). — Yugoslavia was reported in government circles to-night to have agreed "in principle" to sign the three-power military pact of Berlin, Rome and Tokyo.

BELGRADE, March 12—(AP).—Yugoslavia's quick capitulation to German demands that she join the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo alliance was forecast today as Hitler kept Greece and Turkey guessing by massing more than 500,000 troops on their northern frontiers.

As this nation's political and military leaders assembled for a rare emergency meeting of the Crown Council, neutral observers said Hitler might have his answer before nightfall.

Most of these sources agreed Yugoslavia, practically encircled by the Axis, would choose to sign and thereby open a new avenue for an expected Nazi thrust against Greece.

Turkey also was expected at any moment to give her reply to German overtures aimed at weaning her from Great Britain—but there were indications she might delay clarifying her position pending a move by Yugoslavia.

Advices from Ankara intimated the Turkish Premier, Refik Saydam, might postpone a scheduled speech before Parliament today. The speech had been awaited eagerly as a possible clue to his government's position in the swiftly-developing Balkan crisis.

Competent sources said Soviet Russia had promised Turkey she need fear nothing from the Red army, if Ankara elects to fight at Greece's side. But official circles remained silent on this aspect of the situation.

Bombing Already?

Istanbul, Turkey, March 12 (AP)

MEMBERS of the British party which arrived here from Bulgaria yesterday said they were told by a Greek officer that German planes already had begun bombing Greek towns from Bulgarian bases.

The train bearing the party, including the staff of the British legation in Sofia, twice entered Greek territory en route to the Turkish frontier.

On one occasion, the train was delayed, it was said, and a Greek officer explained it had been compelled to halt because German planes were raiding the town of Dede Agach in Grecian Thrace.

Finger Points To Bulgars As Engineers

2nd Lot Of Explosives Found In Time, Hidden In Suitcase

ISTANBUL, March 12—(AP). — British quarters in Istanbul said today they considered a bombing attempt to assassinate George W. Rendel, British minister who left German-occupied Bulgaria, was plotted to "mar Turkish-British relations."

Four persons were killed and upwards of 20 were injured by explosion of the bomb last night in the lobby of the Pera Plaza Hotel, where the British diplomat had brought his party from Sofia by train only a few minutes before, Rendel escaped.

The British said that they believed the plot was engineered in Bulgaria and that the bomb was rigged to explode on Turkish soil.

The Turkish news agency said it had been established that two suitcases containing bombs were mixed with the luggage of the British party at the Sofia railroad station before the departure of Rendel's private train.

The agency said a police investigation disclosed that one of the suitcases was taken to the Pera Plaza with the rest of the British baggage, and the other was taken to another hotel nearby by a Briton who became suspicious of the bag's contents.

This man notified police, the agency said, and they opened the bag and found explosives.

Investigators who indicated they foresaw possible "serious diplomatic repercussions" from the bombing examined passengers on all trains, searched baggage compartments and closely questioned all persons wishing to leave Istanbul for Bulgaria.

Police said the dead were two Turkish detectives, a woman guest at the hotel, whose body was mangled so badly she could not be identified immediately, and a Miss Ellis, who was a strenographer in the British Legation in Sofia.

Mr. Rendel, who carried out the cutting of Britain's relations with Bulgaria last Wednesday, had gone to his room and was unhurt, although the force of the blast damaged the second and third floors of the big stone hotel, only a block from the United States consulate.

The diplomat's 20-year-old daughter, Anne, also escaped injury.

"As near as I could tell," she related, "the floor just blew up."

Survivors able to attend a conference shortly after midnight compared notes and told Turkish police and military authorities the bomb might have been concealed in one of

Nab One Of Three In Toronto Taxi Holdup

TORONTO, March 12 (CP) — Thomas Wilson, alias Martin, 29, was arrested and charged with holding up the National Taxi office on Victoria street, downtown Toronto, early today, a few minutes after three armed men robbed the place.

Police said they found a loaded .45 calibre automatic pistol of United States army issue and $316 in Wilson's pocket. The two other men escaped during police chase of Wilson who was captured by Constable William Martin who fired several shots in the air as he ran after the suspect Police gave credit for the capture to Taxi office employees, Thomas Delane and Fred Sloan, who were in the place when the three armed men entered. After the intruders obtained the money and were in the act of leaving, a call came through on the switch-board from one of the company's drivers.

"Quick, call the police," Delane shouted. "We've been held up."

George McGregor, the driver, immediately started out in his car for the taxi office and on the way he picked up Constable Martin. As they approached the vicinity, three men were seen running.

Duce Loses Transport

London, March 12 (CP)

A "heavily-laden Italian troop transport" has been torpedoed and sunk by a British submarine, the Admiralty said last night.

The announcement did not disclose the scene, other than the Mediterranean. The transport was identified as "of the Sicilia class of 9,646 tons."

LONDON, March 12 (CP) — A large fire and heavy explosions resulted from a Royal Air Force attack last night on the Bremerhaven docks, near Kiel in Northwest Germany, and a daylight raid yesterday on an oil storage depot at Rotterdam, the Netherlands.

60 Cars A Day

Toronto, March 12 (CP)

WESTERN feed grain, on which the Dominion and provincial governments are paying the freight charges, is coming into Ontario at the rate of 60 cars per day, Agriculture Minister Dewan said today. Approximately half of the 3,300,000 bushels quota set for this province has been reached and Mr. Dewan estimated the full quota would be used up within the next few weeks.

When the policy was inaugurated in February, the deadline for bringing in the grain was set for July 15.

Under the plan, the governments each pay half the freight rate from Fort William to Ontario points. Mr. Dewan estimated the cost to the Ontario government would be some $135,000.

Buckingham Hit By Two Bombs

LONDON, March 12 (CP)—Three high explosive bombs fell recently in the grounds of Buckingham Palace, killing a policeman and knocking down part of a wall, the government disclosed today.

Incendiary bombs fell across the road from the palace, and three other explosives hit nearby.

A story of the rescue of a blue Persian cat from the ruins of a lodge on the palace grounds after the cat had been buried four days indicated that the bombs might have fallen in last Saturday night's attack on London, described as the heaviest in many weeks.

A policeman said six bombs fell in the vicinity of the palace, three of them striking outside the grounds.

Newsmen arriving at the palace about midnight, shortly after the bombing, found the air heavy with the smell of gunpowder.

The dark hulk of the building was rose-tinted by the glare of a fire in the distance.

Everything behind the high wall was quiet. A policeman on patrol duty pointed to a chalky spot in the road and said:

"There's where an incendiary hit. It lit up like all hell around here but we got it out quick."

Two of the bombs dropped recently landed in a courtyard at the palace. A third hit a lodge house,

Let FDR Put Out One Convoy— Is Berlin Threat

BERLIN, Mar. 12 — (AP). — The German attitude toward the United States Aid-to-Britain Bill, a Nazi spokesman said to-day, may be summed up with the words:

"We are not surprised, but we are prepared for anything."

The spokesman declared: "Mr. Roosevelt is an unpredictable man. Let him send one convoy and...."

The sentence was left hanging.

The German radio declared: "The Lease-Lend Bill was rushed through the Congress merely to make a showing of honesty, whereas in reality the United States Government is intent only upon the speediest acquisition of a maximum number of British possessions."

"The United States will appear to help England all she can," the radio continued. "But in reality she will endeavor to induce Germany to agree to a negotiated peace. After the signing of such a negotiated peace the U.S.A. then hopes to take over the inheritance of the remains of the British Empire.

"However, the one big fly in the American ointment is the fact that Germany never will acquiesce to any negotiation proposals. Winners do not negotiate. They dictate, and the sooner the hypocritical American Government realizes this fact, the better off she will be."

2 Hog Bonus Plans

Toronto, March 31 (CP)

TWO methods by which the hog bonus could be paid were submitted to the Ontario Legislature's agriculture committee today by William Watson of the livestock branch of the provincial department of agriculture.

Watson said the farmer could submit his grading certificate to the department and receive in return his bonus or the packers could include the bonus in the price of the hog and then be reimbursed by the government.

The first method would entail considerable clerical work and a certain amount of delay in the farmer receiving his bonus. If the packers paid it direct to the farmer, this would tend to eliminate the practice of "flat" selling, a system by which the farmer does not always receive full value for his hog.

Roosevelt Urges Speed Passing 7 Billion Demand

WASHINGTON, March 12—(AP) —President Roosevelt sent to the United States Congress today a request for a $7,000,000,000 appropriation to carry out a "fixed policy of this Government to make for democracies every gun, plane and munition of war that we possibly can."

In a letter to Speaker Sam Rayburn, transmitting detailed estimates of the Budget Director for the $7,000,000,000 expenditure, Mr. Roosevelt said:

"I strongly urge the immediate enactment of this appropriation."

The President declared that America has felt that "it was imperative to the security of America that we encourage the democracies' heroic resistance to aggressions, by not only maintaining but also increasing the flow of material assistance from this country."

Therefore he said, Congress had enacted and he had signed the British Aid Bill.

The President's request for the biggest peace time appropriation bill in the history of the United States went to Congress less than 24 hours after he signed the bill into law and approved the first list of supplies to be shipped to Britain and to Greece.

The Various Categories

The appropriation estimate of the Budget Director broke the $7,000,000,000 down into various categories, of which the largest by far was $2,054,000,000 for "aircraft and aeronautical material, including engines, spart parts, and accessories."

Other categories were:

$1,343,000,000 for ordnance and ordnance stores, supplies, spare parts, and materials, including armor and ammunition and their components.

Canuck Sailor Tells How Destroyer Silenced Hun Shore Fire

(Louis V. Hunter of the London Bureau of The Canadian Press has completed a trip on a Canadian destroyer on duty in the Atlantic. This is one of a series of stories he wrote on the men of Canada's Navy.)

By LOUIS V. HUNTER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Aboard a Canadian Destroyer in the North Atlantic, March 12 (CP) —Leading Seaman J. K. Murray ("the fellows call me Jake") left his Claresholm, Alta., home in 1937 to join the Royal Canadian Navy "because I figured I'd get around the world and have a pretty good time."

Jake, one of the tallest men in the R.C.N.—He's six feet five inches—has been under fire off the French coast and he's had a part in the rescue of survivors of merchantmen torpedoed in the North Atlantic.

Murray's ship, the destroyer St. Laurent, was the first of the Royal Canadian Navy to reach Britain after the outbreak of war. Since then he has been having a "pretty lively time."

"I'm sure we sank a submarine a little while before we reached port," the 227-pound schoolboy-seaman related. "It was just about dusk when we got 'wind' of her and some depth charges were dropped. It wasn't long before oil patches appeared on the surface and that's a sure sign we must have hit her."

Murray recalled then the part the destroyer played during the evacuation of troops from France after the collapse of the republic.

"We made three trips to France, to Le Havre, Fecamp and St. Valery," he said. "But it was only on the last trip, to St. Valery, that we found anyone to pick up. There were about 60 'poilus' on the beach and we brought them out to the ship in whalers. I don't think there were two men from the same regiment.

"During the operations, German shore batteries opened fire and we returned it with compliments. One of their guns was silenced. They

Dewan Warns Against Packers' Move Bonus On Live Weight

TORONTO, March 12 — (CP). — Agriculture Minister P. M. Dewan told the Agriculture committee of the Ontario Legislature today that the small packers were seeking to have the bonus on hogs paid on liveweight. This he thought would be a retrograde step.

The Government plan is to pay $1 on hog carcases grading "A" and 50 cents on those grading "B-1." Some of the packers, he said, were Proctors of Brantford, and Moodies of St. Thomas.

William Watson of the Livestock branch of the Agriculture Department outlined the general situation as to swine in Canada. Last year 5,449,626 hogs were marketed in Canada—an increase of 47 per cent over the pervious year.

Western Canada marketed 2,651,264, an increase of 63.7 per cent over 1939 figures. Eastern Canada marketed 2,798,352, an increase of 34.1 per cent.

Explaining the contract with Great Britain, Mr. Watson said it called for 4,025,000 pounds of bacon, the equivalent of 70,000 hogs per week for export purposes. To meet this, along with the demand for domestic purposes Mr. Watson said 120,000 hogs would have to be marketed weekly.

"Already some concern is being expressed in some quarters whether this is possible," he said.

Mr. Watson said that if breeding is carried out as anticipated Canada should be able to meet the situation this year. But indications pointed to a long war and steps should be taken to meet the demand for years to come.

He said another problem was to maintain the quality of hogs so as to hold the export market after the war.

Mr. Watson said the hog produced in Central Ontario between Hastings and Middlesex Counties, for the most part graded A and B, but those coming from Eastern Ontario and the lower part of Western Ontario, including Essex, Kent, Elgin and Lambton, were of an inferior grade.

Units Abroad Need 253 Million Says Ralston

OTTAWA, March 12 — (CP). — Breakdown of $866,574,659 estimated requirements for army purposes in 1941-42 was given in the Commons last night by Defence Minister Ralston.

The Minister said he would not go into detail of specific amounts for formations as this might disclose information which should be kept secret.

It was estimated Canadian formations and functions overseas would cost $253,108,174. Formations and functions to be sent overseas during the year would cost an estimated $180,189,435.

Other estimates were: Coast defence, guards and functions of an

White's Charges Rouse Ralston In Live Session

OTTAWA, March 12 (CP).—Members of the House of Commons today were in possession of an array of facts and figures on Canada's armed war effort, placed on the record by Defence Minister Ralston.

For nearly two hours yesterday afternoon and evening Col. Ralston told the story of Canada's expanding armed forces, described his experiences on his recent visit to England and expressed belief that recruits for the army would come forward as fast as ay were needed.

Plans for organizing forces and dispatching troops overseas as given by the Minister were an amplification of announcements already made, including those contained in Prime Minister Mackenzie King's radio broadcast early in February.

Wartime secrecy prevented the Minister giving numbers and times of embarkation, and he was unable to give details as to equipment. But he said arrangements for equipping the proposed armored division had been made on a basis satisfactory both to Britain and Canada.

White Hits Out.

A high spot of the afternoon sitting was provided by Capt. G. S. White (Con., Hastings-Peterborough) who, wearing the uniform of the reserve unit of which he is adjutant, made a general criticism of military training administration.

The Second Clash

The clash between Col. Ralston and Capt. White was their second. Last Summer the Conservative member, Adjutant of the 2nd Battalion of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, complained of lack of equipment for the reserve army and was told by Col. Ralston that the active forces had to come first.

Capt. White got around to Justice Minister Lapointe after saying the soldiers in this war as in the last did not want any attention paid to political parties or political patronage. He expressed belief all shades of political opinion should be represented in the Government. Then, referring directly to Mr. Lapointe's opposition to National Government, he said:—

"I should like to say to the Minister of Justice that there are other parts of Canada besides Quebec. It is about time for the Dominion of Canada to realize that this country is no longer going to be governed by the dictates and whims of the Province of Quebec."

A few shouts of "shame" and some of "hear, hear" were heard as Capt. White took his seat. Hughes Cleaver (Lib. Halton) asked him if he thought he was helping the war effort by speaking as he had and Capt. White replied: "Absolutely." Mr. Cleaver asked Capt. White if he had forgotten Ontario voted as strongly against National government as did Quebec.

Supplies the Main Worry.

"The people of Canada are not concerned to-day with votes," Capt. White retorted. "They are concerned with bullets and machine guns, airplanes—and we have got very, very few"

Col Ralston said some people were never satisfied unless they were creating a difficulty instead of trying to create unity.

"My honorable friend (Capt. White) was a follower of a gentleman (Hon. R. J. Manion, fromer Conservative leader), who pledged that there would be no conscription in Canada," said Col. Ralston. "My friend was elected on that platform, yet to-day he rises and speaks about the province of Quebec leading this country.

"I say to my friend that this is unworthy of a member of this House and I submit it is unworthy of a gentleman who wears the king's uniform as he does at this moment.

"When he talks about party patronage I tell him he had better adduce some instances of that patronage in connection with this government's war effort before he talks about it."

It was one of the duties of an officer, the Minister went on, to see that the men under his command got reasonable consideration and were not incited to find fault with their lot.

Capt. White suggested that facilities set up for military training be used to prepare men for overseas service rather than home defence alone.

He said it was "tragic" that the fine facilities, skilled instructors and great cost was being applied solely to training men for home service.

"Only About 19 Days' Training."

He observed that men trained under the 30-day encampment system really had only about 19 days' actual training. That 90,000 men so far trained would have to start afresh if again called for training or service.

These men were supposed to be attached to reserve units at the close of their period in camp, but they were not paid nor provided with transportation. In one instance, out of 400 men attached to a reserve unit only six turned up for training. training period shortly to be initiated the men would soon forget what they learned unless they keep up their training.

Capt. White asked the Government why there was still a shortage of Bren gun, anti-gas and anti-tank equipment among active force units, while announcements were being made in Ottawa that production of these materials was up to or ahead of schedule.

Organization of Canada for war had been slow and inefficient in some regards, Capt. White said.

He concluded by saying that it was "beyond me how any Government with a general staff such as they profess to have at Ottawa, with full knowledge of what is going on overseas, could conceive of and put into execution such an utter farce of a training scheme."

He continued: "I say, why not face the facts right here in this House. Let us, as members of parliament show, for once a little backbone and admit that conscription of all manpower for service anywhere in the world is the only answer to the present situation.

Then, after claiming men in uniform were disconcontented because of "strong-arm" treatment in the issuance or military passes and the failure to provide them with free transportation while on leave, Capt. White mentioned the recently-an-

DOUBLE ORDER

A little girl walked into the Examiner office on Tuesday evening and asked the young lady behind the counter about the insertion of an ad in the classified section. Upon being asked for the copy she would like in the ad, the little girl spoke rapidly, and without taking in breath.

"We want boarders and we want good clean boarders and we have a good boarding house. It's good and clean and the meals are good and we want boarders who will pay their board on time and you know better'n I do what should be said so you say it."

The ad was written, and on Wednesday morning the child's mother phoned to say that the 25c had meant to be payment for an ad that had appeared on Monday, but that she knew her daughter, and expected that those in the office had enjoyed the performance. When the little girl got home she told her mother "I think they were laughing at me down there, but I had to tell them so I could get the thing in right."

BIG MONEY PROPOSITION.

At the Collegiate Institute and Vocational Training School the sale of War Savings Stamps and Certificates proceeds merrily. To-day figures for the week ending Monday noon were released, and while not equalling the record mark of $975 for stamps set last week are nevertheless most encouraging. Sale of stamps alone amounted to $800, and sale of War Savings Certificates for cash totalled $350. Since the scheme to sell stamps at the Collegiate was started the students have disposed of more than $11,000 worth of the 25 cent stamps.

"In the name of His Majesty's Government and speaking I am sure for Parliament and for the whole country and indeed in the name of all freedom-loving peoples I offer to the United States our gratitude for her inspiring act of faith."

The brief statement was interrupted at almost every sentence by cheering and at the conclusion the cheering was loud and continuous.

Although the floor of the meeting place was filled by members of Commons there were only eight men in the gallery—a United States army mission here to co-ordinate American-British air plans. They were in uniform.

Repairs For Warships.

This last item presumably would be used in part to effectuate terms of the British Aid Law under which warships of Great Britain might be repaired in American bases.

The budget director's statement proposed that the President be allowed to transfer up to 20 per cent. of any of these various sums from one category to another, but with no appropriation to be increased by that process by more than 30 per cent.

Plans, meanwhile, were formulated to rush the request through Congress.

Rayburn announced at a press conference that the appropriation bill probably would be ready for House debate on Monday, or Tuesday of next week at the latest.

"We are going to put anything else aside when a thing like that comes up," he said.

High Standard Certificates Are Announced

High Standard Certificates have been issued by the local Department of Health to two restaurants, two hotels and one bakery, Sanitary Inspector MacPherson reported to the Board of Health Tuesday afternoon.

Publication of the names of these food purveyors is withheld for the present for several reason. One of them is that there are other places which have almost merited this distinction, and are expected soon to receive certificates, pending some further improvements, and it was felt that they would be given a chance of being mentioned in the same high standard category. Another factor is that the Board has not finally decided upon a policy of publicity, especially in regard to recognizing continuity of merit or any lapses from it.

However, the intentions of the Board have been in the direction of making these certificates of real value to the owners of places in which food is prepared and handled who fully comply with the Board's regulations.

Quotations from Mr. MacPherson's report indicate the extent and persistence of the work that is being carried on for the protection of public health in Peterborough.

"Provincial certification has been given to one more pasteurization plant in February, following the providing of suitable refrigeration, adequate and sanitary drainage and a bacteriologically safe and pure water supply. An inadequate water supply in another dairy has since been rectified ,and at present Class "A" water is being provided for both these dairies. One dairy overhauled its mechanical bottle washer to obtain a product which met with our standards.

Analysis of pasteurized milk conducted by the Provincial Laboratory indicated that the processing of milk in the various plants is very satisfactory. All specimens examined last month graded "A". Three specimens were found to contain organisms over and above the standard, and only one indicated the presence of colon organisms caused by a faulty operating bottle washing machine which has since been put in order."

Several restaurants put in ventilating systems in their kitchens, and others were improved by painting kitchen walls and ceilings, rest rooms and store rooms.

In regard to the two hotels which were awarded with high standard certificates, Mr. MacPherson said: "The managers of these two establishments have made all necessary changes and have shown on repeated inspections their desire and ability to maintain a high standard of cleanliness and sanitation in and around their premises."

Sterilization of utensils in beverage rooms and hotel kitchens was checked over last month. "For the most part the work is being done to our satisfaction."

"Only one instance of negligence in this important operation was noted. This was due, I believe, to the assumption of responsibility as manager by a person unacquainted with our local regulations. He was advised and instructed as to procedures required here. Bacteriological examinations of utensils served to the public in a number of hotels were made and found quite satisfactory.

One bakery was required to paint walls and ceilings. In three other bakeries it was necessary to draw attention of the managers to conditions of racks, machinery, table tops and, in one instance, the stable adjacent to bakery. The results have been satisfactory, the particular items having been given attention."

Ice fields were examined, and three permits to cut ice for city delivery were granted. All specimens of ice grade "A".

tained attack in several months.

The bombings, which continued until early this morning, drove at least 150 people from their homes in the city and buried others—killed and injured—in wreckage.

Six persons were killed on a residential street in another place in the West Midlands.

A communique said, however, that throughout the entire country casualties were few and damage was not great.

The communique said that "the work of fire parties throughout the west Midlands was reported to have been particularly good and contributed greatly to the ineffectiveness of the raid in this area."

Destruction of two German planes was announced.

A Heinkel 115 was brought down in the sea off the east coast of Scotland last night. Three members of the crew, one of them wounded, were rescued from a rubber dinghy by a naval patrol vessel. The fourth member, a wireless operator, was missing.

The air mininstry news service reported another Nazi plane was destroyed by a British bomber as it was about to take off from an airport in Northern France for an attack on England.

The War Today

By J. F. SANDERSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Frenchmen tore out the word "Oran" and left only the words "Do not forget." Frenchmen will not forget the Nazis; many will remember the Entente Cordiale.

That sign was the symbol of what Germany has been striving to do. She would like nothing better than to have French merchantmen convoyed by the remnants of the French Fleet. She would like nothing better than to embroil Britain and France—in Syria, in Africa, on the seas. And Admiral Darlan appears to be playing her game.

There is no denying France's genuine need for food. German roads into the former republic's meagre supplies have virtually exhausted them and France is hungry. But hunger alone does not explain fully the announcement that so desperate a venture as challenging Britain's sea might is contemplated.

The New York Herald Tribune editorially points to a significant aspect of the question, and one that both the Nazis and their admirers at Vichy must ponder. "If it is proper for the Germans to put pressure on Vichy to break the British blockade in the German interest, it cannot be improper for the United States to break the German blockade in our interest," the newspaper aptly remarks.

"Surely," the paper says, "this is not the most opportune moment to spread the idea in the United States of the possibility or legitimacy of non-belligerent convoy through war blockades."

And the Herald Tribune adds that the United States interest in the matter is "a vital one."

F.D.R.'s 7 Billion Call Before Congress Today

WASHINGTON, Mar. 12—(AP).—A cash appropriation request without precedent in United States peacetime history was prepared for the American Congress by President Roosevelt to-day to show the world, one authority said, that "Uncle Sam means business" about aiding Britain and other nations in fighting aggression.

The request for funds to finance the lease-lend program, was expected to approximate $7,000,000,000. Mr. Roosevelt planned to set it forth in a letter to Speaker Sam Rayburn (Dem.-Texas) shortly after noon (EDT). House leaders predicted Congress would go to work on it with the same speed with which the long-debated program was set in motion yesterday.

The House completed Congressional action on the Lease-Lend Bill about 2.30 p.m. on Tuesday, approving Senate amendments by the vote of 317 to 71. Within a matter of minutes the measure had been signed by Vice-President Henry A. Wallace and Speaker Rayburn. Sped to the White House it was signed by President Roosevelt without ceremony at 3:51 o'clock.

C. Alex. Sollitt Vice-President Of Motor League

C. Alex Sollitt, district manager of the Canada Life and president of the Peterborough Automobile Club for the past three years, was named vice-president of the Ontario Motor League at the annual meeting held this week in Toronto.

The appointment of Mr. Sollitt to the position of vice-president is a high honor and one that has never come to this city before. He has been an active and aggressive member of the local Automobile Club for several years and has directed the activities of the club for the past three years in a commendable manner. He is a member of the Board of Education, a member of the Kinsmen Club and a divisional chairman on the sale of War Savings Certificates.

Named President.

Dr. P. H. Huyck of Kingston was named president and the two other vice-presidents with Mr. Sollitt are R. C. Berkinshaw of Toronto and Major G. W. Butchart of Owen Sound.

Hon. T. B. McQuesten, Ontario Minister of Highways, told the meeting that during the last ten years, 20,000 motorists had been barred from driving motor cars under the terms of the financial responsibility law, and during its existence the law has been invoked more than 40,000 times.

Understand Your Responsibility.

The Minister deplored the fact that the law was called the "financial responsibility law," and suggested that the Safety Responsibility Law would be a much better term, as it is aimed at giving the motorist an understanding of his responsibility for public safety and his obligation to give compensation to those who may suffer as a result of his driving.

Mr. McQuesten also pointed out that the number of insured cars involved in reportable accidents has risen from 42 per cent. in 1932 to almost 59 per cent in 1939. This figure proves that more and more drivers are taking out insurance either voluntarily or under the financial responsibility law.

John A. Tory, prescident of the League, who was unable to attend owing to illness, reported in a written address that the sum of $3,000 would be provided by the League for purchasing a mobile kitchen for the war victims in England.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Mar. 12 — (CP). — Sharp gains in flax values featured early operations on Winnipeg Grain Exchange today as wheat futures prices held firm in mixed trading.

Wheat prices were ¼ cents higher, May 79⅝ and July 81 cents a bushel, after 30 minutes of trading.

Persistent support from investors and crushers yanked flax values 4½ cents above the previous close during the first half hour, while other coarse grain remained quiet. Light offerings also were prominent in the flax advance.

Franco Refuses Huns Path For Warplanes

NEW YORK, March 12 —(AP)— Reliable informants said last night that General Franco had abruptly turned down a German demand for facilities to fly military planes across Spain to Africa. .

These informants said that a well-planned "swift diplomatic manoeuvre" by Nazi Foreign Minister Ribbentrop thus collapsed, and as a result, General Espinosa de Los Monteros, Spanish Ambassador to Berlin, lost his job.

This is the story:

Ribbentrop, it was said, summoned the Spanish Ambassador to the Berlin Foreign Office and read to him rapidly a document containing German proposals for "Spanish co-operation."

Most important of these was a demand for Spanish territorial facilities to fly military planes to Africa.

About the same time, tonight's informants continued, German Ambassador Baron Eberhard von Stohrer called upon the Spanish Foreign Minister, Ramon Serrano Suner, in Madrid, "to discuss details for carrying out the agreement" which, von Stohrer claimed, already had been reached in Berlin.

Serrano Suner was taken by surprise. He declared he had no knowledge of the agreement and had not even heard of Ribbentrop seeing the Spanish Ambassador to Berlin on the subject.

Stohrer, it was said, repeated the German proposals.

Franco, informed persons asserted, turned them down as "inconsistent with the honor of Spain."

Los Monteros, it appeared, had merely made noncommital acknowledgment of Ribbentrop's proposals when he called at the Wilhelmstrasse and, before he had a chance to report to Madrid, von Stohrer was carrying out his end of the German manoeuvre at the Spanish Foreign Office.

The Spanish ambassador now will be replaced by former Minister to Barcenas, it was understood.

The same sources which related this story said there had been increasing pressure on Spain recently for Axis "free passage" to Africa.

Rescue Crew Of Stranded Ship

One of the 28 members of the crew of the 5,811-ton armed Norwegian freighter Olaf Bergh is shown, TOP, being assisted by coast-guardsmen who erected a breeches buoy and brought the 28 men to shore safely. The ship was blown hard aground on a reef, 100 feet off shore near Ocean City, Md., while en route to Philadelphia from Hull, Eng. The stranded vessel is shown, BELOW, hard aground and only partially visible through a blinding snowstorm.

Anzacs Shifted From Britain To Middle East

LONDON, March 12 —(CP)—The dominions office disclosed today that Britain dispatched Australian and New Zealand troops from England to fight in the Middle East. The announcement said the troops arrived at their destination "some time ago."

Whether these troops fought in the attack on Libya was not revealed.

In wartime troop movements are kept secret sometimes for weeks after the arrival of soldiers at their destination.

(In Sydney Acting Prime Minister A. W. Fadden made a similar announcement, but also did not disclose where the troops were sent.

(The main body of Australia and New Zealand troops in the Middle East went there directly from their homelands.)

Qualified sources said removal of troops from England to the Middle East had to be disclosed sooner or later. The announcement was made, they said, as soon as possible, but it had to be delayed for reasons of security and strategy.

The Only Tip

When the troops left England the Dominions Secretary, Viscount Cranborne sent this message to the Australian government:—

"His Majesty's Government express their admiration of Australian troops who are now leaving Britain for services against our common enemies elsewhere.

"They have by their presence here (in London) played a great part in the defence of this country and so contributed in no small measure to final victory."

The Australian government replied:—

"We are delighted to know that our men have had some part in the magnificent defence effort of Great Britain at home. The Commonwealth Government declare proudly that whether it is in Great Britain, or on other frontiers of the empire, we want to fight with you in the thickest of battle, until we reach a victorious peace."

Fifty-Seven Years Wed

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Jacques of Warkworth, who are today celebrating the 57th anniversary of their wedding.

Percy Couple 57 Years Wed

WARKWORTH, Mar. 12—(ENS)—Mr. and Mrs. Edward Jacques are observing to-day their fifty-seventh wedding anniversary. The marriage took place at the Methodist parsonage, Picton, on March 12, 1884. Rev. Mr. Pickett performed the ceremony. They were unattended.

Mrs. Jacques is a daughter of the late Simeon Hilton and Lucinda Frink, and was born at Napanee on December 13, 1867. Her sister and brother are deceased.

Born in England.

Mr. Jacques is one of a family of eight. He was born in Troy Town, Peckham Rye, London, England, on December 27, 861. He came to Canada when a young man and settled near Napanee. One sister is living in London, England.

For twenty-three years Mr. and Mrs. Jacques lived on a farm in Prince Edward County near Allisonville, then they came to Percy Township, where they lived for nine years, Mr. Jacques being foreman on the farm owned by the late Patrick Gallagher, later they lived near Codrington, in Brighton Township. In 1921 they retired from farming and came to live with Mr. and Mrs. Chat Sherwin, Percy Township. From this union there were three children, Fred of Brighton, Harry of Codrington, and Mrs. C. Sherwin. They have two grandsons, Russell and Glenn Jacques of Codrington.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacques are highly respected citizens and have always been interested in anything that was for the betterment of the community. Mrs. Jacques has for several years been an active member of the Women's Institute. They are enjoying fairly good health.

Their large number of friends congratulate them on their wedding anniversary, and wish for them many more years of happiness together.

Alnwick Ladies Busy Sewers

ROSENEATH, March 12 (ENS) —During the week the Alnwick Red Cross branch shipped the following articles to headquarters in Toronto: Army and Seamen's supplies:—20 pairs army socks, 5 seamen's scarfs, 5 army sweaters, 10 pairs of army mitts.

Refugee supplies:—6 quilts, 15 ladies' pyjama suits, 10 dozen diapers, 15 barrow coats, 15 bands, 31 babies' nightgowns, 16 babies' slips.

The local branch has a number of volunteers selling tickets on a quilt. The lucky ticket will be drawn at a progressive euchre to be held this month.

The women's work committee is sewing at present on a number of articles that have been asked for by headquarters.

Crows have been seen and heard in this district for several days.

Dr. and Mrs. A. O. Bradley and sons Bruce and Ralph of Kingston, were week-end guests of his sister, Mrs. J. A. Nichol and Mr. Nichol.

Stewart Hall W.M.S. Lays Banquet Plans

STEWART HALL, Mar. 12 (ENS) —The Women's Missionary Society held its monthly meeting at the Hall on Thursday afternoon at 2:30, with eight members and four associate members present. A quilt was quilted during the afternoon. Mrs. George Hanbidge presided. Mrs. Whittington led in prayer and the Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison. The roll call was answered by a verse of poetry and minutes of last meeting read by Miss G. Thompson. Mrs. William Chambers favored with a solo.

Arrangements were made by the ladies to serve a banquet to the Threshers' Convention at the Legion Hall on March 21. A committee was appointed to decorate tables, etc. Lunch was served.

The Red Cross Society held its weekly meeting on Tuesday, but owing to the snow-blocked roads only a few were in attendance. A considerable amount of knitting has been completed by the ladies of the neighborhood as well as the sewing which is undertaken at the weekly meetings. Quilts are being made each week and seven have been quilted so far this year.

Greater Germany's potato crop last season is officially estimated at 58,900 tons.

DRAFTED FOR LOVE

By RUTH AYERS

YESTERDAY: Kent is bitter, refuses to allow April to explain. She finally declares she tricked him because she felt sorry for him, because Ann was away. She begs him never to tell Ann, and he agrees that the incident is forgotten. As they drive up to the station platform, the car strikes something —someone.

✧ ✧ ✧

APRIL BEGINS TO PAY

CHAPTER XIV

Winkie was old, had the reputation of being lazy, shiftless, and sly.

He had never been in any real trouble but once, when April's father had been district attorney, there'd been some sort of a run-in with the court which had resulted in Winkie's being sent to the workhouse for 30 days to "straighten him up."

It was Winkie who had been at the station platform the night when Kent arrived from camp on leave, Winkie, in fact, on whom April had fastened her eyes as someone known and familiar in the first shock of learning Kent was blind.

Now Winkie, shivering in tattered clothes was pushing off Kent's arm. April started to move, but found her foot had been pinned under Kent's bag when it had toppled from the seat. She felt a knife of pain strike through her ankle and then the numbness settled again, muffling her, deadening her senses.

Winkie clutched the side of the car with a groan.

"April Burnett. I know you! Lawyer Burnett's daughter, ain't you?" His voice burst from groans to shrilliness

"Yes, Winkie. Oh, I'm terribly sorry. Are you hurt?"

"Hurt? We'll see, April Burnett. You with your reckless driving, knocking an old man down. You with your high-stepping ways and no regards for the rights of others."

"Please, Winkie. I'm sorry!"

Winkie doubled and then jerked up again. "Huh, I know you, young lady. Think you're somethin', don't you. Running all over the countryside these last two days with your sister's fella. I'll make a town scandal outa this."

Before she could cry out, April saw Kent Carter's arm spin Winkie around. Then, crash! Kent's fist struck Winkie, a blindly aimed but stinging blow that slashed across the man's face.

Winkie made a blubbly, retching sound and toppled beside the car.

When April looked up again, she saw the young rookie who'd been detailed to travel with Kent. The rookie saluted, mumbled something and then picked Winkie up by the coat collar and deposited him on the station platform.

Then he saluted again, even though Kent couldn't see it, and said, "I'm Private Estes. The express is just pulling in."

He opened the car door and whisked out Kent's luggage as the locomotive rolled to a stop.

Kent turned, nodded once in the vague direction of April and, without a word of goodby, hurried towards the train with the rookie guiding him.

April watched him; saw the way he walked erect and unbending to the car steps; saw the white-coated porter grin and bow as he helped him. Then, as it had been on that first night, the whistle blew and the locomotive eased out of the station, a black dragon flying through a white valley.

✧ ✧ ✧

JERKING, April's eyes came back to meet the bloodshot ones of Winkie Appleman.

"You'll pay for this," Winkie threatened.

The station was deserted, the waiting room empty. (Even the handful of town taxicabs which usually stood at the other end of the platform had rattled off with passengers who'd arrived on the express.

"Yuh," Winkie was hollering, "you'll pay and pay plenty."

April opened the car door. "Hurry, I'll take you to a doctor's, to a hospital."

"Think I'd step a foot in that car?"

"But you may be injured. I'm so sorry, Winkie. Please get in."

"If I go to a hospital, it'll be in an ambulance." Winkie's face twisted in a menacing leer. "This is a police case, reckless driving, speeding."

"A police case!" she repeated it hollowly. Nothing more could happen in this nightmare and yet, it could and was.

here in a minute. I'll holler for one."

"No, no, please, Winkie!"

Frightened still more, April wailed, "All right, I'll get help. I'll get the officer right away."

✧ ✧ ✧

THIS time the groan on Winkie Appleman's lips was less pronounced. "That will be a fine thing for you," he said. "Your father a lawyer, mentioned for the next judge. He'll like that, won't he, having a daughter arrested for knocking down an old man."

"Arrested?"

"Sure, you'll be arrested."

With this, Winkie got to his feet and began walking towards the baggage master's office. So far, no one had been in sight. No one except Private Estes and Kent knew what had happened. It was as if the snow had put a muffle on sound and sight, leaving April and the grubby old man by themselves.

"Winkie, come back!" April found herself speaking firmly, every nerve and muscle concentrated toward this end.

He turned reluctantly, making a show of brushing the blood across his chin.

"You're not hurt badly or you couldn't walk," April said. "If the police come, it won't be good for me, but it won't be any better for you. You haven't much of a reputation in this town. Either let me take you to a doctor's office for first aid or give you the money so you can go yourself."

He whined, he protested, he was indignant, but in the end he said sulkily, "How much you got?"

Some inner sense warned April as she reached for her purse. Yet if Winkie started talking, all her hopes for sparing Ann would be ruined. Ann would hear the gossip and be crushed.

"That ain't enough," Winkie sneered when she handed him the few one-dollar bills and change in her pocketbook.

April had the checkbook of the bank where she kept her small account. There was never much in it, just the amounts she earned for helping Dad at the office.

"A check for $5?" she asked. "Would you go to a doctor and promise you wouldn't do any talking?"

"Make it $10," said Winkie, "and I won't say nuthing."

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. History In The Making

The United States Congress has sanctioned the historic British Aid Bill, and the vote in the House was 317 to 71 opposed. The word "historic" is used in referring to this bill because that is exactly what it is. There has never been anything like it before, and $7,000,000,000 put down as the starting point is so great that it dwarfs any other assistance measure which has been contemplated in Washington or elsewhere.

The whole business from first to last has been fought out openly in Washington. The Lindberghs, the McCormicks and the Wheelers have had their full opportunity for raising issues in opposition, for slamming British effort and British motive, or worse still, for damning them with faint praise. At the time it did seem there was a woeful delay in getting the measure through, but in the end probably it has been best to have allowed all the opponents who cared to be called to come forth and spill their goods where the world could look on.

It can be said for President Roosevelt that he never faltered. He had charted his course in advance and from that course he did not turn. He was entirely satisfied with the righteousness of the cause which the British were upholding, and he saw in it all the ingredients of democracy making a back-to-the-wall stand for survival. He saw in the Churchillian utterances such statements as he himself would be making under similar circumstances. What is referred to as "the spirit of 1776" became a live thing again; the spirit which fought for and gained freedom for the American people was turned into a present-day force which was ready to pledge that freedom in the larger sphere should not perish.

From the inception the work had been well done, honestly done and accomplished in sincerity. Britain had poured out her available billions and had paid in cash, but Britain arrived at the point where there were no more cash billions in sight. There was no attempt or desire to disguise this position. There was an accredited representative from the British Government sent to Washington, and his method of accounting and presentation was rigidly accurate. In his statement of British possessions or holdings in United States he had left out nothing. He cut no corners in order to save embarrassment or bolster up his presentation. He merely told the truth and the entire truth. His figures came under the fire of critics, but they stood the test. Britain was holding back nothing at all.

President Roosevelt has signed the bill and it has become an active and very large force in the prosecution of the war. Seven billions is the sum named, but as we interpret the measure it actually means that United States has undertaken to send to Britain everything that is possible to forward. It is the practical answer to Churchill's request to "send us the tools and we will finish the job."

In Canada we are in a position to appreciate the manner in which Britain depends on production in United States because we face a similar situation. When our war-time factories get under production it is to the United States market they must turn for 80 per cent. of their machine tools, and without access to that market our efforts would indeed be feeble enough. Possibly pitifully and disastrously so.

United States has been openly threatened about the passing of the British Aid Bill, but Congress has passed it by a majority which furnishes a full and emphatic reply to threats no matter from what source they come. We have indeed cause to use that old phrase about "good neighbors," and use it with a depth of feeling which may on lesser occasions have been somewhat lacking. And once more we say "Thank you, Mr. Roosevelt."

"Not His Business"

Howard Green, M.P. for Vancouver, told the House of Commons that nothing had been heard recently about the plan for speeding up the building of destroyers in Canadian shipyards, and to that statement he added the claim that 2,000 skilled mechanics, including shipwrights, were out of work in British Columbia.

Minister of Munitions C. D. Howe inquired if the Vancouver member would take an order for 1,000 of them who could be put to work at once, but the answer of Mr. Green was that was "not his business." The answer to that was an inquiry regarding the making of reckless statements, and Mr. Hanson came in with the remark that the Minister was seeking to brow-beat a member of the House.

But was he? Mr. Howe had made it plain that shipyards in Canada are busy; some of them are trying to get on a 24-hour basis but they cannot do it because there are not sufficient men. That is why Mr. Howe was asking if the member for Vancouver could see to it that 1,000 of the alleged idle men in his province were secured.

The claim advanced by Mr. Green that it was "not his business" was not good enough. He had just stated 2,000 skilled men, shipwrights among them, were out of employment, and that would indicate the proper place to go looking for them. They are either there waiting for work or they are not, and if they are then we cannot understand why it would not be the business of Mr. Green to see what could be done at once about getting them placed in the shipyards where they are needed. The suggestion about "brow-beating a member" was entirely apart from the question; it had nothing whateevr to do with it.

If a member takes his work seriously then why should he desire to stand up in the House and tell of 2,000 men being out of work and at the same time consider it was "not his business" to see to it they were put to work when work is waiting for them? If it is not the business of a member of Parliament to see to it that every last man in this country is engaged in the war effort, then we find it difficult to understand why he desires to sit in the House.

He's a Dangerous Man

"The Germans are more generous and more comprehensive of the needs of humanity than the English." That was the statement of Admiral Jean Darlan, vice-premier of France, as represented in the government of Vichy. If the British would not allow food to enter France, then Darlan was satisfied he would have to see to it that vessels convoyed by French warships brought it in.

And that of course is just another opinion added to a good many which have been expressed before which make it difficult enough to understand just where this Vichy government stands.

There is not the least doubt there are many people living in France today who have accepted defeat as something which was inevitable, and they are seeking to live with that before them. These people are not hoping for a victory for Britain, but their view is that if they so live and conduct themselves that the downfall of Britain can be brought to pass, then Germany will be more tolerant when it comes to the business of making a final settlement with France, something which has not been yet done, as France is being governed under the terms of armistice and nothing else.

How many French people hold that view we do not know, nor does any one else. That outlook is probably the most comfortable one to take in France at the moment when the Nazis are in undisputed control of the country. Coupled to that is the fact that Germany still holds some two million French prisoners, and that is a powerful lever if and when the Germans desire to make use of it.

Admiral Darlan's scheme is plain as a pikestaff, because it would bring French and British into conflict, and that would suit Hitler. It could not be better if he had planned it himself, and it is quite probable that in the planning of the Darlan idea he had much to do.

The French peasant class, which is actually the backbone of the nation, has not been hard pressed—yet. His holdings are small; his way of life is simple past the meaning of what we call frugal. The Germans at first paid him for what he delivered, but it was in "occupation marks" which he would find it difficult to spend or redeem. Within recent times the peasant has become suspicious because a census has been taken of his livestock, his chickens and all else. The family pig, which may have been on the premises for five or six years because the peasant "liked him" has been counted, and that was never done before. The German army must be fed and the peasant's pig may go to help in the feeding. Thus he grows uneasy.

But this plan of Admiral Darlan's is typically German. He seeks to galvanize the feelings of the pro-German and anti-British French into action so it will appear that all France has turned against the former ally—Britain.

Gouging The Taxpayer

It is not necessary for one to be long in Montreal before hearing conversation turn toward something which the City Council has been doing. Right now the comment swings around the City of Montreal bill before the Quebec Legislature in which authority is asked to grant the right to tax to the extent of $200 firms or individuals carrying on business in that city.

Montreal is heavily taxed. A bill for electricity and gas such as might be served by our Public Utilities Commission had an item showing 12 per cent. taxation; eight per cent. (the same as we pay) to the Dominion Government; two per cent. to the province and two per cent. to the city. It is the same on all purchases.

The trouble is that Montreal is hopelessly in the hole with a funded debt of nearly $240,000,000, with an annual carrying charge of about $12,000,000, and the regulations are such that this interest charge must be paid regardless of war conditions or anything else.

There are 99 members in the City Council, but with multiplicity of representation there does not appear to be simplicity of finance. Montreal has not been paying its relief charges year by year, and these figures have been added to swell the previous unfavorable balance.

It is difficult to understand why any body of sane men in the year 1941, with every financial reserve being strained to finance the war, could have the supreme nerve to suggest that Montreal City Council have the right to wade in and knock down $200 additional revenue from firms or individuals who happen to carry on business there. It is the largest city in Canada, and also the worst managed.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Just how bombing restaurants and dance spots is going to win the war for Germany is not at the moment clear.

Fortunately for the British there are no traffic cops in Ethiopia. The advancing British forces are breaking the speed limit daily.

The British forces have captured Fer-Fer in Italian Somaliland. By this time the victors have probably gone Fer-Fer beyond that point.

There is nothing new about the new order Hitler talks about. It is the same old order that the highwaymen have always used: "Your money or your life."

Rumania's premier describes the Nazi policies so enthusiastically that even Hitler will begin to think there must be something in them.

Both sides at Ottawa have agreed that politics should be left out of the inquiry into war costs. That is a decision that the whole country will applaud—if the politicians can make it stick.

Boston National League club had as its battery the other day Strinevich, Piechota, Lamanna and Masi. Are there no Irishmen left in the game in which they used to be the shining lights?

According to census bureau officials the size of the average United States farm increased 17 acres in the last decade. The mortgage probably increased in the same ratio.

New Zealand cruiser Leander has sunk an Italian commerce raider. Mussolini is beginning to realize those who said the British Empire would fall to pieces in the event of war must have been mistaken.

Hon. Thane Campbell, premier of Prince Edward Island, has been elected president of the Dominion Curling Association. A politician should be right at home in that post. They throw a lot of stones in politics, too.

WEATHER MAN

(By A.R.K.)

¶ The Probs said it would snow or rain, I guess they're pretty much the same, for we get both some days; the Weather Man when he's in doubt, knows how to find his way about, so he'll be right both ways.

¶ If I could find the Weather Man, and ask him to describe his plan, just how he makes it snow; how he can tell the snow from rain, on days when they look much the same, might say he didn't know.

¶ I'd like to look at his machine, it's something I have never seen, it must be very strange; it makes me change my mind some days, and quit my tramping stormy ways, to seek the kitchen range.

¶ And on some days he calls for clouds, they should be rolling up in crowds, that day may turn out fine; so would the Weather Man confess, that his prediction was a guess, about the same as mine?

¶ I'd like to see this Weather Man, and find just how he maps his plan, when he says snow or rain; what happens when he hits it wrong, or if his nerve is good and strong, and does he take the blame?

¶ Perhaps he has a wife with him, who tries to keep the outfit trim, and helps him earn his salt; I wonder when he guesses wrong, if he will chant again that song—and say it was her fault.

He Questions Making Motors And Planes Here

From Parliamentary Hansard

Mr. HANSON (York - Sunbury): As a matter of fact I happen to know that before there was any action by this government the aircraft industry was trying to get the government interested in aircraft production in Canada, and in Avro-Ansons, without success. They were clamouring to get into the business.

Mr. HOWE: Never Avro-Ansons.

Mr. HANSON (York - Sunbury): The minister took a view to which I am not unsympathetic. I am trying to express what I think was in his mind, and what to a cautious man like myself would be quite reasonable: Should we foster the building up of an aircraft industry in Canada in peace time? That is one of the first questions the minister would have to ask himself. I have often wondered whether, if Canada were starting over again, it would foster the manufacturing of motor cars in Canada. I have often asked myself that question, though I know that in certain quarters it is not popular even to ask it. I will say this, that we fostered this industry at great cost to the consuming public of Canada.

Mr. MARTIN: And with great advantage.

Mr. HANSON (York - Sunbury): We did not start General Motors in Canada. Both parties are responsible for the fostering of the motor car industry in this country.

Mr. MARTIN: Thank God we have it today.

Mr. HANSON (York - Sunbury): Yes, I think that is the justification; but if we were starting over again in peace time would we commit ourselves to the expenditure we have had to make to build up the motor car industry in Canada? While I am on this point let me say that I agree with the hon. member's statement; thank God we have it today, because this is the one industry in Canada that has functioned.

Mr. MARTIN: Hear, hear.

Mr. HOWE: What does my hon. friend mean by "the one industry"?

Mr. HANSON (York - Sunbury): I am singling it out as the one big industry that has produced great results.

Mr. HOWE: There are many others.

Mr. MACDONALD (Kingston City): Shipbuilding.

Mr. HANSON (York - Sunbury): I do not think the shipbuilding program is at all comparable to the motor car production. The government itself is operating $14,000,000 worth of motor cars of all kinds in Canada today. It has been the biggest buyer of motor cars in the history of the country; and today it has so many cars on hand that it does not know what to do with them. If you go up to London I am told you can see a whole field full of new motor car units.

Mr. MACDONALD (Brantford City): They are in and out every day.

Mr. HANSON (York - Sunbury): They are lying in a field, never used.

Mr. MACDONALD (Brantford City): They are being moved in and out all the time.

Mr. HANSON (York - Sunbury): Will the hon. gentleman just keep his peace? He can make his statement later on.

Mr. MACDONALD (Brantford City): I live a little closer to London than my hon. friend does.

Mr. HANSON (York - Sunbury): This is just an aside, in any event. I am going on with this statement, signed by these companies, to which I have referred. Then I understand that the matter came to the attention of the chairman of the war-time requirements board, and that he brought in a man from Detroit. There may be some difference of opinion here; if there is an incorrect statement in what I am saying I will be the first to acknowledge it, but at all events that much is true and has been corroborated by the minister today. The chairman of the war-time requirements board brought in from the United States a leading executive in aircraft production, Mr. Breech, head of one of the divisions of General Motors, to investigate the situation and give his advice. I am informed that his views were in agreement with those of the Canadian manufacturers, and confirmed the hopelessness of the Federal Aircraft situation. The minister did not traverse that point, but that statement is made to me by the head of one of these aircraft companies.

Mr. HOWE: I will say that statement is absolutely false.

Mr. HANSON (York - Sunbury): I will say this—

Mr. HOWE: I do not say my hon. friend's statement is false; I say the information given him is absolutely false.

Mr. HANSON (York - Sunbury): All right; let us investigate that. The statement was made by this gentleman to these men, and the minister was not present.

Mr. HOWE: Quite so.

Mr. HANSON (York - Sunbury): All right. This statement was made to me by one of those gentlemen who were present, when the minister was not; and he tells me that this man did make that statement. I am going to leave it there, but if I call a witness in court I take the man who was present, not the man who was not present. Surely that is elementary.

There was a little interlude here this afternoon with respect to a question asked by the hon. member for Lake Centre. I am going to ask the Minister of Finance if he has a copy of a letter said to have been written by Mr. Breech to Mr. Sloan of General Motors.

Mr. ILSLEY: No.

Mr. HANSON (York - Sunbury): Did he ever have it?

Mr. ILSLEY: No. The first I ever heard of it was this afternoon.

Mr. HANSON (York - Sunbury): All right. I don't know anything about it—

Mr. HOWE: Then why talk about it?

OUT BUT NOT BEATEN

—London Illustrated.

• Irish Blood In America

FOR a century Ireland had been the Catholic religion.

Sending the flower of her youth across the Atlantic. In the seven years from 1924 to 1930, inclusive, over 140,000 emigrated from Eire to the United States. The great depression in America brought this flow to an end. Those who concern themselves on racial problems may well speculate how the changed conditions will affect the future social and economic relations between the two countries. From the Irish point of view, emigration was always a national tragedy. But out of this evil came some good.

Our people became a great force in their adopted country. They contributed more than any other race to its industrial, military, and political greatness. They it was who made the United States a great centre of the Catholic religion.

From the purely selfish viewpoint of our own country, emigration brought certain compensations. It provided us with an immense reserve of support and sympathy. From it flowed money tributes of millions of pounds a year, sent as the gifts of the emigrants to their relatives at home. It brought the annual and very welcome influx of Irish-American tourists, and of Irishmen returning to spend their last years at home. For years past these many ties have been growing more slender. The American mail is no longer the event it was to many a parish. The returned Americans are few and far between. But it will take many a decade yet before Americans cease to boast of their Irish blood.—Irish Independent, Dublin.

• When Editors Get Together

MR. HOWE, our hard-working Minister of Munitions, offers to meet his critics half way. For his part he agrees not to make any more predictions—which have got him in a peck of trouble—but he suggests to his critics in the House of Commons that they put on overalls and visit some of the Canadian munitions plants to see for themselves what is being done.

There were in Ottawa this week a score or more of the leading daily newspaper publishers and editors of Canada, at the annual meetings of The Canadian Press and the Empire Press Union, and there was much informal discussion of our war effort. Members from such smaller industrial cities as Peterborough, Hamilton and Kingston, Brantford, Galt, St. Catharines, were quite frank in declaring that the industrial effort concerned with the war which comes under their own observation is nothing short of colossal. In many lines, they said, production is reaching highly important quantities, and it was their conviction that if the people could see it all for themselves—if they could visit factories in their neighborhood and see what they had seen—they would be delighted and not depressed.

These men did not take the ground that criticism of the war effort had not been justified, did not argue that the last wrinkle had been smoothed out and that now we were going full speed ahead to victory. But the thought does come to one from such conversations that possibly the critics have concentrated too much on details; that they have not surveyed the situation as a whole but have concerned rather with the trees than the forest; and that the public generally have been misled thereby.

If this is true, members of the Government are not free of responsibility. They have talked too much of the things that are going to be done next month or next fall or next year, and not enough about the solid accomplishments. As they have learned it is a long way from plan to production, from contract to cargo, and many things may happen along the way. Predictions quickly proved over-optimistic inevitably have cast doubt on the entire government program.

But the facts are — they can be proved—that prodigious results already have been secured from the drive for war production, that great numbers of Canadian factories are turning out busily the tools of triumph, that the effort as a whole is far more impressive than its separate details. The true picture of Canada at war is an impressive one, and daily takes on added realism. — Ottawa Journal.

• How Germans Make Films

NAZI technique has adapted motion pictures to the "war of nerves." A well known example is the film showing the conquest of Poland, which was peddled around the capitals of neutral countries. Motion pictures were subsequently made of the advance of German troops in Holland, Belgium and France. These were shown first to a select gathering in Berlin, then to the German public, and more recently to Turkish officials. Life magazine, reproducing specimens from the western Europe film, says "The Turks looked thoughtfully at Germany's way of making friends, then agreed to Eden's proposals."

It appears now that the Nazis thought it necessary to prepare films of the expected invasion of the British Isles, figuring that if and when such an event took place it would be in hours of darkness, unfavorable to photography. So the action was filmed on the bathing beach across the Scheldt from Antwerp, according to the testimony of a United States scientist. Lars Moen, author of "Under the Iron Heel," relates that hundreds of German barges were run aground, while soldiers leaped into the shallow water and placed runways for tanks and motorcycles. A Nazi cameraman is said to have explained: "Since this will be the decisive event of the war, it must be covered for the newsreels, so we're staging it here, exactly as it will be done later on the English coast."

As in the other films, no dead or wounded are introduced. It would be a stupid audience which would accept such pictures as the real thing when they fail to show invaders collapsing under fire, tanks smashed by shells and barges in flames. If the Nazis want something realistic they might be able to obtain pictures of the Greeks taking a couple of thousand Italian prisoners, of the dozen German planes shot down the other day over Malta, or wrecked Nazi tanks in the African desert. Surely the German cameramen did not neglect to make a film of the British-Norwegian raid on the Lofoten islands, with oil plants aflame and the raiders carrying off German prisoners.—Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

Then they went out to see what was done; and came to Jesus, and found the man, out of whom the devils were departed, sitting at the feet of Jesus, clothed, and in his right mind; and they were afraid.... Now the man out of whom the devils were departed besought him that he might be with him: but Jesus sent him away, saying, Return to thine own house, and shew how great things God hath done unto thee.—Luke viii, 34, 35, 38, 39.

A Bit of Nonsense

DOGGY

An elderly woman went to the counter of a telegraph office and said she wished to send a greetings telegram to her nephew in Australia.

Unfortunately, she had mislaid the name of the town, but was certain it had something to do with a dogs' tail. Could the Post Office help her?

The counter clerk thought for a moment before he asked: "Is it Wagga Wagga?"

It was.

SSH!

Two men were working on a very tall building. Suddenly the man at the top of the ladder called to his mate at the bottom:

"I say, Jim, come up here a minute and listen."

His mate slowly climbed the ladder and at last, quite out of breath, reached the top.

"I can't hear anything," he said, after listening intently for a while.

"No," said the other. "Ain't it quiet?"

Reminder

"Great Scott!" he cried. "That reminds me. I forgot to post a letter my wife gave me two days ago."

REGRETTED WORDS

DICTATORS should be seen, but but not heard.

The less a dictator says, the better off he is. Even Hitler might look a degree less bad today if he had never made those speeches about "this is my last territorial demand in Europe," and all that.

But Mussolini! Silent for months until his one recent despairing admission that Italy has no hope except as Germany saves her, he was for years the speech-maker and chest-thumper of the axis. Like this, in 1935:

"Three cheers for war in general!"

Yep, war in general. But not war in Albania, Libya, or Ethiopia. — Chatham News.

See Mussolini's Plight Big Factor In Pushing Blitzkreig On Merchant Vessels

(By KIRKE L. SIMPSON.)

WASHINGTON, March 12—(AP).—Whatever the real design of German strategy in the Balkans, or the actual meaning of forthcoming German-Italian-Japanese conversations, Hitler has loosed his promised main attack on Britain in the Atlantic. His other moves on any front, diplomatic or military, must necessarily conform to that fact.

A grim announcement in London of tripled tonnage losses at sea in the week ending March 2 headlines the war news. Developments elsewhere still are of secondary consequence. It is in the Atlantic that German must make good her boast of stalling the United States aid-for-Britain program.

A British loss of more than 140,000 tons of cargo shipping in seven days is serious, but not critical. What does matter is Nazi ability to maintain any such rate of sea destruction over a period of weeks or months. That would gravely jeopardize the flow of American aid across the Atlantic.

Unquestionably the stepped-up Nazi sea and air attack on Britain is due for intensification as weather conditions in the Atlantic improve. By the same token, the opportunity for mass ferrying of American-made and Canadian-made long-range planes to Britain for participation in the Atlantic battle also will improve with the weather.

Use Figures in Balkans

It can be reasoned, however, that the heavy ship loss rate reflected in the London statement is a prime factor for Washington in shaping final details of the aid-for-Britain program. It illustrates graphically why Administration leaders, during Congressional debate on the lend-lease bill, opposed hard-and-fast restrictions on Presidential authority to readjust execution of the program in the light of day-to-day war developments.

The Admiralty statement again reflects the British charge that Berlin has exaggerated the sea victories she has scored. For that same week, it said, the Germans had claimed inroads on British cargo ships aggregating some 450,000 tons—a 200 per cent exaggeration.

There might well be special reason just now for such German exaggeration. Unquestionably Nazi agents, still seeking to smother major war possibilities in the Balkans that could detract from the German effort in the Atlantic, are whispering "confidential" reports of British sea losses in Yugo-slav, Turkish and Greek ears. They are calculated to bear out the Nazi boast uttered by Hitler himself that the

Points It Duty For All To Aid Tourist Trade

TORONTO, Ont., Mar. 12 — (CP) —Hon. T. B. McQuesten, Ontario Highways Minister, addressing the 39th annual meeting of the Ontario Motor Leaguet here last night, said the "tourist business is one of our greatest assets and at the present time when our country is in dire need of United States currency to purchase materials, the encouragement of this business is the duty of everyone."

Mr. McQuesten reviewed the program of highway work completed during the last four years and said it was all of a substantial nature. His department held the view that roads here must be so constructed as to compare favorably with American highways.

The Minister said he felt the motor car and motor transportation were vital factors in the war effort, our economy and modern existence and 'it will be most unfortunate should conditions ever arise which would necessitate the restriction or curtailment of our free use of motor vehicles."

The "financial responsibility" law is intended to impress the motorist with an understanding of his responsibility for public safety, Mr. McQuesten said. The law encouraged carrying of public liability insurance coverage and remove from the roads those who have been irresponsible drivers.

He said that to-day almost 20,000 persons were prohibited from driving in Ontario because of the provisions of the "financial responsibility" law.

Selwyn Ladies Finish 3 Quilts

SELWYN, March 12 — (ENS). — The ladies of Selwyn community on Wednesday gathered at the Selwyn Hall to quilt three lovely warm quilts for war work. At noon the ladies sat down to a delightful pot-luck dinner.

Next Wednesday three more quilts are to be quilted. During the afternoon the following letter from LAC. R. I. Elliott, oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. William Elliott of Selwyn was read. Two weeks ago the Selwyn community planned to present Russel, who was at his home in Peterborough on one week's leave, with a gift. Owing to an attack of measles, Russel was unable to be present at the community social. His mother was given the honored task of privately presenting her son with the community gift.

Dear Friends,—I want to tell you what a delightful surprise I received when I was presented with your gift. I want to tell you what a warm feeling remained in my heart after reading those kind words which accompanied the gift. I wish to sincerely thank you for both.

I wish I could thank each one personally and I am very sorry I wasn't able to be with you for an evening before I left. The ring is swell; you are to be commended for your choice of the gift as I will always be able to keep it as a remembrance of my friends at Selwyn.

I am very proud of it and I assure you I will do my best in whatever duties the service may call upon me to perform, that I may not be unworthy of your kindness and friendship. Yours sincerely, Russel Elliott.

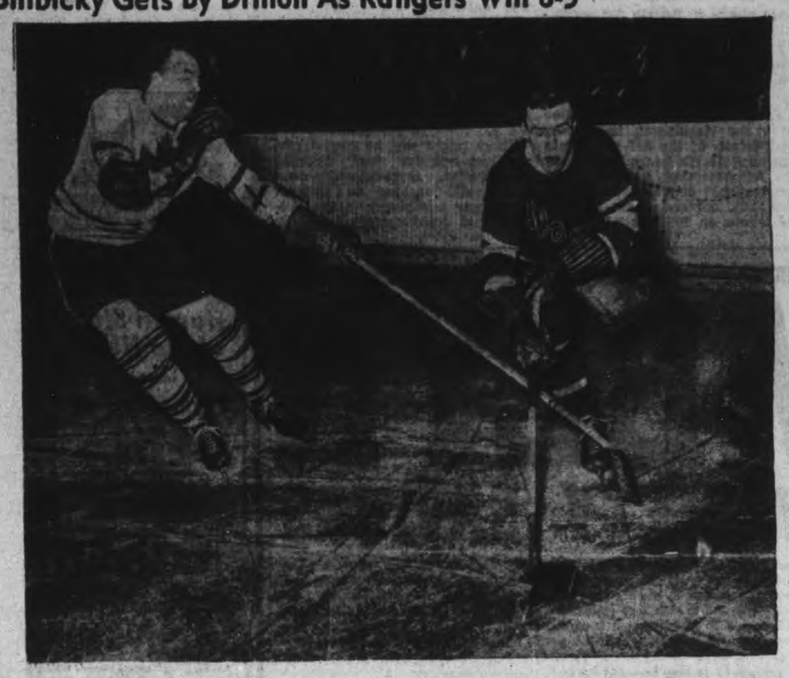
HONEY TOMPKINS SAVES COMBINES FROM DEFEAT IN HAMILTON

Shibicky Gets By Drillon As Rangers Win 8-5



The ice flies as Alex Shibicky of the New York Rangers wheels and sneaks the puck past Gordon Drillon of the Toronto Maple Leafs at Madison Square Garden, New York City, in the final meeting of the teams before playoff time. The Rangers won the free-scoring contest, 8-5.

Sydney Millionaires Spurt To Finals Spots East Race

TORONTO, Mar. 12 — (CP). — The surprising entry by default of Sydney Millionaires into the Maritime final, coupled with Montreal Royals' upset stride toward representing Quebec in Allan Cup playdowns for a third straight time, featured to-day a race for Eastern Canada hockey honors now narrowed to a field of 12.

The Millionaires, almost counted out before their protest against a Glace Bay player aroused a storm of controversy in their Cape Breton Colliery League playoff final, found themselves champions without a fight. Disgruntled by the upholding of the protest, Glace Bay defaulted the deciding game of a new series last night.

Within one game of elimination in the first series, Sydney became heavy favorites for the Maritime crown by the default. Neither team in the other semi-final—which Halifax Navy leads 6-3 with the deciding game to-night in a total-goal series with Saint John Beavers—is considered up to the Millionaires' scratch.

In Quebec, the Royals upset the Senators at Ottawa, 11-5, meanwhile to take a 2-1 lead in their Quebec Senior League final. First victory of the season on Ottawa ice for the Royals, it switched them from underdogs to favorites to sweep the best-of-five series at Montreal on Thursday night.

Beavers Take Round.

The Quebec intermediate ranks, whose winner meets senior champion to decide the provincial representative, was depleted by one last night. Quebec Beavers won, 3-0, at Sherbrooke to take the total-goals series, 5-2, and advance into the intermediate final against St. Jerome.

There was no action meanwhile in the series for the Ontario title, where Toronto Marlboros and St. Catharines are engaged in a best-of-seven playoff for the Ontario Association championship and the right to meet Quebec in an Eastern Canada semi-final. The Marlboros lead the series 3-2 in games, and need only one more victory.

The Ottawa and District front, whose winner meets the Maritime champion in the other semi-final, was also inactive. Three teams remain in the running there, with Ottawa R.C.A.F., and Hull Volants meeting in the deciding game of a best-of-five series at Ottawa to-night, while Petawawa Grenades stand back to play the winner.

Sydney Millionaires, who defeated the Ottawa District winners last season only to lose to the Allan Cup winning Kirkland Lake team, strode toward getting another crack by firing a puck into an empty net when Glace Bay failed to appear for the game at Sydney. The technical 1-0 triumph, coupled with a 9-1 victory over the Miners the previous night, gave them the series in straight games.

That Borrowed Goalie

The new best-of-three playoff had been ordered after Sydney protested Glace Bay's use of a borrowed goalie winning the first three matches of a best-of-seven playoff. Glace Bay officials said they defaulted last night's game because they had not been officially advised that their three victories in the original series were wiped out.

The Royals, boasting almost the same lineup that took them to the Eastern Canada final in each of the last two years, were scarcely extended meanwhile for their victory over Ottawa, to whom they finished second in the regular season. One of the few important additions to the Montrealers this year is Bill Durnan, goalie of the disbanded Kirkland Lake, Cup champions.

Two games were played last night on the Memorial Cup front, where the Juniors have reached the provincial finals except in the Ottawa district. The Junior Montreal Royals overwhelmed Clearpoint, 10-0, in the first of a best-of-five series for the Quebec crown, while Truro beat Charlottetown, 5-4, to open a total-goal series for the Maritime title.

Ottawa St. Pats and Ottawa Canadiens square off tonight in the deciding game of their playoff with the winner to play Pembroke Little Lumber Kings for the right to meet the Martimes.

Oshawa Generals and Toronto Junior Marlboros start a best-of-seven series for the Ontario crown March 17.

SPORTS — DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

If the snowdrifts along the northern roads can be negotiated this afternoon Peterborough's juvenile team will swing into action against Haliburton tonight in the first game of a home-and-home series in the O.J. H.A. playdowns. Manager Cec. Courneya's outfit are billed to meet the northerns on their own ice tonight with the second game here later in the week, probably on Friday night. Goals on the round will settle the issue. Nothing is known locally about the ability of the Haliburton club but they will probably be found tough enough. However, the young Petes are in good shape having galloped through their own group, including the playoffs with Port Hope without a loss, and they are confident that they can take the measure of the boys from the north. It should be an interesting series. The Petes' team for tonight will be: Goal, Leether; defence, Gillespie, McGregor; centre, Garvey; wings, Huard, Smith; subs, Jones, Murphy, Hudson, Close, Lawson.

The Peterborough schools will have a half interest each in the Public School hockey championship for the current winter. That is something new in hockey circles and it comes about as the result of the inability of the Prince of Wales and King George School teams to beat each other when they met in the final game at Brock St. Rink Monday afternoon. When the full time was up each team had scored three goals. It was decided to play ten minutes overtime and if no winner had been determined then to declare the two teams as joint winners of the championship. The extra period failed to break the deadlock and so the two schools are half champions, if you want to put it that way. King George School in the days of Bill Calladine, Jack Gardner and Les Burton, one of the ace hockey schools of the city, has not been so close to a championship for some years. The school teams have had an interesting season and competition has been keen.

Two of the South-End League championships, the bantam and midget titles were decided at Brock St. Rink last night and in both cases the club that had finished in second place in the regular scheduled games was the outfit to emerge on top. The King Edward team grabbed off the bantam honors from Canucks by virtue of their 2 to 1 win in the first game of the playoffs. Canucks fighting hard to regain their lost ground managed to hold the King Edward team to a 3-3 tie last night but that was not good enough, King Edward taking the title by the narrow margin of one goal. In the midget class the Colts who had a one-goal lead over the Royals from the first game of the playoffs, defeated their opponents last night by 3 goals to 1 and thus captured the championship by a margin of three goals. The first period was scoreless but the Colts out-scored Royals 2 to 1 in the second session and got the only goal of the third stanza.

In its sporting column the Kingston Whig-Standard has the following to say about the late George Sullivan. It will be read with interest by many local friends of the former player and umpire: "George "Sully" Sullivan, deputy warden of Kingston Penitentiary, who died suddenly Sunday night, was famous for his play in sports before the First Great War and for years after the war as an umpire. A right hand pitcher with terrific speed and power Sullivan reached the major league with Cincinnati Reds but only pitched two games as in the second he worked on a cold, rainy day and strained his arm so badly that he was forced to eventually drop out of big time play. Sullivan reached the majors in 1903 after he was top pitcher for Providence in the old Eastern League and twirled for Toronto in the International League, under Ed. Barrow, who went on to boss the New York Yankees. After his arm gave out in professional play he returned to Kingston and played with the original Ponies in independent ball with Watertown and neighboring U.S. clubs. Joe Daley, chief clerk of the Kingston Post Office, and Frank Reid, funeral director, are two of the few remaining Kingston men who played ball with Sullivan just after the turn of the last century. Joe Daley recalls many incidents in the baseball career of the late star, especially when he pitched to Chaucer Elliott, father of Bob Elliott, who caught for him in Kingston and Toronto. Sullivan learned his baseball in Kingston just as his son, Justin, is learning the game now as a first baseman in the Kingston City League."

What has to be done to ice a junior A hockey team that will make any kind of a showing is shown in the experience of the Guelph Biltmores, eliminated from the race by the Toronto Marlboros. Only one player, McDonald, the extra forward of the team is a Guelph resident. Goalie Bishop hails from Ridgeway, the four defence players were all imported, McLenahan from Fredericton, N.B., Martin from Kitchener, Gregg from Victoria Harbor and Allen from Niagara Falls. Of the forwards Holota is from Hamilton, Licari from Perth, Voll from Waterloo, Egan, Montreal, Wheeler, Collingwood and Levandoski, Kirkland Lake. It is claimed that Holota, Egan, Gregg, McLenahan, Voll and Licari are all on the Detroit Red Wing's list, the Boston Bruins are interested in Martin and the Leafs have been looking Levandoski over.

* * * * * *

Boston Bruins all but clinched the National League championship for the third year in success last night when they defeated the Toronto Leafs 3 goals to 2 and are now four points ahead of Hap Day's club. If the Leafs win their two remaining games all the Bruins have to do is to win or tie one of the three games they have to play. Bruins will probably settle it Thursday night when they meet the Americans. In last night's game Boston over-powered the Leafs when they outscored them 3 goals to 0 in the first period on goals by Dumart, Conacher and Wiseman and then held off a desperate Toronto rally in the final twenty minutes. Don Metz and Schriner scored for Toronto in the final period but the Bruins still had a goal lead when the session ended and are as good as league champions once again. Toronto led the parade nearly all season but the Boston wave was coming strong ever since Christmas.

Hockey controversy in the Maritimes, almost at the stage of civil war, will be increased in intensity now that the Sydney Millionaires have been declared the winners of the Cape Breton League following the default of Glace Bay. The whole setup in the Maritimes and elsewhere in the C.A. H.A. is a travesty on sporty and many of the leagues throughout the country would be far more honest and far more businesslike if they operated on a strictly professional basis and had to operate according to an enforcable and enforced code of rules. Under the "amateur" regime about everything seems to go. Such rules as this replacement plan for players who have enlisted is being made the cover for building up teams. The special rule should be scrapped. It never was needed anyway for there has been no great rush of hockey players throughout the country to enlist.

When the Kingston Combines grabbed off Honey Tompkins to replace Walt Gerow, the group winners made no mistake. The Petes right winger almost stole the show when the Combines tied Hamilton 4-4 in Hamilton last night, and a story from Hamilton says that he was the greatest threat that Kingston had and the only forward that the Hamilton defence could not stop. All Tompkins did was to score two of the Combines' goals, getting the first and third, and to assist in the other two which is not a bad night's work for a newcomer.

* * * * * *

Sporting Chili Con Carne; Kingston Combines held Hamilton Nationals to 4-4 tie in Hamilton last night, and the Eastern Ontario group winners should take the round easily. There is no Peterborough club entered in the Fenelon Falls tourney....A medical board has found that Hank Greenberg has flat feet. That may keep him out of the army, a lot of pitchers are afraid....Montreal Royals threw quite a shock into the camp of the Ottawa Senators last night defeating them 11 to 5.... Peterborough O.A.B.A. junior team have been ordered to play R.M.C., Kingston, a sudden-death game in Cobourg on Saturday night. Home and home games were planned first but the other arrangement was made later.

Mr. Blair Makes A Scoop

The spread-eagled gent ABOVE is Louis "Buddy" Blair, third base candidate with the New York Yankees at St. Petersburg. Mr. Blair assumed this strange pose when he went down for a ball into the dirt during a workout. What's more, Mr. Blair scooped the ball and a peck of dirt into one bare hand.

Peterboro Player Is In On Play Of Every Goal

HAMILTON, March 12.—(CP). — Pinkey Lewis' Carmen, Hamilton's hope in the Senior "B" playdowns for an Ontario Hockey Association crown, set off at a great rate in their battle with Kingston Combines last night, scoring two goals in the first eight minutes of play but the Combines came back strongly and the game ended in a 4-4 tie.

Second game of the series will be played in Kingston Friday. Honey Tompkins of Peterborough, was the biggest threat on the visiting squad, scoring two of his team's four goals and setting up the play in the other two. He was the only Kingston upfronter that the Hamilton defence could not handle. Williamson and the Neilson brothers were the next best for the visitors, while Litzen, Day and Riley played well for the homesters.

Line-ups:

Kingston—Goal Burrows; defence, J. Neilson and C. Williamson; centre M. Williamson; wings, Hepburn and R. Neilson; subs, Lane, Tompkins Hood, Smith, White Rodley Dall.

Hamilton—Goal, Miller; defence, Ambois and Karstec; centre Litzen; wings, Gardiner, Nicholls; subs Whetham Day, Baker, Riley Cooper, Boyko and Sherry.

Summary:

First Period—

1—Hamilton Ambois 3.04
2—Hamilton, Riley (Baker) ...7.56
3—Kingston, Tompkins (M. Williamson Lane) 14.49

Penalties—R. Neilson, Karsten.

Second Period—

NEW YORK, March 12.—(AP).—The Phillies, who's get first crack, may wind up with Van Lingle Mungo via the waver route....Ted Williams has called off his feud with Boston sports writers and gave the scribes the glad hand when he reported. Said Child Theodore. "I got myself into a peck of trouble by popping off last season. No more of this loose gab for me."....Billy Conn may join the navy as an athletic instructor (at $96.20 a month) which duties would not prevent him from keeping that date with Joe Louis next June....It would not surprise the boys at Havana if Larry Macphail and Bill Terry agree on a trade involving Dixie Walker and Harry Danning before the week is over.

Here's a bit of meticulous reporting in the esteemed Pittsburg press...."Early reports had the coach in serious condition.... when inquiry was made, Irwin (the coach) replied: 'I am not unconscious.'"

Tommy Holmes, Brooklyn Eagle: "Boarding a Pan-American plane. Van Mungo said he was going to reform, but found no one in a mood to believe him unless reform is the name of a town in his native South Carolina."

Challenge Tilt Result

Nelson Routly was in the mood for something when he bowled at Duffus' Alleys last night in a challenge match between the Old Timers' and C.G.E. teams. The veteran trundler knock off 857 pins, including a 369 single game, but his team's string of victories was finally snapped when the C.G.E. men ganged up on them with a 3688 total. Fred Jones broke it up in the third round with his 310 single.

It was the first defeat sustained by the old boys in five starts. Brinton, Mercantile, Empress Hotel and Automobile League teams were their victims in previous meetings.

BOSTON BRUINS SHADE LEAFS 3 TO 2 IN 1st PERIOD SURPRISE COUP

The Judge Visits The Reds

3rd Consecutive Title Now All But In Bag

BOSTON, March 12—(C).—Boston Bruins have the record of three consecutive National Hockey League championships all but in the bag as a result of their 3-2 victory over Toronto Maple Leafs here last night which placed them four points out in front in the league.

With three more games to play as against Toronto's two, Boston looks a cinch to take the league title. They are playing the cellar team when they meet Americans in New York Thursday night. The same night Chicago plays at Detroit which won't make any difference in the top standing.

In last night's game the Leafs were caught flat-footed in the first period when Boston rammed all their three goals past Turk Broda. Porky Dumart got the first counter while Red Heron was serving a penalty.

Leafs were back at full strength when Roy Conacher added another and Jack Crawford sank the third goal.

Toronto began to get under way in the scoreless second period and kept Brimsek busy in the Boston nets. In the third period they put the pressure on and got their two counters via the sticks of Don Metz and Sweeney Schriner. The rally ended there when the Boston defence tightened.

Broda's chances of taking the Vezina Trophy to Toronto to show he's the league's top goalie dimmed when last night's three goals ran his debit column up to 98. Johnny Mowers of Detroit with 94 goals scored against him and Brimsek with 96 both have an edge on the Leafs' netminder—but Broda has a one-game advantage over both of them.

Senators Hope To Make This Rookie A Winner

Clark Griffith, owner of the Washington Senators, and Bucky Harris, manager, watch Lou Thuman in action on mound at the Senators' training camp at Orlando, Fla. The rangy Baltimore boy only had a fair record in the minors, but he showed such sensational possibility that under proper tutelage the Washington Senators' brain trust hope to make a pitching champ out of him. Griffith, illustrating a delivery, was a pitcher in his day, and despite a "fast" ball that was slower than slow, made a fair showing by reason of his strategy and knowledge of batters.

Thurier's Hopes Are Fading Fast

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Mar. 12 — (AP). — Fred Thurier, Springfield star, is waging a desperate fight for American Hockey League scoring honors. But his efforts appear to be doomed through lack of time.

Thurier recorded five points last week to give him 57, six less than leader Les Cunningham of Cleveland, who was held to a lone assist. Thurier's chances of overtaking Cunningham are extremely slim, however, inasmuch as he has only two games to play in while the latter has three.

The Springfield high scorer has tallied 27 goals, to lead the loop in this department.

Ed Bush of Providence, who thought he had the "bad man" title in moth balls through 82 minutes spent in the penalty box, found serious competition to-day in Vic Myles of New Haven. Myles lacks two minutes.

Last Night's Stars

(By the Canadian Press.)

Eddie Wiseman, Boston— scored one goal and helped on another as the Bruins virtually clinched the N.H.L. title with a 3-2 victory over Toronto.

Don Metz, Toronto — duplicated Wiseman's scoring performance to pace the Leafs in a last-period drive that fell just one goal short of tying the game at Boston.

Hockey's Big Seven

By The Canadian Press

Bill Cowley of Boston, all alone at the top of the National Hockey League scoring race, helped on two goals as the Bruins whipped Toronto, 3-2, last night, to bring his total to 14 goals and 43 assists. With three more games to go, Cowley already is six assists ahead of the record set by Joe Primeau for Toronto in 1931-32. None of the other Big Seven scorers advanced last night as the Boston game was the only match. The leaders:

ONE BEER—THREE YEARS!

LONDON—(CP)—Under the caption "For Wasting Beer?" the News Chronicle says a Dutchman in Holland was sentenced to three years for throwing a glass of beer at a Nazi soldiers.

Booming Simon As New Dealer In Heavy Ring

DETROIT, March 12.—(CP)—The biggest heavyweight since Primo Carnera is slated to be No. 15 on Joe Louis' hit parade. He is bulky Abe Simon. And, his manager, James J. Johnston assures you, Abe is heavier than the Ambling Alp and much stronger.

But some fight experts are wondering if Johnston ever heard of the old football battle-cry, "the bigger they are the harder they fall." They figure Simon is such a big target that Louis can't miss when they tangle for the heavyweight championship here March 21.

When Louis kayoed Red Burman in January he could total 11 knockouts as heavyweight champion. Gus Dorazio was No. 12 in February and Simon is due to be next in Joe's fight-a-month program.

Reasons Why.

It is not surprising that Johnston casts a minority vote in this discussion. He says his "little Abie" will make a bum out of the Bomber. Why,

1. Louis is slipping.
2. Simon has never been knocked off his feet. He is 6 feet 5 and weighs 250.
3. Simon hits harder and takes a harder punch than anyone Joe has met.
4. (a) Simon is determined to be the first Jewish heavyweight champion since Dan Mendoza in the late 1700's. (b) He wants to make enough money to pay off the mortgage on a small synagogue near his home.
5. Simon has the best left hand in the business.
6. Simon's knockout record is over 80 per cent.

A White Hope.

A short while ago Johnston was beating the tomtoms for Bob Pastor (and he talked loud enough to get Bob two shots at Joe). Now he modestly describes Simon as the "white heavyweight champion" with the "courage of an R.A.F. pilot and the persistency of a Winston Churchill."

Johnston's chief headache lately has been in trying to explain away Simon's defeat by unranked Jim Thompson in February. In a few thousand loosely chosen words Jimmy asserts that "my little Abie" won eight of the ten rounds and the officials left their glasses at home.

Simon's record over the last few years shows victories over Lou Nova, Buddy Baer, Eddie Blunt and Gunnar Barlund.

Anythings an happen in a heavyweight fight and Johnston may be right. At any rate Abe should give Joe as good a workout as most of his other foes.

Cheese, Hog Bonus Gets First Reading

TORONTO, March 12 (CP)—The Throne speech debate, which has to conclude by Thursday—the day before Budget Day—may just possibly wind up in the Ontario legislature today. Most of the members who have not been heard to date are understood to have expressed a desire to participate in the budget debate.

In the Legislature yesterday second reading was given to Leopold Macaulay's bill to amend the Highway Traffic Act and first reading was given to a number of other bills, including one providing for cheese and hog bonuses.

Mr. Macaulay, Conservative member for York South and former Minister of Highways, proposes under his bill to suspend the licence of any person who is convicted of reckless, dangerous or careless driving, regardless of whether bodily injury or property damage is involved.

As soon as a driver commits a breach of the criminal code he should be compelled to show financial responsibility and not wait until he injures someone, declared Mr. Macaulay.

Highways Minister T. B. McQuesten, participating in the debate, said provisions are too restrictive regarding liability insurance for motorists with good records.

He said he planned to confer with insurance companies after the present session in an effort to make matters less burdensome on those who have been refused insurance.

A suggestion for compulsory insurance by Mr. Macaulay brought an objection from Attorney General Gordon Conant who said that where this had been enforced in the United States accidents had increased.

The Bonus Bill

The bill authorizing bonuses to the farmer stipulates that the amount of the subsidy for cheese will not exceed two cents per pound. It will be paid to every person who produces milk which is subsequently processed into cheddar cheese.

A bonus of not more than $1 per hog will be paid to every person who produces and feeds hogs of such grades as the regulations may prescribe and sells such hogs through regular trade channels for processing.

A penalty of not less than $50 for the first offence is to be assessed against any person who violates any of the provisions of the act, such as falsifying records or books relating to milk, cheese or hogs. For every subsequent offence the penalty wil be not less than $200.

Only 48 of 85 Present

Prior to the orders of the day, Conservative Leader George A. Drew remarked upon the number of vacant seats in the Legislature and said it was "high time" the members realized their absence prompted disrespect for the "very privileges we are fighting for." Forty-eight of the 85 members were present. Three of the absentees are on active servic.

Col. Drew said he was not confining his criticism to either party, and he was not referring to those unavoidably absent.

Provincial secretary Harry Nixon, leading the Legislature in the absence of Premier Mitchell Hepburn, declared the attendance was not exceptionally low for a Monday. Some of the members spent the week-end at their homes outside the city and found it difficult to get back to Toronto.

Premier Hepburn, he said, was working on his budget speech which will be delivered this week. Mr. Nixon said he could recall when the Opposition Leader's absence some years ago was the subject of comment which brought about an improvement in his attendance.

Two bills were allowed to stand after opposition arose from the Conservatives. One would place business brokers in same category as real estate agents, subject to Government control.

The other bill was that conforming tax sales of lands and properties made prior to January 1, 1940.

Leslie Frost (Con. Victoria) contended the sale of lands for taxes should not be validated for at least five years after the sale.

Camels Bring Supplies To Ethiopian Troops Hitting Duce

Ethiopian troops, rallied by former Emperor Haile Selassie and native leaders, are co-operating with British, Free French and South African forces in a drive to sweep the Italians from East Africa. The First Battalion of Ethiopian troops, led by an Australian officer and four Australian N.C.O.'s, entered Ethiopia fully armed and equipped when the Allied drive began. They have already distinguished themselves. Camels loaded with stores and ammunition for the battalion are pictured on their trek through 200 miles of jungle. The transport corps for the Ethiopian army consists of thousands of such camels.

White's Charges

nounced attitude of Justice Minister Lapointe against a National Government.

"I should like to say to the Minister of justice that there are other parts of Canada beside the Province of Quebec," he said.

"It is about time for the Dominion of Canada to realize that this country is no longer going to be governed by the dictates and whims of the Province of Quebec."

A loud chorus of "shame" mingled with cries of "Hear, hear," followed this remark.

Capt. White said he wondered what the Government proposed to do in the event it became necessary to supply great numbers of reinforcements for overseas.

Addressing his remarks directly to Prime Minister Mackenzie King who was not in the chamber, Capt. White said:—

"When the people of Canada realize the whole truth as to how our war effort has bogged down they will tear your Government to pieces in the same way Mr. Churchill said the armies of Britain would tear Mussolini's empire to shreds."

Ralston Hits Back

Defence Minister Ralston, replying with some show of feeling, said Capt. White's remarks were "unworthy of a gentleman who wears the King's uniform as he does at this moment."

It was the duty of an officer to explain facts to his men and to keep down unrest and discontent among them. Canadian soldiers did not want to be coddled.

It was the duty of all concerned with the forces to keep the men satisfied, Col. Ralston said, but "I do not think the way to do this is to provide free transportation for a soldier when he wants to go on week-end leave—and I say that very frankly."

The minister said Capt. White had been elected to parliament under a leader who had opposed conscription" (Hon. R. J. Manion, former Conservative leader).

George T. Fulford (Lib. Leeds), an officer in the reserve army, said it was generally the case that discontent among soldiers could be traced to the Adjutant. He was replying to Capt. White's criticism of military administration.

"I believe it is unnecessary for me to tell this committee who is the Adjutant of the Second Battalion of the Prince Edward-Hastings regiment" he added, Capt White was not in the chamber at the moment.

The House was again in committee on the resolution of Finance Minister Ilsley, moved Feb. 18, preliminary to introduction of a war appropriation bill to provide $1,300,000,000 for the fiscal year beginning next April 1.

There were sporadic departures from the theme set by Col. Ralston as members attempted to advance other arguments.

E. G. Hansell (ND. MacLeod) asked Mr. Ilsley how he intended to pay back the huge sums that are being borrowed, as well as the already large national debt. Mr. Ilsley said he would make a statement later on that point.

Mr. Hansell also asked the minister to have the bill referred to the Commons banking and commerce committee for a "wide open airing" with experts called in to discuss the results of present monetary policy.

Not to the Committee

Mr. Ilsley said he was not prepared to promise this and that, as he was at present advised the bill would not go to such a committee.

The New Democracy member said the records indicated chartered banks had already created $490,000,000 of new money since the war started by acquiring government securities.

He asked why the government-owned Bank of Canada could not do the same thing and thus save the interest being paid on securities held by the chartered banks.

Shipbuilding also came in for some discussion, led by John R. MacNicol (Con. Toronto-Davenport) who said it would be of no avail to build up armed forces and war supplies if transportation were not available to carry them overseas.

Munitions Minister Howe said the government was proceeding as rapidly as possible. Skilled labor was the great problem and shipyards would be expanded as rapidly as labor was ready to man them. He said the government's naval building program was well in hand. Cargo carriers would be the chief concern at the moment.

During question hour the prime minister replied to a query from Hon. Grote Stirling (Con. Yale) who said he was apprehensive lest the Liberal administration's stand against the award of titles would extend to men of the forces receiving decorations for valor.

showdown was imminent, basing their conclusions on these facts:

Within the last 48 hours, the steady southward movement of German troops through Bulgaria — which has been underway 10 days —dwindled suddenly to a trickle.

German staff officers who have been seen everywhere in Sofia, have disappeared from the capital and headed for field headquarters at Plovdiv—40 miles from the Greek frontier and 80 miles from Turkey.

Thousands of German and Bulgarian warplanes are lined up on airdromes all over Bulgaria, ready for action. Nazi aircraft with screaming sirens such as were used last spring in western Europe, make daily test flights over Sofia.

An iron-clad military control has been clamped upon the area between the Danube river and the Greek frontier.

Greece has given every indication of er determination to fight a Nazi invasion.

Kostas Kotzias, Athens governor, arrived in Thrace and took up quarters at Komotine, only ten miles from the Bulgarian frontier, as temporary governor of Thrace. He was accompanied by three cabinet ministers, who immediately began an inspection of Greek frontiers defences.

As The Axis Sees It.

Axis quarters claimed Greece might make only a gesture of resistance, then, having demonstrated the hopelessness of attempting to cope with such a great power as Germany, ask an armistice and replace the present "war government."

Evidence that the Germans were not certain of Russian, British and Turkish naval reaction to a breach of peace in the Balkans was seen by observers in Nazi preparations for action in the Black Sea.

Groups of German naval officers with sea-going equipment have been seen in Rumanian and Bulgarian Black Sea ports; a steady stream of knocked-down submarines was reported arriving by overland route at Constanta, Rumania. There also were reports the Germans were mounting long-range guns in the Bulgarian ports of Varna.

F.D.R's 7 Billion

Four minutes later the President approved allocation of the first lot of Army and Navy materials to the other nations, most being destined for Britain, but a part being marked for Greece. Disclosing this action at a press conference, he declined to reveal that articles made up this group, saying information about such equipment should not reach nations for which the equipment was not intended.

The press conference also brought confirmation of the fact that a fireside chat on the aid program was under consideration..

Some Quick Action.

Arangements for handling the President's enormous appropriation request in the House, leaders said, called for hearings by an Appropriations Sub-Committee on Thursday with State Secretary Cordell Hull as probable lead-out witness.

Procedure was reported to have been discussed by Mr. Roosevelt with a group of strategically placed Senate and House committeemen at the White House yesterday. A question was raised then, on the House conferees reported, as to whether the sum asked should be all in cash. It was decided to ask all cash, he added, that "Uncle Sam means business."

Important international reaction was envisioned more specifically in Senate quarters. Senator James M. Mead (Dem., New York) commented: "I think the President's request may have a greatly depressing effect on the defender nations."

As to the size of the sum, opinion in Congress was varied but Representative Clifton Woodrum (Dem., Virginia), influential in appropriations matters, forecast it would be approved by the House as asked and Senate Democratic leaders appeared confident.

Preliminary indications, according to some who had talked with the President, were that a substantial part of the money would be used to reimburse Britain for aircraft factories and other defence plants which they established or expanded in this country during the early months of the war.

Six were injured severely, among them a Miss Armstrong, also a stenographer of the British Legation Her legs were injured so badly doctors said they would have to be amputated.

C. H. Page, British Vice-Consul in Istanbul, was cut by glass, and First Secretary Lambert of the Sofia Legation and an unidentified Englishman who came to the hotel to meet a brother in the Rendel party were among others injured.

Survivors declared they believed the bomb had been placed aboard Mr. Rendel's train in Sofia—perhaps timed to explode in Turkey. They agreed there had been only one explosion.

Mr. Rendel telegraphed details to London. He received many messages of congratulation on his escape.

Turkish newspapers, under close government supervision, confined their account of the explosion to a 15-word communique saying it occurred and that officers were investigating.

Police found fragments of the bomb in the debris in the lobby and said it might have been set off by an acid fuse, rather than a mechanical timing device.

Obituary

CHARLES E. SHANNON

MARMORA, March 12 (ENS) — The funeral of the late Charles Ernest Shannon was held on Tuesday morning to Sacred Heart Church, Marmora and was largely attended. High requiem mass was sung by Rev. H. J. Farrell. The pall-bearers were Ford Woodhouse, Breen O'Connor, Percy Gray, Patrick Bertrand, Tom Shannon and John Shannon.

Interment took place in Sacred Heart Cemetery.

JOHN RIELLY

HASTINGS, March 12—(ENS).—John Rielly, prominent resident of Percy Township and for two years reeve, passed away at his home in the Brickley Settlement on Tuesday in his 84th year. Mr. Rielly was a prominent farmer and drover and was born in the district where he died. For years he took a keen interest in municipal politics, serving as councillor and later as reeve. He also was weed inspector of the township.

He leaves to mourn his loss his wife, former Margaret Simon, and an adopted daughter Irene, also two brothers, James and Phillip of Percy, and three sisters, Mrs. James Morin of Peterborough, Mrs. Peter Jones, Rochester, and Mrs. Phillip Convey.

The funeral will be held on Friday morning at nine o'clock at St. Jerome's Catholic Church in Warkworth, with interment in Warkworth Cemetery.

MRS. MARK EDWARDS

A former resident of Central Dummer Township passed away in St. Mary's Isolation Hospital early Monday morning, in the person of Mrs. Mark Edwards, the former Mary Elizabeth Brown. Her illness was short, and death was caused by spinal meningitis.

Born in Dummer, 51 years ago, she was the daughter of the late George Brown, and the late Mary Cross. She had lived in Peterborough only since last September, and was a member of St. Mathews Anglican Church, Hall's Bridge.

Surviving are her husband, Mark Edwards; one son, Howard, of Burleigh Falls; and three daughters, Stella, Mabel and Julia, all at home.

Arrangements have not been completed for the funeral.

Death Either Way

MAIN STREET TOPICS

BUY NEW SINK.

The Board of Health accepted as the lowest the tender of F. R. J. MacPherson at $84 for the installation of a double sink at the Isolation Hospital.

SLIDES INTO ANOTHER CAR

W. Aggas, 27 Frank street, was driving west on Charlotte street, and at the intersection of Charlotte and Park streets slid on the ice and met in collision with the rear of a car driven by W. Oitment, Norwood. The damage to the cars was not very extensive.

ANOTHER NEON.

Still another George street store has blossomed forth with a new Neon sign, and this time is Knox Jewellery store. The sign is a smart looking creation in two colors and had to be hung rather high so as to be visible in the maze of signs of every description that are hanging on the east side of George street.

GETS MONTH IN JAIL

Pleading guilty to a charge of vagrancy, a local man who according to police has given his relatives a lot of trouble, was sentenced by Magistrate E. A. Gee in police court this morning to a month in jail to date back to the day of his arrest. The accused had agreed to leave town at the expiration of his sentence.

CHIMNEY FIRES

The Fire Department was called out twice Tuesday night because of chimney fires which have been more of a nuisance to the members this winter than any other factor in the fire fighters' daily work. According to Chief George Gimblett, by far the larger part of the fires caused in this manner could be avoided if care were taken in keeping chimneys clean.

RADIO ERROR

In spite of the fact that a Toronto radio "talking reporter" said that the Fairey airplane which made a forced landing yesterday came down on the outskirts of Belleville, but the plane may still be seen on the outskirts of Peterborough, south of highway number 7, not far from May's School house. Not long ago the same reporter moved Brockville into Northern Ontario.

SKIDS AT INTERSECTION

Paul Chapdelaine, 301 Raid street, reports to the police that while driving his car east on Charlotte street, he stopped for the lights to change at Park street, and another car skidded on the icy road and collided with the rear of his car. No damage was done to Chapdelaine's machine, but the front of the other automobile was damaged, he told police.

A SUBSTANTIAL DONATION

Inspector James F. Reid who is the Dominion treasurer of the Canadian Police Spitfire fund received a cheque this morning for $523 from the London, Ont., police department. This is the largest single donation yet received for the fund, except the Peterborough police department's contribution of over $2,000. The fund now has a total of around $6,500, Inspector Reid reports. The London donation included subscriptions from citizens of London.

MAY TAKE SPEEDY TRIAL

It is expected that Louis Gallow, Thomas Nicholls, Lawrence Burns and William Bradd, the four men committed for trial in connection with the burglary at the C.D.S. store and two of them also for the break-in at the office of Wonder Bakeries will elect speedy trial before the county judge instead of waiting until the June sittings. In that case the trials will likely take place before the end of the month.

RADIO INSPECTORS HERE.

Two inspectors from the radio division of the Department of Transport, Ottawa, are registered at Queen's Hotel in this city and will be here until late Thursday evening. Any person in the city who has radio interference are asked to phone the inspectors. There is no use phoning them unless the interference is active at the time the call is made as they can do little unless they hear the noise themselves. Thus citizens who cannot comply with the request are only wasting theier own time and that of the inspectors. Complaints may always be sent by letter to the Department at Ottawa.

WILL VISIT BATTERY

A full turnout of members of the 4th Field Battery, R.C.A., is requested this evening at 7.30 when members of the class will hear a lecture on gunnery by Lt. Col. R. F. Grant, from Military Headquarters, M.D. 3, Kingston. Every man is urged to be on hand, too, because the payroll sheet must be signed.

A BULB WAS USED.

Subscribers of the Examiner who are curious as to how the picture of the two airmen could be taken out of doors in a raging snowstorm at noon yesterday are advised that the picture was taken with a flashbulb. Usually under such conditions the flakes of snow would be more prominent but they appeared on the photo only as white streaks which were scarcely noticeable. The exposure was one-fiftieth of a second on F-16.

Village Groups Contribute To War Victims

Lakefield has certainly taken the Peterborough District British War Victims' Fund under its wing in sterling fashion as is indicated by the report submitted today by J. McKerchar, manager of the Royal Bank in the northern village.

Today there are three sizeable donations from the village with the Women's Missionary and Service Club of the Lakefield United Church topping the list. This organization contributed $22.50 and the Wesley Ladies' Aid of the same church added $10.00. The Lakefield Junior Institute sent in $5.00.

Locally there was another substantial donation, this time from Goodwin Machine Tool Company, who sponsored and held a euchre drive raising the sum of $25.00.

This morning F. G. Mann reported that $1,300 of the fifth £500 has already been raised and the sum of $950, will complete the £500 lot.

This list is as follows:—

Previously acknowledged	$10,264.96
A Friend	5.00
Goodwin Machine Tool Co. Proceeds of euchre drive	25.00
Lakefield Junior Institute.	5.00
Lakefield United Church Women's Missionary and Service Club	22.50
Wesley Ladies' Aid, United Church, Lakefield	10.00
The Three Toronto Confetteers (Y.A.B.)	1.00
Total to date	$10,333.08

LeavePostponed For Engineers

Peterborough relatives of members of the 3rd Field Park Company, Canadian Engineers, who have been expecting them home from Debert, N.S., are advised that there has been a delay in the leave of the third party of the Engineers.

The Examiner has received the following self-explanatory telegram from Capt. G. S. Walker, the officer commanding the 3rd Field Park Company.

"Owing to the fact that a large percentage from furlough party did not return on time, third party will be late arriving Peterborough. Will wire date third party should arrive later. Please publish in today's paper above story and relieve boys' families.

The Stars Say

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, March 13

THE planetary configurations bearing on the affairs of this day should promise sudden, surprising and radical influence on the present as well as the future life and its destinies. Matters seem to evolve as if from the "blue," precipitating change, opportunity, and drama in all departments of living, private, romantic, emotional, artistic and business. Definite change of plans and objectives, as environs and associations, may be forthcoming, with surprising success and happiness on the near horizon, but be alert to treachery and fraud.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of sudden change of an unforseen and unpredictable nature. This may affect all angles of life, business, scientific, artistic and emotional, with successful and far reaching influence on things in general. It is a time for attacking major propositions and objectives with vigor, initiative and originality. But keep alert to fraud and snares.

A child born on this day should have originality, initiative and enterprise of a high and exceptional order, possibly to a degree of genius. It may have an adventurous, dramatic and romantic life, with much success.

Praised As Heroine

Nursing Sister H. M. Stevens, of Dunnville, Ont., who was in the London cabaret struck by a German bomb which killed several Canadian officers, is being hailed as a heroine in the empire capital for her courage in rendering first-aid to the injured. She may receive one of the George Medals for her bravery.

Rome Curbs Butter

ROME, March 12 (AP)—Strict control over the production, distribution and sale of butter will be assumed by the government, March 24, it was announced today.

The government propose to maintain a check on the supply by requiring producers to keep registers of daily milk purchases and the output of dairy products.

The population of Istanbul, Turkey, increased from 741,148 in 1935 to 789,346 in 1940.

VOL. LXXXV, No. 60 — PETERBOROUGH, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 12, 1941 — PAGE 9

80th Birthday

THOMAS H. GRAHAM.

Grandson of Smith pioneer family, Mr. Graham was born in the township eighty years ago on the sixth lot of Fourth Concession. He retired from farming twenty years ago. He is an honorary director of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, has been for years a director of the Plowmen's Association, was reeve of Smith and member of the county council, and for fifteen years was superintendent of Smith township roads.

Dr. Barr's Call Approved By Presbytery

At the quarterly meeting of the Presbytery of Peterborough at St. Paul's Church Tuesday, Captain the Rev. David P. Rowland of York Presbyterian Church, Toronto, was nominated for the position of general secretary of Sunday Schools and Young People's Societies.

Rev. Beverley Ketchen, D.D., of Hamilton, was nominated for Moderator of the General Assembly.

The Home Missions report by Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr included requests for $200 for the charge of Bowmanville and Newtonville and $300 for Lakefield and Omemee.

The following committee was appointed for presbyterial visitation at Bowmanville: Rev. A. O. Nugent of Cobourg, Rev. George Rowland of Port Hope and James Dutton. In connection with their visit consideration may be given by the congregation for an official call to the present incumbent, Rev. W. G. Blake, and also his induction.

An increased grant of $5.50 a Sunday was asked for the Buckhorn charge to meet extra expense for the work there.

Call To Dr. Barr.

Rev. A. Raeburn Gibson, the clerk, presented a call to the Presbytery from St. John's Newfoundland, to Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Peterborough. The call was signed by every member of the congregation, and was said by Mr. Gibson to be the most unanimous call it had ever been his opportunity to see.

Appearing for St. Paul's congregation were James Dutton, J. A. Feir, John Hill of the session, G. Wilson Craw, chairman of the Board of Managers, and Mrs. James Dutton, Mrs. T. J. Carley and Mrs. E. H. Howson of the various women's organizations. All paid tribute to Dr. Barr for the work which he had done in St. Paul's Church. Dr. Barr intimated his acceptance of the call and members of presbytery expressed in a resolution their regret that he was leaving, and wishing him success in his new pastorate. Rev. Gibson was named inter-moderator and translation will take place after Sunday, April 27.

Student Re-appointed.

Re-appointment of J. P. Schiasler to the Buckhorn field in which he was engaged as a student was granted at the request of Thomas Wood, representing the Harvey township field.

Rev. D. K. Perry of Hastings reported increased givings from the Presbytery for the budget. However, some congregations are not giving the support they could. Rev. Mr. Perry outlined givings for local church purposes as compared with support for missions, and indicated that charges in towns throughout Central Ontario are giving at a higher rate than congregations in rural areas and cities. He moved that Presbytery allocate $3.12 a member for 1941 from each charge for mission purposes. This was agreed to.

The committee to strike standing committees reported the following conveners:

Home and Foreign Missions: Rev. George Rowland, Port Hope.

Sunday Schools and Young People's Societies: Rev. W. O. Nugent, Cobourg.

Examination of Students: Rev. J. M. Young of Omemee.

Budget for Missionary Purposes: Rev. D. K. Perry, Hastings.

Church Life and Work: Rev. H. Kaye, B.Th., Colborne.

Statistician, the Clerk of the Presbytery: Rev. Raeburn Gibson, Millbrook.

VEGETABLE PRICES JUMP

Increasing demands made by ships calling at ports and the need of military camps skyrocketed vegetable prices in South Africa.

Leading Seaman Jimmy Lawson Returns Home After Months Of Service In European Waters

One Canadian seaman was lost in the crossing of the North Atlantic when the ships of the Canadian Navy were steaming home with their crews of husky young Canadians who had seen action in many waters. Now many of the sailors are visiting their homes enjoying well earned leaves.

Among the courageous men is Leading Seaman Jimmy Lawson of this city who is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Lawson, 19 Ware street. He has 29 days leave, three weeks of which is the usual annual leave and with this goes one week foreign service leave.

He explained that the Canadian destroyer on which he is serving was engaged in sea lane patrol and convoy work in the English Channel for a month, and later in other parts of the Atlantic. The crossing of the North Atlantic was the roughest voyage he had ever seen.

Describing the death of Leo Fleming, who was familiarly known as Pop to his shipmates, Mr. Lawson said the destroyer listed 48 degrees in the water because of the terrific pounding by the waves. The safe rolling angle of destroyers of this type is 30 degrees and when the ship came out of the roll, a huge wave smashed across the main deck carrying Fleming overboard. It was in the late afternoon, and weather conditions made the lowering of boats impossible. The destroyer crew searched for the missing seaman for more than an hour, but no trace was found of him. This man was a member of the gun crew in charge of Seaman Lawson.

German bombers attacked the destroyer on three different occasions, always at night, but the anti-aircraft fire from the destroyer's guns and the zigzag course followed interfered with the marksmanship of the Hun aviators. The nearest bomb exploded in the sea more than 200 yards from the ship.

JIMMY AND HIS MOTHER, MRS. J. H. LAWSON

Jimmie Lawson joined the Canadian Navy five years ago on March 17, along with Andy Chartren of this city. At that time he weighed 130 pounds and today he tips the scales at 190, and is a powerfully built man. He has done considerable boxing during his enlistment period. Usually one signs up for seven years' service, and this service continues if the Empire is at war, otherwise a seaman must sign again at the end of the seven-year period.

The local sailor likes the life at sea and has been promoted steadily so that now, he will rank as a Petty Officer on his return.

Battery's Challenge Accepted By Rangers

With or without professional help, the members of the Prince of Wales Rangers has decided to accept the challenge issued by Lt.-Col. Douglas J. Lawrie for the 4th Field Battery, in which the regiment was invited to play a game of hockey against the battery, the War Victims' Fund to benefit. At the meeting of the Sports and Entertainment Committee of the Rangers last night, the executive decided to make an effort to have the night of Friday, March 21, set for the contest.

The Rangers seem not too confident of their team's quality, and are issuing a call to the colors to the men in the regiment who have had hockey experience, and all who are able to play the game are asked to make that fact known to their platoon commanders. The artillerymen feel they are in a more advantageous position since they have on their roll some of the city's finest players, and have a team already organized.

Death Is Due To Meningitis

Peterborough had its second spinal meningitis casualty in three months, early Wednesday morning, when Mrs. Mark Edwards passed away in Queen Mary's Isolation Hospital.

According to Dr. L. A. Clarke, the Medical Officer of Health for Peterborough, Mrs. Edwards' case was one which might be described as orthodox, and he explained that the other recent death from this disease was one in which the germ concerned is usually associated with pneumonia and recovery is not often accomplished; on the other hand, Dr. Clarke said, this last patient was affected by the germ usually present in cases of meningitis, and owing to recent medical steps the mortality rate has been "appreciably reduced," and the patient stands a good chance of recovering. Mrs. Edwards, Dr. Clarke said, was unfortunate in that her case was complicated by the existence of other factors.

Born in Central Dummer, 51 years ago, Mrs. Edwards was the former Mary Elizabeth Brown; she was the daughter of the late George Brown and the late Mary Cross, and had lived in Peterborough since September of last year, when she left Dummer Township with her family. She was a member of St. Mathew's Anglican Church, Young's Point, and was well known in that district.

Surviving are her sorrowing husband, Mark Edwards; one son, Howard, of Burleigh Falls; three daughters, Stella, Mabel and Julia, at home; and one brother, George Brown of Lakefield.

The funeral was held this afternoon from the funeral home of Arthur W. Belleghem, 611 George street, with Rev. E. C. Moore of St. Matthew's Church officiating, and interment was in Little Lake Cemetery.

Just a Trail?

CRISFIELD, Md., March 12 (AP)—Arguing for a new local road, Publisher Joseph McGrath called the present highway an "old, rough, turtle-back, crooked, dangerous, broken-edged, dilapidated, circuitous, narrow-shouldered, bumpy, deteriorating, worn-out, shameful road that beats motor vehicles into an early grave."

Canadian Soldier Escapes From German Prison Camp

Newspapers all across Canada carried an epic tale of adventure and courage this week, with Pte. George Thompson, 48th Highlanders, as the central figure, and although Thompson comes from Toronto, the story has a local touch. Pte. Jimmy Allen, of the same unit and from this city, is a close friend of Thompson's, and was with him up to the time the unit went to France.

Thompson was taken prisoner at Dunkirk, but he escaped, and this week news came through from the International Red Cross that he had reached Gibraltar safely.

Apparently the Highlanders were sent to different parts of the French coast just before the Dunkirk show, as the section in which Allen was stationed spent only a few hours in France before orders to withdraw came through. Thompson on the other hand was with the soldiers ordered to Dunkirk. During the fighting when the Empire forces were retreating Thompson suffered an attack of appendicitis and had to stop by the way. Frank Cox of Toronto and an officer stayed with him, and with aerial bombs bursting all around them, Thompson urged them to leave and they were finally forced to do so.

Word Of Capture.

His friends gave Thompson up as lost but two months after the evacuation, a letter came through from a German prison camp at Nantes, France, saying he had been captured but was quite well.

The next letter telling of his escape was smuggled out of France where he was hiding while awaiting a chance to reach British territory. The letter intimated that he was trying to reach Tunisia, Algeria, or Morocco, and thus get to England via Gibraltar.

A month ago relatives in Toronto received a letter stating that Thompson had been picked up in Marseilles, France, and interned as a prisoner of war. Since then in some manner he has managed to gain his freedom and reach Gibraltar. News of his safe arrival at Gibraltar has been confirmed by the War Office.

Machine-Gun Streets.

Some time ago Pte. Jimmie Allen wrote to his sister, Mrs. Clifford White, Bonaccord Street, telling of Thompson's misfortune and voicing his deep regret at the loss of a close friend. He even sent a photo of he and Thompson which had been taken at the barracks in England. Allen is in good health and enjoying army life, but writes that the inhuman actions of the Hun aviators amazes him. In one letter he tells of a low-flying German fighter plane which raked a street with machine-gun fire, killing several children who were playing there.

He enlisted with the 48th Highlanders early last year and has been in England for almost a year now.

No Coddling Crops For The Farmers

Farmers are planning to sidestep any avoidable work this summer not as mere shirking but as economy of effort and motion, putting the shoulder to the main wheels because there are fewer shoulders to get things going in this war year.

That was an opinion transpiring at a conversational meeting Tuesday night of the Crop Improvement Association. Snow drifts and heavy roads kept most of the members at home. Six or seven of them telephoned they couldn't make it to the road, but three stalwarts, Alex Huston, Clarence Mann and Earl Petrie turned out, and with Frank Paterson they chatted about prospects of the months ahead when the sun takes hold of things.

Farm help is scarce, and the man power that is available has to be conserved for the essential and primary jobs. If soy beans require cultivating, and they do, and rough grains do not, although the beans have a heavier protein content, they are going to get the finger, because oats, wheat and barley can struggle along without a lot of coddling. Possibly the farm chat last night brought out symptomatic inclinations among the rural community, and some of the projects of the Crop Improvement Association may be skimped this season because these farmers haven't time for experiments. However, if the weather permits, the association will likely hold a general meeting next Wednesday night.

JAILED FOR VENTURING

LONDON—(CP)—Jeff Amer, an Islington boy who tried to take off in a Spitfire, without authorization, to prove he could fly, was sentenced to three months imprisonment.

Obituaries

MRS. MICHAEL J. MURPHY.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Michael J. Murphy, which took place on Saturday morning, was well attended by the many friends and relatives of the deceased.

The requiem mass was celebrated at St. Peter's Cathedral by Rev. J. V. Masterson, D.D., who also delivered the sermon.

During the time Mrs. Murphy's remains were resting at the residence, 260 Murray Street, many came to pay their last respects and extend their sympathy to the sorrowing husband and family. Many floral tributes and spiritual offerings were gratefully received.

Interment was made at St. Peter's Cemetery, where Rev. Earl T. Grant read the prayers.

The pall-bearers were E. McColl, N. Giverin, M. J. O'Toole, J. Russell, L. J. Duffy, and G. Wiley.

THOMAS HICKEY.

The funeral of the late Thomas Hickey was held from the J. J. Duffus Funeral Parlors on Monday morning and proceeded to St. Peter's Cathedral, where the funeral mass was celebrated by Rev. James Greenan, who also delivered a most appropriate sermon.

Many attended to express their last respects to the deceased.

Interment was made at St. Peter's Cemetery where Rev. Gerard Meagher read the prayers.

The active pall-bearers were Edward Hickey, Frank Hickey, Herbert O'Heron, James O'Dette, Geo. Hillier, and Jack Russell.

The honorary pall-bearers were: Joseph Ingram, George Mitchell, George Johnson, Thomas Duncan, Herbert McCannan, and Wellington Fife.

Those attending from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. Russell Long of Campbellford.

War 25 Years Ago

(By The Canadian Press).

MARCH 12, 1916.—Russians reported the torpedoing of the destroyer Leiteran Pushtscheen by enemy submarine in Black Sea. Germans shelled British trenches about Loos and Bois de Grenier.

Pioneer Times Recalled By T. H. Graham

From the experience and wisdom of a long life, Thomas H. Graham, 172 Antrim Street, at the noon hour of his eightieth birthday to-day, musingly remarked: "After all, it doesn't seem so long."

Most of his years were spent in Smith Township. Mr. Graham was born on the Temperance Hall lot, No. 6, of the Fourth Concession of Smith, son of William Graham and his wife, Sarah Snowden, who was a sister of the late William Snowden of Peterborough.

Mr. Graham's father was only a baby of a year and a half when his grandfather came out to Peterborough County from Scotland. He lived for a time on the Third Line, then bought the farm property on the Fourth from Henry Page, who was related to the Moore family, represented to-day by Charles E. Moore and his sons.

Pioneer Went to Fenelon.

Mr. Graham's grandfather eventually moved to Victoria County, four miles north of Fenelon Falls, and the farm in Smith devolved to the son William. As the years went by, Thomas H. Graham grew into manhood, and a second house was built on the homestead, the father moving into it, and the son continuing in the original home of the Grahams.

"I farmed until twenty years ago, and after a time I was appointed road superintendent in Smith, and had charge of the township roads for fifteen years," Mr. Graham recalled. "I used to hear the old folks say that in my grandfather's first years on the farm near Peterborough he had to carry a bag of grain on his back to Port Hope to have it ground into flour. And he had to carry the grist back over the same rough path.

Has Cradled Grain.

"I know what it meant to cradle grain and bind it by hand, and there were times when I threshed a bit for feed. But, we had threshing machines to do the bulk of the work. Farming was plenty of hard work in those days, but I always felt that work built strong bodies."

Mr. Graham became interested in municipal administration, was elected to the Township Conucil, and finally became Reeve of Smith. He was a member of the County Council when John Henry Garbutt, afterwards Warden, was Deputy-Reeve.

The Examiner inquired how long Mr. Graham had resided in Peterborough. He answered: "Fourteen years. We fixed this place up really for my wife, but she never got down here." There was a note of sadness in that, but Mr. Graham is a quiet and reticent man who never carried his feelings on his coat sleeve, and would say nothing personal to lend effect to a remark.

Honorary Fair Director.

Quiet and dependable, these are two attributes of Thomas Henry Graham. He is now an honorary director of the Peterborough Exhibition, after years of work as an active director. His chief interest in the Exhibition was helping in the work of the committee in charge of heavy horses, and there never was any slacking on his part.

"I wish you wouldn't say much about me," Mr. Graham suggested, but his old neighbors and his city friends know him as a sound, good citizen, and he certainly can't object to that modest and restrained tribute. He has played his part faithfully in all the undertakings to which he gave his help. He belongs in that group of men who go about a job without a lot of fuss and get it done, just the reverse of those who have been immemorially described as doing more talk than work. He has long been a member of the local Plowmen's Association.

Mr. Graham's family are his three daughters; Mrs. Thomas Flett of Ontario County, seven miles north of Oshawa; Mrs. James Park in Saskatchewan, and Mrs. C. H. Westlake of Smith Township. Mrs. David Eastwood of Ashburnham is a sister. Another sister, Mrs. William Scott of Peterborough, died about four years ago.

Young Man Advised To Provide A Home

Advising a young husband to try and make a home for his wife and baby Magistrate E. A. Gee in police court this morning adjourned the case until it was seen how the young couple got along.

In the meanwhile the magistrate ruled that the husband must pay his wife $9 a week for the support of her self and child. The couple have not been living together recently and Mr. Gee urged them to start out on a new basis.

Another non-support charge was adjourned for a week owing to the fact that W. J. Arthur Fair who was to have appeared for the husband in the case was called out of town.

Police Teams Are Tied Two Wins Each

The police championship of Central Ontario will likely have to be carried over until next winter.

Monday night the Peterborough and Lindsay police team which was leading the series with the Cobourg-Port Hope constabulary 2 games to 1, having won in Cobourg and Campbellford and lost here, blew their lead when they met the boys from the Lakeshore in the fourth game of the series before a big crowd at Lindsay.

The final count was 6 to 4 for the Cobourg cops, with star rating going to Constable Percy Sexsmith of the Peterborough team who slammed a goal into his own net and Chief Baker of Norwood, also a member of the Peterborough outfit, who is accused of the same crime, although the Norwood man refuses to make a statement in the matter until he has seen a lawyer.

It was a big night's fun with a lot of comedy features, intentional and otherwise interjected and a large crowd of Lindsay fans enjoyed the mixup. Incidentally a sizable sum was raised for war charities.

At one stage there was a wrestling match that resulted in Referee Bill Oliver being taken into custody. The two teams fraternized in an enjoyable supper at the game.

The four police games staged in this district have raised around $1000 for war service purposes.

Sanitary Inspector Is Asked To Give Paper

Sanitary Inspector MacPherson has been invited to prepare a paper to be read by him at the annual meeting of Medical Officers of Health and Sanitary Inspector in Toronto in May, Dr. L. A. Clarke, M.O.H., reported to the Board of Health Tuesday afternoon.

"This is particularly noteworthy as the Ontario Institute of Sanitary Inspectors has been asked to appoint only two speakers, and they have chosen Mr. MacPherson to be one of them," Dr Clarke commented. The subject of Mr. MacPherson's paper is to be some sannitary problem.

Dr. Clarke has been requested to give the lectures in bacteriology to the incoming graduate class at Nicholls Hospital, beginning March 5.

During February he gave three lectures to the Women's Auxiliary Service Corps, one to the graduate nurses association, and three to the Red Cross Home Nursing Class. A course of lectures in public health was given at St. Joseph's Hospital, Dr. Clarke giving three, Mr. MacPherson four and Miss Conley nd Miss MacDonell one each. The lectures in public health at Nicholls Hospital were completed for the current term during February.

"Links Between East And West" Studied

The lives of two missionaries, Miss Archibald, formerly of Nova Scotia, who, in her fifty years of work, brought a higher moral and religious life to the young girls and women of Trinidad, and Rev. Wyhan Masih, D.D., a Hindu who contributed much to the work of the Indore Christian College as teacher, writer, business worker, and to the life of the church generally, were referred to with admiration in a paper presented by Miss Esme Tomlinson at the March meeting of Elizabeth Parker Auxiliary of Trinity church. "Links between East and West" was the subject of study.

The devotional service followed the theme of "Christ's way in the Home," with Mrs. F. Harrison giving the Bible reading; Mrs. H. Head the "Creed of Christian Living" and Miss Mable Brown leading in prayer. Mrs. H. Frost brought a timely and inspiring message of stewardship in the thought that "Christianity is a Giving Religion." Master Stewart Brown was heard in two delightful solos.

Interesting W.M.S. Meeting Is Held

An interesting meeting of George Street W.M.S. was held Tuesday afternoon in the Board Room of the church with an attendance of forty-nine members. The president, Mrs. James Brown, was in the chair and opened the meeting. During the business period Mrs. J. W. Hales reported 86 calls made by the sick and visiting committee, and a letter was read from Mrs. A. Olin in reply to a message of sympathy received.

Mrs. J. H. Rowe gave out the pledge cards which are being distributed by the W.C.T.U. A committee composed of Mrs. James Spencer, Mrs. R. Parnell, Mrs. J. H. Rowe, Mrs. W. H. Morton, Mrs. James Brown was appointed to make arrangements for the Easter meeting, which will be held on Wednesday evening, April 9, and at which the "Challenge of the Cross" will be presented.

Mrs. A. B. Burrows took charge of the devotional part of the meeting for Group C. Mrs. Schaus read a "Creed of Christian Living" and Mrs. R. Parnell read the Bible lesson. Mrs. L. R. Groombridge sang beautifully "Thy Will Be Done."

The chapter of the study book giving the life of Miss J. Archibald of Trinidad was reviewed in an interview given to the press by Mrs. C. H. Fulford, who acted as reporter. Miss Emma Might took the part of Miss Archibald, and Mrs. W. P. Purdy impersonated Miss Beatty, another missionary. Mrs. Clark Staples read a paper on Trinidad, "The Land of the Humming Bird" as an introduction. Mrs. H. L. Roberts closed the meeting with prayer.

Victorian Nurses Make 433 Visits in February

Miss Dorothy Mickleborough, supervisor from the national office of the Victorian Order of Nurses in Ottawa, attended the March meeting of the local branch, held in the City Hall Tuesday evening with Alderman James Dutton in the chair.

Fifty-four new cases were registered during the month of February, Miss Mary Ross, in charge of the Peterborough branch, said in her monthly report, making a total to date of 138 who have been given nursing care or instruction. Visits totalled 433, which is an increase of 113 over last month's figures. The increase is shown particularly in the general bedside nursing cases, which included cancer, influenza, illness of a chronic nature and other medical and surgical work.

"In speaking of chronic illnesses," Miss Ross explained, "we think of the aged and indisposed, grandparents who need a weekly bath, the paralytic patient whose constant care is such a physical burden on the family, or the care of young or old who, for some reason, is confined to bed over an indefinite period. In these cases we may make one, two or three visits per week, depending upon the extent of illness. We very often find many an opportunity to correlate health education with bedside care during these visits."

Miss Ross reported that 94 of the 433 visits were given for the purpose of bedside care to mothers and babies, 57 were made to mothers and babies for instruction only, 23 prenatal visits were made, not only for instruction regarding preparation for care at confinement, but to observe the patient's general health, both physical and mental, and to be sure that she is under the close supervision of her physician and carrying out his instruction.

One hundred and thirty M.I.I. visits showed an increase of 39 over January figures, soldiers' families nursed during the month were four, making a total to date of 12, five confinements were attended, all being night calls, with thirteen hours spent in this service, the doctors were assisted with five operations of a minor nature.

Fees totalled $68.50, of which $50.75 was brought through M.I.I. services.

At the Registered Nurses' meeting of Peterborough district in February, a demonstration was given by the Public Health Department and the Victorian Order which showed the linking up of activities between the Health Department and V.O. Nurses.

To further their funds for war work and general purposes decision was reached to hold a euchre party in the Parish Hall on March 17th. Committees for this affair will be named at the next meeting.

ENQUIRY COLUMN

By MARY MOORE

Question.—I tasted some maple ice cream which my hostess tells me was made of half evaporated milk and half cream. It was very good—but she did not offer me her recipe. Could you give me one and tell me how to make evaporated milk whip? Thanks.—Val. Smith.

Answer.—There are several frozen mixtures in which evaporated milk is good, but they are usually strong flavored, such as chocolate, coffee or maple.

To Whip Evaporated Milk

Scald the undiluted evaporated milk in top of double boiler for 10 minutes. Chill quickly by standing pan in bowl of cracked ice, and when thoroughly cold, whip — it trebles in bulk after whipping.

Cans of evaporated milk may be kept in readiness for instant whipping if they are dropped into boiling water, boiled 1 minute, then chilled thoroughly.

Maple Almond Parfait

One cup maple syrup, 3 egg whites stiffly beaten, 2 cups heavy cream (OR 1 cup heavy cream and 1 cup evaporated milk made ready for whipping—see above), ½ cup almonds chopped and toasted. Heat maple syrup to boiling point and pour slowly over egg whites, beating constantly—continue beating until mixture is cold. Whip cream (or cream and evaporated milk), and fold it and the almonds in. Turn into freezing tray or into individual paper cups and freeze 3 hours.

Question.—I would like to have your method of making mint sauce—should it be served hot or cold? Thank you for your answers—I liked the cake.—Hattie Hatton.

Answer.—I'm glad the cake was right.

Mint Sauce

One-quarter cup vinegar, ¾ cup water, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, ½ cup very tightly packed finely chopped mint leaves, 1 tablespoon sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper. Heat vinegar and water to boiling, pour over chopped mint and let stand at back of stove for ½ hour. Add remaining ingredients, stirring to melt sugar and serve hot with roast lamb and chops—cold if lamb is served cold.

Children Should Be Helped to Find the Proper Niche. Parents Make Grave Error in Placing Their Offspring on a Pedestal That Is Too High.

One of the greatest wrongs that parents can do children is to bring them up with great expectations that they have no way of realizing; with tastes and habits that they cannot gratify; with ambitions they can never achieve. One of the commonest and most tragic illustrations is found in the families who live beyond their means; who maintain a handsome establishment; who give their children fine clothes, fine cars, fine trips, send them to expensive schools, and who lead them to look forward to a life of ease and luxury Then the father dies, or a depression comes, and the palace of great expectations in which the children have lived all their lives is smashed to smithereens. Instead of inheriting a fortune, they inherit only debts and bills. They have been taught no trade nor profession by which they can support themselves. They have had desires cultivated in them that will be torment to them as long as they live because they cannot gratify them, and of all people none are so miserable as those who have seen better days. It is natural, of course, for fathers and mothers who love their children to want to indulge their every wish and give them the things that rich children have, but what cruel kindness it is to rear them in a soft, satin-padded world when they are destined to live in one that is hard and cold, and which calls for strength and grit instead of pampering. Akin to this is the crime that parents commit who teach their children to think too well of themselves, and to believe that they have the talents that they do not possess. The world is filled with failures because mother swelled little Johnny's and Mamie's heads so big while they were still in rompers that they were never willing to wear the size hats that nature designed for them.

All of us know girls who never married because their adoring parents made them believe that their merely ordinary good looks were such superlative beauty and charm that the least they could expect for a husband was a millionaire.

So they turned up their noses at the lads who were working their way through college, and scorned the attentions of mere clerks, and while they waited in vain for young Croesus to come along old maidenhood overtook them.

Victims of Ambition

And we know plenty of other women who are husbandless and childless because they are victims of their ambitious mothers. Mother would not let the marry the honest young grocer who was just starting in business for himself, or the impecunious young doctor struggling to get a foothold in his profession, with whom they were in love.

She felt that because Mamie had a college education, or naturally curly hair, that she was such a wonder that she rated a brilliant marriage, and since young men who are rich and famous are few and far between Mamie never married at all.

And it is parents who unwittingly wreck the lives of their children by making them believe that they are Heaven-sent geniuses when, in reality, they have only a ghost of a talent.

In every child who can draw a crude picture that you recognize as a dog they see a great artist. Every little spindle-legged girl who can get up and recite a piece in school is a second Cornell.

Every little boy who can play a tune on a fiddle is another Yehudi Menuhin. Every lad who gets A in school on his compositions is destined to fill Arthur Brisbane's shoes.

Few Dreams Realized

And so the parents starve and toil to develop what they believe are their children's gifts, and the poor youngster's take mother's and father's word for it that they are geniuses. And then it turns out that the golden trumpets were only penny whistles, and we have always with us that pathetic army of embittered men and women who have tried to do the thing they couldn't do, and for whom there is no place in the world.

The proud old boast that in this country every boy might some day be President must have been originated by parents. It is a grand slogan, but it is a lying one, and it is a pity to teach it to children because it raises such false hopes in their breasts. Not every boy can be president, nor a great editor, nor financier, nor can every girl make a great marriage, or be a cinema queen

But every girl and boy can fill some respectable niche in the world. They can do good work and be useful citizens in their own spheres of activity.

And it is a pity that fathers and mothers do not spend more time helping their children to find their rightful places in life, instead of filling their heads with dreams that can never come true for them.

Son Has Right To Go His Way

Dear Miss Dix — I have an adopted son, 22 years old, to whom I am devoted. My whole life is wrapped up in him and now he has fallen in love with a girl and wants to marry her. Must I forbid him to do it? I feel it will kill me if I have to give him up and cannot have him with me all the time. Please tell me the easy way out.

DISTRESSED FATHER.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER—There is no easy way out, but there is a right way out for you, and that is to realize that your adopted son is a grown man and has a right to live his own life and to marry any decent girl he chooses. Your position is utterly unjust to the boy and your attitude an abnormal one.

King Edward Boys Win Bantam Title

Two of the South-End League championships were decided at Brock Street Rink last night, when the King Edward team grabbed off the Bantam title, and the Colts took the honors in the Midget division.

Owing to the fact that most of the players will be playing with the Peterborough O.J.H.A. team against Haliburton tonight, the Juvenile final was postponed.

It was a nip-and-tuck battle in the Bantam series game. The King Edward team started with a one-goal lead obtained in the first game of the series and they managed to carry it through last night's battle which wound up in a 3 to 3 tie. The youngsters battled all the way and there was little to choose between the two teams. They were as well-matched as the score indicates, King Edward taking the round by 5 to 4. The teams:

King Edward.—Goal, Zavitz; defence, VanNest, Harrison; centre, Doughty; wings, McNaught, Darling; subs, McDougall, Lester, Ellis.

Canucks.—Goal, McDonald; defence, Dugan, Connolly; centre, Legros; wings, Crebar, Giardino; subs, Mortimer, McDonald Laplane, Daley.

Referee—Chimenti.

The Colts won the Midget title by a wider margin. They started out last night with a one-goal lead on the Royals and went on to increase their margin, taking last night's fixture by 3 goals to 1, an edge of three goals on the round. They earned that margin on their agrressive play last night. The first period was scoreless, but Colts scored twice in the second period against one by the Royals and came back with another in the third stanza. The teams:

Colts.—Goal, Dorset; defence, J. White, Edgar; centre, Hill; wings, Hill, Meredith; subs, Clark Outram, Dundas, Courtbey Murphy.

Royals—Goal, Leether; defence, Menzies, Wade; centre, Dorrell; wings, White and Barardi; subs, Giardino, Martell, Kidd, Carter, O'Brien.

Referee—Chimenti.

Where Twelve Firemen Died In Theatre Blaze

Twelve firemen died and 21 others were injured in Brockton, Mass., as fire swept the Strand theatre in the heart of the Brockton business district. The victims were fighting flames both on and below the theatre balcony when the roof collapsed. The men were trapped in the wreckage and were crushed and burned to death. ABOVE photo made from roof of the theatre through a gaping hole shows wreckage of the balcony. At LOWER RIGHT men may be seen digging for bodies.

24 Rinks Enter Play For Canada Packers Trophy

Near perfect ice conditions greeted the 96 curlers who gathered at the Peterborough Curling Rink today to compete for the handsome Canada Packers trophy in the annual bonspiel of the same name, and outside rinks were well represented.

Play commenced at 9.30 this morning with ten rinks in the first draw and play in the second round was started by noon, with keen competition all along the line. The winners will be named late tonight.

The mild weather over the weekend had Herb Martin worried, but the temperature dropped steadily on Monday night and yesterday and the ice was given the finishing touches for the big 'spiel.

Last year there were 24 rinks entered, and the same number are playing again this year. From the newly formed curling club at Oakwood, there are two teams appearing in open bonspiel play for the first time. The rinks are skipped by R. C. Barry and W. E. Weldon. Other centres represented are Toronto, Colborne, Dunsford, Cobourg, Lindsay, Bobcaygeon, Fenelon Falls, and Campbellford.

The big trophy and first prizes went to a rink skipped by J. T. Braund in 1940, but this year the veteran is not piloting a rink in the play.

United States aid-for-Britain program will prove a futile gesture against Nazi U-boats and bombers.

Italians Need Bolstering

There is an espect of that indicated Nazi strategy which is not without its risks for Berlin. Any drop in the weekly rate of tonnage losses inflicted would imply a failure of the campaign to strangle Britain.

It seems possible that Nazi U-boat crews were ordered to undertake their stepped-up campaign regardless of waether or other adverse conditions in order to prevent Balkan neutrals from being swayed by completion of the American help bill. There is some indication of a falling off in the Nazi sea attack since the week covered by the British statement.

The forthcoming visit of Japanese Foreign Minister Matsuoka to Berlin and Rome was quickly seized upon by Italian press commentators, who hinted at early Japanese moves in the Pacific calculated to impede American efforts to aid Britain. It is a matter of some significance that it is from Rome, not Berlin, that such predictions come. Italian commentators are obviously seizing at any straw to bolster Italian morale with the notion that somebody is coming quickly to Italy's help.

Eighteen Teams Still In Hunt For West's Crown

(By the Canadian Press.)

Eighteen hockey teams were left in the Western Canada hunt for hockey honors today, nine in the Junior division for the Abbott Cup won last year by the now defunct Kenora Thistles, and the same number for the Patton Cup for Seniors, being defended by Calgary stampeders.

After the only three games last night, one Junior sextet—Port William Hurricane Rangers—was left by the wayside. The Senior race also was reduced by one when Thunder Bay League officials ruled Geraldton Gold Miners out of the League final for refusing to play the fifth and deciding game of a three-of-five series with Port Arthur Bearcats who had virtually cinched the title.

Port Arthur had won two games and two ended in draws but Geraldton refused to finish the series unless referees were changed. The league, however, could find nothing wrong with the officiating.

The Bearcats meanwhile took a lead in the Northwestern Ontario Senior finals, defeating Fort Frances Maple Leafs 4-2 a few hours after the Thunder Bay League made its ruling. The second of a best-of-three series will be played at Port Arthur Thursday.

Another Lakehead sextet, Port Arthur West Ends advanced to the Thunder Bay League finals against their city rivals, the Juniors, by trimming Fort William Hurricane Rangers 6-2 last night and sweeping the best-of-three semi-finals 2-0.

In Manitoba, East Kildonan Bisons dropped a hard-fought 6-5 decision to St. Boniface Athletics in the north division Junior final tying their best-of-five series 2-2. The winner will meet Winnipeg Rangers in the provincial final.

Obituary

MR. J. J. CLARKE

BETHANY, March 12 (ENS) — The passing of the late Mr. J. J. Clarke in the early morning hours at his home, on Wednesday, March 5th, has removed another of Manvers finest and most highly esteemed citizens.

He had been a resident farmer at Ballyduff during his married life, retiring from farm labor about eleven years ago, to reside in the city of Peterborough for six months. He removed to Bethany and built his bungalow on Front street West.

He was employed as tax collector until last year, when he was forced to rest owing to extreme ill health.

Mr. Clarke was in his 72nd year. Eldest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Clarke. He is survived by his widow, formerly Ada Wilson of Lifford, and one son, Dr. John Clarke, honor graduate of Queen's Medical College, Kingston; and three brothers, William Clarke of Ballyduff, Dr. Wesley Clarke, Peterborough and Dr. Robert Clarke of Bowmanville. The late Mr. Clarke was a staunch Conservative and a life-long member of Ballyduff Presbyterian church, where he served faithfully as organist for over thirty years, until his health prevented his constant attendance.

A short service was held at the residence on Friday, Rev. Mr. Harding of the United church reading the lesson. Rev. Mr. Mason conducted prayers of the Anglican church.

Interment was made at Ballyduff cemetery with service in the church, when Dr. Barr of St. Paul's Presbyterian church gave the address on these words, "Blessed are the Pure in Heart."

Rev. Mr. Kennedy, pastor of the Ballyduff charge and Rev. Patterson of Omemee also assisted.

Pallbearers were Dr. Hamilton, Mr. McKinnon, Mr. Henry Ward, Walter Rowland, Harry Preston and Walter Price

The floral offerings, numbering fifteen, were carried by intimate friends, to place on the casket.

BOY FIREBOMB SQUAD

NORTHOLT, England—(CP). — Buying steel helmets and other equipment with their own money, twelve 15-year-old boys formed an efficient and youngest-in-England firebomb and fire-fighting squad.

Federal, state and municipal governments will unite in improving Dolores Hidalgo, cradle of Mexican independence.

For Lady Tweedsmuir

This bronze bust of the late Lord Tweedsmuir, executed by Suzanne Silvercruys, was recently unveiled in the British building in New York. It is the property of Lady Tweedsmuir and was started in Ottawa before the late Governor-General's death. It shows him as John Buchan, novelist and man of letters, whose books made him world-famous before he became Governor-General of the Dominion.

Manvers Farm Home Is Damage By Fire

LIFFORD LINE, March 12 (ENS) —The large stone homestead owned by Mr. and Mrs. John Kerr, Eighth Line of Manvers, narrowly escaped complete demolition by fire on Monday at the noon hour.

Mr. Kerr was choring at his barn previous to dinner when he espied flames emerging from the roof of his home. He had just completed cleaning his stovepipes and chimney before going to the barn, He rushed to the flames while Mrs. Kerr sounded the fire alarm by telephone and soon a large number of neighbouring helpers arrived with ladders, pails, etc., and by working energetically managed to extinguish the flames.

The fire had spread to the rafters of the house where considerable chopping had to be done in order to reach concealed fire.

the lad which makes him all in all to you, but he does not feel that way about you. He wants companionship of his own age. And you are wrong to try to deny it to him.

Many parents are violently opposed to their children marrying because it will bring about a separation between them, but in this they are wrong. The parents' love never satisfies the children as the children's love satisfies the parents. The young have need of new ties, fresh interests, other affections.

So accept the inevitable and bind your adopted son still closer to you by recognizing his right to love and marriage, even as you had.

Some Sport Shorts From Britain

LONDON, March 12—(CP)—Pilot Officer Lou Barry, English professional sculling champion in 1936, is reported missing. Barry, whose brother Bert is a former world champion, won the English title from Ted Phelps, losing it three months later to Ted's brother Eric.

British sports writers took "Big Bill" Tilden to task for his reported statement in New York that "amateur lawn tennis is finished."

Bruce Harris, London Evening Standard tennis reporter, asked "has Bill Tilden glanced at the Wimbledon Championship lists lately?"

"He would find there the words 'no competition' printed against the years 1915-18. Yet in the seasons immediately after the war lawn tennis had its biggest boom....If we have to fall back on play-for-fun tennis here for a year or so while recovering from present experiences, what matter? Games ought to be played for fun. That's why they were invented."

Danny Davies, associated with boxing for the last 40 years, and manager for Joe Beckett when the Welshman won the British heavyweight championship, is dead. He was 60.

U.S. Seeks Her Own Tungsten Supply

Most of the tungsten used in the U.S. for such essentials as metallurgy and electric light filaments comes from the Orient, and the supply would be jeopardized by a Pacific war. Experiments are being conducted in Bloomfield, N.J., to free the U.S. of this dependence. Indicating progress, here is a vat of pure oxide extracted from American ore.

DRESS UP—IT'S SPRING!

Head Into Spring with New Sensations from Character Clothes Shoppe

A season of superb simplicity—pastel daytime dresses delightfully feminine with yokes, pockets, lingerie touches and jackets. ENGAGEMENT

The engagement has been announced of Lenore, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Blade of Ottawa, formerly of Peterborough, to Hawely H., only son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Tresidder of Ottawa. Wedding to take place the latter part of March.

DIED

PLUNKETT, John George. — Tuesday, March 11, 1941, at his residence, 237 Prince street, Peterborough, John George Plunkett in his 68th year. Funeral from his late residence on Friday, March 14, at 2.30 D.S.T. Interment, Fife's Cemetery.

EDWARDS. Mrs. Mark.—In Peterborough, on Wednesday, March 12, 1941, at Queen Mary Hospital, Mary Elizabeth Brown, wife of Mark Edwards, in her 51st year. Service was held this afternoon at 4 p.m., from the Arthur W. Bellegheim Funeral Home, 611 George street north, by the Rev. E. C. Moore of St. Matthew's Anglican Church, Young's Point. Interment, Little Lake Cemetery.

IN MEMORIAM

MILLER.—In loving memory of George Loomis Miller, who died three years ago to-day in his 26th year.

Just when his days seemed brightest,
Just when his hopes seemed best
God called him from amongst us
To His eternal rest.
Sadly missed, but God knows best.
—Ever remembered by his Family.

BUCHANAN.—In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Mrs. Robert Buchanan, who passed away March 12, 1937.

The happy hours we once enjoyed,
How sweet their memory still;
But death has left a vacant place
The world can never fill.
But how joyful is the hope that lingers
For those who trust in Him
That we, when earth's toils are ended shall meet
Our loved ones, in our Father's home.
—Lovingly remembered by Husband and Daughters.

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. W. W. Cole and family, of 587 Downie street, wish to thank the many friends who were so kind during their recent sad bereavement.

Mrs. S. D. Carver and family wish to thank attending doctor, nurses, and Rev. Dr. Easton for kindnesses shown, also all those who sent flowers, cards of sympathy and helped in any way during their recent sad bereavement.

It's Wise for June Bride to Budget Wedding Now

Will It Be Formal or Informal?

The most perfect day of your life! That's what your wedding day can be, with every detail of dress, etiquette planned ahead.

Of course the first thing to decide is whether the wedding shall be formal or informal.

Perhaps you've dreamed of being the traditional formal bride. You would love to walk up the aisle in shimmering satin, carrying a bouquet or prayerbook—with a long, long veil floating cloudily behind you. Then do, but all else must be formal, too.

If the ceremony's in the afternoon, HE will be handsome and correct in cutaway and striped trousers. If in the evening, he will wear white tie and tails.

But perhaps you prefer and can best afford to be informal, to wed in a smart suit or afternoon dress, with hat, corsage and gloves. Then your debonair groom wears a business suit.

How to divide wedding costs? What is the etiquette of the ceremony, the reception? Our 32-page booklet tells whose family pays for what, helps you plan and budget your wedding.

Send 15c in coins or stamps for your copy of PLANNING AND BUDGETING YOUR WEDDING to Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

"The Authority on Authorities"

USE YOUR OWN TRUMPS

ORDINARILY you do not wish to waste trumps of the longer trump holding in ruffing, as you would like to use those of the shorter holding opposite. But there are times when the smaller trumps of the master hand figure to be worthless for any other purpose, since one opponent is marked as holding a string of somewhat higher trumps. In those cases, your only chance to take tricks with the little cards is by ruffing leads of other suits.

Three club leads came in quick succession, South deciding to ruff the third. He counted up his tricks. Two in spades, two in hearts, two high ones in diamonds made six in sight. Three more were needed. One ruff of clubs and one of spades would make eight, and he ought to be able to get the ninth by making West lead trumps to him once at the end, thereby building his diamond J into a trick.

So after ruffing the third club, he cashed the spade A and K, ruffed a spade with the diamond 6, took his heart tops and led a third heart to East's J. This left both South and West with four trumps. East led his sole diamond. South played the 9, and West was licked right there. If he ducked this, the two high trumps would make the winning tricks. He actually took it with the 10 and returned his 8, the J winning and the two trump tops completing the contract.

If South had not led that third heart, he could not have made the contract, for West could have exited after getting in by leading a heart to South, forcing the latter to ruff and end-playing him instead of West.

R.A.F. OPENS UP ON BERLIN IN GREAT AIR OFFENSIVE

Waterway Pact Almost Ready Rumor Bare Majority To Be Required In Congress

Engineers Now Upon Final Power Check; No Action In Canada Till U.S. Approves; Once Ratified Construction To Be Swift

OTTAWA, March 13—(CP).—One or more Washington officials are expected in Ottawa within a few days to go over the proposed agreement on the St. Lawrence seaway and power project, it was stated at External Affairs today.

Information here tends to confirm an Associated Press despatch from Washington that the agreement is well advanced and almost ready for signature. Officials here said the changes which United States officials and officials here would check were exceedingly minor.

John Read of External Affairs, as legal adviser for the Canadian Government, will meet the Washington representative and will call on other members of the Canadian committee before any changes are made.

Guy A. Lindsay of the Transport Department is chairman of the Canadian committee and the other members in addition to Mr. Read are Thomas H. Hogg, chairman of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, and Olivier Lefebvre, vice-chairman of the Quebec Streams Commission.

The Washington committee is composed of Leland Olds, chairman of the Federal Power Commission, chairman; A. A. Berle, Assistant Secretary of State; Brig.-Gen. Thomas N. Robins, United States army engineer, and Gerald V. Cruise representing the New York State power authority.

Hydro's Share Agreed

Dominion and Ontario officials held recent conferences at which it is understood, an agreement was practically reached as between the Dominion and the Province under which the Hydro will obtain Canada's share of the power developed in the International Rapids extending from Prescott to Cornwall, Ont.

Dr. Hogg, who represents Ontario on the committee is ill, and his place is being taken by John Dibble, Dr. Hogg's chief assistant, and H. J. McNulty, Ontario's legal representative in Ottawa.

The Washington report expressed the belief that the seaway and power development will be carried out under an agreement which would require a bare majority in both houses of Congress instead of a two-thirds majority which would require a two-thirds majority of the United States Senate.

The old waterways agreement presented in 1934 failed to get a two-thirds vote in the United States Senate and therefore was defeated. At that time Canada took the position it would await action by the United States Congress before asking ratification by the Canadian Parliament.

Axis Fleet Tops U.S. Navy Congress Told

WASHINGTON, Mar. 13—(AP).—The Secretary of the United States Navy, Col. Frank Knox, told the House of Representatives Appropriations Committee in testimony made public to-day that the German, Italian and Japanese fleets comprised 1,835,000 tons as of last January 1, compared with 1,250,000 tons of the United States. Acquisition of the French fleet would swell the Axis strength.

Col. Knox said in testimony on the American Navy's Supply Bill for the coming fiscal year that major units of the two-ocean fleet under construction would not be completed until 1946-47. He added that the U.S. is confronted with these two possible developments:

"1. The defeat of Great Britain in the near future, leaving us to face the united strength of the Axis powers on a two-ocean front.

"2. The possibility of Japan becoming an active participant as a belligerent in the Far East on the side of the Axis.

'It is obviously to our interest to prevent either of these possibilities from becoming realities as it is probable they would result in the United States becoming involved in a war."

The policy of aiding Britain, he added, is a major step toward meeting the problem.

Admiral Harold R. Stark, Chief of Naval Operations, reminded the committee that while "no one can predict with accuracy the turn of events," requests undoubtedly arise in excess of the $3,358,732,186 sought to carry on the huge naval expansion program during the year starting July 1.

No Further Expansion

Both Col. Knox and Admiral Stark told the committee, however, that no further expansion of the fleet beyond that already under contract is contemplated.

US To Take Over 300 Million UK War Orders

WASHINGTON, Mar. 13—(AP).—A high administration official disclosed to-day that the Army and Reconstruction Finance Corporation are negotiating to take over between $300,000,000 and $350,000,000 worth of British war contracts and factories in the United States.

The official, who declined to be quoted by name but spoke to reporters in order, he said, to clear up some misapprehensions about what was happening, said the program "in no way means that the British will be relieved of the remainder of their obligations in this country."

He explained that the negotiations probably would cut Britain's war obligations, however, between 20 and 25 per cent., indicating total obligations for weapons and other war materials were about $1,500,000,000.

The official added that since the United States, under the Lease-Lending Bill, would provide all new weapons desired by Britain, that country was expected to pay for remaining contracts placed with American manufacturers before the bill was passed.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation, he explained, intended to buy through its subsidiary, the Defence Plant Corporation, British-owned munitions factories in the United States.

The Army, he said, is seeking to take over British contracts with American manufacturers for war materials useful to the United States Army, but only in cases where Britain had made a down payment on the contract. In these cases, he said, Britain had paid approximately 25 per cent of the eventual cost already.

However, if the Army fulfills this plan, it probably will take over the full cost of the contracts and thus enable the manufacturers to reimburse Britain for the down payments made.

Aid Bill Recalls 25 Cannon Sent Carolina To Fight French

OTTAWA, March 13 (CP)—President Roosevelt's signing of the lease-lend bill to aid Britain resulted today in disclosure of details of a British-American agreement reached 142 years ago under which the flow of arms and munitions was in the opposite direction.

Documents on the arrangement whereby 25 cannon and nearly 2,000 shot were made available by Britain in 1799 for defence of the United States were uncovered several months ago, said Dr. Gustave Lanctot, Dominion archivist.

But, he added, they weren't made public then "for fear it might be misconstrued as propaganda." Now that the lease-lend bill making available to Britain large quantities of war materials was United States law, it was possible to disclose their contents.

The documents, from Nova Scotia records now in the Dominion archives, show that King George III first loaned and later gave the guns and shot to South Carolina to strengthen the defences of Charleston.

The incident took place when there was general alarm over French aggression in 1789 and United States ships carrying supplies for Britain were constantly being stopped on the high seas and their cargoes confiscated by the French.

Timothy Pickering, United States' Secretary of State, started the ball rolling in June, 1789. He remembered that King George II. had given "a parcel of iron 24 pounders" which had been captured from the French ship Foudroyant, to the former British colony. During the American revolution they were retaken by the British at Charleston and transported to Halifax.

Pickering wrote authorities in London and Halifax explaining that the cannon would have to have shot especially cast for them since they would not take English shot, and suggested "that they might be sold, or loaned—or given—South Caro-

Hitler Sees 1870 Repeated

Harps On Benefits Victory To Bring Austria

LINZ, Germany, March 13 (AP)—A boast by Hitler that the war will end with a Nazi victory insuring plans for "a greater Germany" sounded the keynote for ceremonies today commemorating the third anniversary of the seizure of his native Austria by the Reich.

The Fuehrer made the boast in an unheralded speech as he arrived here last night to take part in the celebration.

Recalling what he called the "tremendous success" Germany achieved in the war of 1870, Hitler declared "the end of today's struggle will not differ a hair's breadth."

"The hour of our final victory will come," he shouted, whereupon

Poles Even Up

London, March 13 (CP Cable)

THE Polish telegraphic agency reported today that Igo Sym, Polish film actor and producer who had collaborated with the Germans was mysteriously killed last week in his Warsaw apartment.

As a result of the killing, the agency said, Poles in Warsaw were forbidden to organize shows, concerts or entertainments in Warsaw for a month.

The Gestapo also took a number of Poles into custody and announced they would be shot unless the slayer of Sym surrenders.

Night Fighters Bag Hun In Own Back Yard

LONDON, Mar. 13 — (CP). — British night fighters attack German bombers on their own back yard, over the air fields in occupied countries from which Nazi raiders direct their operations against Great Britain.

Flying Officer D. A. Willans, recently awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross for night fighter operations, told of a combat over France with a Dornier 17. His account was reported by the Air Ministry News Service.

Willans saw the Dornier trying to land at an airdrome and attacked at 2,000 feet with bursts from 30 yards range. His bullets went wide so he dived again, attacking on the port side with incendiary bullets.

"I saw a flash from the enemy machine so I broke away," Willans said. "He went down and crashed well short of the aerodrome flare path. One engine of the machine cut out just then so I concentrated on getting back. There was no cloud, no moon and it was very dark, but I just managed to make it."

Night fighting was rather terrifying at first, the 20-year-old pilot said, "but now I would not change my job."

Searchlights helped Willans in his first combat, when he met a Heinkel III over Norwich and probably destroyed it.

" first saw the Hun held in a concentration of searchlights," he said, "and chased him for five minutes. He dodged the lights and I lost him, but picked him up again after I had seen incendiaries burst below. One beam caught him again and I saw clearly that he was an HE-111.

"I made one attack which met with a certain amount of return fire from the upper and lower guns, and then had another crack at him. All at once his firing ceased. To make sure I let him have another burst and went underneath him.

Night Fighters To Fill The Sky

LONDON, March 13 —(CP)—Informed sources said Britain is prepared to fill the skies with night fighting planes.

Raiders who attacked the Liverpool area last night were said to have been kept at "terrific heigh" by the defence. They dropped numerous flares and hundreds of incendiaries and high explosive bombs, observers declared. In parts of the city, burned out bombs were found in nearly every street.

Casualties were reported to be "not unduly heavy," however, and transportation facilities this morning were described as normal.

One heavy bomb lodged on the roof of a Merseyside school and 250 persons were removed from an adjoining shelter. The bomb exploded a short time later, bringing down the school and nearby property. Policemen and wardens assigned there were missing.

Several auxiliary fire watchers were killed when a heavy bomb burst in the centre of a fire. A number of persons were trapped in the wreckage of a tenement building.

Il Duce Takes To Field

Gives His Generals Till Saturday To "Do Something"

ATHENS, March 13 (AP)—Dispatches from the Albanian front today said that the large scale offensive presumably ordered by Mussolini himself from field headquarters had failed before powerful Greek resistance.

An earlier report said that Mussolini had given his generals until Saturday to "do something."

The Italians, dispatches from the front said, have been unable to gain a single inch of ground and in the last six days their losses unofficially have been placed at more than 10,000, including 2,000 dead. These figures do not cover the 3,500 prisoners listed by the Greeks.

A Greek spokesman said captured Italian officers reported Mussolini has been in Albania almost a week to bolster the morale of his troops, and himself had orderer the recent ferocious series of attacks on the central front, attacks which the Greeks reported smashed over a 12-mile sector in four days of bloody fighting.

The captives, the spokesman added, said Mussolini had told "his generals he would be leaving Saturday, by which date he expects they will do something." The penalty of failure was not given.

Greek army circles said the accelerated attacks—described as the heaviest of the war and apparently centred around the vital Tepeleni area—cost the Italians heavily in manpower. The spokesman said the battlefield was strewn with dead and wounded Fascist soldiers.

A High Command communique last night said 200 more Italian prisoners had been taken.

Greek descriptions of the Fascist attacks indicated Italians used more manpower than at any previous time since the war began last October 28.

The Greek Marine Ministry charged last night that an Italian bomber had attacked a loaded hospital ship "which already had been announced to the Italian Government as such and was bearing the regular Red Cross sign."

A communique said the plane dropped three bombs near the ship Socrates off the Islet of Sessoulo, near Levkas. The bombs, Greek authorities said, fell less than 60 yards astern and fragments caused slight damage to the deck.

RAF Air Torpedo Blows Up Destroyer In Skagerrak

LONDON, March 13—(CP).—The Air Ministry news service reported today that a British plane torpedoed a German destroyer in the Skagerrak last night.

The plane's crew reported that it was too dark to see whether the German warship was sunk, but said that she ceased firing after the torpedo exploded.

The Skagerrak lies between Norway and Denmark and is part of the gateway between the Baltic and North Seas.

The rear gunner of the attacking plane—a Beaufort—said the flash when the torpedo exploded was "as big as a house."

FRENCHMEN fighting with the Free French forces are simply soldiers of honor carrying on the work for which they were originally mobilized—the defeat of Germany, Captain George d'Argenlieu said last night at a meeting organized in his honor by the Army and Navy Veterans' Association.

"For we soldiers the program is straightforward," said Capt. d'Argenlieu, a member of the Free French Imperial War Council. "We were mobilized for a single purpose: to make war on Germany and win. We are resolved never to stop fighting as long as there is a German on French soil."

2 Air Collisions Kill Three; One Is Missing

MONCTON, N.B., March 13.—(CP)—Body of Pilot Officer C. Gillard, killed when a Royal Canadian Air Force training plane crashed about 10 miles from Moncton yesterday, was found and brought here today.

Gillard was found dead in the cabin of his crashed ship in the Meadowbrook area of Westmoreland County.

LAC. D. C. Code, who had been with Gillard, was seriously injured. Squadron Leader B. D. Harrop, acting officer in command of the air training school here, said Code had a good chance for recovery.

Gillard originally came from Vancouver and was attached to the Moncton training school. His wife is residing here. Code came from Bounty, Sask., where his father, W. H. Code, lives.

Three men had been in the plane. LAC. J. Patton, Islington, Ont., was able to bail out and escaped uninjured.

Meanwhile, a second R.C.A.F. training ship which crashed at about the same time yesterday was sighted from the air today by pilots of ski-equipped planes.

The men were piloting Avro-Anson twin-engined airplanes in formation flying during training at the No. 4 Service Flying Training School of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan when the mishap occurred.

New Bombers Smash 3 Cities As Aid Bill Lifts Lid Lets British Go "All Out"

Record Bag Of Nine Over Merseyside; New Weapon In Use

Biggest Aerial Bombs Light Flames Over Hun Capital

LONDON, Mar. 13 — (CP). — British defence forces set a new one-night record by shooting down at least nine German bombers last night in a "large scale" attack centred on Merseyside, important shipping area concentrated at Liverpool.

A communique appeared to hint at a new defensive weapon in stating that the German bombers were harassed by fighters, anti-aircraft guns and "other devices" which were described as "very active."

The nature of the "other devices" was not indicated, but they were considered to be something other than barrage balloons.

German raiders over London last night and early to-day were greeted by a thunderous barrage unlike anything previously heard from the regular anti-aircraft weapons.

The Government compared the raid on the Liverpool area with the heavy assaults directed against Britain last fall, but added:

"On this occasion the damage and casualties bore no relation to the scale of the attack and very little was achieved beyond serious damage to a number of private houses."

The German air force took advantage of a full moon and clear weather to range widely over England and in addition to Liverpool struck at London, towns in the Midlands, East Anglia, and in the south-west and south-east.

Fighters Get Five.

The Air Ministry news service said night fighter were known to have downed five of the nine German bombers bagged last night and added they "probably destroyed several more."

"The deadliness of our night fighters in combat is proved by the fact that in most cases they shot the raiders down in flames with only one burst from their guns," the news service said.

Twin-engined Bristol Beaufighters were credited with two, a Hurricane with one, and Defiants of a squadron said to have bagged 37 German planes in one day over Dunkirk without loss were credited with two more.

The total of nine shot down topped the best previous mark of seven—achieved twice before, last Tuesday night and on June 18, 1940, when night bombing of Britain began.

London had three alarms during the night. Light damage and few casualties weer reported in the capital.

Two crewmen of downed German bombers were captured, one surrendering to a waiting cottager when he parachuted to earth.

GREAT NAZI ASSAULT

LONDON, Mar. 13 — (CP). — Swarming over the Continent from Boulogne to Berlin and from the Low Countries to Norway, the Royal Air Force has launched its greatest offensive of the war.

British planes sped across the English Channel this afternoon to follow up "very successful" raids yesterday and last night on Berlin, industrial plants at Bremen, naval shipbuilding yards at Hamburg, airdromes in Norway, and the Netherlands, docks at Boulogne and shipping at IJmuiden, the Netherlands, and at Ostend, Belgium.

With new and more powerful bombers thrown into the assault, a well-placed source declared to-day that as a result of passage of the United States British Aid Bill, "we are now able to launch a really offensive war."

Britain, he added, is in a position to open up with everything she has because she does not have to worry now about where she is to get more war equipment or how she is going to pay for it.

"We were not able to risk exhausting our reserves before because we had quite frankly reached the point where we just didn't have the money for replacing on a cash-and-carry basis," the informant added. "It kept us penuriously defensive."

Need More U.S. Bombers Yet.

Big flights of United States-made Consolidated and four-motored Boeing bombers to help British short Stirlings and Avro-Manchesters in heavy long-range bombing, a well-placed source said, would enable the R.A.F. to spread its attacking area.

This spread, he said, besides increasing the effectiveness of the raids, is expected also to force the Germans to disperse their anti-aircraft defences.

Heretofore the Nazis were able to concentrate their guns — and the informant said they had many more than Britain, especially at first — around points liable to be attacked.

Britain's own light fighters are using new weapons in defensive warfare and her barrages are operated on a shotgun system of concentrating a pattern of shells in heavy coordinating fire.

There is a new balloon barrage described as 'lethal."

The British bomber offensive against Germany's home front was viewed by observers as strengthening indirectly the British Middle East forces.

Several "new and more powerful" types of planes were used in the attack on Berlin—first raid on the German-Jew Nazi Favorite

Once Scum, Now Patronized In France, They Speak Teuton

By LEON EDEL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

NEW YORK, March 13—(CP). — Piecing together stories from Frenchmen newly-arrived from occupied and non-occupied France, interesting light is thrown on the position of the German refugees. Protestants, Catholics and Jews who were forced to leave the Reich and found themselves, in France, once again under the heel of Nazism.

Curiously enough, so far their predicament while painful has had its humorous side, particularly in the case of certain Jewish refugees.

Able to speak German, and having familiarized themselves with France, they were greeted fraternally by German troops—someone to talk German to and do business with.

The Nazis put up big signs over Jewish - owned stores indicating them to be non-Aryan—and then proceeded to patronize those stores in large numbers.

At first French citizens, seeing the anti-Jewish signs, tended to flock to the establishments as a note of defiance against the invaders.

Then, when they saw the Germans flocking to these stores, they boycotted them. In the process, however, the stores did quite a thriving business.

This has been one of the curious anomalies of the occupation. There are others.

In order to eliminate possible spies and to keep close tally of the French population the German military ordered French authorities to re-register the population. All foreigners, and non-French elements, had to receive cards.

German refugees waited in long lines outside French prefectures day after day, but the French were in no hurry to give them the necessary identification papers. There was interminable red tap involved.

The German military authorities considered this a slight to the Reich. German refugees, they ordered, deserve prompt attention.

Hun Skipper Ignores War

Visits N.Z. As 'Neutral' With Girl Crew—Jailed

AUCKLAND, N.Z., March 13 (CP) —A vessel with a German captain and owner sailed into Napier, New Zealand, harbor a few days ago as if there was no war. The rest of the crew was equally remarkable, consisting of one New Zealand girl.

The vessel is the 32-foot ketch Te Rapunga, in which its owner and master, Capt. George Dibbern, has been sailing round the Pacific for 10 years.

Dibbern is well known in New Zealand. By a coincidence he was farming in New Zeal l when the last war broke out and was interned here.

Offer Prairie Farmers Bonus To Cut Wheat Output Compensation of $4 an Acre

Expect To Be Able To Handle 230,000,000 Bus. For Export And Domestic Use; Will Maintain 70-Cent Initial Payment

OTTAWA, March 13—(CP).—Prairie wheat farmers were faced today with inducements to cut their spring planting to meet the reduced marketing possibilities and a promise compensation from the Federal Government if they summerfallow surplus wheat acreage or seed it to coarse grains.

The long-awaited wheat policy was announced yesterday in the House of Commons by Trade Minister MacKinnon whose responsibility is marketing and by Agriculture Minister Gardiner who has jurisdiction over production.

Mr. MacKinnon told the House the maximum deliveries to any marketing agency this year would be 230,000,000 bushels, the total which it was estimated could be absorbed for export and domestic use.

To meet this situation Mr. Gardiner announced, farmers who summerfallow part of their normal wheat acreage will receive a bonus of $4 an acre, and for wheat land sown to coarse grains, $2 an acre.

The two statements were made without comment just before the House resumed consideration of Finance Minister Ilsley's resolution on the $1,300,000,000 war appropriation bill.

They were followed by a speech on Government activities looking toward maintenance of harmonious labor relations, delivered by Labor Minister McLarty, discussion on a war plant in Winnipeg and a defence of the Government's aircraft production administration.

Eloquent tribute to the United States people for their move to aid the British Commonwealth as exemplied in the lease-lend bill was paid by Prime Minister Mackenzie King and Opposition Leader Hanson before the House took up the business of the day.

Retain 70 Cent Level

Wheat was the highlight of the afternoon and both ministers were given close attention, particularly by Western members. Mr. MacKinnon said the initial payment of 70 cents a bushel would be continued by the wheat board and the system of paying farmers for home storage would continue.

He forecast a 575,000,000-bushel carryover at July 31—end of the present crop year—and said another bumper crop next fall would bring the wheat stocks to 1,000,000,000 bushels while available storage was only 582,000,000 bushels.

Mr. Gardiner said the objective was reduced acreage but the government would not force it. The system of compensation for summer fallow or coarse grains would put

In spite of his claims, the Te Rapunga was sealed by the Customs authorities at Napier and authorities decided to intern Dibbern.

After some consideration in London, instructions were sent to Sir John Wentworth, Lieutenant-Governor of Nova Scotia, and to Prince Edward of Kent, father of Queen Victoria and commander-in-chief of the king's troops in Nova Scotia, to lend the guns to the United States, together with the 1,800 shot.

In the transfer it was discovered that there were 25 cannon and a surplus of 76 shot. These extra shot were also turned over.

In January, 1799, the British Minister at Washington, Robert Liston, was informed that King George III, upon hearing of the arrangement, had suggested that it was his wish that the guns and shot be considered a gift, "as a testimony of friendship towards the United States."

Britain Closes Red Sea's South Outlet

LONDON, March 13 (CP)—The Admiralty announced today that the small Strait of Bab El Mandeb at the southern end of the Red Sea is "dangerous to navigation."

The Admiralty statement said:—"The Admiralty give notice that the small Strait of Bab El Mandeb is dangerous to navigation and that all vessels passing between the Red Sea and the Gulf of Aden should proceed by way of the large strait. Vessels which disregard this warning do so at their risk and peril."

Closure of the small strait leaves the navy only one channel to watch to prevent any Italian ships in the Red Sea from escaping into the open ocean as the land pressure in Eritrea increases, observers said.

The Admiralty declined to disclose how it blocked the small channel between Perim Island the Arabian coast, but probably used mines.

Bab El Mandeb is divided by the British island of Perim. The small strait, to the northeast, is about two miles wide. The large strait ranges from nine to 16 miles in width. Navigators commonly have used the small strait, since it is a shorter and more direct route.

The large strait is adjacent to Italian territory in East Africa and to French Somaliland.

The island of Dumeira, ceded to Italy by the French in 1925, is 16 miles northwest of Perim and there were unconfirmed reports as much as two years ago that the Italians were fortifying it.

John O'Reilly Dies In 84th Year

WARKWORTH, Mar. 13—(ENS). The death of John O'Reilly occurred at his late residence on Tuesday afternoon, March 11. Although he had been in poor health for the past few months, his death came as a great shock.

Mr. O'Reilly, who was in his 84th year, is a son of the late Thomas O'Reilly and Julia Butler, and was born at Brickley, where he spent his whole life. He was known as an honorable citizen and highly esteemed by his many neighbors and friends.

He served for a number of years on Percy Township Council, being Reeve in 1920.

Besides being a successful farmer he carried on a business as drover.

He is survived by his sorrowing wife, formerly Margaret Synons and one daughter Irene, one sister, Mrs. Philip Convey, and two brothers, James and Philip of Brickley.

The funeral is being held from the family residence on Friday morning, thence to St. Jerome's Catholic Church, where requiem mass will be sung at ten o'clock (standard time). Interment will be at Warkworth Roman Catholic Cemetery.

The War Today

By J. F. SANDERSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

The speed with which the United States appears willing to proceed with a vast program under the newly-signed "Lease-Lend" Bill to aid the democracies seems to have thrown the Axis into a considerable state of apprehension.

Combined with the lease-lend factor as a brewer of misgiving were hints from London that Britain had evolved a new anti-aircraft defence, reports from Africa of new successes by British forces and Greek reports of the repulse with huge losses of an Italian counter-attack, apparently spurred by Mussolini himself.

The Axis press cried out violently against President Roosevelt's action in asking for $7,000,000,000 to finance the lease-lend program, accusing the United States of all kinds of things. The neatest of these was a German assertion that, in reality, the United States knew Britain would be defeated but stood ready to pick up the pieces, supplant the British Commonwealth, and seek to cheat the Axis out of the fruits of victory.

The Japanese press indicated the government which calls the tune to which it pipes believes the United States program will result in a considerable increase in American aid to China.

The Germans said passage of the bill had been anticipated and therefore the final act was of no consequence to them. They also declared at the same time that its effects would be offset by a scheme which would make Russia the arsenal of the Axis. Their argument was that German factories in Russia would be protected by Russian neutrality.

If this statement was anything more than Nazi hot air it meant one or two things: It was either an unintentional admission that British air raids on German war industries are having a telling effect, or that Germany is assured Russia will remain neutral—or both.

The Italian press, after a two-day tirade of abuse, most of which was directed personally against Mr. Roosevelt, fell back on the argument that the United States would not be able to provide Britain with enough material to influence the outcome of the conflict.

It said nothing, however, of a British advance of 120 miles in two days on the Ethiopian town of Harar from which the British command is reported ready to cut the Djibouti-Addis Abaoa railway. Italians were said to be hastily constructing new fortifications, embarrassed by the fact that those they already possessed were faced the wrong way—apparently because it never occurred to them they might be attacked on their own territory of Italian Somaliland.

Germany was reminded of the increasing strength of the Royal Air Force by heavy night raids on Berlin, Hamburg and Bremen while nine German bombers were downed in raids over Britain which netted little damage. Observers in London reported a new kind of defence in operation which made a rumbling sound like heavy artillery rather than the sharp bark of regular anti-aircraft fire.

Community Fund Donations Are Allocated

Allocation of $104,800 of Peterborough's War Services and Community Fund, to which pledged contributions amount to $129,286.66, was made at a meeting of the executive committee with Judge S. L. Smoke presiding Monday night.

The designated allotments are as follows: Children's Aid Society, $2,000; Navy League of Canada, $2,000; St. Vincent's Orphanage, $1,300; Victorian Order of Nurses, $2,000; Canadian Institute of the Blind, $1,500; Y.M.C.A., $8,500 and Y.W.C.A., $7,500; total $24,800. This group comprises the community services for the assistance of which part of the fund was to be used.

Allotments in the war services section were made as follows: Canadian Red Cross Society $30,000 and Canadian National War Services $50,000, these two amounting to $80,000, and the combined total being $104,800.

The auxiliary agencies comprising the War Services are: Canadian Legion, Salvation Army, Y.M.C.A., Knights of Columbus, Y.W.C.A., and I.O.D.E.

Actual payments on account had previously been passed as follows: Y.M.C.A. $3,000, Victorian Order of Nurses $1,000, St. Vincent's Orphanage, $1,000.

It was reported that $68,000 of the pledged total of $129,286.66 has been received by the treasurer.

A resolution was passed authorizing payment of $25,000 to the Canadian National War Services about the third week in March, during the nation-wide campaign for which Peterborough has already completed its appeal. This preliminary contribution is being applied on the $50,000 allotted to the War Services.

Another resolution decided that 50 per cent of the amounts allocated to the participating organizations should be paid to them during the time of the national campaign, and that two further payments each of 25 per cent be made as funds are available from payments by the subscribers.

New Bombers

German capital since December 20.

Flames Rage in Berlin.

"Large ad numerous" fires were started in Berlin by the raiders using "very heavy bombs."

At Bremen direct hits were scored on "a target of great importance" in the industrail area of the city and at Hamburg "many fires and explosions" were started in shipyards and the industrial section

Five British planes were lost in these smashing blows, which the Air Ministry itself described as "the heaviest attack yet made on Germany."

"The attacks extended from Berlin to Boulogne," the official announcement said. "They were carried out by the light of the moon and were very successful.

"In addition to the older type of aircraft of the bomber command, several new and more powerful types were again in action and carried very heavy bombs."

(These may have included new four-motored United States-made bombers which have been flown across the Atlantic).

The fires started in Berlin were said to have been "especially numerous" in the neighborhood of railway yards.

At Hamburg, Germany's greatest port, the German naval shipyards and industrial district "received special attention."

One Fighter Downed

One Nazi fighter was destroyed over Germany while attempting to intercept the R.A.F. attackers.

Schipol airdrome, near Amsterdam, was also attacked, along with other targets in Northwest Germany and the low countries. Large fires were reported started among docks at Boulogne, one of the Nazi-held invasion ports on the French channel coast.

A large supply ship at anchor in the Netherlands harbor of Ijmuiden and other vessels at Ostend and an airdrome in Norway were among the R.A.F.'s targets.

The ministry of information, announcing last night's raids, said:—"It is learned that Berlin, Bremen and Hamburg were each heavily attacked by the Royal Air Force in bright moonlight.

"First reports show that many large fires broke out in Berlin. The industrial area of Bremen was set well alight. The target at Hamburg, situated in the dock area, was repeatedly hit by heavy bombs.

"During these attacks one of our aircraft extinguished searchlights by machine-gun fire and shot up a military barracks from a height of 50 feet.

"One Messerschmitt 110 which attempted to interfere with these operations was shot down.

The rumble of heavy explosions from the direction of the French coast was heard on the British side of Dover Strait late this morning, indicating British bombers possibly were attacking German-occupied territory.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Mar. 13 — (CP). — Moderate domestic and outside selling, plus absence of support, clipped as much as a cent from wheat futures prices during the first half hour of trading on Winnipeg Grain Exchange today.

With no export business in Canadian wheat reported and Chicago wheat values down a little, quotations gave way easily and at noon were 1⅞ cents down, May wheat at 77½, July at 79⅛ cents a bushel.

Speculative selling knocked four cents from flax prices in the initial 30 minutes, while rye quotations dropped a cent.

Yesterday's Quotations.

Guns From "Good Neighbor" Guard Brazilian Skies

"Good Neighbor" guns to guard Brazilian air are these anti-aircraft rifles of Brazil's first regiment of anti-aircraft artillery, shown lined up for inspection of Deodoro, Major Edgard Alves Maia, who headed Brazil's anti-aircraft defence instruction centre, is commanding officer of the new regiment. In addition to the guns, Brazil's air-defence program calls for a largely increased fleet of planes and pilots to fly them. Brazil will soon receive her third "mass delivery" of big bomber planes built for her by the United States.

Talk On Health Is Enjoyed By Millbrook WI

MILLBROOK, March 13—(ENS).—Mrs. H. A. Earle, convener of the standing committee on Health, had charge of the program for the March meeting of the Women's Institute held on Saturday at 2.30 p.m., at the home of Mrs. H. Seaton, with over forty members and visitors in attendance, and Mrs. E. C. Richards presiding for the business session.

The members of the Junior girls' club, "The Home Front Guard," were among the guests by special invitation, and their leader, Mrs. W. H. Armstrong, with some of the girls, assisted in the service of refreshments.

The special business concerned plans for celebrating the fortieth birthday of the local Institute, the event to be in the Town Hall on Monday, March 24, with a progressive euchre party, followed by a dance.

The roll was answered with a health hint, and proved instructive, and Dr. M. E. Hobbs, the guest speaker for the afternoon, was introduced by Mrs. Earle. The theme chosen by the speaker was, "The health of the township, and national health discipline."

Stressing the fact that manpower, wealth and resources are of vital importance in this time of war, and are being conserved by the government, the importance of the health of the nation was also emphasized. "We should do as well as England, who looks more to the health of her people, than to anything else. A man too busy to take care of his health, is like a mechanic too busy to take care of his tools; and he who lacks health, lacks everything."

The high standard of health set for the army was pointed out, and the necessity of a similar care in civilian life made clear. The prevention of preventible diseases, the reporting of such, and proper care in the case of the common cold, together with conservation of food were other highlights in an address listened to with deep interest and pleasure.

"Grace before meals, reverently spoken, has a quieting effect on the family, and therefore has a part in aiding digestion, while the opposite effect follows a noisy radio, too much loud talking, squabbling, etc. at mealtime; these tend to counteract digestion. Teeth in good condition are necessary an aid to digestion, and the proper choice of foods, as well as the right kind of cooking, "will help us to save food and people."

Dr. Hobbs was warmly applauded at the conclusion of his talk, variety being added to an interesting program by whistling solos by Beatrice McDowell; vocal duets by Bea and her sister, Marjorie; and by community singing. A happy social hour was enjoyed over the tea cups, following the National Anthem; Mrs. Seaton and Mrs. Earle, with other helpers looking after the service of the guests.

The April meeting will be at the home of Mrs. T. G. Harkness, with Canadian Industries as the subject of study.

Guild Makes Quilt For Warsaw Red Cross

WARAW, March 13 — (ENS). — The Anglican Ladies' Guild met at the home of Mrs. Donald Davis all day Thursday to complete a large quilt for the Red Cross. Many of the ladies spent the entire day while others were there just for the afternoon.

Mrs. Alec. Calder donated the batting and part of the binding.

Mrs. Burnett went to Toronto to attend her daughter's wedding on Friday and remained over the week-end.

One Traitor Less

London, March 13 (CP Cable)

THE Polish telegraphic agency reported yesterday that according to the March 5 issue of the Krakauer Zeitung, German newspaper published at Cracow, Poland, Witold Wasilewski, a Polish judge who had collaborated with the German occupying authorities, has been mysteriously shot.

The account said that despite the offer of a reward of 2,000 zlotys, the Gestapo has failed to find the culprits.

Meanwhile newspaper accounts reaching here indicate more Poles have been executed or sentenced to death on various charges.

JOHN GARNEAU

TRENT RIVER, March 13—(ENS)—The death of John Garneau occurred Friday at Flint, Michigan.

Born the eldest son of John Garneau of Trent River, he had lived practically all his life at Flint, Mich. His wife predeceased him some years ago. Three daughters survive in Flint; also two sisters, Mrs. Ed. Chapman of Peterborough, Mrs. Emma Sielaff of Rochester, N.Y.; and one brother James of Cobourg Road, and two half-sisters, Mrs. James Cook of Trent River and Mrs. Matt. Greenly of Smithfield; and three half brothers. Messrs. Oliver Garneau of West Seymour, John and Napoleon (Poly) Garneau of Trent River. The funeral was held Monday at Flint, Mich.

IRWIN WELLS

MARMORA, March 13—(ENS).—One of the largest funerals to be held locally for some time was that of the late Irwin Wells, which took place from the residence of his brother, Russell Wells, in Marmora, on Wednesday afternoon to St. Andrew's United Church.

Rev. C. W. Kay, Free Methodist minister of Warkworth, officiated, assisted by Rev. C. Stevenson, pastor of the local Free Methodist Church. Five other ministers of that denomination also attended out of respect for the deceased.

The service was very impressive with solos being rendered in its course. Interment took place in Fox's Cemetery, Eldorado.

The pall-bearers were John Goodrich, W. J. Pack, Wilbert Jones, Gordon Derry, Ray Bonter, Harry Moffatt, with Herbert Bonter as alternate.

The following carried the floral emblems: Stewart Hardy, William O'Brien, Ray Gunter, John McGregor, Eldon Vansickle and Don Robinson.

Here's a "GO-TO-IT" Wartime Breakfast!

A morning meal of two Nabisco Shredded Wheat, with milk and fruit, supplies good food values.

Leading Canadian health authorities agree that "whole grain cereals" are "protective" foods in wartime and peacetime. Nabisco Shredded Wheat is a "whole grain cereal"—it is 100% pure whole wheat, containing the proteins, carbohydrates, phosphorus and iron that are present in sun-ripened wheat. Serve this nourishing, low cost breakfast to your family—regularly.

Based On Emergency

The Minister of Agriculture desires to have reduced wheat acreage in 1941, and to secure it the Government will pay $4 per acre for land summerfallowed, and for reduced acreage sown to coarse grains, rye, grass or clover, the payment will be $2 per acre. Summerfallowed land is generally regarded as that which may be worked several times during the season but left idle for future cropping. The announcement, coming as it does at this time of year, will have reference to Western Canada particularly as the wheat in this section is fall planted.

It looks much like taking a leaf from the experimental book of United States where for some time there was a bonus paid for not growing so much cotton, for not producing so many pigs, and so on. At best it is purely negative, and comes from not knowing what to do with an average wheat crop in 1941 as present storage facilities—and they are large—are not sufficient to handle what we have at present. We have but one important customer left for our wheat, Britain, and there is no immediate prospect of other consumers entering the market.

It is actually the coming to a head of a situation which has been on the way for a good many years. More years than most people credit. We used to export wheat to Germany, France, Italy, to the Scandinavian and the Low Countries. Years ago France, Germany and Italy virtually dropped out as they wanted to start growing their own wheat. We can produce better grain here in Canada, and it did not pay these countries to produce their own. But they were fearful of war, and they wanted a home supply on which they could depend.

That made the first inroads into our export trade, and the German invasion of Norway, Denmark, Belgium and Holland cut off our markets there. There are thousands of farmers in Western Canada who depend on wheat, and if they didn't grow wheat they would be what we commonly describe as "up against it." Hence the remuneration for not growing wheat. There is much in the process which we do not like and little of which we can approve. We regard it as something done to meet an emergency and also as another step in the custom of turning to the Government to meet situations which in normal times people should deal with themselves.

Is There Another Party?

Some days ago there was a robbery in a Peterborough clothing store. A couple of youths drove in and attended to the robbing and then drove away in the direction of Toronto where they were promptly arrested. So they faced the charge of breaking and entering and also of having stolen the car in which they were driving. The matter has been disposed of and the youths will serve terms in the reformatory, and for one of them it will be a second term.

One can well feel more sorry than angry when considering such a case. One is 18 and the other slightly older, and yet they seem convinced there is something worth while in crime. The one who has been in reformatory before must have seen hundreds of people there who had entertained a similar view or belief. Every last man inside the gates of a penal institution is in himself living evidence that crime does not pay. There must be a feeling that on the second entrance into crime the individual will be able to meet with greater success than on the first attempt. He will be able to cover up better or move away more quickly or else he will be dealing with officers less alert than those who previously tracked him.

There is something in this case which still looks like a loose end. When clothing of the wholesale value of $927 had been stolen from a Peterborough store and removed to Toronto, what then? The two young men who had stolen it could not go about town trying to sell it. They would not distribute it to their friends or relatives. They would have to dispose of it in some profitable way otherwise the risk they had taken would be wo. e than wasted.

So what? Was there—or is there—some agency or individual (commonly referred to as a "fence") in Toronto to which these youths would have looked as the place to dispose of the stolen merchandise? The circumstances point in that direction, and for that reason it does look as though sending the active culprits to reformatory had closed but one section of the case.

Making Planes In Canada

It is not necessary that an airplane be built entirely in an airplane factory. That method does not produce planes rapidly enough for war purposes. In California 60 per cent. of aircraft in United States is built, and within recent months, due to war pressure, there have been scores of machine shops and accessory plants coming into existence. Germany for years followed the same plan, and the nation was organized for that purpose. The making of parts was farmed out to speed up the process of manufacture, and as there are more than 3,000 parts in an airplane the wisdom of such policy can be seen. Plants which were formerly not remotely connected with airplanes were tooled up to make certain parts because mass production was desired.

That in a general way is what Federal Aircraft, a Government organization, is doing in Canada. It has been subjected to bitter attacks because the planes have not been coming out more rapidly. As we see it there was actually little airplane capacity in Canada when the war started; such planes as we were making were of a commercial or private-use type, and only distantly related to the machines which take to the air when battle is on.

When the Commonwealth Air Training Plan was formulated it was anticipated that planes for advanced training would be furnished by Britain, but in the middle of 1940 that plan was largely abandoned. Any one with a knowledge of mechanics and manufacture will realize at once what it has meant to get this industry geared up for production on a war basis.

The head office of Federal Aircraft is in Montreal, on the top floor of the Insurance Exchange Building. There is nothing in there to indicate grandeur or the loose spending of public funds. The office of the president has a desk, a telephone, an indifferent coat rack and when he has two callers it is necessary to bring in an additional chair. But the place is busy; one feels that atmosphere which means there is much to be done and there is not much time in which to do it.

The manner in which Federal Aircraft Limited is regarded by the industrial world can be judged from a statement made in that office regarding the number of engineers. "There are 17 engineers working with us, and we regard them as being about the best in the profession, and they are costing the country nothing at all. They have been loaned to us by such firms as the C.P.R. and leading industrial and engineering companies."

The scope covered by Federal Aircraft covers factories separated by thousands of miles, and tooling up industries and timing and routing the output to have it all converge at central points for assembly has been a task of tremendous size. And that is emphatically the case because there was so little with which to start.

Stratford Has An Idea

The Board of Education in Stratford has decided that meetings of committees shall be open to the press, and also that all members shall be on committees, making it possible to attend all meetings and be familiar with all business transacted in committee rooms.

But there is some sort of a string attached to the provision about reporters attending the committee meetings. According to the published report there is the stipulation that "the chairman review the reporters' notes as to errors or omissions before they are released for publication."

And that is not so good. One can understand that there are occasions when a reporter might be requested to omit certain items until such item had been brought to completion, but such requests should be few.

But having the chairman of the Board given the privilege of going over a reporter's notes is another matter entirely. It would be delegating something to an outsider which rightly belongs to the newspaper, viz., what shall or shall not be printed. The newspaper, and not the chairman of the Board of Education, is responsible for what appears in the columns, and our belief is that no newspaper would willingly share with or deputize that responsibility to an outsider.

The Italian Method

The war in Albania is as bitter and deadly as war could be and the loss of life, if it were being correctly reported, would run to staggering totals.

An Associated Press writer tells of the counter-charges of the Italians, and speaks of hillsides being covered with dead. There were more Italian prisoners taken on that day and they included several from the high command.

The information was secured by questioning one of the prisoners that Italian losses in the campaign had been at least 130,000. He explained that losses were running into high figures because the Italians dare not retreat even for the purpose of taking up a more favorable posiiton.

The explanation? Just this:

"Rear - line Blackshirt units with machine guns do not allow them to retreat."

That method of warfare is deadly. If the troops advance they fall under Greek fire, and if they retreat they will fall under fire of their own machine gunners.

Women In War?

Intensive drives are being made right at the present time in Britain to increase the number of women employed in agriculture, industry and all auxiliary services. This drive is in answer to a call by Labor Minister Bevin.

Canada on the other hand is being blamed by the leaders of women's organizations as not anxious to have them play a part other than in the home or making hospital supplies in Canada's war effort. Miss Margaret Hyndman, K.C., in a recent address in Peterborough said "these men will not of their own volition call upon us to do more than pay taxes, make hospital supplies and raise money by salvage campaigns unless and until the state of our defence is so desperate that the question of whether or not we can measure up to the job may mean the difference between victory or defeat."

Is it not time for our authorities to waken up and give the women their rightful place in Canada's war effort? It has only been because the women of England were trained and ready before they were needed that they were able to measure up to the present crisis. There are many major projects in which the women will have to be engaged before the war is over and some of these are first aid, canteen and auxiliary service involving field work, army commissariat, civil service requiring air-raid precaution training, fire fighting, agriculture, transport drivers, technicians, machine operators, communications and visiting housekeeping service.

The challenge today is to the Canadian women to prepare themselves as did the courageous women of Britain and Peterborough already has one organization that is worthy of all the support possible, the Women's Service Corps.

NOTE AND COMMENT

At least the national registration has disclosed that there are a lot of folk in Ontario who cannot milk a cow.

They are using sharpshooters in England to shoot down German flares. A regiment of Canadian duckhunters would be decidedly useful at that game.

Judging from some of the pictures we have seen that Toronto skating carnival would be interesting even if the girls could not skate a stroke.

Hamilton man smuggled five cartons of cigarettes from the States into Canada and was fined $80. He couldn't do much worse than that playing the horses.

Ottawa Humane Society has decided it is too dangerous to allow its inspectors to climb power poles after cats that become stranded at the top. They do not believe in risking one life to save nine.

NEW HAT

(By A.R.K.)

¶ Alfalfa has a new spring hat, it's neither high nor is it flat, and at it I'll not scoff; I fear that when she ventures out, and tries to find her way about, the wind will blow it off.

¶ I guess it represents the Spring, the coming of the birds to sing, the droning of the bees; it sits upon her on a slant, and blooms much like a potted plant, and tells of budding leaves.

¶ She told me of the price they charge, although the hat is far from large, it was a stiff amount; they don't sell hats by yards I know, but rather by the parts that show, where style and beauty count.

¶ So when Alfalfa picked her hat, it left her purse quite limp and flat, not bulging like a bun; nor would she wait till days were fair, Alfalfa was prepared to swear, Spring simply had to come.

¶ I saw her romping down the street, and tapping steps with goodly feet, a tea was on they say; the Spring hat perched up high and bright, it was indeed a pretty sight, although it snowed that day.

¶ Alfalfa's will is strong indeed, a spirit which the people need, it will not break or run; for when Alfalfa dons her gear, when it comes on this time of year —why Spring's just got to come.

CAP and BELLS . .

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

ON TUESDAY I discussed briefly some of the findings of Mr. Lars Moen, an American citizen who was until last December in occupied Belgium, as they are set forth in his recent book "Under the Iron Heel." There were a number of additional matters described by Mr. Moen which I think should prove interesting to readers of this column. For instance, he lays great stress on Nazi credulity, which is the opposite side of the medal from Nazi lack of scruple. The troops who occupied Belgium, for instance, believed without question that the Low Countries had attacked Germany, and that their invasion was provoked by Dutch and Belgium aggression! But on the other hand they used the Red Cross without conscience on their transports, assuming that if the Allies respected it they must be fools; they paid no attention whatever to the Red Cross sign on Allied trains or transports. These are things we knew by hearsay; Mr. Moen's book assures us they are true.

C & B

Another of this author's interesting revelations concerns the stupidity of Nazi soldiers. They are, he believes, a startling indictment of the whole totalitarian system. They are without individual initiative, and although they are courageous in the mass they are nervous and apprehensive in small groups. Mr. Moen, it must be remembered, speaks of the Nazis with whom he mixed, and whom he came to know well; his report is not mere wishful thinking. The officers were a different matter. They were not so fanatical in their adherence to Nazism; they were followers of Hitlers and believers in war because Hitler had always been successful and because he had made war pay. Their belief in the Nazi regime was by no means unshakeable. They felt, many of them, that the war could only be ended by a decisive invasion of Britain, and they were not sanguine as to the outcome of such a venture. And yet, if it failed, they feared an upheaval in the German armed forces, and one high officer assured Mr. Moen that the beginning of discontent would be in the Navy. Naval men, he explained, travelled too far and saw too much of the world to be thoroughly reliable Nazis.

C & B

THERE were many signs in the army of occupation that the Germans were taking the first faltering steps toward thinking for themselves. It was, of course, strictly forbidden for them to listen to broadcasts from London, but they did so, first as a joke and then seriously. Incidentally, Mr. Moen criticized the B.B.C. for suppressing news of heavy Allied losses in the air; he says that they subsequently gave up this policy and became thoroughly reliable. He was skeptical, though, of our claim to have bombed military objectives only. However honorable the intention might have been in the air, the effect on the earth was of indiscriminate bombing.

C & B

Mr. Moen corroborates the rumors which circulated here in September last that an attempt was made to invade England and that this was a dismal failure. But he doubts that the attempt was ever made with a hope of success. It may have been forced on the military leaders by the Nazi party leaders. In any case it was badly bungled, and the troops used were mountaineers from Austria and Bavaria who had no heart for it. In any case, it appears that the British dropped oil and fire-bombs in the Channel, and hundreds of Germans were killed outright, while thousands were badly burned. A note of comedy is given to this grim experiment by the fact that a mock invasion was staged on the Belgian coast and was filmed! The explanation was that as the operation would take place at night filming might be impossible, but that the citizens of the Third Reich would expect to have pictures of the attack in any case! This is merely an example of German thoroughness gone wrong.

C & B

One of Mr. Moen's most startling revelations is that which the presence of Nazi bases in Ireland. He has no proof of the existence of such bases, but he spoke to more than one Nazi officer who believed in them implicitly. There was no suggestion that the Free State government had anything to do with the matter, but rather that the I.R.A. might be at the bottom of it. Certainly if such bases existed they would be invaluable in any invasion attempt. Mr. Moen also heard much of German submarine bases on the coasts of Ireland and Spain.

C & B

The most interesting part of Mr. Moen's book is the final chapter, headed "Where Will It End" in which he discusses the opinions of people in the occupied countries. The collapse of the Low Countries and of France, it is felt, was not so much caused by surprise as by a lack of the will to fight, which in turn had its roots in the rottenness of our capialistic system. Since the last war this feeling has grown until now it has undermined the faith of most Europeans in their future. They relied on money to save them and money has failed them conspicuously. They want a new system, and are giving much of their enforced idleness to the discussion and formulation of it. I shall discuss the form which they think this system will take in this column on Saturday.

Letters To The Editor

TRY THE FARM

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—With reference to a letter which appeared in the March 8 edition of your "Letter to the Editor" column I would like to express my thoughts.

For the two girls, I express my sympathy, but for a man of military age not working, well, he could have the backbone to enlist.

I have heard it said by city employers that farm lads are the best workers. Having mingled among farmers I have failed to see the manure on their legs, but possibly it was on the mind of a certain gentleman. And if he is so interested in manure there are lots of jobs to be had on farms.

You must hand it to the employers, they must be able to judge a man's appearance to tell if he will capably fill the position that is open, and if it is a farmer that is employed, well, they must "have something."

If you were employed at something which was not making you a profit, would you not try for something better?

Just think these things over, and maybe come to the farm and work for a while, then when you have acquired the barnyard look, you might get a job in a factory.

A CAVAN FARMER.

March 12.

THE WORK PROBLEM

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—I have read the letters about employment for the local men, boys and girls in the factories. I would like to add more as a soldier's wife with seven children. I only get allowances for two of the children and there are five under 16 going to school. The oldest girl of 18 has been out looking for work in the different factories and has the same result but when she tells her dad is in the army, they say she doesn't need any work because her mother is allowed for each child.

I think that some of the military officials should explain that a soldier's wife is only allowed for two children. When she was at a local factory there was also an Italian girl there and she was taken on in preference to a Canadian girl whose father went overseas in the last war and is now doing his bit again.

Also about the married women working I have the same idea as "One of the Many." There has been a lot of girls married to soldiers and draw an allowance of 55.00 a month for herself and still working in local factories. Give the local men and boys and single girls of our town the jobs and all will be happier,

FAIR PLAY MOTHER.

Peterborough, March 12.

BRITISH-ISRAEL TRUTH

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—The Bible has been attacked in all ages. British-Israel analysis shows the Bible wholly true. As British-Israel believers must be sincere Christians, may I endeavor to remove Mr. Tatham's misunderstanding?

Christian faith in God as a loving shepherd, ever watchful of His own, was well presented in your letter from the London Free Press. This definite conception, always comforting and inspiring, was especially shown through Seth, Enoch, Noah, Shem, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob (changed to Israel—ruling with God) and continued through Israel, Britain, to this day. Isaiah says "Who so blind as my servant?"

The Divine Husbandman bred from His best stock, and this example is followed by all farmers, so why would brother consider this selection as "absurd"? All people are and have been lovingly invited, with complete impartiality, without claim to national perfection. To Israel was given God's covenants and promises.

The Armada, Napoleon's Menace, the miracle of Dunkirk—our race receives divine protection through all ages.

Exodus 19 shows church and nation as synonymous, "a peculiar treasure unto Me above all people," and as shown in Jeremiah 31:35-37, "are to be a nation before God forever" as ordinances of sun, moon and stars last. Primary organizations in the wilderness, through tribulation, achieves perfection and complete organization shortly.

This is the unconditional covenant of Israel-Britain. To Judah pertaineth the royal house and throne. They chose Barabbas and still reject the King. Queen Victoria endorsed I Chron. 29, verse 23, and prayed Christ receive His throne from her. I decline to take part in a controversy. Mr. Tatham can meet me if he wishes.

JOSEPH S. BELL.

Peterborough, March 12.

PLENTY OF WORK

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—Have just read a letter dated March 6, signed "One of the Many." If this ambitious man was not so citified he might go out into the country and find work, perhaps get a little farm manure on his legs. Remember, Mr. "One of the Many," farmers are not foreigners and perhaps if you could work like a foreigner or a farmer you would not be so unemployed.

A man or woman who really wants work will always find something to do. As for girls looking for work let a farmer's wife go to the city and try to employ one of these girls. The first question the girl would ask is how much time do I have off and the wages she would ask would be impossible for any one to pay. I've tried it, so I know. Of course these city people cannot milk a cow but they can eat butter and drink milk. We have to work to eat, as well as eat to work.

A lot of people look for work and pray they will not find it. They pass up jobs because they might have to work. What a lot of people want is no work but big pay. I think Peterborough a wonderful city and could live there if I chose as I own a home there, but the farm needs people who can work and will work. Shake the cobwebs out of your brain Mr. Unemployed and you will find plenty to do in this old world.

A WORKER.

Bonarlaw, March 12.

GREATEST INDUSTRY

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—It may well be that before this memo reaches the editorial desk, that "double-barrelled announcement on the government's wheat policy, by Trade Minister MacKinnon and Agriculture Minister Gardiner" referred to in today's Examiner (March 10) may have been made. All I care to say in this connection is that it will be a measure of rural comfort to know something of what's ahead for the wheat-growers.

As regards the proposal of an acreage bonus somewhat on the "soil conservation" plan adopted by Washington; or the question as to whether to increase the "wheat processing tax" from 15 to 50 cents the bushel, or drop it entirely; it is encouraging to see increasing signs that urban Canadians realize that the farmer needs more revenue than his commodity can win for him in the market.

That news story on the "Farm Forums" in the Peterborough district was fine, and thought-provoking.

Nothing is clearer in this urban reader's mind than that, when all is said and done about the ills of agriculture, it is still true that the key to most of those problems will be found in "organization"; the co-operative widening of rural horizons; and the average farmer coming down out of his age-old "ivory tower of individualism" and acting with his fellows, for the general advantage of his industry—by all odds Canada's greatest industry—agriculture!

I was attracted by those final words in that story "by a Cavan township girl" to which your editorial makes appropriate reference: "We found that difficulties overcome together cemented a deeper friendship." That principle is at work eternally beside men and women, as they struggle forward; either in the snowdrifts of the Peterborough district "under a silvery white moonlight," or in blacked-out embattled London.

"CERES."

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

Now when he was in Jerusalem at the passover, in the feast day, many believed in his name, when they saw the miracles which he did. But Jesus did not commit himself unto them, because he knew all men, and needed not that any should testify of man: for he knew what was in man. —John ii, 23-25.

His Own Fault

The angler had just landed a catch when the inquisitive woman chanced to be passing.

"Oh," she exclaimed, "that poog little fish!"

The angler replied: "Well, madam, if he'd kept his mouth shut he would not have got into trouble!"

His Secret

The teacher was explaining to the class the meaning of the word "recuperate." "Now, Tommy," she said to a small boy, "when your father has worked hard all day, he is tired and worn out, isn't he?"

"Yes, ma'am."

"Then, when night comes and his work is over for the day, what does he do?"

"That's what mothers wants to know," Tommy explained quickly.

Bad Mule!

At a course for Transport Officers in India one subaltern had not paid a great deal of attention to the instruction imparted, and on the last day he was asked by the commandant to step forward and tell the age of a mule.

The young officer opened the mule's mouth in gingerly fashion and peered inside inquiringly. Then he said with a diffident cough, "Well.... er...sir, I don't know that I can give you the....er....age of this mule, but judging by the look of his tongue, I'd say he was up very late last night."

YOUTHFUL PETES SWAMP HALIBURTON IN JUVENILE PLAYDOWNS

Garvey Leads Winners Scoring 6

Peterborough's juvenile team made the long trip to Haliburton last night for their first game in the O.A.J.A. playdowns and succeeded so well that they played themselves out of a return game with the Northerners. Manager Cec. Courneya's team defeated Haliburton 14 goals to 3 and as a result the losers have defaulted the second game of the season.

The youthful Petes had too much speed and teamplay for the Haliburton youngsters and piled up a score without much trouble. Sparked by Garvey and Huard who were distinctly in a scoring mood they dominated the play in all three periods and won going away.

Leether played smart hockey in the nets for the winners and starred along with Garvey and Huard while Dart was best for Haliburton.

Haliburton: Goal, Henderson; defence, Sisson, Hudson; centre, Dart; wings, Carnochan, Phillips; subs, C. McKelsey, McCracken, Prentice, M. McKelsey, Hardill, Eastman.

Referee: R. E. Yarnold, Haliburton.

First Period

Petes—Huard 4:10
Petes—Huard (Garvey) 6:50

Some Ball Camp Training Notes

(By The Canadian Press).

LAKELAND, Fla., March 13. — All the Tiger rookie pitchers are going to work in exhibition games before ever a regular to the mound in one. Manager Del Baker said today he plans it that way because of an apparent abundance of promising young talent and he wants to work them as often as possible.

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif.—Facing their first major league opposition today in Philadelphia Athletics, the Pirates are weakened by catcher ailments. Al Lopez is suffering from a swollen hand, Spud Davis is nursing an injured ankle and Eddie Fernades, Pacific coast rookie, is down with 'flu. Only Joe Schultz is available for duty.

FORT MYERS, Fla.—Cleveland Indians are expected to depend on five men to fill out their "big four" pitching staff. Bob Feller, Al Milnar and Jim Bagby probably will take regular turns on the mound with Mel Harder and Al Smith, who need a bit more rest, rounding out the starters.

SARASOTA, Fla.—Stan Spence yesterday belted the first home run a Red Sox'er has made in camp this season while aiding the Yannigans in drubbing the regulars 3-0. Spence made it off Bill Butland in the first inning.

SPORTS - DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

The great showing of Honey Tompkins in Hamilton on Tuesday night when he played for Kingston Combines in place of Walt Gerow who has been moved to Petawawa Camp by the military authorities serves to confirm an impression we have had that the chief trouble with the Petes when they met Kingston in the group playoffs was that the team and especially the first string line of Tompkins, Kingdon and Heal had gone stale. Staleness is the bugbear of all sporting organizations and when a team or an individual is hit by it there isn't much that can be done about it. The only cure is to stay away from the game for a while and that is impossible so long as a team is in the running. Tompkins had been off the ice ever since the Petes were put out until the other night and as a result he cut loose at Hamilton with a dazzling display that made him the star of the contest.

* * * * * *

Here is what Bill Walshe of the Kingston Whig-Standard had to say about the signing up of Tompkins, written of course before Tuesday night's game: "According to the Canadian Hockey Association wartime regulations it is permissible to replace any soldier-player moved from a team by the Service Forces and the Combines took advantage of the chance to get Tompkins. The clever right winger should add a scoring punch if he plays like he did in the schedule and especially in the group finals against Kingston but it is doubtful if he could be any better than Gerow, who classes with the best in senior amateur hockey, going both ways. Tompkins is also a two-way player and he will likely be used on the right wing, which gives George Hood a chance to play his regular left rail position with Len Lane in the centre. Previously Gerow played left wing and Hood, a left hand shot, worked on the right board with Lane at mid-ice. Tompkins should work in well with Kingston's specialized combination plays as he has the speed and natural stickhandling ability. When it was learned that Gerow would not be able to play with Kingston after joining the Petawawa team plans were considered to fill the vacancy and it was decided to pick a player from the Eastern Ontario group, although it was permissible to get any player in the province of Senior B or lower rating, if released by his previous club. Picking a player from the Eastern Ontario group meant a stronger bid to get the Senior B title for this district and improve the prestige of the circuit for future seasons."

It seems to be a case of always a bridesmaid and never a bride for Turk Broda. The Toronto goalie has come close to winning the Vezina trophy several seasons but has always been nosed out and now it would seem that the coveted trophy which he had almost in the bag a week ago has slipped out of his hands once again. When Boston shot three goals past him Tuesday night while Brimsek only missed two Leaf shots, Broda fell two goals back of Brimsek and four behind Johnny Mowers the Detroit rookie goalie. Brimsek and Mowers each have three games to play as against two for Broda so that the contest is far from settled yet but at present Broda is in third place. Brimsek will see action tonight when the Bruins play the lowly New York Amerks and it is not likely his goal average will suffer very much as a result of this fixture.

Wants Padded Posts

Here is a good suggestion from Kingston's Jim Sutherland as explained by the Belleville sheet: "'Genial Jim' Sutherland, Kingston's grand old man of hockey, Past President of the O.H.A., C.A.H.A. and a man who has introduced more new-fangled ideas to the game than all the rest of 'em, wants to know why some sort of protection isn't placed over the goal posts to eliminate injuries to players, who crash the gas-pipes and receive injuries similar to the one sustained by Hank Goldup, of the Leafs whose hip was broken this year when he crashed the metal goal post. 'Couldn't some kind of a rubber sponge protection be invented to place over the outside portion of the goal post to act as a buffer and eliminate the contact of a player against the steel post? Mr. Sutherland suggested to this corner recently. Actually there is merit to Mr. Sutherland's suggestion of placing some softer protection around the goal posts for the protection of players. Such a protection would have saved "Oatsy" Phillips, the Whitby goalie, from the serious injuries he sustained here this winter. Hockey moguls should heed Mr. Sutherland's idea."

* * * * * *

A famous National League player interviewed over the air a year or two ago gave as the best tip he could offer young hockey players the suggestion that they should practice stick-handling without looking at the puck. The number of players even in fast hockey who can keep their head up going in on a defence and still have complete command of the puck could be easily counted and that is why this star passed on the suggestion to the youngsters that they should practice the stunt. We thought of his advice while watching a couple of 'teen age games at Brock St. Rink the other night for it was obvious that not a kid out there could carry the rubber far without keeping his eyes on it. If he did look away from the disc it usually rolled off his stick. The youngsters might do well to remember this professional tip. It was Bill Calladine's ability to nurse the puck along and still have his eyes on the defence players he was trying to beat that chiefly accounted for his success in hockey."

Juveniles Come Through

Manager Cec Courneya's juveniles who have not played a home game this season and yet have never lost a battle came through with flying colors in their O.A.J.A. playdown with Haliburton last night. The Peterborough kids hitting on all eight cylinders despite the long trip over heavy roads defeated Haliburton at home 14 goals to 3; in fact they beat them so badly that the northerns decided that they had enough and that it was not worth while making the hike down for a return game. Accordingly the Peterborough juveniles move into the next round of the Ontario series and may be stacked against Belleville next although no definite word has been received.

The games this week-end in the Ladies' Basketball League bring the lengthy fifteen game schedule to a close and the playoffs will commence the following week. Two games will be played tomorrow evening, with the Quaker Cubs and St. John's meeting in the first at eight o'clock, and Westclox tangling with "Y" Gym in an all important fixture at nine. Quaker Aces and "Y" Cadets finish it up with their game Monday night at seven. City champions for the past two seasons, Quaker Aces are again on top by reason of their eleven wins against only three losses and one game to go against the Cadets. The Aces are sure of finishing on the upper rung regardless of the outcome of the various games this week. However, there is a big scramble on for the other senior playoff berth with the Westclox and Y Gym both in a position to take it. These two squads play tomorrow night and a win for the Y girls will put them in the senior playoffs and the Clockmakers would then group up with St. John's for the junior title. If the Westclox take the contest, the Gym team will then have to play their postponed game with St. John's which will give them another chance to tie for second place. St. John's are definitely in the junior section but will have to wait to see whether it will be Westclox or Y Gym who will oppose them.

17 Junior Teams Still Remain

(By the Canadian Press.)

Seventeen teams remain in contention for the Canadian Junior Hockey Championship and the Memorial Cup. Last night Edmonton Athletic Club eliminated Edmonton Maple Leafs from further play-off activity with a 6-5 overtime victory in the deciding game of best-of-five series. The survivors:

East:
Maritimes—Charlottetown, Truro.
Quebec—Montreal Junior Royals, Clear Point.
Ottawa and District—Pembroke, St. Patrick's College, Ottawa Canadiens.
Ontario—Oshawa, Toronto Marlboros.
West:
Thunder Bay—Port Arthur Juniors, Port Arthur West Ends.
Manitoba — Winnipeg Rangers, East Kildonan Bisons, St. Boniface Athletics.
Saskatchewan—Saskatoon, Prince Albert.
Alberta—Edmonton Athletic Club.

Allan Cup Survivors

Twenty teams remain in the running for the Canadian Senior Hockey championship Allan Cup. One was added to the list yesterday when a Canadian Amateur Hockey Association ruling brought South Porcupine Ankerite Bisons into the Ontario play-off grouping as Northern Ontario representatives. Two other teams—Saint John Beavers and Ottawa R.C.A.F.—were eliminated in games last night. The survivors:

East:
Maritimes—Halifax Navy, Sydney Millionaires.
Quebec—Quebec Beavers, St. Jerome, Ottawa Senators, Montreal Royals.
Ottawa and District — Petawawa Grenades, Hull Volants.
Ontario—St. Catharines, Toronto Marlboros, South Porcupine, Ankerite.
West:
Thunder Bay—Port Arthur, Fort Frances.
Manitoba—Winnipeg Seventh Infantry.
Saskatchewan—Regina, Yorkton.
Alberta—Lethbridge, Calgary.
British Columbia — Kimberly, Trail.

LEE QUARTET OF LINDSAY CAPTURES BONSPIEL PACKER'S TROPHY

Green, Hamley Run Close Second, Third

Colin W. Lees' Lindsay rink carried off primary honors in the most successful bonspiel here yesterday, winning the handsome Canada Packers' Trophy and wrist watches as individual prizes.

The Lees rink with W. Heslop, H. G. Husson, and Frank Speer, the other members of the winning organization, curled steadily and won three games during the day, finishing with a total score of 34 shots, which with a plus of 12 was enough to give the Lindsay four first place.

During the bonspiel Lees' rink deefated W. E. Barry, Oakwood, 12 to 0 in the first round, H. Foster of Fenelon Falls 10 to 7 in the second, and wound up in a blaze of glory by outscoring J. T. Thomas' Peterborough rink 17 to 4 in the final round.

Other three-game winners were George Green's Peterborough rink, which also finished with a total score of 34 and a plus of 6 to take second prize, Blankets, and Norman Hamley's Peterborough four with a total of 28, to land third prize, and a ham for each member of the rink.

The second prize winners consisted of Stan MacLeod, H. Darling, W. E Metcalfe, and George Green, skip, and skip Hamley had as members of his third-place rink Herb. Ralph, W. Hamilton, and Dr. D. W. Clark as vice-skip.

There was a three-cornered tie for the prize for the highest score among two-game winners, Ray Best of Peterborough, W. E. Weldon of Oakwood, and H. Foster of Fenelon Falls all finishing with a score of 32. On a toss the Fenelon Falls rink carried off the prizes, electric clocks. The winners consisted of W. M. Robson, W. Barrie, G. Palmer, and H. Foster, skip.

J. A. Thurston, Dunsford, won fifth prize for highest score among one-game winners, and his rink, which included himself as skip, and W. J. Hall, C. Laplain, and W. J. Moynes, each carried off a side of bacon.

Competition was keen throughout the three rounds, and some very close games were played; in fact, extra ends had to be played in a number of contests to decide the winner. One of the best games of the whole competition was the battle between Judge L. V. O'Connor's Cobourg rink and Norm Hamley's four in the third round. Both had won their first two games and they had a ding-dong battle. Hamley was one up coming home, but with his last rock Judge O'Connor drew for shot and tied the contest up. Hamley won the extra end with his last shot, which took out a Cobourg stone and left him three up.

The prizes were presented to the winning rinks at the conclusion of the third round by T. A. Mackay and Tom McArthur, the former expressing regret that Gordon S. Matthews had found it impossible to attend to present the Canada Packers' Trophy.

The scores of the first half of the first round were given yesterday. Here are the remainder:

Ramblers Paste Hershey 8 to 5

PHILADELPHIA, March 13 — (CP).—Cleveland Barons, who had all but clinched first place in the Western section of the American Hockey League a month ago, were still up top of the section today, but the credit goes to Philadelphia Ramblers rather than to the Barons.

Hershey Bears, who have been winning almost consistently ever since they were all but mathematically ruled out as a challenger to Cleveland, dropped an 8-5 decision to Ramblers in the wildest game of the season on Philadelphia ice, and thereby lost a chance to pull up into a tie for first spot.

The Barons, in the midst of a long slump, were set back 3-2 by Pittsburg, but remained two points ahead of the fast-moving Bears with each team having two regular games remaining.

In the Eastern section, New Haven Eagles whittled the lead of Providence Reds down to a single game when they eked out a 2-1 win over the Reds mainly by virtue of two successful solo dashes. The Eagles have two more games to play, while Providence has three.

Springfield Indians made sure of a playoff berth in the Eastern section with a close 3-2 win over Indianapolis Capitals.

MAJOR LEAGUE ROUNDUP

Boston Red Sox: Plenty Power at Plate

By JACK SORDS

For the seventh consecutive season, the Boston Red Sox, fourth last year, enter the major league race under the guidance of the former "boy wonder", Joe Cronin, determined to build a winner.

Once again it is pitching that plagues the Red Sox to balance plenty of power at the plate.

Manager Cronin is expected to rely on a youthful staff, with a smattering of veterans. And, as previously disclosed to news men, Manager Joe will try a new system of handling pitchers this year. He will start his young pitchers, rotate them and let come what may. His idea, it seems, is to build up confidence in the young pitchers' own mind.

Newcomers with proven ability are topped by Frankie Pytlak, catcher, who will be the first-string receiver, permitting Jimmy Foxx to stay on first base. Outfielder Pete Foxx from Detroit, and Pitcher Joe Dobson and Infielder Odell Hale, both from Cleveland, are the other additions.

No less than 20 pitchers are on the roster. This includes five left-handers, among them the aging veteran, Lefty Grove.

Most prominent rookie on the staff is Dominic (Mike) Ryba, the all-around star, 36 years old, up from Rochester after being tried by several major league clubs, Ryba won 24 games last year. Maurice Harris ,from Scranton, won 10 and Harris, from Scranton, won 10 and Lawrence Powell, from San Francisco, and Les Fleming, from Hollywood, may prove their worth in the box.

Oshawa Shades Kingston Jrs. In Series Opener

KINGSTON, March 13 (Special). —Oshawa won the first game of the O.H.A. Junior playoff round with Kingston here last night by a 6 to 5 score, getting a five-goal lead in the first half of the game and hanging on to a lone goal margin in a rousing last period when Kingston rallied to get within a goal of tying the score.

The second game of the two-out-of-three series will be played next week with the original Saturday night game cancelled.

Oshawa—Goal, Burkhart; defence, Hinton and McBrien; centre, Buckley; wings, A. McMullen and Davies; subs, McIntyre, Furey, Sawyer, Painter, J. McMullen. Galbraith.

Both NHL Berths Clinched; Punch Wanes

TORONTO, Mar. 13 — (CP). — The National Hockey League to-day has reached a stage in its season's campaigning where only the wives and mothers of the players are interested in what happens before the Stanley Sup play begins. Teams have reached grouping they almost certainly will retain through the final few games of the season and the punch has been taken out of the remaining contests.

Boston took a full-Nelson on its third consecutive N.H.L. crown on Tuesday night by beating Toronto, and to-night in New York against Americans can cinch that title beyond all mathematical doubt by getting a win or a tie.

In a few days opinion will start lining up for the Stanley Cup games and there Toronto may get a brief play as the team most likely to beat Boston, if Boston is to be beaten. Leafs and Boston, second and first place teams respectively, meet in a best-of-seven series to decide one Stanley Cup finalist while the other four playoff teams skirmish back and forth to decide the other.

In addition to the Boston-Americans clash to-night, Chicago will travel to Detroit. Rangers and Leafs were also scheduled, but the game was played previously. Six games will be played after to-night, with the schedule ending next Tuesday. The Stanley Cup playoffs will start next Thursday, March 20, with Boston vs. Toronto, Rangers vs. Detroit, and Chicago vs. Canadiens likely groupings.

Deloro Trounces Havelock At Badminton

HAVELOCK, March 13.—Havelock Badminton Club entertained the Deloro Club on Tuesday evening in the Kawartha-Trent League series, with the final score for Havelock 2 and the visitors 10, six out of the twelve games being defaulted. Three of the six games were 15-point games and the rest were 11-point games. The results were as follows:

Ladies' Doubles—Muriel Quinn and Edythe Russell of Havelock defeated Miss Hemphill and Mrs. Brown of Deloro, 15 to 12; Helen Covert and Mary Thomas of Havelock defeated Miss Trumble and Miss Bradley of Deloro 15 to 1; Jean McNeely and Margart Sanderson of Havelock lost to Miss Hemphill and Mrs. Brown of Deloro 6 to 11.

Mixed Doubles—Muriel Quinn and Don Miller of Havelock lost to Miss Brown and E. Trmble of Deloro 4 to 11; Helen Covert and Jim Covert of Havelock lost to Miss Hemphill and V. Knowles of Deloso 3 to 11.

Men's Doubles—Jim Covert and Don Miller of Havelock lost to E. Trumble and W: Hilton of Deloro 10 to 15.

Biggest River Ship

CHICAGO, March 13 (AP)—The Ashland, a twin screw vessel and the largest river ship ever constructed in Chicago, was launched yesterday in the yards of the Calumet Shipyard & Dry Dock Co. The vessel, 145 feet long and 31 feet wide, is powered with two 805-horsepower Diesel engines.

Silk textiles produced in Japan in a recent month were valued at over $18,000,000.

Foxboro Foxes Tie Series, Whip Ross 5-2

TWEED, March 13.—(ENS)—The championship series of the Centre Hastings Rural Hockey League was all tied up Tuesday night when Foxboro Foxes took the second of the three-game set, defeating Glen Ross Sailors 5-2.

Walt opened the scoring for Foxboro by taking the pass from Thompson after fourteen minutes of the first period. Gordie Elder made it 2-0 a couple of minutes later.

Glen Ross opened it up midway through the second period at top speed and were pressing hard when Spencer and Tummon broke away to make it 3-0.

Then Vandervoort scored two within five minutes. Fisticuffs threatened to break out in this frame and Martin and Elder were given five minutes each.

Outstanding in the final period was the speed display of Art Macdonald and Russ Fyear. Gordie Walt was responsible for Foxboro's fourth goal and Elder made it five by taking a pass from Nolley Guay.

Lineups:

Glen Ross: Goal, W. Brooks; defence, H. Brown, J. Armstrong; centre, Martin; wings Vandervoort and R. Pyear; subs G. Pyear D. Tucker and A. Macdonald.

Foxboro: Goal, G. Gay; defence, G. Walt and J. Guay; centre G. Elder; wings, N. Guay and C. Thompson; subs, Wright, Spencer and F. Tummon.

Referees—E. Wallace, E. Simms.

Tea At Lakefield Aids War Victims

LAKEFIELD, March 13—(ENS)—The church hall of the Lakefield United church was the scene of a pleasing event on Friday afternoon when ladies of the church gathered for an afternoon tea, but more especially to compliment the members of the Young Women's Missionary and Service Club for their splendid service in presenting new drapes to the church hall.

The large attendance was a glowing tribute to the clubs for its work and the proceeds of over twenty-two dollars will be given to the British War Victims' Fund. The guests were welcomed by the two presidents, Mrs. Dora MacMillan and Mrs. Alex Graham.

In charge of the tea arrangements were Mrs. V. Deck, Mrs. R. Little, Mrs. D. A. Allen, Mrs. E. H. Northey, Mrs. H. Hamblin, Mrs. S. Millage and Mrs. S. A. Grylls.

Mrs. J. Brown, Mrs C. Payne and Mrs. F. L. Erskine presided at the tempting sale of home cooking, while C. Butcher, Mrs. W. Whetung and Mrs. E. Kemp were in charge of the sale of candy.

The ready response for the afternoon's efforts is much appreciated by the club members.

Stephen Foster's Life Reviewed By Y.P.U.

OMEMEE, March 13.—(ENS). — The Young People's Union of Trinity United church met in the basement Monday evening with Mrs. Wm. Weir, citizenship convener, in charge.

Miss Verna Gardiner presided for the business session.

A piano solo by Miss Lily Race and call to worship by the leader opened the worship service. The scripture was read by Miss Mary Faulkner and commentary given by Miss Velma Preston. A saxaphone solo by Mr. Ormiston and a poem by Mrs. Wm. Weir were greatly appreciated. The topic of the evening was taken by Mrs. Wm. Weir and illustrated in a most interesting way the life of Stephen Collins Foster, composer of the much loved negro spirituals.

War Chiefs In Canada

By KEN CLARK, Canadian Press Staff Writer

(Copyright, 1941, by The Canadian Press)

When Air Vice-Marshal S. J. Goble was a boy he shot kangaroos but here in Ottawa where he is the representative of the Royal Australian Air Force on the directorate of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan he admits he hasn't "shot anything since the last war."

His job now is not to fly and fight but with three others to direct the gigantic air training plan of the British democracies, to forge the weapon that will finally strike down German power in the skies.

He is Australian liaison officer the quadrumvirate of the air: Air Vice-Marshal L. S. Breadner, chief of Canada's air staff; L. D. D. McKean, Royal Air Force; Group Capt. L. M. Isitt of New Zealand and himself.

Not A Politician

No politician is Goble. "My job," he said to The Canadian Press, "is to implement policy." A merry man and a kind one—he has office visitors sit so that the light does not shine in their eyes—Goble is physically and spiritually sturdy. He has a square face, light, almost-white hair cut fairly short.

With square fingers he toys with a pair of horn-rimmed spectacles (almost regulation for high officers of the services) and while he sees visitors or works or keeps a flat, gold vest-pocket watch with the lid open on his desk. Only two things are on his office walls, a map of Canada and a map of Australia. They are stuck with colored pins which denote airfields and training schools.

Through curious chance he finds himself again associated with his old comrades in the Royal Naval Air Service of the First Great War. Breadner, McKean and Goble were all lieutenants when they flew in the same squardron.

Breadner fought throughout the war. McKean had the ill luck to be captured early and remained a prisoner. After the war these men were widely separated, one in Canada, one in England and one in Australia.

The air lanes drew then closer from time to time but their paths were separate until the drums of international events and the wisdom of the British democracies raised them to high place, fetched them up in the same office on Bank Street—25 years after.

Many Adventures

Goble, it would seem, was bound to come to join his old associates. When he left Australia with his wife on the steamship Niagara several months ago their vessel struck a mine. All took to the boats and for eight hours floated about on the Pacific. Returning to Australia Goble and his wife took another boat and made the voyage safely.

Goble was 23 when he joined the British air force. He is now 49. But in those old days, he says, it was not as if generally supposed, a sort of knight errant business with a single flier taking off to pick his own opponent and carry on an aerial duel.

"There was quite a lot of formation flying although of course not comparable to what he have today. The whole build-up has been a stupendous feat. The standard of flying has improved enormously."

Has Met Old Friends

Goble doesn't talk much about what he did in the last war. He recalls with regret the loss of three of his commanders, Canadians, in the first squadron he led. They were Allan Todd of Toronto; Stanley Trapp of New Westminster, B.C., and "Nigger" Galbraith of Carleton Place, Ont. Others he remembers from those days were W. B. Elliott of St. Catharines, Ont., Charles Sproat and William Cleghorn. "These are a few names that come to my mind," he said. "Since coming to Canada I have met many old friends. They are all damned good fellows."

Goble obviously has in eminent degree the qualities the civilian has come to associate with the air force—fortitude, steadiness, modesty—a new sort of outlook acquired by men who have learned to suffer the sudden departure of associates, whose horizons are as limitless as the air, men who have been and seen.

He has been in Malta, Egypt, Palestine, India, Malaya, China and the Dutch East Indies, all over the southern and eastern hemispheres and Europe and now finds a rest for his foot in the new west. In the last 32 years he has never lived under one roof for more than 18 months.

In 1924 he was advanced from the rank of Order of the British Empire to be a Commander of the Order. That was for being the first to circumnavigate the vast continent of Australia. He did it in a seaplane with an officer who has since been killed.

For war services he wears on his tunic the ribbons of the D.S.C. and the D.S.O., the latter having been won as a flight lieutenant at the same time as he received special promotion on the field. The French decorated him with the Croix de Guerre.

Goble studied at the Imperial Staff College in England with Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, commander of the Canadian Corps in England. He has been Chief of Air Staff in Australia, deputy director of operations of the Air Ministry and Commander of No. 2 Bomber Group R.A.F. from its inception in the middle fo 1926 to the end of 1937.

It might have been expected that a flier and technician of his quality might have lost some of the feel of the earth, the humanity of men in the street, but Goble speaks of homely things like losing his baggage with the same interest as John Doe.

The Vice-Marshal's wife is in Ottawa with him. He has three sons, one a midshipman in the Royal Australian Navy, and two in boarding school in Melbourne.

Seymour Girls' Club Elect Officers

CAMPBELLFORD, Mar. 13 (ENS) Members of the Seymour West Girls' Club sponsored by the Women's Institute Branch held their annual meeting at the home of Mrs. Charles Fraser on Saturday afternoon. During the afternoon the group, which has as its motto, "The Club Girl Stands On Guard," discussed outlines of their program for the year which will include such subjects as Health—How to Keep Healthy; Posture and Nutrition.

Officers for the year were named as follows: President, Miss Jean Lewis; Secretary-Treasurer, Miss D. MacDowall; pianist, Miss Jerine Hendy; Press reporter, Mary Rutherford. They will hold their next meeting on March 15, at Mrs. Charles Fraser's.

Bethany News

Surrounded by her immediate family and several intimate neighbors and friends, Mrs. George Spencer observed very quietly her 85th birthday anniversary last Wednesday evening. Many messages of congratulations were phoned to the aged lady.

Miss Gladys McKinley, Reg.N., of Toronto, spent Sunday the guest of her mother, Mrs. John McKinley.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sutton of Bowmanville were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Brown at the supper hour.

Miss Beatrice Darroch of Toronto, accompanied by Miss Irene Dawson of Haliburton, called on Mrs. G. Foster on Sunday morning.

Miss Doris Driver, student at Toronto University, spent the week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Driver, accompanied by Ruth Grimsmead, Irene Dawson and Beatrice Darroch.

Miss Ruth Rowland of Toronto spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Rowland.

Bethany main street was parked with cars on both sides from early Sunday morning until 6 o'clock in the evening, as visitors enjoyed the skiing on Bethany hills.

The efforts from a crowd who gathered by phone call, prevented the loss of Mr. J. Kerr's farm house on Monday noon by fire in the roof.

These little ladies, who don't seem to resent the invasion of their privacy, are enjoying their bath at "Toddlers' Town," a centre for evacuee children somewhere in England. There are 500 children in all in this centre, which has an efficient corps of nurses, its own laundry, power plant, dairy and bakery.

Cox and Heenan Feud Anew Over Timber

TORONTO, March 13 — (CP). — Second readings to Government and Private Bills is on the agenda of the Ontario legislature today while a meeting of the agricultural committee is to be held before the House sits. The committee will discuss, among other things, the matter of egg grading which was the basis of a complaint at its last meeting.

In the throne speech debate yesterday, Mayor Charles Cox of Port Arthur renewed his feud with Lands Minister Peter Heenan over the handling of the province's timber resources. Both Liberals, the two members from Northwestern Ontario constituences have been warring on this topic for the last six years.

Mayor Cox charged the policy of Mr. Heenan's department was ruining the vast timber areas at the head of the lakes. He claimed the department was losing an annual potential revenue of about $48,000 when it allowed exporters to pay the same rate of dues for peeled wood as Canadian Mills paid for rough wood.

He asserted the reallocation of timber areas had given exporting mills and those supplying the export market a great advantage over Canadian mills.

"It costs the Port Arthur Abitibi mill at least $100,000 a year more to produce the wood used at their mill than it does to produce the same quantity for export mills," Mayor Cox said.

As Heenan Sees It.

Mr. Heenan said the root of Mayor Cox's criticism was the fact he couldn't have "all the patronage of the northwest." The member for Port Arthur, he said, had spent his time blocking men from making a living from the export of pulpwood in his district.

Mayor Cox, he continued, criticized the exportation of pulpwood yet in 1938 he hailed it as one of the "most outstanding moves affecting Ontario since Confederation." He urged at that time the arrangement to be effective must be on a permanent rather than a year-to-year basis.

"Now he has reversed himself," remarked the Minister.

As to the charge the timber resources were being ruined, Mr. Heenan said that due to its inaccessibility there was timber that would be standing after the "lifetime of our grandchildren."

He said one of the big aims of his Department was to open up these areas gradually by building dams and roadways.

"However, no one man had delayed the development of these resources more than the member of Port Arthur and we intend to protect any investor against the whims of this man," declared Mr. Heenan.

"He Stayed Away"

The Port Arthur Mayor claimed that witnesses stayed away from the Timber Inquiry held last year because of fear of reprisals while witnesses who testified were those benefiting from the present export policy.

When James Cooper (Lib. Sudbury) chairman of the timber probe, asked whether the committee was responsible for these witnesses failing to testify, Mayor Cox said he meant no reflection on the committee. He added, however, there were other means of reprisals.

Only one other speaker was heard during the afternoon, J. J. Glass (Lib., Toronto St. Andrew) suggesting that the entire problem of labor relations be handed over to the Federal Government. One Ontario firm, he said, lost out on a contract for manufacturing soldier's uniforms because a firm from another province, in which Labor was not so well organized, underbid it. He told reporters later the province he referred to was Quebec.

Congregation Honors Hastings Couple

HASTINGS, March 13—(ENS).—The congregation of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, gathered to bid farewell on Thursday to Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Findly prior to their leaving for their new home at Schomberg, where Mr. Findly has been transferred as manager of the Royal Bank.

For the past nine year, Mr. Findly has been superintendent of St. Andrew's Sunday school, has been an elder of the church and secretary of the board of managers, and Mrs. Findly has contributed to the W.M.S. and was an active member of the Ladies' Aid and interested in all church work.

Rev. D. K. Perrie, in a brief address, spoke of the appreciation of the worth of Mr. and Mrs. Findly and the debt of gratitude the congregation owed to them for the interest taken in the welfare of the church. On behalf of the congregation he presented them with a beautiful walnut coffee table and tray.

Mr. Findly spoke very feelingly, thanking the people for their many acts of kindness and wishing them progress and success in the future.

A short program with the Rev. D. K. Perrie as chairman, included an impromptu debate, "Resolved, that the groom at a wedding requires more attention than the bride." The disclussion with Don Beamish and Scott Fife on the affirmative, and Mrs. Clarence Gillespie and Mrs. O. Phillips upholding the negative, proved most amusing.

Mrs. William McMillan contributed a pleasing piano solo and Miss Jessie Whitred a reading.

Lunch was served at the close of the program, and a social half hour enjoyed.

Mr. J. V. Findly will be succeeded by Mr. A. C. Putman of Lambeth as manager of the Royal Bank.

Shelter-Tables

LONDON, March 13 (CP).—Distribution of steel-framed house shelters for air raid protection will begin next week, with an initial allocation of 7,500 weekly for the London area. These shelters can be used as dining or kitchen tables when the family is not squatting under them during air raids.

BORROWED PLUMES

Chinese declare that all captured Japanese airplanes appear to have been made on license from some other country.

Even Pope Rationed

Vatican City, March 13 (AP)

THE rationing of food and some some other goods was introduced in Vatican City today, affecting all residents, including the Pope.

The allotments are slightly more generous than those in effect in Italy. Vatican City residents, for example, will be allowed a pound of coffee a month; Italians can't have any coffee.

The rationing fixes these limits among others: 3½ ounces of meat a day and two small loaves of bread; a quarter pound of butter a week, 4½ pounds of sugar a month and 22 gallons of gasoline monthly.

Roseneath Institute Holds Open Night

ROSENEATH, March 13 (ENS)—Sixteen tables of progressive euchre for adults, three tables of progressive euchre and one table of Chinese checkers for children were in play on Thursday night in the town hall. The evening had a double feature in that it was the occasion of the annual open meeting of the W. I. for members of families and friends, and an invitation to the general public to attend the drawing of the lucky ticket for a fancy quilt, had been largely accepted.

The quilt materials, donated by Mrs. Alfred Braithwaite, and made up by the members was on display. The sale of 444 tickets on the quilt netted the society $41.75. Of this number 189 were sold by Mrs. Clark Sandercock, with the president, Mrs. Leslie Tucker, a close runner-up, with a score of 123 to her credit.

The lucky ticket selected by Joan McMillan corresponded to the ticket number held by Billie and Shirley Brown, young children of Mr. and Mrs. Kyle Brown. The ticket had been purchased in the children's name by their grandfather William Brown. The proceeds together with the door receipts will be used to purchase yarn and necessities for Red Cross work.

Euchre Prizes

In the adult section the prizes for euchre were won by Mrs. S. Thackeray and George Turner. In the children's section Joan McMillan won the girls' prize and Velma Down carried off the boys' prize, playing as a gentleman. A lucky ticket for a door prize was held by Mrs. Fred George.

The president thanked the public for its patronage at a series of euchres held during the winter in aid of the Red Cross. The serving of refreshments concluded the entertainment.

American Gets O.B.E.

Mrs. Jennie Burnham Cameron of Kirby Muxloe, Eng., is the first American woman to be decorated with the Order of the British Empire. She was honored for her heroism during an air raid, helping 165 men and women to safety, then looking to their care throughout the bomb-torn night.

Mining Industry Plight Before House

TORONTO, March 13 (CP) — Hon. Farquhar Oliver, Ontario Minister of Public Works, making his first speech since he entered the Ontario cabinet, will resume the throne speech debate in the Ontario legislature today and division is expected to follow his speech.

A meeting of the Private Bills committee also is scheduled for this morning. In the throne speech debate yesterday Frank Spence (Con. Port William) spoke for an hour on the "serious" condition of the mining industry and suggested a plan by which prospectors would be encouraged to open up new holdings.

The basis of his plan was a relaxation of current stock-selling regulations, and at one point in his address he blames the Ontario Securities Commission for the shortage of investment capital He said there is "no need" for the commission in the sphere of mining and that its regulations "are killing the industry."

Under his proposal, shares in a speculative mining venture would be graded and sold in specified lots, each successive group sale to be governed by progress on the mine holding. Shares would be sold at low prices and marked speculative but their sale would allow prospectors to continue their development of promising fields.

He asked for development of Steep Rock Lake property, which he said was rich in Hematite, an iron ore which would obviate the necessity of importing "one pound of the $250,000,000 worth of iron ore now brought into this country from the United States."

Another Ex-President Seeks Haven

Ex-President of Lithuania, Anton Smetona, LEFT, and his wife are answering the questions of reporters aboard the liner Argentina as they reach New York from South America. Lithuania was one of the three Baltic countries to vote for affiliation with the Soviet Union, following penetration by the Red armies.

New Cream, Milk Act

A bill to amend the Milk and Cream Act, giving each municipality the authority to pass its own by-laws prescribing the hours during which milk and cream may be delivered, was given its first reading yesterday. Other bills were introduced dealing with the welfare of British war-guests in Canada and the widening of regulations governing men who may be appointed Ontario Agricultural representatives. Only men who have graduated from the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph are eligible at preesnt.

William Watson of the Ontario Livestock Branch, in an address, stressed the importance of increasing Canadian hog production, saying Britain will become more dependent on Canadian Livestock as German submarine warfare becomes more intensive. He said the trade route from Canada, short in comparison to those from other livestock-producing nations in Australia, New Zealand and South America, will be used more increasingly as the war progresses.

Mr. Spence's suggestion to finance the prospectors was based on a preorganization plan whereby a 3,500,000 share company would be formed on a likely claim, 1,250,000 shares going to the prospector and the remainder being left in the treasury.

Let Prospectors Sell Shares

The prospector to carry on his preliminary work would be permitted to sell enough shares at two cents each to realize $2,500. This stock would be marked with the letter "P" to indicate it was the lowest type of mining share and was purely speculative.

When the prospector had developed his claim to the point where he could furnish channel samples with a commercial value, he would be permitted to sell further shares marked "E" that would bring him another $2,500. This system would be followed through until the property proved to be of enough value to form a company in which case the stock would be labelled "D".

When the claim had reached the stage of development the shares would carry the letter "A". Each share, as it was sold would contain the statement of the prospector, describing the progress of the claim and a government stamp.

"The main point is that on every one of these vendors shares the government stamp would say frankly that it was speculative," declared Mr. Spence. "If the prospector, in his sworn statement printed on each certificate, is represented his claim, he would be open to immediate prosecution. The plan would eliminate red tape and regulations and at the same time would provide ready money for development.

"And may I respectfully say to the Minister of Mines if this plan were adopted I am confident he could fill the bush with prospectors and start a new and successful ever increasing development of our great mining resources and place many more millions available to prosecute the war and help pay for our enormous expenses."

Prior to presenting his plan, Mr. Spence said that if new properties were not developed the time would come when the present mines would be dried up.

There must be capital to develop properties and salesmen were hampered in their efforts to obtain this, because of the regulations prohibiting him from calling at private homes or using the telephone to sell his stock.

As it was now salesmen had to "cruise around in their cars at great expense until they could catch a client out in the street or on a country road and coax him into their car to get his cheque lawfully."

SAME FOR ALL

farmers in the same position they would be in if they could market wheat under pre-war conditions.

He estimated a sum of $325,000,000 in farm income was necessary to maintain Western farm economy and the plans had been made on that basis. The acreage bonus applies only to the Prairie provinces.

Deliveries of the 230,000,000 bushels which the government estimates can be disposed of this year will be on a quota basis.

His policy, Mr. Gardiner said, was designed to maintain farm economy under present conditions and make provision for increased production if and when it became practicable either during or after the war.

Mr. Gardiner said after the House adjourned that he had already sent wires to the three secretaries of rural municipalities associations in the Prairie provinces to meet him here Monday to work out plans for payment of the acreage bonus.

Through these municipal organizations he hopes to enlist the co-operation of secretary-treasurers of each rural municipality in reaching decisions on acreage taken out of wheat growing. He hoped to have applications for acreage bonus by May 1.

Closer Ties With U.S.

Immediately after the sitting opened Mr. King read a prepared statement on passage of the lease-lend bill, an action which he said had been brought about not by propaganda but by deeds—the brave deeds of the British people and the "wanton and cruel" deeds of Britain's enemies.

Closer relationship between the United States and the British Commonwealth, Mr. King said, "Will, I believe, seal the spiritual union of free people everywhere out of which we may hope to build an enduring new world order."

Mr. Hanson said Canada and Britain should join in grateful acknowledgement of the efforts of President Roosevelt and his administration, "and in the days to come, the abundant assistance which will be forthcoming, we and generations yet unborn will raise our voices and call their names blessed."

Labor Minister McLarty replied to a speech made earlier this week by Angus MacInnis (C.C.F. Vancouver East) in which the latter declared there was more labor unrest than ever before in Canada, and that the government was not contributing to confidence between labor and industry.

The minister said that at the moment, "notwithstanding the wide increase in industrial activity, there is not a single strike in Canada today—not one."

Every step taken by the government to co-ordinate labor and maintain proper relations between labor and capital has been taken either at the request of or with the unanimous approval of labor organizations.

Labor was given full representation on all public bodies set up to deal with labor matters and one of the most prominent men in organized labor in Canada, Tom Moore, president of the Canadian Trades and Labor Congress, has been asked to head the National Employment Committee to be set up under the Unemployment Insurance Act.

It had been charged by Mr. MacInnis that the labor turnover at the National Steel Car Company's aircraft plant at Malton, Ont., was between 75 and 90 per cent.

Mr. McLarty said he had asked the company and the reply was that the turnover was about 12 per cent in the last six months, with one-third of those leaving doing so to join the service.

The Minister dealt with extracts read in the House several days ago by T. C. Douglas (C.C.F. Weyburn) from a confidential report made to the Minister by a Labor official employed in the Fairchild aircraft factory in Montreal, describing the unsatisfactory conditions.

Relations Improved.

He said he absolved the member from any responsibility for using a confidential memorandum and did not know how he gained possession of it. He read a letter written by this labor official following the statements in the House by Mr. Douglas, stating that difficulties had been removed and good relations now existed between the company and its workers.

If members of the House would take up such matters with the Minister before airing them in public much good might be accomplished and much labor unrest avoided, Mr. McLarty said.

"I believe further that if we will all co-operate, not to disturb but to heighten the confidence of labor, we will do more in our contribution to our war effort than we could do by any other method," he added.

Ralph Maybank (Lib. Winnipeg South Centre) clashed with Munitions Minister Howe. Mr. Maybank protested against decision of the government-created Allied War Industries Corporation to instal bituminous coal burning equipment in its Winnipeg plant instead of lignite equipment which he claimed was much more economical.

He charged the company, although created and financed by the Government, was "playing horse" with the administration. He said the decision to instal the "less economic" fuel burning equipment was made by a group including an engineer who had been for years engaged in selling the bituminous equipment.

After being interrupted several times by the Minister, Mr. Maybank declared he was "not going to be whipped around or down" by anybody. He later withdrew this remark.

Mr. Howe had said earlier that the bituminous equipment had been installed because it was cheaper. He said that the whole question should be referred to the Commons committee on war expenditure, but Mr. Maybank said this would be "locking the door after the horse had gone."

Hard To Get Money.

Aircraft production was discussed by W. A. Fraser (Lib., Northumberland), who said one reason why it lagged was that before the war money could not be obtained to start the industry.

T. L. Church (Con., Toronto-Broadview) protested that Toronto was paying about $90,000,000 in Dominion taxes but was not getting the recognition it should from the Government.

Mr. Church made a plea for free transportation for soldiers in Canada. He referred to the fact that Col. Charles Lindbergh had been given a life pass on the Canadian National Railways.

He said "several hundred thousand" passes were issued every year by Canadian railways and he could not understand why men offering their lives for their country could not be given passes when on leave.

Great Nazi Assault

200 Planes in Assault.

It was estimated that about 200 German planes were over England during the night. Since nine bombers were downed it made the proportion of raiders shot down about one in 20 as compared with the previous estimated top of one out of 30.

Informed sources said that when this proportion reached one out of 10 the night bomber menace would be whipped.

Discussing Britain's new defensive weapons, military sources said new "gadgets" to fight night bombers were being gradually introduced into the defences, and were increasingly effective.

They said the skill of the anti-aircraft gun crews also was improving steadily, but added that Britain last night did not suddenly produce "out of the hat" a new method for bringing down raiders.

The Nicest Way of Taking Halibut Liver Oil

Children need added sources of vitamins A and D to make up for the absence of summer sunshine and fresh green vegetables. Give your kiddies a daily dose of natural A and D vitamins in the form of Haliborange. That will help to keep them strong and healthy. Haliborange provides the natural A and D vitamins contained in Halibut Liver Oil combined with a concentrated fresh orange juice of high quality. It is delicious to take. Haliborange is twice as rich in vitamins A and D as Cod Liver Oil of average B.P. standard.

Adults, too, often find Haliborange beneficial in helping to maintain correct nutrition. Try it.

Why Use A "Sissy" Laxative?

Chronic constipation has to do with the colon or large intestine. Unless the large bowel is thoroughly emptied from time to time you become a victim of chronic constipation and poisoning of the system which may result in colitis or other serious disease.

Mild or "sissy" laxatives merely cause a movement of the bowels without effecting a thorough cleaning out of the colon or large bowel. For this reason you are misled into thinking that you are doing all you can to overcome a constipated and poisoned condition of the system.

Those who know Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills appreciate the value of a real medicine which not only effects a thorough cleansing of the colon or large bowel but also arouses the liver and kidneys to activity in filtering poisons from the blood.

Once you have proven the merits of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills you will never return to the use of "sissy" laxatives. Keep regular by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills once or twice a week.

MAIN STREET TOPICS

ATTEND CARNIVAL

Scores of Peterborough folk went to Toronto last night on the C.P.R. excursion to attend the annual carnival of the Toronto Skating Club and many more will make the trip with the Y's Men's excursion over the C.N.R.

PLAY FRIDAY NIGHT

The Curve Lake hockey team was to have played Lloyd's Motor Sale team of Lakefield in Lakefield on Tuesday night but were unable to make the trip owing to snow-filled roads. However the game has been arranged for Friday night in Lakefield starting at 8.30 o'clock.

TORONTO DETECTIVES HERE

Detective Sergt. Barber and Detective Edmond Tong of the Toronto police department arrived in town at noon to take Lawrence Burns, arrested here last night after being released on bail, back to Toronto. He is wanted there on a theft charge.

RECOGNIZES SOLDIER

Mrs. A. Campbell, 686 Ross street, advised the Examiner today that she recognized her brother, Stanley Page, of the Cobourg Battery in a picture which appeared in the Examiner on Tuesday evening. The picture showed Canadian soldiers in the Beaver Club at London, and Gunner Page, whose mother also lives at 686 Ross street, is serving in the First Canadian Division.

PROMINENT VISITORS

Twelve or fifteen members of the Ontario legislature will be guests of the Kinsmen Club at their regular bi-monthly dinner meeting this evening. The members are coming down from Toronto by bus, on invitation from Alex L. Elliott, K.C., M.P.P., who is also a Kinsmen. Arrangements have been completed for a private showing of motion pictures showing the tourist attractions of the Kawartha district.

IT WASN'T RIGHT

F. G. Marn reported this morning that in error he had earmarked a contribution of $34.10 to the British War Victims' Fund as coming from the Douro Municipal Council. This should have read from the Dummer Municipal Council, and the money was raised by a dance arranged by members of the council. The money was sent in by Garfield Crowe, treasurer of the township of Dummer, and we regret that the error occurred.

POLICE EXTEND THANKS

The members of the Peterborough Police hockey team are anxious to express their gratitude to Lieut.-Col. Keeler and his staff at the local military training centre for the loan of goal-keeping pads, shin guards and other equipment which the police have been using in their battles around the district with the Cobourg-Port Hope police.

UNDER AGE.

District orders for this week mention the fact that the authorities will be clamping down on he enlistment for overseas service of boys under 19 years of age. A routine order, previously published, strictly states that other ranks of the C.A.S.F. will not be sent overseas until their 19th birthday. The new measure is one which will enforce the order.

STAFF OFFICER.

The members of the 4th Field Battery were inspected last night by Lt.-Col. L. F. Grant, of the General Staff, Kingston. Col. Grant also lectured to the men on artillery matters.

TEMPORARY STOREROOM.

The depot formerly operated by the Imperial Oil Company at Park and Romaine Streets has been taken over temporarily by the Outboard Marine Company and will be used during the next few months as a storeroom.

Tickets for Madrigal Concert Tues., Mar. 25, may be obtained at Sullivan's Music Store, 179 Charlotte street.

Enlisting Cows For Britain Cheese Pledge

The Canadian cow is being called to the colors in a campaign that is aiming at 500,000,000 more pounds of milk from the dairy industry of this country to fill Britain's 1941 order of 112,000,000 pounds of cheese.

The first sounding of this appeal in Peterborough county was heard last night at Young's Point where fifty patrons of three cheese factories of the district attended a meeting addressed by George A. Elliott of Norwood, president of the Peterborough Cheese Patrons' Association, Frank C. Paterson, W. J. Moore, dairy instructor and Ed. Butler. The chairman was Gilbert McIlmoyle.

The factories represented were Young's Point, Selwyn and Pine Grove. A welcoming fire was blazing in the big stone hearth of St. Aidan's community hall, compensating with cheeriness those who ignored the weather and its near zero chill.

There was no rhetoric about this meeting, the first of a series to be held in the county this month emphasizing the seriousness of the contract Canada has entered upon for the supply of foodstuffs, and especially cheese, to the people of Great Britain. It was felt that the district to the north had responded with a great deal of encouragement, setting an example which it was hoped the other factory groups would sustain.

Patriotism and Profit

Mr. Elliott discussed briefly the new price of 19 cents a pound f.o.b. Montreal for top grade cheese this season, expressed his confidence that the factories would be able to show a profitable year if they keep up the quality of last year's product, and also said that the job is being laid at the door of dairy farmers as patriotic co-operation with the people in the Old Land.

Mr. Paterson suggested methods by which the herds might be conditioned to produce the extra 500 pounds of milk for each cow. Mr. Moore stressed the necessity of quality, especially as essential to the two cent premium for 94 grade cheese, and Mr. Butler made an appeal for the Federation of Agriculture and the benefits of unity.

"Ontario pdroduces 73 per cent of the cheese made in Canada, and that means the bulk of this job has got to be done by our own dairy farmers," Mr. Elliott said.

"Our contract last year was 14 cents f.o.b. Montreal. This year our agreement is 14.4 cents paid by the British government, plus 3-5 cent bonus by the federal government, and two cents a pound to be paid by the Ontario government. That brings the price of 17 cents. But, we have the federal government's premium of one cent a pound on all cheese scoring 93 points and two cents on all 94 cheese, which gives us an opportunity of receiving approximately 19 cents a pound for our best 1941 cheese."

The 1940 Record

"In 1940 there were 12,162 boxes of cheese graded in this county," Mr. Elliott recalled. "Of that number 2,965 were 94 score and 7,042 were 93 score. These brought a premium of $11,674.80. If all had been of 94 score we would have received about $10,216.80 more.

Burglary Suspect Is Re-Arrested

Goes To Kingston

Provincial Constable John A. Rogers, who has been transferred from Havelock to Kingston and will take up his duties in his new post on Monday. Constable Rogers a Peterborough boy, started his police duties as a member of the Peterborough police department and later transferred to the provincial force. He has been on duty in Havelock, with jurisdiction over the eastern part of the county. Constable Rogers' post at Havelock is to be taken over by Constable Grayson.

Laurence Burns Faces Another Charge

Lawrence Burns, one of the four suspects awaiting trial for cracking the safe of the C.D.S. store here, was released on bail of $5,000 last night, but he did not enjoy his liberty very long.

Mannis Frankel, Toronto lawyer, was here with the necessary bondsman, and the bail proceedings were quickly completed.

As soon, however, as Burns stepped outside into the jail corridor he was immediately rearrested by Constables Archie Menzies and Leo. Murphy on a warrant for Toronto police.

Burns was taken to the police station and locked up there for the night and today was taken back to Toronto.

The trial of the four men for the C.D.S. break-in will commence here in the county judge's court on March 31, the accused having elected speedy trial in preference to waiting for judge and jury in which case the cases would not have been heard until the first week in June. It is expected that W. B. Common, K.C., of Toronto will be special crown prosecutor.

Brrr, It's A Cold Job In March

Suburban Area Restricted For Building

Six restricted areas for building purposes have been set apart in the suburban sections of North Monaghan and restrictions for each of these areas have been adopted by the township council. At its regular meeting Monday, the boundaries of these areas were decided upon and restrictions framed and these will be incorporated in a bylaw.

In No. 1 area, the section just west of the city boundary from Jackson Park south to Highway 28, it is provided that no house shall be built at a cost under $4,000 and that only private residences of that type may be built within the area.

In other areas the cost of the houses that may be erected varies from $3,500 down to $1,000. There are restrictions in each area as to construction, material used, etc.

H. I. Bradburn, representing A. E. Wilson and Company, for Lloyds of London, was awarded the public liability and property damage insurance on township roads for the current year.

Reg. Hunter, assessor for 1940, was present and upon agreement by him to instal a telephone, he was reappointed assessor at a salary of $300.

The following accounts were presented for payment: Snow plowing sidewalks, $31; wrist watches, $287; schools, $2,251.33; constable and expenses, $45; salaries, $85; Herb. Carson, $7.75; relief and charity, $105.11; Dr. Caldwell's will fund, $5; street lighting, $90; Board of Health, $4; printing, $12.98; tax refund, $17.45; electric light arrears, $13.32; roads and streets, $14.85; public liability insurance on roads, $100; special grants, $40.

Bruce Payne, township auditor, presented his statement of the 1940 accounts. A resolution was passed accepting the auditor's report, and ordering the printing of 100 copies.

A delegation from Brioux Avenue was present, asking for sidewalks on both north and south sides of the avenue for a distance of approximately 456 feet west of Park street.

The department of municipal affairs announced a one-mill subsidy for the current year.

A resolution was passed to engage J. W. Pierce, O.L.S., to make plans, specifications, and estimates of the cost of the proposed sidewalks on Brioux Avenue.

A resolution was passed that Leslie Bristow be appointed a member of the Board of Health in place of the late Harry Clark.

The clerk was instructed by resolution to give wrist watches to the next-of-kin of those men enlisting from North Monaghan in the army, navy and air force, and to receive a receipt for the same.

The next meeting will be held on April 14, at 2.30 o'clock in the afternoon.

In The Air Force

Howard Berry, A.C. 2, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Berry, River Road, and is serving with the R.C.A.F. He spent last weekend at home and is stationed at Manning Pool. He has a brother serving with the Regina Rifles, and four nephews and a first cousin are also on active service.

Saw Bus Driver "On Fire" Witness Claims

COBOURG, Ont., March 13—(CP)—A bus passenger, Gerald McAuliffe, of Peterborough, Ont., testified at a coroner's inquest last night that he saw Arthur Timmins, Oshawa, Ont., bus driver, surrounded by flames and "on fire" after a crash between the bus and a truck at nearby Colborne last February 13. The jury adjourned the probe into the death of the 26-year-old chauffeur because of the illness of one of the bus passengers who was to have been a witness.

McAuliffe said he was knocked out of the bus and found himself lying on the ground a short distance from the burning wreck.

"I could see the driver was still behind the wheel as if he were driving," McAuliffe said. "I didn't know whether he was alive or dead. There were flames all around and he was on fire, too."

The driver of the truck, D. R. McIntyre, of Toronto, told the jury the bus approached him on a curve and seemed to slide toward the centre of the road. It hit the side of his machine, he said.

Norwood People Donate To War Victims

Norwood citizens have three items in the list of donations to the British War Victims' Fund this morning, keeping pace with the other small municipalities in the district which are contributing regularly to the fund. The Norwood Mothers' Institute sent $6.25, the box at Kings Hotel, Norwood added $1.75 and a box in Gardiner's Drug Store had 12 cents in it. These contributions were sent in to the Examiner by D. B. Cutcliffe, Norwood bank manager.

There is every evidence that local citizens are contributing small amounts to the fund by dropping the odd bit of change into the boxes. Today a box at the United Cigar Store had $2.14 in it and another in the Bell Telephone had $2.00 even.

Among today's contributions is one listed "found money" and the story behind this is as follows: A local man was visiting in a distant city, and when ready to leave for home picked up a change purse on the street, which had $1.01 in it. Not having time to make any enquiries he pocketed the purse until he reached Peterborough, then turned the money in to the British War Victims' Fund.

Today a letter was received from The Mansion House, London, home of the Lord Mayor, George Wilkinson, and the letter is official acknowledgement for the third contribution of £500 sent to England some considerable time ago. Since then another £500 has gone forth, and the fifth is almost subscribed.

The letter voices the thanks of the Lord Mayor and he says in part: "Will you please convey to the citizens of the Peterborough district my sincerest thanks for their continued support and for the evidence they have shown of their deep sympathy for those unfortunate people in this country who have been bombed from their homes."

Another local church organization comes to the fore today with a $5.00 contribution. This is the Scout Mothers' Auxiliary of St. John's Church.

The list is as follows:—

Previously acknowledged	$10,333.08
Box at United Cigar Store	2.14
Box at Bell Telephone	2.00
Found money	1.01
Scout Mothers' Auxiliary of St. John's Church	5.00

Box at Kings Hotel, Norwood	1.75
Norwood Mothers' Institute	6.25
Box at Gardiner's Drug Store, Norwood	.12
Box at Routley's China Shop	.52
Box at Loblaws	2.14
Total to date	$10,355.13

Obituary

JOHN GEORGE PLUNKETT.

The death of John George Plunkett, of 237 Prince Street, occurred on Tuesday night at his residence, after a long illness.

Born in Marmora 68 years ago, Mr. Plunkett had spent his early life in Otonabee, but had resided in Peterborough for the past 30 years. For 21 years he was in the employ of the Maple Leaf Milling Company here, and was well-known throughout the district.

Surviving are two sons, Dr. Elmer Plunkett, Ottawa, and Leslie, of the 3rd Field Park Company, and one daughter, Mrs. Alvin Davis; also three sisters: Mrs. William Plunkett of Havelock, Miss Rebecca and Miss Mary of Peterborough.

The funeral will be on Friday from the family residence, 237 Prince Street, at 2.30 p.m., E.D.T. Rev. F. W. Craik will officiate, and interment will be in Fife's Cemetery, Otonabee.

Quits His Class

LANSING, Mich., March 13 (AP)—Former Governor Luren D. Dickinson, 81-year-old foe of sin and "high life," is giving up the Sunday School class he has taught for 55 years. He said demands for Sunday addresses made it impossible for him to continue.

New York Writer To Address Business Men

A top notch war correspondent for the New York Times, and a man whom the Nazis would be glad to see in a concentration camp, is slated to address the annual meeting of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce on March 24.

The speaker is Percy J. Philip and he has lived through the last turbulent quarter of a century as Paris correspondent for the New York Times. He spent a great deal of time on the war front last winter and spring and he saw the collapse of France as the Nazi war machine rolled along. Then he went to Bordeaux, finally on to Vichy, where he stayed until last September. He fled from France and the Nazis, presumably because his writings had been at variance with the Nazi cause, and on reaching Spain, took a bicycle and headed for a port. He travelled by bicycle practically from one end of Spain to the other, and after sailing from a Spanish port, reached England and then home in the States.

Mr. Philip ranks high in the realm of newspaper work, and has a background of experience and training that puts him in the top bracket as an after dinner speaker.

He has spent quite some time at Ottawa in recent months as a writer for the New York Times, and it was here that H. L. Garner of the Examiner met him. He consented to come down to Peterborough to address the Chamber of Commerce, and when advised of the splendid war effort of Peterborough citizens, intimated he might write a feature article covering this material.

Camp Officers Complete Special Course

CORNWALL, March 13. — Under the command of Lt.-Col. E. O. Keeler, M.C., V.D., officer commanding C.A.(R.)T.C. No. 32 at Peterborough, the delegation of officers and non-commissioned officers who have been attending a school of instruction at Cornwall for the past five weeks will arrive in Peterborough Saturday evening at 6.05 o'clock.

The officers and other ranks left Peterborough on February 10, and since that time have undergone intensive training in Cornwall. Four of the officers who left early in February left the train at Brockville to report to the Fourth Princess Louise Dragoon Guards Reconnaissance Squadron at Ottawa for active service. These officers are now in training at Farnham, Que.

Following the return of the delegation to the Training Centre at Peterborough preparations will be made for the reception of the first recruits to report for four months' training. The officers returning to Peterborough Saturday include: Lt.-Col. E. O. Keeler, Major C. L. Wallbridge, Major L. Johnson, Captain W. A. Mark, and Lieuts. T. Atkinson, A. G. F. MacDonald, J. A. Haskell, A. J. R. Ash and J. J. Keir.

Campbellford Seeking War Industry

CAMPBELLFORD, March 13.—(ENS)—At the regular monthly meeting of the Water and Light Commission Wednesday evening, Manager P. C. Denyes reported that a deputation was in Campbellford on Tuesday inspecting several buildings with the possibility of opening up a factory for the manufacture of war materials. In addition to this Mr. Denyes said that he had interviewed twenty different manufacturers in the last week endeavoring to interest them in locating in Campbellford but as yet no definite decisions on the part of the firms had been reached.

"There is a real need of an industry in town and citizens should all band together and start one of their own," maintained Mayor F. F. Long. He suggested that a deputation should interview Mr. H. N. Carr, M.P.P. for Northumberland to have him use his influence with the department of Highway to pave No. 30 highway from Brighton to Campbellford this coming summer, giving us one paved outlet to No. 2 highway. The Mayor further stated that since Hastings County had received a paved road last summer from Stirling to Foxboro he thought Campbellford was entitled to at least one paved outlet.

The manager gave a comparison figure of revenue for the month of February, 1941, with the same period in 1940, stating in February, 1940, the receipts in all departments was $7,167 and in the same period of 1941 to be $7,273.38. Total arrears in all departments outstanding in 1940 was $2,580 and in 1941, $2,503.86, showing an improvement in receipts and outstanding arrears.

The mayor also stated that he had received a letter from Corporal Owens, First Midland Regiment, Ottawa, informing him of 35 Campbellford boys who would receive two weeks' furlough starting Monday, March 17, and would like the Mayor to make arrangements to meet them in Belleville and transport them to Campbellford. This request was being granted to Cpl. Owens, the town council were cooperating one hundred per cent and the same cooperation was solicited from the Board.

Miss Mary Denne Died This Morning

A member of one of Peterborough's most respected families passed away Thursday morning, in the person of Miss Margaret J. Denne. The death occurred at her home, 116 Dublin street, and after an illness of some duration.

Miss Denne was a retired school teacher, having been on the staff of the Peterborough Public Schools for a number of years. She was born, and had lived all of her life in Peterborough. She was educated in Peterborough schools, and was a member of St. John's Anglican church.

The daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Denne, she is survived by one brother, T. H. G. Denne, and four sisters, Mrs. W. H. Graham, of Peterborough, Mrs. W. B. Schulte of Freeport, Ill. and Misses Gertrude and May Denne of Peterborough.

The funeral will be on Saturday, March 15, from the residence, 116 Dublin street at 2.30 p.m. Canon W. P. Robertson will officiate, and interment will be in Little Lake cemetery.

Flees From Nazis

Percy J. Philip, noted foreign correspondent for the New York Times who will be guest speaker at the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce on March 24th. For the past 25 years he has been stationed in Paris and saw the collapse of France, barely escaping the Nazis who sought his capture.

Badminton Players Honor RCAF Member

LAKEFIELD, March 13 (ENS)—Lakefield Badminton members honored one of their number, Art Kingdon of the R.C.A.F., Trenton, who was home on a forty-eight hour leave on Tuesday evening.

A round of friendly games were enjoyed and dainty refreshments served, after which J. Ryan, president of the club, on behalf of the members presented Art. with a useful military toilet kit.

Although taken by surprise he replied thanking the members for their kind remembrance.

Transient Jailed For Getting Abusive

A warning that if he remained in Peterborough he would have to be more careful about his conduct was given William Taylor, London, Ont., in police court this morning when Magistrate Langley sentenced the accused to ten days in jail on a charge of begging.

Taylor has already had a week's imprisonment and as the sentence was dated back to the day of his arrest he will be released from the county bastille shortly.

Inspector J. F. Reid told the court that Taylor had been begging from door to door and when he was refused money at one residence, had been very abusive in his language. As a result there was a complaint to police and the man was arrested.

Taylor told the magistrate that he was 24, and that he had been "kicked out" of his home in London by his step-father.

Volants Shelve R.C.A.F. 7-3; NO ToGetChance

(By the Canadian Press.)

Two teams made their exit from the Eastern Canadian Senior hockey picture last night, but the race had 12 entries in the field yesterday still had 11 and possibly 12 today, thanks to an Ontario Hockey Association ruling and another protest in the ever-clouded Cape Breton situation.

Hull Volants set back the Royal Canadian Air Force squad, 7-3, in the deciding game of the best-of-five Ottawa City finals, and won the right to meet Petawawa Grenades in a series that will produce the opponent for the Maritime winners in one bracket of the Eastern Canadian semi-finals.

At the same time, Northern Ontario won its fight for a chance at the Allan Cup when the O.H.A. announced that Buffalo-Ankerite Bisons would meet the winners of the St. Catharines-Toronto Marlboros battle in a total-goal series. Marlboros have a 3-2 edge with the sixth game of the best-of-seven series scheduled for Saturday.

Previously, negotiations for a North-South playoff in Ontario had fallen through because Ontario was supposed to declare a champion to meet the Quebec winners by March 20. Late play-off in other sections have made a delay in declaring an Ontario champion possible.

Beavers Lost Out.

Meanwhile, one team went out of the Maritime picture when Saint John Beavers tied Halifax Navy 5-5, and lost the total-goal semi-final round 11-8.

That should have cleared the way for Halifax to meet Sydney Millionaires of the Cape Breton Hockey League in the Maritime finals. But Sydney ran into another protest from Glace Bay Miners, who base their latest objection on the grounds that League President A. D. Campbell had no right to change their finals with Sydney from a best-of-seven series to a best-of-three.

That was the latest protest in a series which started when Miners lost their goalie through the ineligible route, and was climaxed, temporarily, when Sydney was awarded the league title after firing a puck into a deserted net in what was to have been the second game of the new best-of-three series.

Protest Goes On

The Glace Bay protest was forwarded to Hanson Dowell of Middleton, N.S., vice-president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, and acting secretary of the Maritime Amateur Hockey Association.

Highlight of tonight's games is the fourth of the Quebec Senior Hockey League title series in Montreal with Royals entertaining Ottawa Senators. Royals moved from underdogs to favorites in the best-of-five series with an 11-5 victory in Ottawa Tuesday and now, with a 2-1 lead, have a chance to finish off the round tonight.

The Juniors, who had an off-night last night, get back into action tonight, with Ottawa St. Pats and Ottawa Canadiens meeting in the deciding game of their playoff, with the winner to meet Pembroke for the right to meet the Maritime winner, where Charlottetown Royals are one goal down in the total-goal series with Truro Bearcat Juniors.

A Mother's Gift

Somewhere in England, March 13 (CP)

BOMBARDIER GLOVES and Gunner Phelps of the Royal Artillery were standing in a street of this town.

A limousine pulled up beside them and a middle-aged, fashionably dressed woman leaned out and thrust a packet into Phelps' hand.

"Please take this, laddie, as a present for you and your friend," he said. The machine sped away.

The surprised Phelps opened the packet—inside were 180 £1 notes ($667) and this letter:

"For a soldier serving his country.

"Today is my son's birthday. He was killed early in this war and my husband was killed in the last war. The money would have been used as a birthday present for my boy.

"Use it, laddie, and God bless you.

"From a broken-hearted mother."

Markham Whips Cobourg By 9-2

MARKHAM, March 13 (Special)—Running in four goals in each of the last two periods, Markham advanced in O.H.A. Junior C competition at the expense of Cobourg here last night, using a 9-2 victory to overwhelm the visitors 18 to 2 on the round Markham won the first game in Cobourg 6-0.

Lodge Entertained At Euchre Party

MILLBROOK, March 13—(ENS)—Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Trick were host and hostess for an enjoyable euchre party at their home, Main street, on Tuesday evening, when five tables were in use for play, and over twenty guests were in attendanc. The proceeds, amounting to $5.25 were for the funds of the newly-organized "Daughters of Cavan" Ladies' Orange lodge.

Brother William Blair won the lucky chair prize, Sister May Finn the ladies' high score, and Wesley Hutchinson the men's. Mrs. (Dr.) L. M. Hobbs and Miss Jean Fisher assisted the hostess in serving the lunch when play was completed.

The "Daughters of Cavan," of which Mrs. D. Lunn is Worshipful Mistress, meets every second Wednesday in the L.O.L. Hall.

Joe Gets Ready In Harlem Spot

DETROIT, March 13—(AP). — Fight training was never like this until Joe Louis returned to his home town to prepare for his 15th heavyweight title defence March 21 against big Abe Simon.

That's the testimony of Jack Blackburn, Louis' shrewd trainer, who gazes incredibly at the swanky training quarters and sighs reverently, "Those boys in my day wouldn't believe it if they saw it."

The Louis training ring is pitched front and centre on the slickest dance floor in Detroit's Harlem. Each day the 27-year-old champion, who sprang from a $5 a day job to the high income tax brackets, commutes 80 miles from his dude ranch at Utica, Mich., to appear in the air conditioned surroundings of dance paradise, an up to the minute jitterbug joint.

While he is belting around his sparmates, Joe's routine approaches the sphere of hot band music and nimble dance steps. Rays from the sidewall tube lighting shine on the camp followers in black leather easy chairs. But once the drills are finished, the hall is quickly transformed and Louis is hustled out to his ranch.

Meanwhile the 200-pound Simon is training in a comparatively quiet downtown gymnasium. His voluble manager, James Joy Johnston, is to return here Tuesday from Los Angeles and perhaps may be in time to revitalize box office business at Olympia, site of the bout, which so far has been none too healthy despite the modest $5 top price.

StampedersDrop 3-2 Tilt; Trail Advances

WINNIPEG, March 13.— (CP). — Last year's Western Canada senior hockey champions, Calgary Stampeders, to-day were underdogs in Alberta after last night's games which saw the league-leading sextets in Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia move ahead in the provincial finals.

Marty Burke's Stampeders dropped a 3-2 overtime decision to Lethbridge Maple Leafs who took a 3-1 edge in the best-of five Alberta series.

Trail Smoke Eaters, winners of the Allan Cup in 1938 took a stangle hold on the British Columbia crown by trimming Kimberley Dynamiters 5-2 for their second straight victory in their best-of-five finals.

Regina Rangers, leaders most of the season of Saskatchewan's five-team senior loop, upset Yorkton Terriers 4-2 in the first of a best-of five Saskatchewan final.

On the junior hockey front Edmonton Athletic Club won their fourth successive Alberta championship, disposing of Edmonton Maple Leafs by a fortunate overtime goal in the fifth of their best-of-five setto.

Winner To Isaac

At the five-minute mark of the overtime session E.A.C., Western Canada champions in 1939 and '34, Mike Isaac was credited with the victory goal, making the score 6-5. It was his third counter of the game. On the road E.A.C.'s scored 21 goals against 18 for Leafs. The Alberta champions will travel to Saskatchewan in the Interprovincial playdowns.

The E.A.C. win left eight teams in Western Canada still eligible for the Memorial Cup.

Mel Lunde who joined Lethbridge's sextet this season scored at 5.12 to give Leafs their Alberta Senior triumph. Leafs took the first game 3-1, and Stampeders the second 4-3.

Trail, winner of the first game 6-2, banged in three goals in the last period for last night's victory. Ab Cronie's second counter with less than eight minutes to play proved the deciding point.

Cultivation of flowers has been restricted in England.

Armed Canadian Merchant Cruiser On Patrol

Her decks awash with the spray of heavy seas, a Canadian armed merchant cruiser plows along on patrol duty somewhere in the broad Atlantic. Rows of shells can be seen lining the deck, ready to feed the ship's guns. Waves of a heavy sea are tossing the boat as the menacing snout of a gun points seaward.

Kingston Gunner Escapes Nazis Twice

KINGSTON, March 13 (Special). It takes more than the Germans to keep Gunner George Richard Cooper of Kingston a prisoner of war. He is now at Gibraltar, having twice escaped from the Nazis, according to word received here by his wife. Ottawa officials also confirmed in a casualty list yesterday that Gunner Cooper is now in British territory.

The name of Gunner Cooper has appeared in several casualty lists. He was reported missing in a casualty list issued July 3, 1940, following action in France. Wounded in the leg, he was taken to a hospital at Pontivy, France, and early in October another casualty list had him listed as injured and in hospital.

When the Germans swept through France, Cooper became a prisoner of war, but he had no intention of spending the next few years in a German prison. He made a break for liberty in October, but was recaptured and sent to an internment camp in German-held Marseille.

Cooper bided his time. When the right opportunity presented itself he staged a one-man blitzkrieg, and before the Germans could get organized, he had vanished. How he reached Gibraltar is not known.

Enlisting in the first month of the war with "A" Battery, R.C.H.A. Gunner Cooper went overseas with the First Division. His wife was unable to throw much light on his movements.

"I have not heard from him for some time, and was certainly glad to get the cable saying he had got away," said Mrs. Cooper. 'I don't know exactly how badly he was injured in the first place, but I don't think it could have been very bad."

Harvey Council To Remove Poles

HALL'S BRIDGE, March 13. — The Harvey Municipal Council met in the True Blue Hall, Hall's Bridge, on Saturday. All members were present, with the Reeve in the chair.

Correspondence was read and Clerks and Reeve were authorized to draw orders on treasury for the following accounts:

R. Chesney(error in rebate in debenture) $1.00; Peterborough Examiner, printing, $28.20; Bobcaygeon Independent, printing, $3.00; T. J. Carley (making duplicate of by-law) $3.00; M. B. Hall, salary, $15.00; Bert Easson (rebate on debenture) 17c.

The Reeve was authorized to investigate an indigent patient's account and have same paid before April 1, 1941. Collector's time was extended until next meeting of council, and voucher No. 2 was paid to road superintendent.

The Municipal Telephone Commission interviewed the Harvey council to discuss the removal of telephone poles interfering with snow plough and on motion of Elliott and Irwin the township agreed to pay 50% of cost of moving necessary telephone poles between Gannon's Narrows and Buckhorn on main road. Road superintendent to mark such poles interfering with snow plough and report at next council meeting. The poles are to be removed in 1941.

Walter Crowe was appointed sheep valuator for Divisions No. 1 and 2 for current year and the following cheques were received:

From Mrs. M. B. Hall, cheque for $34.20, from J. W. Pierce , land surveyor, for expense of altering road by-law. From treasurer of Verulum, cheque for 12.71 for Verulum's share of fencing gravel pit.

On motion of Elliott and Irwin the meeting adjourned to meet again at Hall's Bridge on Saturday, April 5th.

Red Cross Bingo Adds $47 To Fund

HASTINGS, March 13 — (ENS)— Hastings Town Hall was crowded on Friday evening for the Red Cross bingo, which proved one of the best and most successful forms of entertainment sponsored by the local society, when $47.05 was realized.

Thirty-five tables of bingo were supervised by the chairman, J. L. Doherty, assisted by H. G. Fairman, S. Stevenson, J. Mulholland, and A. S. Spooner.

Twenty games with two special games were played for which valuable prizes were donated by residents of the village. Two very special prizes were given, a walnut chair donated by Mrs. A. S. Spooner, was won by Miss Mary Godfrey, and a beautiful electric desk lamp, donated by J. L. Doherty, was won by Mrs. V. Faux.

The committee in charge of obtaining the prizes were Mrs. O. Phillips, Miss K. German, and Mrs V. Gallivan, and Mrs. Gallivan took charge of presenting the gifts.

The members were grateful to all who attended and were pleased with the proceeds, and hope to sponsor a second bingo game next month.

Bombs In Donegal

Dublin, March 12 (CP)

THE Eire Government information bureau reported that bombs were dropped early today by an unidentified plane near Corndonagh and Innishowen, County Donegal, but that no damage was done.

The bureau also announced that a British plane came down in the sea this morning in the neighborhood of Galway City and that two crewmen who survived were interned.

Carndonagh is a small town 20 miles east of Londonderry. Innishowen is in the extreme northwestern part of County Donegal.

Claim S. America Full Of Spies

MONTREAL, March 13 (CP) — State Secretary Casgrain told members of a service club here yesterday that the Axis powers have organized an espionage and propaganda service in South America, drawn from Germany and Italian residents.

"We tell ourselves that we are far from the fields of battle and that the ocean protects us by its great distances," said Mr. Casgrain. "Also that 'here is no question of the Germans directing their thoughts toward America.

"But you don't know that in South America—that is to say at the door of our continent—the Axis powers have had organized for quite a while an espionage and propaganda service, drawn from all the German and Italian nationals living in great numbers in Latin America.

"These republics opened their doors to all the Nazi agents moving under false colors and with travellers' luggage, and when we try to quieten our doubts by saying that the waters guard our continent we commit a fatal error," he said.

Blaze Destroys Car And Garage

MOUNT JULIAN, Mar. 13 (ENS) Fred Shewen had the misfortune to have his motor car and garage completely destroyed by fire on Friday night. Several hockey outfits and a number of tools were also lost in the blaze.

The motor had stopped on the road and the car had been towed home and then pushed into the garage by hand. It is now believed that a short circuit must have caused all the trouble.

Last week the first ladies' euchre prize went to Mrs. John Northey; second ladies' prize went to John Northey, who played as lady; gent's first went to Charles Shewen; second to Roy Booth. Five tables of cards were played. Mr. and Mrs. John Northey are entertaining the euchre players at their home next.

Private Percy Thompson of Ottawa is spending two weeks' furlough at his home here.

Fred Northey visited relatives in Peterborough on Sunday.

Mrs. E. C. Moore of Young's Point called on friends in this district on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Deck of 933 Water street, who will be fifty years married on Sunday, March 16, will be at home to their friends from two until five on Sunday afternoon. They were married in Marmora by Rev. McCamus, and have lived in and around Peterborough for the past thirty-five years. Mrs. Deck is the former Maude Fletcher. There are two sons, Bert, with the Home Guards at Ottawa, Clifton, with the Air Force at Winnipeg, one daughter, Mrs. Samuel Carpenter of this city and sixteen grandchildren.

Linen Shower Honors Jeanne McKenzie

Mrs. Arthur Walters of 709 Water street entertained at a linen shower in honor of Miss Jeanne McKenzie, a bride of the month. A decorated basket laden with gifts was presented to the guest of honor following social games. White and green tapers were used on the lace covered tea table, and other decorations carried out the St. Patrick's Day theme. Mrs. McKenzie, mother of the bride-elect, poured tea.

Guests included Miss Jean McKenzie, Mrs. Wm. McKenzie, Mrs. Arthur Jobe, Mrs. Jerry Armstrong, Mrs. M. Jay, Mrs. Harry Dowler, Mrs. Frank Perry.

Trinity Club Has Irish Party

Trinity Young People's Club held a novel St. Patrick's party in Reid Street Hall. An interesting devotional period conducted by Mrs. George Easton, Mrs. Charles Huffman, and Miss Fern Crookshanks opened the program, assisted by delightful piano numbers played by Miss Ann Nicholls. A humorous recitation entitled "You Ought to Be Clinic-ed," was given by Mrs. Huffman, with the singing of Irish songs woven into a fairy story read by Mr. Huffman, Miss Frances Wells at the piano..

An imitation wedding ceremony was an amusing highlight of the program, with Jim Betts, Arthur Jenkinson, Ralph Hanbidge, Pearl Elliott, Marie Kearns taking part, and a reception afterwards around tables decked in green and white, with centres of shamrocks and streamers to which fortune for each guest was attached. A source of merriment was the presentation of a battered cooking dish to the "bridegroom" following the "wedding supper."

George Street Mission Circle Entertained

The girls of George Street Mission Circle were guests of the Jean Wagar Circle of St. James for their March meeting, held at the home of Mrs. A. Wilson, Westcott street.

In the absence of Mrs. Searles, the chair was taken by the first vice-president, Jessie Martin, who cordially welcomed the guests and conducted a brief business period. This included plans for a supper meeting to be held in the church in April, when the Easter thankoffering will be received.

The visiting circle took charge of the worship service, which was led by their president, Mrs. Robert Kitchen. Prayer was offered by Ethel Mills and the scripture lesson chosen from John 10:7, was read by Ethel Robson. A talk on Christian Stewardship by Mrs. Allison emphasized the fact that Stewardship is a new conception, but a very ancient one. It may be defined as partnership with Christ and is God's word for this generation.

Music in keeping with the spirit of worship was contributed in solo "For Me," by Gladys Mills, and in duet, "Out of the Ivory Palaces" by Jean Sarginson and Madeline Gilgour, accompanied by Mrs. G. Gilgour.

In closing the worship service, Mrs. Kitchen expressed the appreciation of her Circle for the hospitality enjoyed on this occasion.

Links between East and West was the study for the evening, presented in two parts, the first by Jean Hammond (prepared by Vera Leggitt). This dealt with the story of Miss A. J. Archibald, missionary to Trinidad, who after 45 years of service, returned for voluntary work, to complete her fifty years in that field. Jean Davis completed the study with her story of Dr. Yohan Masih, a native leader of India, whose useful life was spent in Christian ministry and as a writer in the Hindu language.

Mary Hanlon sang in solo, "I Come to the Garden Alone," and a duet, "Saviour Lead Me," by Hazel McLaren and Edith Frizzelle, with Ethel Mills accompanying throughout, was much enjoyed.

Jessie Martin, in a few gracious words, thanked Mrs. Wilson for lending her home, and all who assisted in this interesting joint meeting.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Gladys Rutherford, Zoe McDonald, and Hazel McLaren.

Going to Britain

Mrs. August Belmont is shown with two of the first contingent of nurses, known as the Harvard University Red Cross unit, who will leave for England to study the ravages of disease under wartime conditions. The nurses are Muriel Sizer and Susan Ralph.

QUEEN ELIZABETH SCHOOL

"If we have failed in the task to make this world a better place in which to live, it is all the more reason why we should look to the future; if a child has learned in his every day play and sports to play the game fairly he has learned one of the chief requisites of good citizenship." These were some of the thoughts gleaned from the talk given by Mr. D. T. Crawford at the Queen Elizabeth Home and School meeting on Tuesday evening. He spoke on recreation, mentioning reading, sports and hobbies, warning parents to keep a watchful eye on the reading done by their children. At the close of his talk, Mr. Crawford delighted the audience by reading of several of his favorite poems.

The president, Mrs. O. Deyell, was in the chair, and reports were read by Mrs. N. Austin and Mrs. T. Davies. The Red Cross report showed that seven quilts and one layette had been made last month, making a total of twenty-four quilts turned in since last October. The layette was on display, with one of the outfits modelled by a life-size baby doll. Two more layettes are being made and donated by one of the members.

The musical part of the program consisted of two piano solos played by Isobel Fairbairn and Beverley Frise. Dorothy Anderson played two guitar numbers.

Spring Sunshine Adds To The Success Of Tea

Wednesday's bright sunshine with its welcome hint of spring added much to the success of the 57th Regiment Chapter I.O.D.E. annual anniversary tea yesterday afternoon, with many guests dropping in for a friendly cup of tea at the Officers' Mess at the Armouries, where Mrs. A. W. Turner, regent, received with the general convener, Mrs. Fred Brocks.

Flowers on the attractive tea table reflected the military red, white and blue of lighted tapers in silver candelabra, and presiding at silver tea services were Mrs. R. E. Clake, 1940 regent, Miss M. Rogers, Mrs. Wm. Sharpe, Mrs. W. E. Conway. Guests were shown to the tea room by Mrs. T. W. H. Young, Mrs. G. Hall and Mrs. J. S. Fanning, and assisting to serve were Mrs W. G. Howden, Mrs. C. H. Stewart, Miss M. McIntyre, Mrs. U. E. Waterman, Mrs. J. Turnbull, Mrs. H. Gamble, Mrs. C. M. Scott, Mrs. H. R Howden, Mrs A. E. Chalmers, Mrs. R. Cottrell, Mrs. C. B. Hughes.

Mrs. D. Loomis was in charge of the home-cooking table, assisted by Mrs. E. Roberts and Mrs. G. H. Cutmore. Mrs F. Frape was treasurer, and a draw on a linen tea cloth conducted by Mrs. Geo. Melton, assisted by Mrs. H. Burrows, was won by Mrs. Geo. Rishor.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, March 14

A DAY of unusual or peculiar developments is the presage based on the mutual and lunar aspects. While there may be trivial and surprising side issues, on the whole there may be some sort of spectacular success, with long cherished aspirations attaining high goals of fulfillment. This may relate to the development and recognition of genius, in an ultra or unique expression of art, poetry, music or even in business.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of exceptional adventures or experiences, with the prospect of gratification of cherished ideals or aspirations of a high order. This might culminate in art, music, romance or in business interests of a peculiar or singularly creative expression.

A child born on this day should have an exceptional talent or a unique expression in art, poetry, music or business of an out-of-the usual form.

Bancroft

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Reynolds returned home Wednesday afternoon from Toronto, having spent the last three weeks with relatives in the city.

Bancroft and district had a real taste of winter during the past week when a five inch fall of snow made its appearance and the temperature dropped to four, thirteen, and twenty-two below zero on three successive nights. This week-end, however, has been much more springlike, with the main highway and town streets bare in many places.

Mrs. E. L. Reid and Mr. Grant Gordon motored to Belleville on Thursday.

Mrs. Thomas Peever of the village suffered a heart attack Friday afternoon and was admitted to the local hospital where she is recovering.

Dr. O. W. Anderson purchased a 1941 deluxe sedan with fluid drive from Mr. Charles Pigden of Eldorado, Friday evening. This is the first car of this type to be introduced into this district.

Miss Avis Fuller gave a farewell party on Friday evening at her home in honor of Miss Doris Doyle, prior to her departure Saturday to attend the Sister Mary Emmaculate Convent at Pembroke. Miss Doyle was presented with the gift of a Parker pen.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Doyle and daughter Doris, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. J. Follis motored to Pembroke on Saturday.

Mr. William McAlpine and Mr. Donald Easton, members of the Airforce in Toronto, arrived in town Friday evening, spending until Sunday afternoon with relatives and friends.

Mrs. R. W. Robinson, Roy Robinson and Glenn, returned home from Belleville on Saturday.

Mr. Ross Viscoff, driver of the Peterborough-Bancroft bus is back on his schedule again after having been confined to his home for several days with a severe cold.

Miss Jean McLeod of Toronto is in town, visiting at the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Maxwell.

Mr. James Arkils, who is employed at the airport at Mountain View, returned home for the week-end.

Mr. Clayton Phillips of Belleville was in town on Saturday.

Mr. Albert Warren of Frankford spent the week-end at the home of Mr. John Kelusky in Banoroft.

The teachers of North Hastings met in Bancroft on Saturday, when some forty teachers were present. Owing to illness Mr. Pickering, temporary Public School Inspector for this district, was unable to attend. The ladies of St. Paul's United church catered to the luncheon.

Bridgenorth

Mrs. Horton of Peterborough addressed a meeting of the Women's Association held at Mrs. W. J. Telford's home last week. She told the many ladies present how they might aid their country and their church at the same time.

We are pleased to see that Clayton Telford is so much improved in health that he is now able to go out for short walks.

Mrs. Theodore Nicholls is with her mother who is ill. Theodore spent last week-end in Hamilton with his wife.

Mrs. E. McIlmoyl, who has been in Nicholls Hospital for about two weeks, is slightly improved.

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Sidey and treen of Warsaw visited his parents on Sunday to celebrate his father's birthday. Mr. Hampton accompanied them.

Mr. Seidel is recovering from a sprained ankle caused by a ski accident.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Max Fowler on the birth of a son.

Raymond Nicholls is reported to have taken the first official swim for this year.

HOW TO BE A BOY AGAIN!

Robt. G. Jackson, M.D. Now in his 82nd year

At 84 I'm a youngster in spirit, heart and ambitious energy. I'm young because I obey the laws of Nature; others do not. It is hard to realize that I owe my youthfulness to foods and exercise, but I do. Yet I would not dare exercise as vigorously as I do at my age on conventional foods.

I gave up most of the foods you eat some 30 years ago. My diet is based on a free use of my three natural wholegrain cereals . . . Dr. Jackson Meal (formerly Roman Meal) Bekus-Puddy and Lishus; and a similar free use of milk, cheese, fresh vegetables and fruit; together with generous quantities of my delicious alkaline beverage Kofy Sub.

These foods enable me to take exercises that keep my muscles supple, elastic, flexible and resilient as any boy's. They keep me free from constipation and its debilitating evils. Thus I remain young and grow younger every day.

You don't believe me? Well, try my foods and exercise reasonably and you cannot doubt. If you are interested in this subject, send for my free booklet "A Glorious Achievement". Address, Robt. G. Jackson, M.D., 547 Vine Ave., Toronto.

IF BABY IS CROSS FIND OUT WHY

HEALTHY BABIES are not cross. Your baby should not be cross. If he is, then something in his little system is "out of order". Probably Baby's Own Tablets can promptly "put it right". Mrs. H——, of Fenelon Falls, had the experience. She writes: "My little girl was irritable, feverish and sometimes sick at her stomach—what a relief it was, after giving her Baby's Own Tablets, to see how much better she was."

No matter how delicate your baby may be, these little sweet-tasting tablets cannot harm him. Easy to take. Promptly effective in clearing up simple fevers, diarrhoea, colds, constipation, simple croup, colic, teething troubles and other minor ills.

Never be without a full box of Baby's Own Tablets. Sickness so often strikes in the night. 25 cents. Money back if you are not satisfied.

St. Patrick's Day Brings Breath of Spring to All

(By MARY MOORE).

Is the club meeting at your house this month?

From the list of St. Patrick-colored food herewith you could choose enough items for a dinner, or little morsels for tea, or enough snacks for a bridge luncheon.

For your more serious endeavors I've included the recipes. The Chicken Fricassee is one of those dishes every woman should master. While boiled chicken is good it is too often the only method cooks know of serving a fowl. Chicken Fricassee is the chef's method of converting a fowl into a dining-table masterpiece.

There is a definite trend these days to simplify entertaining by serving one hot meal dish—plenty of it—and letting salads, choice hot breads, and fruity desserts bear up the balance of the meal. I like the idea—it prevents that overstuffed feeling (and eventually the spare-tire-midriff).

While St. Patrick has no particular claim on chicken it is right for any celebration, and I have been wanting a good excuse to star the recipe for Chicken Fricassee.

St. Patrick Bridge Club Luncheon.

Cream of Asparagus Soup with Chopped Parsley
Chicken Fricassee
Homemade Cloverleaf Rolls
Green Salad—Slice Stuffed (Cheese) Green Peppers or Celery Stuffed with Green Cheese—Olives, on Bed of Watercress.
Dessert: Chocolate Ice Cream with Melted Mint Wafer Sauce.
Green Shamrock-shaped Shortbreads
Pistachio Nuts Tea

Most of these items are self-explanatory. The dark green of the finely chopped parsley on the pale green soup is an attractive first course for a St. Patrick's meal. If you would like to cut some green brtad into croutons and toast it it would be a nice accompaniment

Chicken Frisassee (a Chef's Version)

Cut a 5-lb. fowl in pieces for serving, after it has been washed and scrubbed in soda water, singed, etc. To get 4 breast pieces cut the breasts away with sharp knife, then cut them in halves crosswise. Sprinkle each piece with salt and pepper, using up about 4 teaspoons salt and ¼ teaspoon pepper which have been mixed together. Arrange cut up chicken in kettle,adding 1½ cups boiling water, cover with lid, and cook slowly on top of stove until chicken is tender (from 1½ to 3 hours, depending on size and age of fowl). Watch carefully and add a little hot water as the liquid cooks away, but use as little as possible to keep the chicken from burning. When chicken is done the liquid can be reduced to about ¾ cup. Have ready a frying-pan with hot butter or chicken fat. Lift chicken from pot when tender into frying pan and pan fry for about 10 minutes, or until crisp and brown. If preferred you may dredge the pieces of chicken with flour to fry them but this is not necessary. While chicken is pan frying make gravy in kettle in which chicken was cooked, by making the liquid in kettle up to 2½ cups, stirring 6 tablespoons flour into ½ cup cold water until it is smooth, then stirring this into boiling gravy liquid until it is thick. Strain into hot gravy boat—or if you wish strain over hot chicken on hot platter. Garnish with cress or parsley—or you might omit the hot rolls and garnish platter with popovers.

If you use the Cheese Stuffed celery for your salad I think a wedge of head lettuce would look nice on the plate even if you do use watercress for your foundation.

You probably already know of the trick of melting down mint wafers for a topping for ice cream—in this case buy green mint wafers. While first courses of luncheon are being served wafers should be melting in top of double boiler over very hot, but not boiling water. Pour about 1 tablespoon over each serving of chocolate ice cream immediately before carrying tray to dining room. The pistochios should be passed while ice cream is being eaten for some of the guests might like theirs on the ice cream.

Miscellaneous St. Patrick's Day Food Items.

Green Bread Sandwiches: Order green sandwich bread from the bakery at least 2 days ahead of time. Have them slice it lengthwise of the loaf and remove crusts. Spread these long slices with creamy white cheese mixed with a little moyannaise and chopped citron peel. Roll up long slices of bread jelly-roll fashion and fasten with toothpicks or string and chill. When ready to use cut in thin slices.

Or green bread may be spread with softened butter and sliced chicken used for filling.

Lady-finger sandwiches are nice if chopped watercress and chopped back bacon (pan-fried) are mixed very well together and used as a filling.

Crystallized Mint Leaves.

If you like fussing over them crystallized mint leaves are a delicate garnish for your first course if it is a fruit cocktail, or they are nice with iced drinks or frozen desserts. Coat both sides of fresh mint leaves with egg white beaten until stiff—using a small pastry brush. Dip each side in granulated sugar flavored with oil of spearmint (5 drops of oil to 1-3 cup sugar). Place on cake rack covered with oil paper and let stand in warm place until dry.

Dill pickles make good garnishes for cold meat salad plates for St. Patrick's. Honeydew Melons and Avocado Pears are both green food that make excellent salad or fruit courses.

Mint Mallow.

This is a good dessert when you want one that can be made ahead of time. Twenty-five marshmallows, 1 cup milk, 5 drops oil of peppermint, green vegetable coloring, 2 cup heavy cream, choclate sauce. Cut marshmallows into quarters; add to milk and cook over hot water until melted. Cool; turn into freezing tray of automatic refrigerator and freeze to a mushy consistency. Add peppermint and a drop of vegetable coloring to cream and whip until thick. Turn frozen marshmallow mixture into bowl, beat well and fold in whipped cream. Return to freezing tray and freeze without stirring until firm. Serve with chocolate sauce or melted bitter chocolate bar.

FASHIONS

SIZES 16-50

Do you feel as though you simply must have a bright print frock? Well, you're perfectly right. There is nothing that will put new life into a mid-season wardrobe with more chic than such a dress. You need look no further for the perfect style because here it is. The well-cut bolero tops a becoming dress that slims your waistline and hips. Smooth shoulder yokes hold essential bust fullness in place. Choose a dark ground sprinkled with gay flowers and you'll be the smartest lady in town.

Style No. 2803 is designed for sizes 16, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50. Size 36 requires 3⅞ yards of 39-inch fabric for dress; 1⅛ yards for bolero.

Dear Miss Dix—I caught my husband going out with another woman and naturally blew up about it. I told him that if that was the way he was going to act after all of our years together I would do the same. Here is what he said to me in reply:

"Please, dear, don't ever do that, for you are the one person for whom I have respect and real love. No man, no matter how low-down he is, has any respect for a woman who has an affair with him knowing he is married You can be sure he doesn't love her, and the only reason he goes with her is the love of adventure, or change, or getting into newer fields. We men are just like animals. The pasture across the field looks greener. But we always come back to the home range after we have tasted forbidden grass. All that a woman gets out of an affair with a married man is the loss of respect of all who know her and a ruined character. Don't think you can get even with me because you do what I do. Keep good and you will have the admiration of all men, high and low."

Now, Miss Dix, that is the opinion of such a man. What is your opinion of a woman who goes with a man knowing he is married and she is breaking up a home?

MRS. M. S.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER — I think that your husband told you the exact truth about how men regard virtue in women. I think that men respect and admire purity and goodness in women more than they do any other quality. It makes an appeal to which the lowest and most depraved man responds, as is proven by the fact that Sisters of Charity, the Salvation Army lassies and other women who devote their lives to good works go unscathed through the lowest dives of a city.

Wants Wife Above Reproach

No matter how a man may trample the moral law under foot, he wants his own wife to be above reproach, and it is one of life's bitterest ironies that the man who will use every art and artifice to tempt another man's wife or daughters into wrongdoing will kill the man who dishonors the women of his own household.

Your husband has given you wise advice when he tells you how foolish you will be to try to repay him in his own coin for his unfaithfulness to you. Two wrongs do not make a right and, besides, you have far more to lose than he has because the world judges the woman philanderer more harshly than it does the man. Worst of all, you will throw away your own self-respect, and that is worth more than any man's love.

I think no other woman shows so little sense, or heart, or principle as the one who has affairs with married men, for in the end she is bound to lose out, or commit a crime against a sister woman.

If she induces the married man to divorce his wife and marry her, she robs a wife of her husband, children of their father, and breaks up a home. Surely no woman can commit a crueler deed than that.

If her married lover doesn't marry her, she throws away her reputation and her chances of marrying a decent man for nothing. She knows the humiliation of going through a hole-and-corner romance with a man who is ashamed to be seen out in public with her.

She knows the jealousy of seeing another woman bear the name of the man she loves, enjoy the prestige of his position, and spend the money she helps him earn, perhaps. She knows the hopeless waiting that makes the heart sick. And in the end she knows what it is to be cast aside for a younger and fresher face.

Two Personalities Are Impossible

Dear Dorothy Dix — I am engaged to a girl who is simply ideal. She doesn't pet, drink, smoke or go to public dances. She is highly cultured, a real musician, a good cook, can sew and take care of a house. BUT she has one fault. She has no independence of character at all. She is just a clinging vine. That's all right when she is with me, but I am afraid it might get her into trouble some day. A man does not want a wife who has no independence any more than he wants one who is too independent. What shall I do about it?

ALFRED.

ANSWER — You voice one of the impossible demands that your sex always makes upon women, because you want your girl to be one thing to you and something else to the rest of the world.

Naturally a happy medium between a jellyfish and the Rock of Gibraltar is desirable in the feminine character, and the ideal wife is undoubtedly the woman who has opinions but who is not opinionated, who has firmness without being set in her ways, who possesses a spinal column, but who can bend it gracefully.

Alas, however, we seldom realize our ideals and between a woman who is too independent and the one who isn't independent enough I should prefer as a daily companion the more plastic of the two.

Much is to be said in favor of the clinger as a wife. She flatters a man's vanity. She does not antagonize his views. She adapts herself to his ways. She never argues nor fights and is a soothing person with whom to live. Anyway, if you have found a pretty, well-educated, intelligent girl who is a good cook and housekeeper, I advise you to take a chance on supplying the backbone for the family.

Newlywed Pair Is Honored At Millbrook

MILLBROOK, March 13—(ENS).—The Town Hall, Millbrook, was the scene of a pleasant social gathering on Monday evening when over one hundred and fifty guests from the village and the entire surrounding countryside, gathered to do honor to Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Davis, a bride and groom of recent date.

The major part of the evening was spent in dancing, music being supplied by Lawrence Winslow, Robert Todd, Dorothy Porter and Jack Patton, who made up the orchestra, John Worr and Harry Freemantle "calling off" for the popular squa.. dances.

Near midnight the guests of honor were called to the platform, after which Gordon Muspratt read an appreciative address, and on behalf of a wide circle of friends, including residents on the Millbrook bakery bread route for which Mr. Davis is the popular driver, Lawrence Winslow and Harry Freemantle presented them with a handsome studio couch and a walnut end table.

Taken by surprise, the groom made suitable reply for his bride and himself, and the singing of "For they are jolly good fellows," was followed by the service of lunch, the committee in charge being assisted by a number of the ladies.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis, since their marriage, have been with his mother Mrs. Lila Davis, King Street West, but expect shortly to move into the west apartment over Miss S. H. Pethick's store for their permanent residence.

Pot Luck Supper.

Over forty guests attended the pot luck supper held on Monday at 6 p.m., at the home of Miss Luella Kennedy, King Street, the assisting hostesses with Miss Kennedy including Mrs. Richard Matchett, Mrs. A. L. Sisco, and Mrs. Edmund Ball.

A second setting of one of the tables was necessary in order to accommodate the guests, Ella Best and Pauline Kennedy helping with the service of the hot supper.

Practically eleven dollars was realized from the undertaking, the amount going to the funds of the Women's Associati of St. Andrew's Church. The next similar dinner will be on Friday evening at the home of Mrs. J. Albert Brown, Mrs. J. McKnight being the hostess with Mrs. Brown for the occasion.

Mrs. E. H. Barnes is in Toronto this week visiting her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford McGee, accompanying them home when they had motored here on Sunday.

Miss Ruth Ball of Whitby and her cousin, Harold McCamus, of Toronto were home for Sunday, with Mrs. Kathleen Ball and Mrs. T. W. McCamus.

Miss Blanche Clarry, Reg. N., left for New York on Thursday, to resume her nursing duties, Miss Augusta Clarry coming from New York to remain with her mother, Mrs. L. S. Clarry, for the next two months. Mrs. M. Cameron, of Ottawa, is also visiting at the homestead, Park Roadway, at present.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Jones and daughter, Gertrude, of Toronto, spent Sunday with her mother and sister, Mrs. J. and Miss Ethel Hatherly.

DRAFTED FOR LOVE

By RUTH AYERS

YESTERDAY: Half blinded by the snow and tears, April has run down Winkle Appleman, the town's bum. He threatens April, and Kent blindly strikes at him. The train carries Kent away. Winkle continues to threaten, demands pay, says he will have April arrested. The gossip would crush Ann. April gives him all her cash, writes a check for $10.

✧ ✧ ✧

APRIL IS ILL

CHAPTER XV

SOMEHOW, April Burnett reached home and crawled into bed.

After that she lay in a strange state, suspended as it were, in some nebulous world of her own.

She was aware at times that Mother and Dad tip-toed in and out of the room. Dr. Campbell, the family physician, had a way of appearing at odd hours and then disappearing. Octavia seemed to be a dark sphinx, sitting as motionless and as silent at the bedside.

And then, on the third day, everything cleared again.

"April, dear, you're better. Thank God!" It was Mother, whose eyes were red-rimmed and swimming in tears.

"Well, Daffy (that was Dad's pet name for her, shortened from daffodil)—you've scared us out of our wits. There now, lean back and don't think of a thing. All we ask is that you'll be well again."

April tried to lift her ankle, found that it was thick with gauze and tape.

"What—what's wrong with me?"

Dad said, "Why, goose, you've been battling off a whole army of flu bugs. And you've got a wrenched ankle, a bad sprain, Dr. Campbell says."

Mother wiped at her eyes. "Darling, however did it happen?"

April thought slowly, carefully. "Took a topper on the ice," she said and leaned back into the pillows.

✧ ✧ ✧

LATER, when her parents were back in the room again, April looked from one to the other. Mother was young to have two grown daughters. Like Ann, she spent a lot of time outdoors and it showed in her lithe figure and clear skin. Her hair was gray, cut rather short and with a swirl of curls like April's.

Dad could throw a stubborn witness into panic by the fierce way he scowled through his horn-rimmed glasses in court. But at home, he was a lamb, deeply devoted to what he liked to call his "three little women."

"You're resting much more easily," Mother said.

"Sure I am. What—what day is it, Moms?"

"It's Thursday. You've been pretty desperately ill since Monday night."

April frowned, forced herself to think. Octavia padded in, balancing a tray with tea and toast.

"Ain't nuthing like a little nourishment to perk you up," she said in a strangely uncheerful way.

April glanced quickly. Octavia could help her remember. But no, Octavia was in no mood to be jogged. So she tried again to make sense out of the jumble of thoughts in her head. Kent Carter! She'd pretended she was Ann to Kent, but he found out about the masquerade. Then he'd gone off on the train and she'd been left, face to face with old Winkie Appleman. There was something else, something important. Ann's letter!

"Ann—is Ann home?"

At the mention of her sister's name, Mother's eyes misted again. "Ann will be here Saturday."

"Bad break for her," April whispered.

Dad said stoutly, "Our Ann wasn't ready for an audition with Vivano. Next time she won't fail."

"Poor little lamb," Octavia murmured under her breath.

Lying still and straight in bed, the ankle like a weight, April had the impression that the three in the room with her had temporarily pushed back their concern for Ann but that it was there, deep and strong, waiting to come forth again.

Mother made an attempt at brightening. "I'll have to bank on you, April, to help us through the worst of it. Ann will be so crushed by the experience. She's such a shy child, so easily hurt."

"Kent was home on leave." April blundered it out.

"Yes, Octavia told us," Mother sighed. "It was sweet of you to meet his train."

Would there be more? Had Octavia said anything else? No, thank heavens, no. In her relief, April leaned back on her pillows and closed her eyes again.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE next day, flowers began to arrive and tricky cards with "get well messages."

Mother was more herself today. "You're going to be snowed under with notes and bouquets from the boys," she said. "They'll no doubt be clamoring to have you up and about again, but you're going to forget them for awhile. Dr. Campbell says you were worn out, that what you need is rest, in large doses."

"I guess he's right. Somehow I feel as if I didn't care if I never stirred again."

Flowers and more flowers. Late that Friday afternoon, April said, "I'll take a look at the cards."

Mother propped her up in bed, made her take a tablet first and a glass of fruit juice.

"We could start a florist's shop here," Mother said as she dumped the cards into April's lap. "Maybe you'll let me steal a few of these for Ann's room."

"Yes, please do."

"Ann loves flowers. It will brighten her up, perhaps, if we have some in her room. And by the way, we're getting her room fixed beautifully, aren't we, Octavia?"

Octavia nodded, cast a somber glance at Ann's picture and waddled out.

April looked listlessly at the cards.

"Don't let it get you down—Pete." That was one of them. Why, less than a week ago, she'd been at the Casa Blanca with Pete one of her escorts.

All this had happened to her since then. Kent Carter had come home Saturday night. There'd been Sunday and Monday. Such a brief time! Surely, what had happened, what had come and gone to change her life had not taken place in that brief three-day leave!

She picked up another card. "With all good wishes for a speedy recovery—Andrew."

"Sorry you're on the sick list. Bruce Lane."

And one, the card that had come with the mass of yellow jonquils. "For April—Hal."

She thought of Hal and what he'd said that last night she'd seen him when he had taken her home from the dance at Casa Blanca.

"I feel that way about you."

This should cheer her but she dropped Hal's card with the others and pushed them aside.

Funny, all the flowers that ever grew couldn't fill the empty place buried deep in her heart.

St. Mark's Y.P.S. Meets

The regular meeting of the St. Mark's Y.P.S. was held in the Sunday School rooms of St. Mark's church on Tuesday evening of last week with a good attendance.

In the absence of the president, Carl Heath, Ray McLaren acted as chairman. The roll call was the name of a missionary. The meeting was turned over to Miss Hilda Brown and Jess Barlow who arranged the following program:—reading by Miss Marion Richardson, vocal solo by Mr J. F. Baker, quizz by Jess Barlow, piano solo by Chester Baker, quiz on Old Testament characters by Rev. Canon Swayne, group games conducted by Miss Marion Richardson.

The next meeting, March 18, will include an Irish program and refreshments.

There was a good attendance at the moving picture show held in the Orange hall at Springbrook on Saturday evening last, when Mr. William L. Thompson of Teeswater showed a number of reels, the proceeds being donated to the Rawdon Red Cross.

Mr. Lorne Johnston acted as chairman. Between reels vocal numbers were contributed by Misses Gibson, Leona and Murney Bateman, and Floyd Bateman and J. F. Baker led in community singing.

The door prize was won by Mrs. Thomas H. McKeown. A quilt auctioned off by George E. Thompson on behalf of the Red Cross went to Mr. W. L. Thompson for $5.00.

A hearty vote of appreciation was tendered Mr. Thompson for his kindness. The pictures were taken by Mr. Thompson himself, and when such well-known persons as Mr and Mrs. George E. Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Ken Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Williams, Mr R. W. Thompson and others were flashed on the screen there was applause from the audience. They were exceptionally clear and nearly all in color, and with one Hollywood reel and a few Pop-Eye Comics made up a real show.

KISS YOUR TIRED FEELING GOODBYE!
Peples Many Suffer Low Blood Count—And Don't Know It.
The baffling thing about low blood count is that you can weigh about as much as you ever did—even look healthy and strong, yet—you can feel as if you had lead in your legs, dopey, tired and pepless.
Low blood count means you haven't got enough red blood corpuscles. It is their vital job to carry life-giving oxygen from your lungs throughout your body. And just as it takes oxygen to explode gasoline in your car and make the power to turn the wheels, so you must have plenty of oxygen to explode the energy in your body and give you going power.
Get Dr. Williams Pink Pills today. They are world-noted for the help they give in increasing the number and strength of red corpuscles. Then with your blood count up, you'll feel like bounding up the stairs as if you were floating on air. Ask your druggist for Dr. Williams Pink Pills today.

Crude Manners Win Only Critical Little Smiles

How No! To Pay a Girl's Way

What boorish manners! Dickering for his share of the movie tickets right before the girls: "Forty-four, no, eighty-eight cents, that's for my ticket and hers. Then, let's see—"

And he's the man who wanted so much to meet a "really fine girl!" No "fine girl" will like a boy who doesn't even know that double-date accounts are settled when the girls aren't present.

After all, how can a new girl judge you, except by your manners? If you discuss prices before her, forget to open doors for her or neglect to help her out of a car she's naturally ashamed of you.

Men of the world — the kind girls prefer for dates — never make such errors. They rise when a woman enters the room. In introducing another man, they mention her name first.

And the type of girl these men prefer to take out? In a restaurant she doesn't have to wonder when she should thank the waiter. Nor at a dance is she flustered if a man cuts in.

She knows — and you could, too —the simple rules of etiquette that please. Our 32-page booklet gives behavior for men and girls at dances, movies, games; when dating, entertaining, visiting. Discusses petting problem.

RECOGNIZING A FRIEND

WE ALL LIKE to meet old friends, especially when we recognize them and they recognize us. Certain combinations of the cards are like that. When they bob up again, we are like the judge on the bench who says to the culprit in the prisoner's dock: "Haven't I seen you before?" That judge may remember just what he did on the previous occasion and how it worked out, and so handles the case that much more efficiently. Shouldn't it be just the same with the bridge hand, or suit combination, whose counterpart we have encountered in times past?

That bidding is imaginary, by a pair of Blackwooders. Actually, this hand was sent in by Leonard LaForce, from the Handy Diner in Pittsburgh, who asked if the heart slam can be made against a lead of the club K. Bridge memories, by some of us fellows who study the game professionally, are funny things. Seldom do we forget a hand, though we cannot always recall where we encountered it.

Is that a hand featured by the old-timer, Milton C. Work, who died some eight years ago? Or by the veteran Sidney S. Lenz? Or by your humble servant some years back? The fact escapes us, but the hand itself is clear as a bell for a perfect example of the trump shortening coup whereby we discard a blocking card on a trump.

South takes the club K with the A, discarding a diamond from dummy so as to leave the spade 7 for a ruffer. He leads the heart 3 to the A, the spade 7 ruffed by the heart 4, the heart 5 to the K, the spade Q ruffed by the heart 7, the heart 10 to the Q, the heart J dropping West's last trump while discarding the diamond K, the spade A for a discard of the diamond A, and then the now unblocked five diamonds in the dummy. Yes, the 7-Hearts can be made, and how!

REPAIRS AND REMODELING ARE EASY AND INEXPENSIVE
Look at your Home through your neighbor's eyes. Is it modern or attractive—or it is a white elephant? If your home is old and out of style, but sound structurally, it can be easily and quickly modernized. Financing can be arranged through your Bank or our Bank to spread the payment of the cost over a period up to two years, at a low rate of interest. Call us for additional information.
H. R. SCOTT LIMITED
George at Rink Street. Telephone 4638.

ARE YOU PLANNING A NEW HOME?
Come right in and see us to-day—we have all the tools for home planning you'll need. We have PLANS, FINANCING INFORMATION, IDEAS, SUGGESTIONS—and good contractor references. Interest on home mortgages is low—maybe the lowest it will be during your life time. Under the National Housing Act all you need to have as a down payment is 20 per cent. of the value of the house and lot — the 20 per cent. would include the value of the lot. So why wait? Call us to-day for additional information.

Hepburn Has Record Surplus Of $12,600,364 On Year With No New Budget Taxes

Continues Mill Subsidy To Municipalities Increases Road Expenditures; Hog, Cheese Bonuses To Cost $4,800,000

TORONTO, March 14—(CP).—A surplus of $12,600,364 for the current fiscal year ending March 31—record high in the seven years the present government has been in office—was announced to the Ontario Legislature today by Premier Hepburn, who pledged his government anew to "live within our income" as an aid to the national war effort.

The record surplus was more than $5,000,000 greater than in the best of the so-called "sunshine budgets," $7,347,729 in 1937.

Mr. Hepburn, who is also Provincial Treasurer, estimated in his budget address last year that the surplus would be $356,364.

For the fiscal year ending March 31, 1942, Mr. Hepburn budgeted for a surplus of $9,743,063. His report for the current fiscal year was based on 10 months actual and two months estimated.

The 1940-41 surplus was obtained mainly through receipts of $23,000,000 from the corporation tax, whereas $15,000,000 had been estimated. Increases in revenue from the Highways Department, from the Department of Lands and Forests and from the Liquor Control Board contributed to the surplus.

Debt Is Cut Down.

Mr. Hepburn estimated a decrease of $5,346,079 in the gross debt of the province and said the funded debt had been reduced by $2,160,257 to a total of $616,584,197.

He announced that the Government and the Hydro-Electric Commission would assume the full amount of the indebtedness of the 20 municipalities which participated in a scheme in 1914 to construct a radial line from Toronto through the Niagara area. The total indebtedness amounted to $2,246,622.

The Premier estimated gross ordinary revenue for the next fiscal year at $115,179,775, compared with $114,056,264 in the current year, and gross ordinary expenditures at $105,438,711 compared with $101,455,900.

Gross capital receipts for 1941-42 are forecast at $17,045,875.12, compared with $23,256,247.38 in the current year. Gross capital payments for the next fiscal year are estimated at $27,510,715.57, compared with $31,515,346.66 in 1940-41.

Mr. Hepburn reported that with the withdrawal of the Federal Government from the field of direct unemployment relief, the cost to Ontario next year is expected to be $4,985,000, an increase of $670,000 over 1.40-41.

Slump In Cheese Worrying The Government

TORONTO, March 14 (CP) — Signs of lower cheese production in Ontario "in the face of the British challenge for increased supplies" are causing the government concern, Premier Hepburn told the legislature in his budget address today.

The Premier spoke of agriculture's contribution to the war effort and confirmed recent announcements of a bonus of two cents a pound on Cheddar cheese, at an estimated cost of $2,000,000 for the year, and a bonus of $1 on Grade "A" hogs and 50 cents for "B1" grade, at an estimated cost of $1,400,000.

"Bacon, cheese and manufactured milk are among Britain's most urgent requirements," Premier Hepburn said. To inspire an increase in the milk output, the Department of Agriculture and the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association had joined hands in "perhaps the greatest milk production campaign ever undertaken in the province."

Baby Fire Victim

Thorold, Ont., March 14 (CP)

THREE - YEAR - OLD Jimmie Kerr of nearby Thorold died in St. Catharines today as a result of burns suffered when fire partially destroyed the Thorold home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Kerr.

Mrs. Kerr suffered burns about the feet. Three other children, Margaret, 9, Jack, 7, and Donald, 2, escaped injury.

Jimmie was taken from the house through a bedroom window by George Maltychuk, a neighbor, after the mother had rescued the other three children and then collapsed. He had started out with his mother then went back.

Britain Equipping Armies For Crack At Germany, Italy

LONDON, March 14—(AP).—Britain was disclosed today to be equipping invasion troops for use against both Germany and Italy.

These units would be landed by armored invasion barges carrying some 50 men each. The front of the barges are something like a steel shield with 18 portholes for fast-firing guns.

The water-borne troops would be protected by co-ordinated barrages from naval guns and attack bombers.

An observer put together a picture of the invasion force from details disclosed during maneouvres against mock invasion troops a month ago and given out piecemeal in connection with the recent raid on Lofoten Island off Norway and parachute descents on Italy.

These observers pointed out that development of an amphibian shock force would make possible quick transition from active defence to offence when the time comes.

That time, they say, will be when the Royal Air Force achieves such technical and numerical superiority that it can bomb Berlin in daylight day after day without exceptional proportionate losses.

Toronto Woman Murdered In St. Petersburg

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 14 —(AP)—The body of Mrs. Ruth Rawlins, wife of a wealthy, retired metallurgist, was found in a shallow grave near Gainesville, Fla., early today and two taxi-drivers were held as the slayers of the 35-year-old Canadian woman.

Police Chief E. D. Vaughan said the two St. Petersburg cab drivers admitted that they killed Mrs. Rawlins Wednesday night and hauled her body 115 miles in a taxi before hiding it in a roadside grave. Sheriff Toud Tucker signed first degree murder warrants against the men a few hours after the body was recovered.

James Rawlins, husband of the dead woman, told the Evening Independent that he was a former metallurgist and assistant superintendent for the International Nickel Company. He and his wife were visiting here from Toronto.

Rawlins said she failed to return home yesterday and he remained awake all night, first learning of his wife's death when reporters came to his home this morning.

A Super Bomber

New York, March 14 (AP)

CONSTRUCTION of a new type of dive bomber with a probable top speed of at least 360 miles an hour and designed to carry a bomb load twice as large as that borne by similar planes abroad, was announced today by a leading United States aircraft company.

It will be manufactured in quantity at the new Curtiss-Wright factory being built at Columbus, Ohio.

Must Keep Labor Policies Says King

OTTAWA, March 14 (CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King told a delegation from the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada today that anyone, including ministers of the Crown, who fail to do their utmost to ensure carrying out of the government's labor policies are "not helping the government in its war effort."

Mr. King and 12 members of his cabinet met the group of more than 50 delegates headed by President Tom Moore, who read a long memorandum setting forth policies and grievances of the congress.

Some government labor policies may not have been abided by fully, said the prime minister, but labor must realize that the government had a number of "difficulties" with which to contend.

Knox States Flood On; F.D.R. To Broadcast Talk on Defence, Aid

WASHINGTON, March 14—(AP).—War Secretary Stimson said today that some defence material to be transferred to Great Britain from the United States under the lend-lease act already had started to its destination. He wit held details.

"The information will come out in due time," Mr. Stimson told press conference inquirers. "As far as I am concerned no details will be disclosed prematurely. I don't think it would be fair to Great Britain."

President Roosevelt will make a radio address tomorrow night on defence and aid to nations battling aggressors.

He will speak at 10.30 p.m., E.D.T., for 30 minutes at an annual dinner given him by the White House Correspondents' Association, and his address will be broadcast.

The President asked reporters at his press conference for permission to inject the address into the program for the dinner and was assured that he might do so.

On the questions of the specific nature of war supplies that have been or will be sent to Britain, Mr. Roosevelt chose to remain indefinite. He said, in response to questions, there had been no decision or transferring additional naval craft of any type. As for cargo vessels, he said the United States had none available for transfer.

Figures Wrong

Asked about printed reports that approximately 100 naval ships of various types, including torpedo boats, destroyers built more than 20 years ago and old submarines, would be turned over to the British, Mr. Roosevelt said they were entirely inaccurate. He said there had been no consideration given to types or numbers of ships, although that not did mean that in the future some war vessels might not be transferred to Britain.

The President said Springfield rifles were not included in the first list of items approved for shipment to Britain and Greece but asked that reporters not inquire about other specific articles and try to find out by a process of elimination what war articles were being allocated.

On the question of assistance to China, Mr. Roosevelt said that matter was coming along all right, but that he had no announcements to make on it at present.

In addressing the annual newspapermen's banquet, the President will be breaking a tradition of more than 20 years standing. Speeches have always been barred on these occasions, with the President relaxing to enjoy the fun.

Meanwhile, the $7,000,000,000 lease-lend appropriation bill, given enthusiastic endorsement by Stimson, State Secretary Hull, Navy Secretary Knox, advanced pretty through the preliminary phase of Executive consideration.

Victory To Be Quick

London, March 14 (CP)

A BRITISH victory "will not only be certain — it will be quick," if the empire can hold on until American aid is received, the First Lord of the Admiralty, A. V. Alexander said today.

"You can not win this national struggle except on the basis of 100 per cent national co-operation," he told a parliament press luncheon.

"We are facing perhaps the most crucial stage of the war in which the navy is called upon to play a very great part."

5 Ace Divisions Shattered, Shame For Duce

ATHENS, Greece, Mar. 14—(AP)—Royal Air Force headquarters announced to-day 14 Italian fighter planes were shot down and a number badly damaged yesterday in a battle over the Klisura-Tepeleni sector of Albania without the loss of a single British plane.

Greek despatches declared five Italian divisions had been shattered in Italian offensives launched in the past seven days in response to Mussolini's reported adjuration to his officers to "do something."

Free Reach Youth In Road Death

WHITBY, Ont., March 14—(CP).—In discharging a Supreme Court jury which had just returned a verdict of acquittal in a manslaughter case here, Mr. Justice J. A. Hope yesterday commented that all he had to say was that "I'm sorry for the country if cases like this can go and juries acquit them."

The case was that of 21-year-old Norman Reynolds of Reach township, charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of Louis Arbourne, 21-year-old Uxbridge farmer killed by an automobile as he walked along Highway No. 12. The Crown charged the car was driven by Reynolds.

The jurymen, one of which was Arbourne's uncle, deliberated five hours after the court had informed them the charge of manslaughter could be reduced to one of dangerous driving. Reynolds was found "not guilty on both counts." He still faces a charge of failing to return to the scene of an accident.

RAF Night Fighters Down 11 By Moonlight At Home Set Fiery Trail In Germany

Nazis Use Screamers In Heavy Assault; 1st Big Shipyard Raid

LONDON, March 14 (CP)—Large forces of German bombers blasted at the great Glasgow shipbuilding centre, the port of Liverpool and an unidentified northeast town last night, as the Royal Air Force continued a stepped-up offensive by striking again at Hamburg.

It was the first time the Germans had attacked the big shipyards along the Clyde River on a large scale since the start of the war, but the raid on Liverpool was the second in as many nights.

(The Germans acknowledged the British had attacked Hamburg during the night.)

Attacking with a fury unequalled since the early winter, the Nazis also hammered at London and fanned out over the country to bomb widely scattered points.

The raids, however, cost the Germans 13 planes, bringing the total Nazi losses to 25 aircraft since the night fall of Wednesday. Night fighters had their best night since hostilities began, disposing of 11 planes. One was downed by anti-aircraft fire and the 13th by "other means" —apparently some secret defensive device.

The government said the assault on the Glasgow area was "heavy and prolonged," that "some industrial buildings and houses were damaged" and that a number of fires were started, all of which were extinguished or brought under control by dawn.

Casualties Not Heavy

"The number of casualties, though serious, is not thought to be heavy," a communique said.

Damage in Liverpool and the northeast town which shared with Glasgow the brunt of the overnight assault was said to have been limited largely to residential areas. Casualties in both places were described officially as "not numerous."

"Elsewhere in the country," the ministries of air and home security said, "there were many other incidents, but few were serious, though some resulted in a small number of casualties."

In their assaults last night the Germans used scream bombs similar to those employed last spring in France.

Fierce defensive barrages greeted them everywhere, and the sky over England was alight in many places with burst shells.

Wednesday night the night fighters shot down five of the nine Nazi planes destroyed. Anti-aircraft guns got the other four.

Hun Docks, Oil Blaze Ships Gunned; Six Planes Lost

LONDON, March 14—(CP).—The Royal Air Force mauled frequently-bombed Hamburg overnight in the greatest assault yet set oil facilities at Rotterdam ablaze, delivered minor attacks against Bremen and Emden and torpedoed and sank a Nazi supply ship off the Frisian Islands, the Air Ministry announced today.

This second straight night of trip-hammer blows indicated the northwestern corner of Germany, where German naval bases, shipwards, docks and marine and other industries are concentrated has become the principal target of the R.A.F. in the all-out offensive which followed upon the enactment by the United States of the British Aid Bill.

Striking in the clear light of a full moon, British bombers pounded the shipbuilding yard, docks and warehouses at Hamburg, adding new fires to those set off the night before. Other targets near the mouth of the Elbe River, between Hamburg and the North Sea coast, were "left burning fiercely," the Air Ministry communique said.

Bombers of the same command blasted Rotterdam, in the Netherlands, where more huge fires were reported Saturday.

Bremen, where sprawling shipyards turn out many of Germany's ships, again was attacked, but on a smaller scale than Wednesday night's fierce assault. Emden, a major Nazi naval base, also came in for heavy attack.

Completing the noctural raids on Continental objectives, single British aircraft splashed bombs on two airdromes in the Netherlands.

BARON Robert Silvercruys, Belgian minister to Canada, said today the first group of Belgian nationals called to the colors in Canada revealed "a very fine spirit."

Baron Silvercruys visited the training centre at Cornwall, Ont., where these men are undergoing instruction yesterday and watched Belgian troops to the number of about 100 marching in full kit.

He expressed his appreciation of the progress made by them after two weeks' training. He said the men, recruited from all parts of Canada, formed the nucleus around which other Belgian recruits will be assembled.

The Last Trans-Canada Link

Will Finish It This Year Says Hepburn—Double Road to Oshawa

TORONTO, March 14 (CP)—Expenditures of $15,325,000 for the department of highways in the coming fiscal year, based on "wartime requirements," were budgeted for in the Ontario Legislature today by Premier Hepburn, who said the requirements were two-fold:—

"To provide a network of highways of a design attractive to American visitors and rugged enough to spend the distribution of the products of our war industries."

The highways must be viewed today "as an indispensible cog in our war effort," the premier said. They must be the means of enabling, "if the time ever comes," speedy movement of a mechanized army for the defence of the country and must provide a system of transportation acceptable to American tourists who "bring with them the foreign exchange so necessary to the successful financing of our war effort."

In the coming fiscal year, Mr. Hepburn said, it is planned:

To finish the 153-mile stretch between Hearst and Geraldton which "will at last provide Canada with a highway within her borders from coast to coast" and provide another means besides the Trans-Continental railroads of bridging the "great wilderness" from the Upper Great Lakes to James Bay.

To complete "the Queen Elizabeth Way" from Niagara Falls to Fort Erie, which will provide "quick and easy access" to the heart of the province for tourists entering Canada along the Niagara border and a medium for speeding distribution of the products of industrial plants.

To relieve congestion resulting from industrial development between Toronto and Oshawa by extension of the divided highway east of Toronto from West Hill to Oshawa;

To complete regrading and paving on many unfinished projects tapping the rich mining fields" of Northern Ontario; and

There will be no decrease in expenditures for maintenance, Mr. Hepburn said.

Mistaken For "Brass Hats"

Canuck Writers Chuckle At Duke's Staff Slip

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, March 14.—(CP).— Canadian war correspondents didn't figure they cut a very dashing figure in uniform—but now the writers are practically saluting each other as the beau brummels of the army. They were mistaken for "brass hats" during the Duke of Gloucester's visit to the 1st Canadain division.

Standing near a roadway on the fringe of a battalion the Duke was going to visit, the reporters found themselves in the spotlight when a car carrying his royal highness and senior divisional officers stopped in front of them.

One officer got out to prepare the way for the Duke, noticed the Generosity by Darlan's Rule

N.Y. Times Finds Huns Still Owe France Few More Potatoes

NEW YORK, March 14.—(CP).—The New York Times, commenting editorially upon Admiral Darlan's declaration that Germany has released wheat for France and that "the Germans have been more generous and humanitarian than the British," said to-day:

"Spurred on by this tribute to their generosity and humanitarianism, the Germans have now made public a record of other good deeds in recent months. Counting Admiral Darlan's wheat, France has now had from Germany:

220,000 tons of wheat.
25,000 tons of steel and iron.
30,000 tons of fuel oil.
25,000 tons of cellulose.
500,000 tons of newsprint.
150,000 tons of coal.
100,000 tons of potatoes.

And what has France paid Germany?

80,000 dead French soldiers.
100,000 wounded men.
2,000,000 prisoners of war.
The entire equipment of the French army.
All the goods that Germany has wished to take.
100,000,000,000 francs for occupation costs.
The pride and freedom of the French people.

"It still seems as if Hitler owes France a little wheat and a few more bushels of potatoes."

Sleeping Apples Stay Fresh

Juggling Oxygen In Cold Storage Found Secret

(Associated Press Science Editor.)

ITHACA, N.Y., March 14 (AP)—Apples from last year's crop, kept asleep by a new process so they remain as fresh as when picked, are to come on the United States market in May and June.

They have been stored since last summer by four apple dealers in New York State, and also at Cornell University, where this new process has been under development for four years by Dr. R. M. Smock, assistant professor of pomology.

The idea for putting fruit to sleep originated as a theory of pure science in the botany department of

Seven English Fliers Killed As Two Trainer Planes Collide, Crash At Bond Head

Only One Of Crew Survives—Has Broken Back; All Die Instantly On One Craft As Machine Explodes On Hitting Ground

BOND HEAD, Ont., March 14—(CP).—The tangled wreckage of one Avro-Anson bomber and the scattered remnants of another were under close guard here today while official investigation opened into Canada's most serious air training crash which yesterday took the lives of seven English members of the Royal Air Force.

The planes, manned by men from the air training school at Port Albert, near Goderich, Ont., collided in mid-air above the farm of Robert Gummerson, half-a-mile from here, and crashed within a quarter of a mile of each other.

Only one of the total crews of eight survived, AC. John L. Flower of Eastleigh, Eng., who today lies in hospital at Barrie in a serious condition. His injuries are believed to include a broken back.

Six men were killed instantly when the planes crashed: The two pilots, Flt.-Sgt. M. Dodsworth of York and Sgt. J. C. Bell of Durham; and LAC. M. G. Solkard, Leeds; LAC. S. Porter, Liverpool; LAC. D. A. Rundell, Bristol; and AC. C. T. Douglan, Sherwood.

The seventh, LAC. I. W. Jackson of London, died on the way to hospital.

Farmer Sees Collision

Gummerson, who was walking from the road to his farm home, said he heard the planes collide and looking up "saw the planes directly above my barn."

As he watcher he saw "one of the planes turn upside down and drift to my other field. I followed it with my eyes and it flew all to pieces. I didn't know that the other plane had crashed until someone told me." The plane fell a short distance from Gummerson's barn.

Ted Hipwell, son of the Bond Head postmaster, L. C. McLean and others from the village went quickly to the Gummerson farm and visited the plane which had landed near the barn. The other plane had exploded on striking the ground and fragments were scattered over a wide area.

On reaching the first plane the rescuers discovered that Flower and Jackson were alive and they were taken out and placed on strips of wing fabric laid out on the snow. Flower was conscious and told the men his name. Then he insisted they help his comrades.

Hipwell ran back to the village for some brandy and when he got back to the farm Dr. R. H. Judge of Bradford, six miles from here, was attending the men. The doctor gave Flower and Jackson hypodermic injections to ease their pain

Budget Highlights

(By the Canadian Press.)

No new taxes; present tax measures will be continued.

Interim surplus at $12,600,364.56 for the current fiscal year ending March 31 next, (10 months actual and two months estimated) compared with an estimated surplus of $356,239.16 forecast at the start of the year.

Surplus of $9,743,063.96 estimated for the fiscal year beginning next April 1.

Gross ordinary revenue for the next fiscal year estimated at $115,179,775.37, compared with $114,056,264.56 in the current fiscal year (10 months actual, two months estimated).

Estimated gross ordinary expenditures of $105,436,711.41 for the next fiscal year, compared with $101,455,900 in the fiscal year ending March 31, 1941.

Net decrease of $2,160,257 in funded debt of the province, totalling, as of March 31, 1941, $616,584,197.

Greatest increase in revenues for the current fiscal year was shown in the amount derived from corporation taxes — $23,000,000 compared with a forecast of $15,000,000 a year ago.

The Government will assume an indebtedness of $3,246,622 outstanding against a score of municipalities which participated in a scheme in 1914 to construct a radial line between Toronto and St. Catharines.

Gross capital receipts for the current fiscal year ending next March 31 placed at $23,256,247.38; payments at $31,515,346.66. Gross capital receipts for 1941-42 forecast at $17,045,875.12; payments at $27,510,715.57.

Under the new 75-25 per cent. provincial-municipal division of direct unemployment relief costs, the government estimates its expenditures for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1942, at $4,985,000. This compares with expenditures of $4,315,000 for the current fiscal year (10 months actual, two months estimated).

Increased expenditure of $268,600 allowed for the Highways Department for the fiscal year 1941-42.

The government's bonus of two cents a pound on cheddar cheese will cost an estimated $2,000,000 next year; estimated cost of $1 bonus on Grade "A" hogs and 50 cents on grade B-1 placed at $1,400,000.

As Berlin Saw It.

BERLIN, Mar. 14 — (CP).—Nazi propagandists to-day said the German air force's attack on the Clydeside last night put "Coventry completely in the shade."

(Yesterday the Nazis said the same thing in connection with a raid on Liverpool.)

"A large section of the British munitions industry" was destroyed in the Glasgow raid, according to an "eye-witness" quoted by the Nazi sources.

The communique of the high command stressed the bombing of "food stores" and "food industry business centres" in Glasgow, Liverpool and Hull.

Ontario was anxious to do her part in fulfilling the food contracts with Britain. The hog bonus was introduced to aid in this, and to save the industry in Ontario and encourage hog producers.

He called for even a greater effort in regards to cheese, in which it was "imperative" to increase production in February and January had fallen off 50 per cent from 1940 and attributed the drop to "liquidation of milch cows; shortage of good feed; scarcity of labor and diversion of cheese-factory milk to condenseries."

There must be adequate supplies of good feed if milk production were to be increased, Mr. Hepburn said, and to assist farmers in obtaining Western grains the Dominion and provincial governments had agreed to share the freight costs of bringing 3,200,000 bushels of feed grain from the lakehead to any point in Ontario.

He said the government is arranging to extend its work of combatting Bang's disease in cattle throughout the province. Cattle men would have to recognize that this work would have to be gradual.

Because of the scarcity of labor, Mr. Hepburn said it was likely that field-crop acreage would be reduced this year and "it is extremely important, therefore, that maximum production be procured on the acreage seeded."

He added that the taxi drivers, whom he identified as Frank H. Hogan, 27, and Earl J. Allen, 35, were arrested by deputies under Sheriff Neil Law of Brooksville.

"They confessed," he said, "that the woman was killed in Allen's apartment, that they wrapped the body in a blanket, took it downstairs, put it in a taxicab and hauled it to near Gainesville where they buried it.

"They would give no information as to why the woman was killed."

He said Sheriff Law called his office yesterday and said they were holding two men and a taxicab, which had blood in it. Sheriff Law, the chief reported, said the men were arrested when his officers saw them driving through Brooksville early in the morning and investigated.

The Second Wife.

TORONTO, March 14.—(CP). — Officials International Nickel Company said to-day that Mrs. Ruth Rawlins, whose body was found near Gainesville, Fla., early to-day, was the second wife of James Rawlins, retired metallurgist and former company official.

Mr. and Mrs. Rawlins, who have lived in Toronto since Rawlins' retirement several years ago, were on a visit to Florida.

Company officials said Rawlins married several years ago after the death of his first wife. They said he was in his 60's and had retired from the company because of poor health. He had been a metallurgist and assistant superintendent with International Nickel, stationed at Port Colborne, Ont., and Copper Cliff, Ont.

Rawlins was president of the Association of Professional Engineers of Ontario during 1940 and relinquished that office this year.

In connection with the war effort, he said, the government had secured the services of some men "with great industrial experience" who had never before been connected with a government department and who had to be allowed a certain latitude in their desire to "carry on with absence of government interference."

"If we try to exert pressure on these men helping the government in its war effort we are faced with difficulties there," he said.

The government was well represented at the conference, he said, and he "would like to say, in the presence of my colleagues that I expect every member of the government to see that its labor policies are carried out fully."

Mr. King paid tribute to labor for its "restraint" in the face of some grievances and said that Canada "has industrial peace at least while there's international war throughout other parts of the world."

Britain Urges U.S. Shipping Aid Be Rushed

LONDON, March 14 (CP)—Britain asked quick help from the United States to bolster her merchant marine in a statement issued today at No. 10 Downing Street.

The statement said Prime Minister Churchill was sending Sir Arthur Salter, parliamentary secretary to the ministry of shipping, to the United States immediately to work out details of aid to shipping.

"In no sphere of our war effort is the help which the United States can give us under the lend-lease legislation more urgent than that of shipping," it said.

A mission under Robert H. Brand also is to go to the United States to arrange for foodstuffs. Mr. Brand is a London banker and in the first Great War was on the imperial munitions board of Canada.

The statement explained that Mr. Churchill is sending Sir Arthur to the United States "to discuss with the United States administration various forms their help might take" in solving shipping problems and added:—

"It will also be necessary for a representative of His Majesty's government to discuss with the United States administration an arrangement whereby foodstuffs will be made available to this country under lease-lend arrangements.

"The minister of food has asked the Hon. Robert H. Brand to undertake this task and to be head of a small mission which he is sending to the United States."

WASHINGTON, Mar. 14—(AP).—Congressional sources said yesterday it is virtually definite that thirty United States "mosquito fleet" torpedo boats would be transferred to Britain in the near future and some legislators said they had heard reports that some of the smaller seagoing units of the Coast Guard also might be transferred.

The House Naval Committee members reiterated that destroyers and other small naval craft might be turned over to Britain as fast as new replacements are delivered to the Fleet. They pointed out that thirteen destroyers are scheduled to be commissioned between now and July 1 and that might release an equal number of overage destroyers, of which the Navy has approximately seventy in commission. Twenty-four more destroyers and eleven submarines are to be completed in the year starting July 1.

Legislators who conferred with the President on the lend-lease program two days ago, asserted they had been given no specific list of vessels to be transferred.

Sleeping Apples

Cambridge University, England. Because fruit respires, these Scientists figured theoretically that reducing the oxygen and raising the carbon dioxide ought to work.

Dr. Smock has tested the theory on various fruits. It does not work for all. Learning why not, and whether something else may be substituted to get the same results, is likely to be one of the next important steps in agriculture, if the commercial tests of the Cornell apples succeed.

Thirty-thousand bushels of apples were placed last fall in cool rooms, 40 degrees instead of the ordinary 32 degrees cold storage temperature. The rooms were sealed and the oxygen of their air reduced to two per cent instead of the normal 20 per cent. At the same time the carbon dioxide was raised to five per cent, this gas coming from the fruit.

This atmosphere has been maintained ever since. The two per cent oxygen is just enough to keep the apples alive. They have to respire or breathe, oxygen, to live. The combination of carbon dioxide and low oxygen puts them into deep sleep, as would an anesthetic.

The effect is to slow down their rate of living, or of ageing and dying, so that they last for many months without detectable change, even in flavor.

The War Today

By J. F. SANDERSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Moonlight spring nights have taken death and destruction in greater force to Germany, German occupied territory and Britain during the last two nights.

The increasing ferocity of the raids on both sides was seen in the aircraft casualty figures. In yesterday's raids the Royal Air Force lost five aircraft while the Germans, raiding the west country, concentrating on Liverpool, but putting on side shows over London and other areas, lost nine.

Today reports told of renewed German air raids on Clydeside districts around Glasgow and a second raid on Liverpool, both of which inflicted considerable casualties, but resulted in the loss of 11 enemy planes.

London air raid listeners last night reported they had heard a new noise, more like the bellow of heavy artillery than the bark of anti-aircraft guns. Some persons, noting a recent Air Ministry announcement that a new defence had been developed, suggested it might be one previously reported in experimental stages—a shell which would toss into the air spirals of wire sufficiently heavy to entangle and trip any aircraft flying within a considerable distance.

It also appeared that the R.A.F. had acquired a fighter of more than usual ability in night defences.

Throughout the world as word spread of British and Axis strokes and counter-strokes, born largely of fine spring weather, observers waited in expectation of seeing the most fearful aerial warfare the world has ever witnessed.

about Tepeleni was completely beaten back, the Greeks said, and great losses were suffered.

Greek despatches from the front said Mussolini would return to Rome from his visit to the front empty-handed and "covered with shame" after failuure of the offensive he had personally ordered.

Mussolini was said in these despatches to have been in Tirana, Albanian capital, since yesterday and was expected to leave for Rome to-morrow, the date he had set to announce a "big success" in Albania.

These reports said it was not known whether he would be accompanied by Marshal Pietro Badoglio, former Chief of Staff, who was said in unconfirmed advices to have been sent to Albania recently to report personally on the situation to King Victor Emmanuel.

The R.A.F. communique on the big air battle in the Tepeleni area said large formations of Italian bombers and at least 50 fighters were encountered by heavily outnumbered British planes.

A severe attack on Valona and Saseno Island at the mouth of the harbor in which buildings and the airdrome were bombed on Wednesday night also was announced.

R.A.F. Torpedo Planes Busy.

ROME, March 14.—(AP).—Stefani, Italian news and propaganda agency, claimed to-day that five British torpedo planes of the type that attacked the Italian fleet at Taranto attempted to launch their missiles at shipping in Valona harbor, Albania, but succeeded only in damaging one merchant vessel.

Stefani asserted the five big planes were spotted by observers as they flew in at dawn yesterday over Saseno Island, at the mouth of the harbor. The Stefani version was that three were forced to turn aside, after dropping their torpedoes off shore, and the other two were ringed by anti-aircraft fire.

One was hit directly and sank into the sea after its crew of three was rescued by Italian boatmen, the Italians asserted, while the second was wrecked soon afterwards by Italian batteries.

(No British statement on this reported encounter was available).

An entire Greek division was "cut to pieces" in land fighting on the Viosa front near Tepeleni when the Greeks charged an Italian-held height, the agency stated.

(The Greeks said five Italian divisions were shattered in this sector).

Stefani related the Italians held their fire until the Greeks had almost reached the summit, and then let loose a hail of artillery and machine-gun fire which cut the Greeks down at almost point blank range.

The Italians then charged from their trenches and chased the Greek survivors back to their trenches, the agency added. Many prisoners and arms were reported captured, and Italian chaplains were said to have supervised the burial of hundreds of Greeks whose bodies litter the mountainside.

The High Command claimed five "enemy" planes and three Italian planes were shot down in the land fighting.

(A British communique in Athens said 14 Italian fighter planes were downed in the Tepeleni area yesterday with no British losses).

Strike Ends

OSHAWA, Ont., March 14—(CP) — Negotiations between Coulter Manufacturing Company and its 160 striking employees resumed today with E. N. Compton, Dominion Government conciliator, presiding.

George Burt, regional director of the United Automobile Workers of America, said the strike was called Wednesday because of the company's refusal to grant wage increases. Company officials said the plant was engaged in war work.

How To Overcome Piles And Rectal Soreness

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the same or run the risk of letting these conditions become chronic. Any itching, soreness or painful passage of stool, is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from McDermid & Jury and Bond's Drug Store or any druggist, a package of Hem-Roid and use as directed. This formula, which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spots. Hem-Roid is highly recommended, is easy to use, and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk a chronic pile condition when a simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost.—(Advt.)

Gift To Anson House By T. H. G. Denne

The deed of the entire store and property at 394 George street, formerly the Home Lunch, was handed over to the Board of Directors of Anson House, Wednesday afternoon by T. H. G. Denne as a permanent memorial to his deceased wife, with the trust created to be known as the "Anna May Denne Trust." At one time this property realized a rent as high as two thousand dollars a year, and it is the wish of Mr. Denne that monies thus realized be used to provide the little comforts, delicacies and pocket money which would mean so much to pensioners resident at Anson House.

It was while Mr. Denne was once seated on a park bench and happened to notice an elderly gentleman who had been a former classmate and was now a resident of Anson House, that the giver of this generous and thoughtful gift first had his inspiration. Because it seemed hard to him that one should prosper and the other end his days in a Home, he reflected on what might be done to make life brighter for these men and women unable to be surrounded by their families as years go on.

The presentation of the deed was made during an impressive little ceremony which followed the monthly meeting of the Board of Directors at Anson House Wednesday afternoon, at which Mrs. De la Fosse, president, presided. Canon W. P. Robertson of St. John's Anglican church, who accompanied Mr. Denne, was the only guest.

On behalf of the members in the Protestant Home who will benefit from the fund, Mrs. De la Fosse expressed sincere thanks to the donor, and referred appreciatively to the deep interest which Mr. Denne, a former mayor of Peterborough, and his family have always taken in Anson House.

Mr. W. C. Ackerman also spoke briefly in appreciation of the fund, which will be administered by the Victoria Trust and Savings Company of Lindsay.

Bus Drivers' Strike Ties Up New York Transportation

Demanding chiefly a uniform eight-hour day and a 25 per cent. increase in pay, 3,500 employees of Fifth Avenue Coach Co., and New York City Omnibus Co., which supply 95 per cent. of surface transportation in the metropolis, went on strike. They are represented by the Transport Workers' Union. Pickets are parading in front of the garage at 99th St. and Lexington Ave. in which 260 buses are remaining "at ease."

Farmers Organize Federation Of Agriculture At Warkworth

WARKWORTH, Mar. 14—(ENS)—Despite bad weather and roads, there was a large number in attendance at a meeting held in the Town Hall on Tuesday afternoon, March 11, for the purpose of organizing the Northumberland County Federation of Agriculture to affiliate with the Provincial Federation of Agriculture. This is an organization for the purpose of looking after the farmers' interests and to try and secure better prices for their produce.

The meeting was opened by Ian McLeod, agricultural representative, Brighton. W. H. Nelson, Dartford, was appointed chairman and Harry Sirrett, Brighton, secretary.

The guest speaker was R. H. Hannam of Toronto, president of the Dominion Federation of Agriculture.

Agricultural Societies: Seymour—Robert McCullough; Warkworth — W. H. Nelson; Roseneath—F. J. Slade; Brighton — Harold Simpson; Wooler—E. McMaster; Port Hope—Sam Philip.

Cheese Producers' Association: Roy Darling, Morganston; Fred Barnum, Seymour; Harold McColl, Murray; H. B. Wood, Trent Bridge; George McCubbin, Norham.

Apple Growers' Association: Everett Little, Brighton; Gordon Findly, Haldimand; Kenneth Macklin, Murray.

Tomato Growers: Harry Hunt and Thomas Sirrett, Brighton; Gordon Honey, Cramahe.

Milk Producers: Stan Macklin, Cobourg; Fred Lawless, Grafton.

Holstein Breeders: Roy Petty, Percy; Lindsay Anderson, Seymour

English Line Egg Circle: Andrew Milne, Campbellford; Roy McCullough, Seymour..

Harwood Creamery: Lawrence Isaac and R. E. Drope, Harwood; Wilbert Davey, Cobourg.

At the close of the meeting the provisional board met and appointed W. H. Nelson president and Harry Sirrett, secretary. It was decided to hold a provisional board meeting in Warkworth on March 25 at 1:30 p.m.

Extra Pensions If Disability During Wartime

OTTAWA, March 14. (CP)—Brig. Gen. H. F. Macdonald, chairman of the Canadian Pensions Commission, told the Commons' Committee on Pensions today that a bill now before parliament amending the Pension Act will provide particular benefits for ex-servicemen who suffered their disability during wartime.

He said the measure provides pensions for all disabled soldiers but "more liberal benefits for those who suffer their disability during war."

Pensions should not be restricted to dependents of servicemen who die in an actual theatre of war, said Howard Green (Con., Vancouver South).

Gen. Macdonald said pensions would be paid dependents of men whose death was attributed directly to military service even in Canada.

Mr. Green said he thought such pensions should also go to dependents of those who died from any cause during service.

Clarence Gillis (C.C.F., Cape Breton South) agreed that the "insurance principle" should be maintained where pensions of that nature were concerned.

The country was requisitioning the service of its men, he said, and dependents of the men were entitled to protection no matter how the men died during or as a result of service.

The Pension Act, said W. R. Macdonald (Lib., Brantford), rules now that no pension will be paid dependents of a man whose death does not occur while he is "directly attending to his military service."

He said he thought scope of the Act should be widened.

J. A. Blanchette (Lib., Compton) urged provisions governing award of death pensions should be made as broad as possible irrespective of whether a man serves overseas or not.

Most members of the Pensions Committee are veterans of the last war, he said, "and we know that we served where we were sent—certainly it was not our fault if we were kept on this side."

Asparagus Price Is Given Boost

TORONTO, March 14.—(CP)—Increased prices will be paid by processors to asparagus growers this year, George Wilson, chairman of the Ontario Farm Products Control Board, announced yesterday.

Wilson said that minimum prices unanimously agreed on by a negotiating committee of three asparagus growers and three processors had been approved by the Board.

Price on Grade No. 1A will be 11¾ cents per pound, an increase of one cent; Grade 1B to 10½ cents, an increase of one cent per pound, and utility grade 7¾ cents, an increase of ¾ of a cent.

W. C. Nickerson, St. Catharines, Paul A. Fisher, Burlington and E. W. Fox, Ruthven, represented the growers and T. V. Proctor, Chatham, W. I. Drynan, Hamilton and E. R. Renouf, Toronto, the processors on the negotiating committee.

Total amount of asparagus purchased last year by processors was 2,789,000 pounds.

General Mopping Up

CAIRO, Egypt, March 14—(AP).—Mopping up in Italian Somaliland by British Imperial forces "continues in all sectors," the Middle East Command announced to-day.

Royal Air Force Headquarters said South African airmen attacked Italian planes on the ground at Asmara, capital of Eritrea, last Tuesday and made damaging raids upon freight trains on the line between Asmara and Cheren, besieged mountain stronghold 42 miles north-west of the capital.

Check Up Author

WASHINGTON, March 14—(AP).—United States' immigration officials, it was learned to-day, have begun an investigation of Jan Valtin, author of the current best seller, 'Out of the Night." Valtin described in his book his alleged experiences first as a communist agitator in his native Germany, then as a Gestapo (secret police) agent and later as an agitator who sought overthrow of the government in the United States.

Hastings Group Raises $100 For Red Cross

HASTINGS, March 14.—(ENS)—The monthly meeting of the Hastings Red Cross was held on Monday evening in the Council Chamber, and it was reported that over $100 had been realized during the past month, through teas, a school concert and a successful bingo.

The amount realized from the bingo was so encouraging that plans were made to hold a second one on April 3 in the Town Hall.

On Tuesday afternoon enthusiastic workers of the Red Cross met in the society rooms and packed Easter boxes containing fruit cake, chocolate bars, home-made candy, oxo, gum and salted peanuts for each of the seventeen Hastings boys overseas.

A number of the members of Trinity Young People's Society motored to Norwood on Monday evening to participate in a delightful skating party attended by young people from Keene, Havelock, Westwood, Norwood and Cottesloe. Following the party the Norwood Young People served lunch to 147 guests, after which a social half-hour was enjoyed.

Mr. Joseph Collins returned home on Tuesday from St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough, where he underwent an operation for appendicitis.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Oliver spent Tuesday with the latter's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. R. Bradshaw, of Roseneath.

Lieut. Everett Fairman, Mrs. Fairman and daughter Barbara Joan, of Petawawa, were week-end guests of relatives in Hastings.

Joseph Gould of the R.C.A.F. was a Hastings visitor on Saturday.

Miss Bernice Dainard of Belleville, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Stewart, Jack and Carol, of Foxboro, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Dainard.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. McCracken of Roseneath were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. King.

Norwood Enjoys Skating Party

NORWOOD, March 14.—(ENS)—The Young People of Norwood United church held a skating party in the Norwood arena on Monday evening. A number of the young people from Havelock, Keene and Hastings United church joined in the party as well as members from young people's organizations of the other churches in Norwood. A very enjoyable evening was spent.

Winners of the races were as follows:

Boys' open race. Lorne Johnson of Norwood first, and Brown of Havelock second; girls' open, Ethel Gill of Norwood first, and Doreen Graham of Norwood, second; couple race, Bill Copp and Ethel Gill of Norwood first.

At the close of the evening all the young people gathered in the basement of the United church, where lunch was served.

In the Baptist church on Monday evening Mrs. McFarlane gave a very interesting and apealing lantern lecture on the work conducted by her husband and herself in the Zambesi Valley, Southern Rhodesia some few years ago.

The lantern slides opened with scenes and went on to show the mission station and poor neglected tribes among whom Mr. and Mrs. McFarlane worked. Mrs. McFarlane paid a tribute to the British Government whom she said did all in their power to encourage the work of missionaries in the lands under their control. The address finished with an appeal to all to take this matter of spreading the Gospel of Jesus Christ more seriously, to give it our first consideration.

The meeting closed with prayers for missions.

Why Berlin Needs Bombing

There are newer and greater bombers now in possession of the Royal Air Force, and they have been brought into use against Berlin and Hamburg. It is a thousand-mile trip to Berlin, and that is one of the handicaps which the R.A.F. has to overcome on each raid.

Berlin is one of the world's most beautiful cities. It has no skyscrapers; its streets are wide and places like the Unter den Linten are lined with rows of trimmed trees between the various channels of traffic. Its ways are wide and clean, and its shopping districts are spacious and very great.

The people there have been assured that no army of invasion could ever penetrate to Berlin; they have been told that no airplane attack could get that far. And yet for Hitler's private use there has been constructed one of the finest bomb-proof shelters in the world.

Admittedly it is a pointed view, but it is our conviction that British bombing of Berlin is one of the best moves which could possibly be made. And we would go as far as stating it is one of the finest things which could possibly happen.

The reason for that statement? Germany needs treatment of that sort.

And Why? Because since 1815 with few minor exceptions German soldiers have been fighting wars on foreign soil. Germans glory in war; they plan for it and they build for it, and they have no objections to war as an instrument of national policy. But the war must be fought elsewhere. It must never come and mar the beauty of Berlin.

It was so in the last Great War. The Germans were quick to carry the war to the Western Front. Their own cities were not damaged; their great industrial centres were not seriously injured. They followed the same plan as soon as Hitler was strong enough to move. If war there was to be then they would carry it to Austria, to Czecho-Slovakia, Poland, Norway, Denmark, the Low Countries and to France. It was all of the same pattern and it was all for the one purpose—wrecking other nations but keeping Germany free from attack. Not since the days of Napoleon has a foreign army given Germany a taste of war on the premises of the Germans.

For that reason the German people themselves have not experienced war. They have no conception of the thing which their armies have been inflicting on the people of other nations, and for that cause they do not hate war. Rather do they glory in it.

That is why we believe that British bombs falling on Berlin and Hamburg and Bremen—but particularly on Berlin—are being well placed and admirably directed. The meaning of present-day war is something which the German people must learn, and they must have the lessons taught to them in their own back yard, in their own front yard, in their proud streets and their magnificent buildings. It is taking the first step in showing to the German people that they cannot go on for ever making use of the lands and acres of other people for the purpose of fighting their wars. We know of no other way in which the horrors of war can be more effectively driven into their thick heads than by having bombs drop on Berlin. And if ever there was a nation in the history of the world which needed such course of instruction, then that nation is Germany. The Royal Air Force is at the moment being cast in the role of the great and much needed educator.

Making Less Profit

Those who claim that industrial concerns are making more money than ever during war years might with advantage spend a little time now and then reading the reports of the annual meetings of some of these concerns, particularly the section which tells of the finances and extent of the business.

Canadian Industries Limited is a large and healthy Canadian institution. Its net income during 1940, a war year, was $5,396,163, while in the year 1939 the figure stood at $6,232,143. There was a 13 per cent. decline in profit in face of a 20 per cent. increase in sales.

Looking for reasons for this change we find that taxation in the two years compared this way:

1939	$1,688,000
1940	3,836,900

By way of explanation it is added in the report: "It is logical the war will bear heavily on profits."

Labor costs are higher and the delivered costs of raw materials have increased, while there were but minor adjustments made in selling prices. Industry is going through busy days, but the large profits of the last war period are not being repeated. The policy of the Government is to extract as much war revenue as possible while the war is going on, and that is a better method than we followed in the last war when we followed the policy of borrowing almost exclusively.

It Was Well Done

It seems inevitable that a certain number of planes must come down unexpectedly in the course of training, but we could only wish that forced landings could at all times be made with the skill shown by two young men from Kingston who brought their plane down in Peterborough in the midst of what was a good-sized blizzard.

Their course for the day was from Kingston to Omemee and return, and when they started the day was bright. When they were in this district on the return trip the snow was heavy and it was driven in so it interfered with the engines.

The pilot picked out a place to land, and it was not large, and it was heavy with snow. He did not let down his landing gear, but came down flat like a pancake. He avoided trees a short distance off and his machine did not turn over. The two occupants of the plane were unharmed and the amount of damage to the plane itself was not large. A snap decision as to where to land would have to be made there, and it had all the earmarks of being intelligently and skilfully done.

Stupid Comment

Those who are in charge of broadcasting in Germany must take it for granted that their people are stupid; they must believe they have lost the power to reason, or else they are sure the desire to reason anything to its logical conclusion has been effectively smothered in them.

When United States Congress passed the Aid to Britain bill the Berlin broadcasters were all ready for it. They knew exactly what was in the wind, and they had the inside story of what United States had in mind.

Just this: United States was ready to put up $7,000,000,000 in order to secure a negotiated peace, and during such settlements as might be necessary Washington was planning on annexing its full share of a badly-broken British empire.

President Roosevelt is somewhat of a past-master at the business of selecting the precise moment for making an announcement, and also for making his announcements as weighty as possible. Hence he did not dribble in small figures in the tables showing the extent to which United States was going to the aid of Britain. He barged right in with that seven billion item, and there is no reason to doubt that he had some of the Balkan states in mind, as well as tottering Italy when he named that sum. It meant full-weighted effort and not merely a friendly gesture. His aim was to place United States unreservedly behind Britain's war effort, and he wanted the Axis powers and those on whom pressure is being applied to know exactly where United States stood.

The manner in which the Berlin announcer had it twisted and bent for home consumption suggests that the mental stomachs in Germany are supposed to take in anything that is offered with the Nazi tag on it and ask no questions.

The Complete Jackass

Benito Mussolini, according to despatches, has been in Albania for several days. We read that it was his desire to inspire the troops. Possibly the inspiration would have to be delivered by remote control, because the tottering Mussolini did not go so near the front that the troops might gaze on him.

Last reports were that six desperate counter-charges against the Greeks had been undertaken on the orders of Mussolini. The number of men lost in these attempts is said to have been staggering.

Mussolini is also reported to have given his generals "until Saturday to do something."

That is a fair enough picture of the man who is at the head of affairs in Italy. The boastful man, the traitor who stuck the knife into the back of a former friendly nation on the 10th day of June, 1940.

Before his eyes he has seen his African empire fall; he has had to look on while Haile Selassie, the man he despises, has gone back to renew warfare in Ethiopia; he has seen his troops by the tens of thousands taken prisoners; their equipment captured and turned against the former owners.

The man with the great mouth who used to beat upon his chest when he spoke (which was often and loud) sent an ultimatum to the Greeks. And the Greeks responded by giving to the Italians a memorable threshing. Mussolini's "invincible legions" were sent into the snow-filled mountains and valleys of Albania and Greece, and there they perished. They attempted to take in tanks on roads where donkeys travelled in danger, and their equipment bogged down and was destroyed.

In more recent times there have been Blackshirt guards with machine guns in the rear lines ready to shoot any Italians who found retreat the only way of escape.

The tottering Mussolini sent seven of his cabinet ministers to the front, but whether they ever arrived is not on the record.

Then he went himself and set Saturday, March 15, as the deadline by which time the generals had to show that they could "do something."

Whether it was humanly possible "to do something" we do not know. Mussolini craved action of a decisive kind even if it did mean hurling thousands of his men into action in an impossible situation. His vanity had to be appeased; he desired to have something to take home with him in the way of victory.

What an intolerable ass the man must be!

His country was doing well before he tossed it into the war. His shipping trade was free to go and come and was regarded as neutral; his people were busy and they were not crying out for war. Today he flounders about near the front and says something out of the ordinary must be done by tomorrow. He is filling his country with the memories of dead men. Nothing else.

Staging a Poor Show

Hon. Peter Heenan and Mayor Cox of Port Arthur are both members of the Ontario Legislature. They are both Liberals, and they have been unable to agree for six years.

Apparently the whole matter comes from the system of operating the timber limits, and Mr. Heenan claims the trouble is that Mr. Cox "has not been able to have all the patronage of the northwest."

In recent days these two gentlemen have taken up hours of the time of the Legislature. Possibly the Conservative members in the House can mildly enjoy the spectacle of two Liberals pitching into each other, but the people on the outside can find no pleasure in it.

They must wonder just how the timber leases are arranged, and what is the actual meaning of "patronage" when applied to such deals. These men are not dealing with their own property, but with Crown Lands, the property of the province, and they are giving a mighty poor impression of what their stewardship of such property actually means.

NOTE AND COMMENT

North York Temperance Federation wants the Attorney-General to tighten the liquor laws in the province. However, Mr. Conant is not likely to admit that any tightening is required.

Irishmen in the United States have sent a message to President De Valera asking that Eire should assist Britain. That is one request that is not likely to get a sympathetic response from the Irish president.

Some one has figured out that to finance a national organization of farmers a contribution of one egg a week from every farmer would be sufficient. The trouble is that on most farms the output of hen fruit is in the wife's name.

WEE ANGUS

(By A.R.K.)

¶ Wee Angus sat and talked to me, when he had polished off his tea, he often does at night; he was convinced that things he saw, although according to the law, were not exactly right.

¶ Wee Angus told me Dan had said, his father could not get ahead, he couldn't make enough; and when it came to days like that, why things turned out there rather flat, and everything was tough.

¶ Dan's father's different than before, he doesn't whistle any more, nor does he crack new jokes; it seems that when his funds are slim, not only does it come on him, but hits at all his folks.

¶ So where does all the money go, when Dan's dad finds things rather slow, it hasn't disappeared; Wee Angus wanted me to say, if they put money all away, a question I had feared.

¶ Wee Angus really has a plan, he'll make it work when he's a man, or start at it before; when there's no money in the purse, that shouldn't make it any worse, he'd just go to the store.

¶ If folks are poor they have to eat, they have to burn a fire for heat, you can't just leave them flat; I asked him where he'd get the cash, to buy the people boots and hash—he hadn't thought of that.

Things Not Going Well Now With Axis Powers

By CHARLES P. STEWART

BERLIN and Rome, as the U.S. interprets the news from these two supposedly strictly censored sources, are furnishing the most convincing of all proofs that things are going badly with the European Axis.

B. Mussolini

From Berlin recently came the information that Herr Hitler has remorselessly squelched disorders in Holland. Oh, he doubtless has squelched 'em, but his announcement that he's done so is taken as an admission from a first-class authority that there were Dutch disorders that required squelching. And it was as good an authority as Signor Mussolini, who testified that the Fascists were a lot worse licked in northern Africa than even the British said they were.

Adolf and Benito ought to know, if anybody.

Benito's revelation was naive to the point of being funny. It evidently had leaked out in Italy itself that Il Duce's forces were on the run on the southern side of the Mediterranean, and it appears that the Italians, at home, were beginning to mutter that he'd neglected to send enough of 'em into that field of activity or to keep 'em supplied adequately. Seemingly Benito was stung by these criticisms; so he made that speech of a short time ago to the effect that his African military outfit was, too, a great plenty more numerous and better equipped than Italy and the rest of the world had given it credit for being. Well, if it was undermanned and skimpily armed it had some excuse for being licked. But, if not, as he asserted, it hadn't even that excuse for taking its licking. Ditto Albania. Benito hotly denied that the Italians there were knocked into a cocked hat by the Greeks due to any failure of his own to send enough of 'em across the Adriatic or to furnish 'em with sufficient guns, munitions and aviation; they simply have been trounced by superior Greek fighting ability—though Benito didn't put it quite that way.

NOT HIS FAULT!

THE NUB of it is that, yes, they've been licked, but it wasn't his fault.

The inference drawn from Adolf's reports is that he's conquered more territory than he's going to be able to keep long under subjection.

The Dutch already are so ugly, according to his own account, that he has had to declare German army rule throughout all the northern Netherlands. Presumably it's effective there at present, but it must be a nuisance to him to have so much hostility sizzling that he has to sit on it with a big military force to prevent it from going on the rampage under him.

And, of course, there are other areas for him to worry about.

Norway's reported to be as near to an anti-Nazi uprising as it dares to be.

France certainly won't stay beaten an longer than it has to.

It stands to reason that Denmark, Poland and Belgium can't but be ripe for revolt at the first favorable opportunity. The Balkans also are only as pro-German as they're afraid to be otherwise.

Now, Herr Hitler can concentrate on one little spot, like northern Holland, and suppress its anti-Nazism, unquestionably.

But suppose Adolf were to have uprisings break out against him in France, Holland, Belgium, Poland, Denmark and Norway about simultaneously, plus Britain on his hands, maybe the Balkans and Turkey, too, and with Russia's unreliability to reckon with! Wouldn't all that keep him pretty busy?

Anyway, Washington's diplomatic strategists calculate that Herr Hitler and Signor Mussolini (the former with his news from Holland and the latter with his north African and Albanian speech) have been a couple of their most enlightening informants lately.

A Bit of Nonsense

Threat For Threat

He was the terror of all the kids in the neighborhood—except one. So far his fierce threats and clenched fists had failed to daunt poung Clarence, who was a professor's son. Now he was having another go at it.

"You tallow-faced slob!" he snarled. "For two pins I'd knock your head off!"

But Clarence was unmoved.

"I shall go and consult the lexicons in the library," he replied, "with reference to the word 'slob.' If I find it has an opprobrious significance I shall return and chastise you as becomes the son of a gentleman bound to uphold the family honor."

WANTED A FLEA BAG

Letters To The Editor

MILLENNIUMS

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—I have followed with much interest the long letters relating to prophecy, and the war, in your column, "Letters to the Editor."

Truth is so amiable and important in every department of knowledge, that no pains should be spared to acquire it.

What disappointment, misunderstanding and confusion have been brought to the minds of thousands of misguided people by prophecys and calculations relatives to the termination of certain empires; the beast and the false prophet; Christ's second coming to establish a universal empire, the laws of which are to be administered by His presence, corporeally manifested on earth; and also concerning the time of the final judgment, and the end of the world!

When a fancy is pursued, the line of pursuit is only directed by a kind of phantom or unreal landmarks to unreal objects.

"Truth may be defined, "as the conformity of notions to things, of words to thoughts in the concrete as in logic existing in a subject," not abstract. It declares the things which are, as they are, things which have been as they were, just so far as our knowledge of them and how the mind has conceived them."

When the last "ignis fatuus" or "will o' the wisp" has finished its uncertain dance by absorption in some other vapor by which it has been neutralized, we are left in sudden darkness, where all such mental aberrations must necessarily end, thus faith and hope are disappointed, and religion itself discredited.

It is astonishing that in our age people still prefer hope to enjoyment and content themselves with blessings in prospect; wandering after an undefined and undefinable period called a millennial glory.

Today is the day for faith and prayer, for who among us can tell what even a day may bring forth. Time is that on which eternity depends.

The British Empire, Canada requires your time, my time, all our time, all the time.

Thank you, Mr. Editor.

JOHN BEGGS.

WHO SHOULD GET WORK?

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—Might I suggest that there is another viewpoint besides that of the city dweller, in regard to those who should be employed in the factories? We read recently that many millions of dollars are being spent in making war equipment. That money comes from all over the country and we cannot understand why those from country and city alike should not have a share in the work. It concerns the nation as a whole. More of the factories should be in villages.

Moreover, it is essential that the best possible type of workers be found, that is those who are willing to work long hours and who will do their best without 'grouching'. It seems only too apparent from the letters written by those who are complaining about not finding jobs, that for some reason they have been turned down by employers, or have lost their jobs. Might I suggest that a good appearance is often all that an employer has to go by in hiring workers, but it is surprising how much of a person's ability shows in the face, and these employers are good at reading character. If the employer makes a mistake, he has no other course but to discharge the poor worker, and the latter has no one but himself to blame.

If the employers cannot find enough good workmen in the city (and believe it or not, they do show preference to those of their own city) they are forced to take workers from outside, especially for war work.

There seems to be little excuse for men being out of work, except in cases where sons are laid off temporarily because of war conditions. If they look carefully at their lack of qualifications and try to improve them instead of finding fault with others, both men and women, who are working, it would be more to the point.

Those from the country have no desire to go to the city to find jobs but they are being forced to do it. The older folk on the farms may put up with the low prices of farm produce, but we admire the 'spunk' of the girls and boys who refuse to stay on the farms. We are quite well aware of the schemes used by some city dwellers to take a large share of the income of farmers. For example a farmer receives 17c per dozen for the best grade of eggs, 5.8c per quart for milk. What does the city consumer pay? If it were possible for the consumer and producer to co-operate and cut the middle man's profit to the actual cost of moving the produce from farm to co-operative store, we farmers would make enough to stay on the farms, and the city consumer could buy more cheaply. This is not a difficulty undertaking, but while farmers and consumers delay, wily schemeners, helped out by weak governments, are rushing through a system of enforcing unnecessary grading of farm produce for the express purpose of preventing direct selling from country to city. These schemers make an easier living than they would on the farms or in the offices, shops, or factories of the cities. There is no unemployment on the farm.

LOW PENSIONS

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—I wish as a Conservative to express my admiration for Defence Minister Ralston's reply to Capt. White's (Hastings - Peterborough) charges. I do not think the Canadian soldiers in the service at present are being neglected, but I do know many returned soldiers are being forgotten. They are now finding they cannot live on their small pension owing to the high cost of living and unemployment. I think it is about time Capt. White, and also our own G.K.F. were bringing to government's light the plight of some of the pensioners who are drawing from anywhere $3.75 to $5 per month with families to support, pay rent and buy fuel. How do you expect these men to live? Don't you think if these men cannot be used they should get increase in pension to cover the high cost of living for the duration of the war? I know of returned men who have offered their services for board and clothing just so as they will be able to keep life in themselves.

GET ON WITH THE WAR.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

And Samuel said unto Jesse, Are here all thy children? And he said, There remaineth yet the youngest, and, behold, he keepeth the sheep. And Samuel said unto Jesse, Send and fetch him: for we will not sit down till he come hither. And he sent and brought him in. Now he was ruddy, and withal of a beautiful countenance, and goodly to look to. And the Lord said, Arise, anoint him: for this is he.

Then Samuel took the horn of oil, and anointed him in the midst of his brethren: and the Spirit of the Lord came upon David from that day forward.—I Sam. xvi, 10-13.

DID YOU TAKE A LAXATIVE TODAY?

Do you really know why constipation is so harmful?

You probably know that constipation sets up poisons in the large intestine or colon. But do you know that these poisons seep through the walls of the colon and infect the bloodstream? They set up toxic accumulations in kidneys and liver and are contributing causes of rheumatic pains, sciatica and backache.

Most laxatives only act in the colon. Kruschen does more. It is the laxative with a double action. Besides ridding the colon of stagnating waste matter, Kruschen's mineral salts have a diuretic action. They flush the kidneys, help to clear the bloodstream of all poisonous matter, and so protect your whole system from that form of infection.

You can get Kruschen from all drug stores. Prices 75c and 25c.

Troublesome Night Coughs Are Hard on the System

It's the cough that sticks; the cough that is hard to get rid of; the cough accompanied by a tickling in the throat that causes the nerve and throat wracking trouble that keeps you awake at night.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup helps to relieve this coughing condition by soothing the irritated parts, loosening the phlegm and stimulating the bronchial organs, and when this is done the troublesome irritating cough may be relieved.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup has been on the market for the past 48 years. The Trade Mark "3 Pine Trees".

Price 35c a bottle; large family size, about 3 times as much, 60c. at all drug counters.

Fifty Havelock Students Busy Knitting

HAVELOCK, March 14—(ENS)—About fifty school children, some of them boys, are busily engaged in knitting scarfs for the soldiers and bonnets, bootees and nightingales for the British war babies and are doing excellent work, which will be on display in the near future, before shipping it overseas. They are being assisted and instructed by Mrs. Harry Hubble, Miss Madge Curtis, Miss Minnie Williams and their mothers.

The regular weekly meeting of the Patriotic Association was well attended on Friday afternoon and evening, when three quilts were completed for the British war victims. Two quilts for the British babies were donated by Barbara Watson and Bobby Hill, a complete quilt donated by Dorcas Rebekah Lodge and a top by Mrs. A. McIntyre. A quilt lining and batting were donated by Mrs. Harry Scott. A large carton of quilts and clothing was shipped to the Red Shield of the Salvation Army, Toronto. A letter was read from Mrs. Jane Peacock, acknowledging articles previously sent and stating that on account of limited ship space, from now on no articles of clothing which have been mended can be shipped overseas and that all articles of good used clothing must be perfectly clean. Letters of appreciation were read and enjoyed from the following soldiers: J. C. Bateman, Douglas Rowat, W. LeEsperance, George Alley and sons, Newcombe Hill, Harry Washburn and Carl Edwards.

In the evening a carload of the workers motored to Cordova to see the play, "Look Who's Here," put on by the Cordova workers, in the United Church. The cast received great praise for the efficient manner in which they acted their respective parts. The proceeds, $32.00, was presented to Miss Marnie Williams, convener of the Eastern Star Patriotic Association, for the Soldiers' Cheer Fund. The play will be presented in Northbrook and Havelock in the near future.

Bensfort News

Mrs. Ross Moncrief and Helen visited Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barnard on Sunday.

Mrs. W. C. Dawson was hostess to the Women's Association of Bensfort United Church on Wednesday afternoon. While three quilts were being quilted, Mrs. Dawson, W.M.S. president, conducted the meeting. Mrs. Lorne Harris gave a very interesting misionary paper on India, and Mrs. Dawson gave an address on the first Study Book. A discussion of the W.A. business was led by Mrs. C. Barnard. Lunch was served by Group A and a fee of 10c charged for the tea. Those present included: Mrs. Robert Dawson, Mrs. George Beebe, Mrs. Joe Edgerton, Mrs. Harold Beebe, Mrs. Fred Douglas, Mrs. John Deer, Mrs. Edgar Wood, Mrs. Ross Moncrief, Mrs. Charles Barnard, Mrs. Everett Wood, Mrs. Harold Moncrief, Mrs. Cliff Emberson, Mrs. Lorne Harris, Mrs. Charles Fisher, Mrs. Frank Morrison, Miss Hanbridge, Misses Mildred Dawson, Rena Smith, Lulu Nurse, Mrs. Sophia Finnie, Mrs. Janet Dawson, Shirley Beebe and Marvin Harris.

ThinksCanadians Eligible For George Cross

OTTAWA, March 14. — (CP). — Air Minister Power told the House of Commons last night it was his belief there is nothing to prevent a person in Canada being awarded the George Cross for gallantry in this country.

He said possibly the procedure for making such an award had never been used but that he believed the means existed for initiating the recommendation, communicating it to the King and getting it approved.

Speaking after a number of remarks about decorations for valor based on a question from Hon. Grote Stirling (Con., Yale) and an answer by Prime Ministre Mackenzie King to the effect military decorations for valor could be obtained by members of the Canadian forces, Mr. Powers said:

"I haven't any doubt but that means will be found to reward gallantry whether in the face of the enemy or elsewhere."

Creation of an Order of Chivalry, however, Mr. Power said, was a matter of high policy which would have to be decided by Parliament.

Mr. Stirling said the resolution passed by the House of Commons in 1919 which led to stopping of the granting of titles to Canadians did not extend to decorations for valor. With this the Prime Minister agreed.

"There cannot be the same objection to the conferring of decorations as to the conferring of knighthoods, the effect of which is to create class distinctions which is not the case with decorations," said Mr. King.

"So far as these awards for gallantry are concerned, this Government has never taken any stand against these awards being made," said Mr. King. "The Government has never thought of depriving members of the fighting forces of any recognition for gallantry."

Trent R. Euchre Pleasant Event

TRENT RIVER, March 13—(ENS)—The sixth series of progressive euchres in the Dollar Per Member drive to raise money for war work was held Tuesday night at the War Service Workers' rooms, sponsored by four members, Mrs. William G. McLaughlin, Mrs. Thomas J. Brown, Mrs. R. W. Umphrey and Miss B. G. French.

Notwithstanding the heavy snowfall accompanied by high winds throughout the afternoon and night, causing heavy roads, over thirty braved the elements to "do their bit for a worthy cause."

Eight tables were played, with prizes given as follows: Ladies' first, Mrs. Harry Mann; gent's first, Clifford Brown; ladies' consolation, Johnny Tyler (who played as lady). The gent's consolation was a tie between Clifford Chaplin and Billie Wight, the latter won in the draw. The lucky door prize was won by Mrs. Steenburg; the lucky chair prize was awarded to Mrs. George Alley.

At the close of the game, tea, sandwiches and cake was served by the hostesses. The fee of 15 cents brought the sum of $5.60. Tuesday night of next week another series will be in charge of all the members.

Mrs. Walter Berg, formerly Fern Longmuir, of Detroit, Mich., is spending two weeks at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Longmuir.

Sunday visitors with Mr. and Mrs. James Longmuir were Mr. and Mrs. Everard Chiles, Mrs. Percy Gardner and children of Havelock.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Cryderman of Campbellford were recent visitors at the home of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Longmuir.

Mrs. Joseph Hoffman of Havelock was a Tuesday visitor with Mrs. Stanley Carnrite.

Mrs. Stanley Carnrite has recovered from her recent illness and is able to be up and around again.

Capt. Irwin Lean of Peace River, B.C., is a visitor with his brother, Mr. M. T. Lean and Mrs. Lean and family.

Miss Frances Sedgwick returned Monday from spending a week with friends at Lockport, N.Y.

Bury Kelly In Dublin

DUBLIN, March 14 (CP Cable)—John Hall Kelly, Canadian High Commissioner to Eire who died Sunday, was buried today with military honors. A salute was fired as the flag-draped coffin was lowered into its grave at Gasnevin cemetery.

Members of the Eire Government were headed by Prime Minister de Valera, Representatives of the Dail Eireann, the Senate, the diplomatic corps, the army, the civic guard, and the church attended.

The Papal Nuncio, Rt. Rev. Pascall Robinson, presided at a requiem high mass.

Dispatched by President Roosevelt as "my personal representative" to expedite extension of American aid to Britain, William Averil Harriman is shown leaving the White House after a final discussion with Mr. Roosevelt before leaving for England.

Roseneath Ladies Plan Baking Sale

ROSENEATH, March 14—(ENS).—A worship service, the theme, 'Following Christ's Way in the Home,' with scripture readings by Mrs. M. Davey, D. Brisbin, E. Beech and Miss Ruby Jewell, conducted by Mrs. Andrew Brown; a business and study period conducted by Mrs. E. Beech, president, combined to make an interesting and inspiring W.M.S. meeting on Tuesday.

The meeting was held in the home of Mrs. D. Brisbin. Plans are under way for a home cooking sale to be held on March 29, the committee, Mrs. D. Brisbin, Mrs. George Mouncey and Mrs. R. Crego to work out details and inform members of their allotment.

Plans were discussed also regarding the spring thank offering and it was decided if possible to procure an outside speaker.

The members responded to the roll call with donations made from cotton sugar sacks. The donations included luncheon cloths, apron, pillow slips, clothes pin bags, broom dresses and laundry bags.

The study of Trinidad was introduced by Mrs. D. Brisbin.

Mrs. R. Crego, representing Miss A. Archibald, missionary to Trinidad, was interviewed by Mrs. A. Nill as a press representative, and told of her activities in all departments of the work.

An article written by J. D. White, who watched and saw present day conditions in the Sino-Japanese war was read by Mrs. M. Davey. A duet, 'Day is Dying in the West,' was sung by Mrs. E. Beech and Mrs. A. Nill.

A vote of thanks was tendered the hostess, who served coffee and doughnuts, after the closing exercises.

Hall's Bridge Citizens Honor Engineer

HALL'S BRIDGE, March 14.—(ENS).—A social evening under the auspices of the war workers was held in the True Blue Hall Friday evening to honor one of our citizens, Pte. W. Ziroff, of the Engineers, now stationed at Debert, N.S., who is home on a short leave. The community was well represented, and S. Wood made a splendid master of ceremonies. A very pleasant evening of community singing and games was enjoyed by all, during which Mr. Wood made a short impromptu speech, and Mrs. B. Hall presented Pte. Ziroff with a sweater and gloves on behalf of the war workers. The ladies served lunch and homemade candy, and a delightful evening was brought to a close.

CITY 5-PIN LEAGUE RACE TIGHTENS AS SCHEDULE NEARS THE END

Nationals Within One Point Tamblyn Outfit

The closest race every staged for first place in the City Bowling League narrowed down to a single point difference between Tamblyn's and National teams as a result of the games played at Duffus' Alleys last night. The Nationals, who were faced with the task of closing up the gap between themselves and the leaders, turned on the Big Five for a clean sweep of points. They piled up a 3620 team score to show they meant business, while Tamblyn's, the occupants of top place continuously since last October, saw their seemingly safe lead of four points dwindle down to one when they received a stunning 3 to 1 upset from the hands of Green's.

Capitols and Grafton's rolled the Kinsmen and New Centre teams under the 4 to 0 route for wins which put the Dean men in third place and Grafton's on even terms with the Big Five.

The Westclox and Huffman's shared up with two points each while Peterborough Lock nosed out Raine's with a 3 to 1 win. Both latter matches were close affairs.

Four bowlers crashed the 800 or better circle and eight good singles were chalked up. Bud White hit 846, Bill Burford 817, Bert McCarrell 804 and Bill Martin 802. Burford nailed 377 for his best game followed by Fred Martin's 353, Bill Martin's 319, Bill Milliken's 317, Alf Mattuci's 316, Bud White's 311, Bill Bennett's 309 and Len Anthony's 308.

The team standing: Tamblyn's 63, Nationals 62, Capitols 47, Big Five 44, Grafton's 44, Green's 39, Westclox 38, Huffman's 36, Peterborough Lock 34, Raine's 27, Kinsmen 23 and Centre 23.

Remember When—

Paul Berlenbach's string of 23 successive knockouts was broken by Jack Delaney at New York 17 years ago tonight. Berlenbach, who became world lightheavyweight boxing champion a year later, lost by a technical knockout in the fourth round against Delaney.

Royals Looming Real Threat In Eastern Race

MONTREAL, March 14 — (CP) — From the web of Eastern Canada's Allan Cup hopes, Montreal Royals emerged today as once more the team to beat among the nine remaining contestants for the task of representing the East in the Dominion hockey final.

Twice in the past two years beaten by the ultimate cup champions, the Royals were back this season with a stronger bid than ever. With a lineup strengthened in important spots, they appeared certain to represent Quebec in the playdowns after eliminating Ottawa Senators with a 2-0 victory last night.

The victory gave the Montrealers the series for the Quebec Senior Hockey League title, 3-1, in games over the Senators, touted as great cup prospects during the regular league season. It left the Royals with only the Provincial Intermediate champions to dispose of before stepping into the playdowns.

The victory sent Royals into the Provincial final against St. Jerome, who won the Intermediate championship meanwhile when Quebec defaulted the second game of a total-goal series after losing, 4-1, last night. Usually setups for the Seniors, the Intermediates may prove a tougher nut this time as they have four former N.H.L. players in their lineup—Johnny Gagnon, George Brown, Rod Lorrain and Armand Raymond.

In the Martimes, Sydney Millionaires were reaffirmed as champions of the Cape Berton League, despite Glace Bay's renewed protests and the Millionaires were ordered to open a total-goals series tonight with the Halifax Navy for the Maritime title. Hull Volants and Petawawa Grenades are to start a series for the Ottawa and District title, with the winner to meet the Maritime champion in an Eastern semi-final.

One team was eliminated for the Memorial Cup hunt last night, when Ottawa Canadiens defeated St. Patrick's College, 8-5, to advance into the Ottawa and District final against Pembroke Little Lumber Kings.

SPORTS — DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

The first faint whisper that summer is coming and that there will be activity to some extent at least in the field of summer sport has been heard. There is so far nothing definite. It is merely a hint that the lacrosse bug is beginning to nibble a little and that Red Creighton and other local enthusiasts have begun to sniff the breeze and wonder how long it will be before it will be possible to get out there with a gutted stick and a ball and get the season under way. The first sign of movement along the lacrosse front is the intimation that a meeting of the Peterborough Lacrosse Club is likely to be called in the near future and that all local fans and executives who are interested in the game are asked to be ready to attend the gathering when the necessary arrangements can be made. Some building up will have to be done if the Petes are to be ready for the tough opposition that will undoubtedly be met.

One of the features of junior hockey in Ontario thirty years ago before there was any of this alphabetical stuff of "A's" and "B's" and "C's" in the 'teen age division used to be the selection of All-Star teams by the O.H.A. executive at the end of the season. In some years an all-star Eastern team and an all-star Western Ontario outfit were chosen and they clashed in a game in Toronto. Other winters the O.H.A. selected a team from all over Ontario and matched them against the team which won the junior O.H.A. title. This plan comes to mind because thirty years ago this week Peterborough had the unusual distinction of supplying two players to the O.H.A. selects who were stacked against the Kingston Frontenacs, the junior champions of that season, and who beat Jim Sutherland's lads, too. The Peterborough players who were so honored were the late Frank Moose Heffernan, defence star and Ken Crane, centre. Both boys were destined to play on championship O.H.A. senior clubs later, Heffernan with T.R. and A.A. and Crane with Toronto Riversides, Allan Cup winners. Ken is now a resident of Stratford.

* * * * * *

So far there has been not the slightest move in baseball circles here this season, and the situation is none too hopeful. In addition to the fact that if Peterborough is to have a senior ball club adequate reinforcements will be necessary there is the added difficulty that many of Peterborough's plants are on war work and will be operating Saturday afternoon which will make it tough for both players and fans. Whether or not the schedule could be arranged so that twilight games could be played is not clear yet. In any case that would be an experiment that might not work out very well. It would be regrettable indeed if senior ball had to be abandoned here this year but frankly the outlook right now is none too rosy.

Admitting that Honey Tompkins was the best man on the ice in Hamilton the other night Scribe Bill Walshe of the Kingston Whig-Standard pays the following tribute to the Petes' right winger: "Honey Tompkins was well nicknamed. He proved a honey for Kingston hockey in Hamilton last night, figuring in all four of the Combine goals as the teams fought to a tie in the first game of the O.H.A. Senior B pre-semi-final round. The teams will resume the series Friday night in Kingston and the Combines, considering past performances, should take the round although it may be a close squeeze. Honey Tompkins, added to the team to fill the vacancy caused by the loss of Walt Gerow to the Active Service Forces, collected two goals and provided assists for two others. He fitted perfectly into the Combines' razzle dazzle passing plays and should be even better in the future after playing as a member of the Kingston team instead of a rival. Tompkins played star hockey for Peterborough and was one of the main men the Combines had to beat to win group glory. Now he is playing just as hard to help the Kingston collection bring the Ontario Senior B bunting to Eastern Ontario. The Combines failed to show their best hockey in Hamilton, lacking a lot of the connecting clicks in their passing plays, while they wandered from their positions and gave Hamilton openings for many attacks on the goal. Hamilton seemed similar to the Peterborough team with plenty of speed and the players held their places. They also adopted lateral pass plays with trailers, used with so much success by the Petes, while they checked consistently and when they secured the puck broke fast for counter attacks."

* * * * * *

Incidentally we have a little bone to pick with Bre'er Walshe. His favorite description of Tompkins is "the Deseronto boy who played with the Petes this season." The Kingston scribe apparently would have folks believe that Tompkins was just some fellow named Joe whom the Petes had imported for the current campaign. Up here we rather look on the right-winger as a permanent citizen in view of the fact that this is his fourth season with the Petes, that he has been steadily employed here since 1938 when he joined the Peterborough junior team and that he married and started a home in Peterborough. We are merely stating the facts to show Mister Walshe what's what and keep the record clear. The Petes are rather proud of the fact that they made a valiant bid for the group honors with a homebrew outfit against several packed aggregations.

The Boston Bruins made more history last night by defeating New York Americans 8 goals to 3 and thus capturing the National Hockey League championship for the third year in succession. There have been a number of double winners but this is the first occasion in which the title has been taken three times in a row. The Bruins after a slow start, got rolling at Christmas and have only been beaten once in almost three months of hockey which is another mark for future N.H.L. clubs to shoot at. In all that time only New York Rangers succeeded in defeating them by a 2 to 0 score, the counters coming when Dit Clapper was serving time on the penalty bench. Art Ross has consistently said that the present Bruins are the greatest team he has ever had. That may be open to argument but at least they are a great team, strong in all departments.

* * * * * *

Meanwhile Detroit clinched third place last night by defeating Black Hawks 3 goals to 2 and so the Stanley Cup playdowns are all set. Next Thursday night will see the start with all six clubs engaged, the Bruins and Leafs starting a best four-of-seven series at Boston, the Rangers and Detroit opening a best two-of-three clash at Detroit and Canadiens and Chicago clashing in Chicago in the first game of their best of three series. Anything can happen in a setup like that but if we had to make a guess as to what the final battle for the historic old mug will be we'd say that the same two clubs as last season will be scrapping it out in the last round, the Bruins and the New York Rangers. The New Yorkers have been playing their best hockey of the season in recent weeks and are going into the playoffs hot.

Sporting Chili Con Carne: The Queen's-Peterborough Combines will play the second game of their series with Hamilton in Kingston tonight ....Leafs hope to have Syl Apps in action for the playoffs. They'll need him to have a chance against Bruins....Battle for the Vezina Trophy is tighter than ever as a result of last night's games. Johnny Mowers of Detroit had two shot past him but he is still two goals better than Turk Broda while three drives eluded Brimsek and that left him three goals behind Mowers. Each goalie has two games to play....Bill Cowley picked up two more points last night to boost his scoring average up to one of the best in modern hockey.

Bisons Shelve Athletics By 2-1 Overtime

WINNIPEG, March 14—(CP).—Manitoba's "Cinderella" junior hockey team—East Kildonan Bisons—stole the spotlight in western hockey playdowns after knocking St. Boniface Athletics out of the running in the Memorial Cup hunt last night with a 2-1 overtime victory that earned them a berth in the provincial final against Winnipeg Rangers.

In the only other game in the west last night Port Arthur Bearcats, accustomed to the Allan Cup senior interprovincial trail, defeated Port Frances Maple Leafs 6-1. They now meet the Manitoba winners, Seventh Infantry Brigade in Port Arthur's 11th bid in 21 years for Dominion honors.

Bearcats won their 11th Thunder Bay district championship with 4-2 and 6-1 wins over Maple Leafs in the best-of-three series. Four of the other 10 champions brought home the Allan Cup.

Joe Mathewson's Bisons, now facing the big, rugged-playing Winnipeg Rangers, coached by Baldy Northcott, former National Hockey League ace with Montreal Maroons, didn't appear worried for they already came from nowhere to upset the dope in Manitoba's north division junior loop.

The Sports Round-Up

By EDDIE BRIETZ, AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK, March 14 (AP)—Joe DiMaggio confides he expects to be a proud pop in October and the Yanks probably will offer him a fat bonus for first call on the youngsters services—if a boy.

At last!!

Minneapolis seems to have beat Madison Square Garden under the wire with honest wrestling...anyway 8,000 roaring fans saw old Bronko Nagurski beat Ray Steel for title No. 27-C...and the Morning Tribune solemnly reported "it was a shooting match from beginning to end, much to the satisfaction of the throng."

Today's guest star:

Henry Vance, Birmingham Age-Herald: "Doc Prothro says he'll keep 10 pitchers this year...that's more than the Phillies usually have...they can't afford to carry too many players...if they do, the Banks will quit carrying them."

Success Story:

Frank Leahy now reigns in the same gymnasium where he once worked as a janitor to help pay his way through Notre Dame.—There will be no Eastern and Western division in the American Hockey League next season.

CURLING NOTES

By HERB MARTIN

The winner of the Vice-Skips' bonspiel will be declared this evening. The semi-final draw for 7 p.m. is:—

J. Skinner vs L. Ackford.
R. Williamson vs T. Ryan.

The final game will be played at 9 p.m.

In the final game of the Sturgeon Trophy, Mrs. G. Wood defeated Mrs. C. Westbrooke. This was played yesterday afternoon.

It all depends on the Weather Man. We may have a mixed bonspiel tomorrow at 1.45 p.m. We'll just have to wait till the morning before we know. Give us a call on the phone.

Our ladies, who motored to Kingston in the heavy snowstorm on Tuesday afternoon, to play in the ladies' bonspiel, report one swell time. Almost got first prize; just one shot down. Better luck next time.

Monday, being the 17th of March, we will hold the annual Irish and Scotch Competition.

If the weather holds good the committee intend running a bonspiel, in aid of the Red Cross. This 'spiel will be held on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings. It will be for rinks of schedule calibre. We'll have more information later.

BRUINS AND RED WINGS CLINCH THE FAVORED PLAYOFF BERTHS

Boston Trounces Amerks 8-3; Detroit Wins 3-2

By JACK MITCHELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

All decks were clear today for Stanley Cup action in the National Hockey League.

With only five days left in the lengthy schedule, Boston Bruins and Detroit Red Wings clinched last night the final two doubtful positions for the world championship jousting that opens on three fronts next Thursday. There remains only the formality of finishing up the last three league playing nights.

The final two berths to be decided were the favored ones among the six playoff starters. With an 8-3 victory over the eliminated New York Americans, Boston made certain of first place and their third straight league title while Detroit beat Chicago Black Hawks, 3-2, to assure themselves of third place—regarded as the choice spot among the lower clubs.

Immediately after the results, President Frank Calder announced complete playoff dates. Series A, the best-of-seven semi-final between Boston and the second place Toronto Maple Leafs will open in Boston March 20. The same night, New York Rangers will start their best-of-three series at Detroit while Montreal Canadiens meet the Black Hawks at Chicago in their opening match.

In Toronto March 25 and 27

The Bruins, whose brilliant late drive nipped Toronto for the Prince of Wales trophy, thus earned first choice of ice in their series. Following the opening match, the teams again square off in Boston March 22 before travelling to Toronto for March 25 and 27 games. As necessary, the next three will be played in Boston March 29, Toronto April 1, and Boston April 3.

Detroit, who similarly gained first choice over the fourth-place Rangers, elected to start at home and swing to New York for a second match March 23, returning to Detroit March 25 if a third games is necessary. Chicago also chose to start at home against the sixth-place Canadiens, with the next matches slated for March 22 in Montreal and March 24 in Chicago.

Detroit gained what is regarded as the cushiest playoff spot in clinching third berth.

With Boston's Bill Cowley certain of the scoring crown and the voting for all-star teams and such practically all completed, last night's results left only one matter for decision in the last few league games. The race for the Vezina Trophy, awarded to the goalie with the least tallies registered against, remained a three-man duel.

By holding the Hawks to two tallies, Rookie Johnny Mowers of the Wings remained ahead with 96 scores against him, while Boston's Frankie Brimsek fell into third place with 99—one more than the idle Walter (Turk) Broda of Toronto. Each has two more games to play, with Boston and Detroit facing each other in both their contests.

Oshawa Midgets Oust Trenton

OSHAWA, March 14—Four goals in the first period enabled Oshawa to defeat Trenton 5-2 here last night and take down Eastern Ontario honors in the Midget section of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association. Trenton had won the first game 6-4, and so the winners just got a 9-8 decision on the round.

Farrell led the Oshawa offensive with two goals, while Batten and Langmaid were also prominent. Richards and Snyder were the standouts for Trenton.

Trenton — Goal, Anderson; defense, Davis, Jeffray; centre, Lesperence; wings, Fillion, Richards; alternates, Moore, Scott, Snyder, White, Tremble, Fitzpatrick.

Oshawa—Goal, Perry; defense, Cobbledick, Batten; centre, Duncan; wings, Tompkin, Bathe; alternates, Barker, Farrell, Langmaid, Cook, Hicks, Visto.

Bruins' Cowley Relaxes

Star centre of the Boston Bruins' hockey team, Bill Cowley takes it easy in his Boston hotel room. Cowley recently broke the record for assists formerly held by Joe Primeau of Toronto. He has clinched the point-getting leadership of the N.H.L. in one of the most sparkling all-season displays the league has ever had.

Bisons Shut Out Capitals By 2-0

BUFFALO, March 14 — (CP). — Down to its last two playing nights of a lengthy schedule, the American Hockey League still presented today a three-team fight for the third and last playoff berth in its Western section.

With Providence Reds, New Haven Eagles and Springfield Indians all certain of the three playoff berths in the Eastern section; Cleveland Barons and Hershey Bears also have clinched the two top berths in the Western division. But Buffalo Bisons, Indianapolis Capitals and Pittsburg Hornets are locked in a close battle for the final position in the section.

The Bisons made a lengthy stride toward capturing the spot by whipping the Capitals, 2-0, at Buffalo last night. The victory left them a point ahead of Indianapolis, while each has two games to play. Idle last night, Pittsburg is another point behind Indianapolis.

One other match was played last night with the Reds beating New Haven Eagles, 6-2, at Providence. The Victory clinched first place over New Haven for the Reds, champions of the league last year.

Bees Grab Edge Trim Roslin 4-2 In Third Tilt

TWEED, March 14 (ENS) — In the third game of the East Hastings finals for the Dr. Welsh trophy, Farnsworth Bees trounced the Roslin Imperials 4-2 at the local arena on Thursday night.

Both teams tallied one goal each in the first period with L. Meraw banging in the rebound after Hinton had stopped a terrific drive from Porritt. In the closing minutes of play in the period Clare took a three way pass from Green and Collins to tie the count.

Farnsworth took a two goal lead in the second period, when G. Wager tallied on a pass D. Meraw and Shanques scored on a pass from D. Palmateer. The last goal of the period was hotly disputed by the Imperials and Referee Simms, however, Maguire the chief referee allowed the counter.

Roslin played five men up during the last period, and on a face off Empson tallied to cut the margin to one goal, however Wager came back with L. Meraw and D. Meraw to flip the puck into the net to make the final count 4-2. Farnsworth now lead the series 2-1.

D. Meraw went to the box twice for tripping, and Clare for roughing in the second period for the only penalties of the game.

Lineups:—

Roslin Imperials—Goal, Hinton; defence, Parks, Clare; centre, Collins; wings, Green, Guay; subs, Gray, Chisholm, Hart, Empson.

Farnsworth Bees—Goal, Mouck; defence, D. Porritt, R. Palmateer; centre, L. Meraw; wings, D. Meraw, G. Wager; subs, D. Palmateer, Bateman, Long, A. Palmateer, Shanques.

Referees—R. Maguire, E. Simms.

Beavers Default Leaving 17 In Allan Cup

(By the Canadian Press.)

Seventeen teams remain today in the running for the Canadian senior hockey championship and the Allan Cup. Last night Quebec Beavers defaulted to St. Jerome after St. Jerome had won the first of a scheduled two-game, total-goals series, 4-1. Port Arthur won its second straight game to eliminate Fort Frances and Montreal Royals shunted Ottawa Senators to the sidelines.

The survivors:

East.
Maritimes—Halifax Navy, Sydney Millionaires.

Hockey's Big Seven

(By the Canadian Press.)

Bill Cowley of Boston, the National Hockey League scoring crown safely tucked away, added another goal and an assist last night as the Bruins whipped the Americans 8-3, to bring his total to 59 points—seven more than Milt Schmidt of the Bruins won it with last season. The only other Big Seven changes were made by Syd Howe of Detroit, who gained one assist as the Wings beat Chicago 3-2, to tie the idle Bryan Hextall of New York Rangers for third place and Boston's Bobby Bauer, who bagged a goal and two assists to tie Gord Drillon of Toronto for the last berth.

Village History Fine Topic Of Harwood WI

HARWOOD, March 14—(ENS).—The Harwood Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. T. Cheyne, Thursday, on "historical research."

The roll call answered by handing in a quilt block An exhibit of pictures of fifty to one hundred years ago was very interesting. It was decided to buy $30 worth of war saving certificates. Plans were made for a euchre and five hundred party to be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Shearer. Eight prizes were donated by members. The next meeting will be held at the home of Miss Ina Dennison, when Red Cross sewing will be done. Mrs. T. Cheyne gave a splendid paper of the villages of 100 years ago, speaking of each village in the township of Hamilton. Mrs. Lawton gave a reading and Mrs. W. Johnson conducted a flower and vegetable contest, Mrs. A. Aldridge winning the prize. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Cheyne and her daughters, Ferris, Helen and Mrs. Harold Minifie.

Girl Cadets Meet

The Harwood Girl Cadets met at the home of Miss Barbara Zufelt with 14 girls, their leader, Mrs. Wallace Bell, and assistant, Miss Francis Corkery present.

Miss Lettice Drope, president, presided. Miss Helen Moyer gave a splendid talk on Mental Health. Each girl answered the roll call with a story of some contributor to Health. They were: Dr. Banting, Louis Pasteur, Joseph Lister Madame Curie, William Harvie, Mrs. Adelaide Hoodless.

Miss Jean Scott, Home Economics coach for this district, addressed the meeting on record books an dachiement day. Many questions were asked. Physical exercises were led by Lettice Drope. There are only two girls' clubs in West Northumberland district this year: Harwood and Grafton.

Mrs. Chapman of Peterborough is visiting her sister, Mrs. Walter Johnston.

Friends here are sorry to hear of the serious illness of Rev. Mrs. Mellow, who is in Peterborough hospital.

Pte. Leo Callahan of Petawawa spent the week-end at his home here.

Mr. Frank McCullach and Miss Dorothy McCulloch spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lean, Oshawa.

Mr. Ronald Lawton of Ilderton, near London, visited his parents over the week-end.

Miss Doris Harris, Bethel Grove is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Harris.

Miss Francis McLeod spent the week-end with her sister in Oshawa, and attended the skating carnival.

Over forty from the Bethesda Young People's Society motored to Baltimore on Friday evening, and were entertained by the society there. A short worship period was held and then all enjoyed a delightful skate on the covered rink; games were then played in the basement of the church and lunch was served.

Messrs. Forbes and Allan Maclean and Miss Isobel Fyvie of Toronto spent the week-end with Mrs. Maclean.

Mr. and Mrs. Orin Campbell have motored to Cobourg.

Pte. Albert Luck of Peterborough spent the week-end at his home here.

Miss Jean Shearer, who is attending business college in Peterborough spent the week-end at her home here.

The Men's Club of Bethesda, Gore's Landing and Plainville Church held their meeting at Bethesda Church Monday night, when the ladies were present also. Captain Erwin Lean of Doe River, B.C., was the guest speaker. Refreshments were served.

Steers, Heifers Weaken On Week's Mart

TORONTO, March 14.— (CP). — Cattle prices opened steady on the livestock market this week but were weaker on all steers and heifers at the latter part of the week. Veal calves were 50 cents lower for the week, hogs were steady to strong and lambs were steady, the Dominion marketing service records show.

Cattle trade was slow, steers and heifers running 15 to 25 cents lower. Weighty steers were $8 to $9.25 and butcher steers and heifers $7.25 to $8.60. Butcher cows sold from $5 to $7 with a few at $7.25. Canners and cutters were sold at $3 to $4.25. Bulls ranged from $5.75 to $7. Fed calves brought $9 to $10.25. A few lots of stockers were unchanged at $5.50 to $7.50. Milkers and springers were steady at from $50 to $90 each.

Veal calves were 50 cents lower for the week. Top vealers sold at $12 with other grades selling downward to $6.50.

Hogs were steady to strong, closing at $11.50 to $11.65 dressed and at $8.50 to $8.65 live on yards. Sows were sold at $7 to $7.50 dressed.

Sheep and lamb receipts included 1,400 westerns. This section of the market was steady with westerns selling at $11 to $11.25. Local lambs ranged from $8 to $11. Sheep were steady at $3 to 6, with a few western ewes a $6.50.

Noted Labor Head Tom Mann Dies

GRASSINGTON, Yorkshire, England ,March 14—(CP Cable).—Tom Mann, veteran British Labor leader, died Thursday. He was 84.

Born in a mining district. Mann began work on a farm at the age of nine, and two years later went into the pits where he worked until he was 14. Then he learned to become a journeyman engineer in Birmingham and at the age of 21 settled down in London.

He soon became active in the infant trade union movement, particularly in the Amalgamated Society of Engineers. He joined the Socialist party and in later years was associated with the Independent Labor Party, the left-wing group of the Labor movement. He stood for parliament four times, but was not elected.

Mann was prominent in the famous dockers' strike and espoused such Socialist causes as the eight-hour day and the single tax. He visited Russia in 1921 and China in 1927.

Warsaw Couple Observe Golden Jubilee

WARSAW, Mar. 14—(ENS). — A social event of great interest took place on Tuesday, March 11, when Mr. and Mrs. George Taylor (nee Eliza Payne) celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary. The bride and groom received in their living-room, which was decorated with yellow flowers and green foliage. A lovely basket of yellow daffodils and snapdragon came from Mrs. Taylor's sister, Mrs. Pringle, in Vancouver, B.C. Other gifts of flowers, a beautiful woollen blanket, and numerous cards of congratulations were received during the day.

Mrs. Taylor wore her wedding dress of peacock blue satin, and a lovely gold necklace with pearls, and earrings to match, which was her husband's anniversary gift. Mrs. Stuart Clysdale and Mrs. Harry Garbutt poured tea for the many who called during the afternoon and evening. Among other dainties served was wedding cake of fifty years. Mrs. Taylor had preserved it on glas plate, covered with a close-fitting glass cover. She steamed it, let it cool, and cut it.

The weather being unfavorable, many friends who would have called sent their congratulations and good wishes by telephone. At six o'clock a turkey dinner was served to members of the family and a few other guests. Those present were: David Taylor, brother of the groom and best man at the weddins fifty years ago, and Mrs. Taylor; Allen L. Payne, brother of the bride, and Mrs. Payne; Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Clysdale, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Garbutt, Rev. J. W. and Mrs. Wilkinson, Mr. and Mrs. George Brown. Mr. and Mrs. Morley McDonald of Apsley were unable to be present on account of the storm, and telephone their regrets and congratulations.

The table looked lovely with yellow daffodils in silver vases and centred with the beautiful gold and white wedding cake, the top storey of which had been preserved from the original cake and retouched in gold. Dinner was served by Mrs. Ruby Payne, assisted by Mrs. Harry Garbutt. The remainder of the evening was spent in games.

Personals.

Mrs. Burnett returned home on Monday after spending a few days in Toronto, where she went to attend her daughter's wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Harding, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burnett, arrived in Warsaw on Wednesday. They will reside with Mrs. Harding's parents on the David Miller farm.

Albert McQuade is very ill in Nicholls Hospital.

Thinks of Others First

Flower, in great pain, said to the doctor: "thanks, pal. I'm O.K. but are the others all right? What's all that moaning about?" He insisted the doctor go to attend his comrades of the plane. At the time he did not know that two from his plane had been killed and he knew nothing of the other plane.

Eye-witnesses generally were agreed the planes were close to the ground when they collided although some boys found an altimeter which registered 4,500 feet, indicating the planes had collided at that height.

McLean said it appeared to him that one plane was approaching from the South and the other from the Southwest; when the tail or wheels of one plane became entangled with the upper structure of the other and then the two planes spun around out of control.

OBITUARY

W. WESLEY MORTON

TWEED, March 14 (ENS)—William Wesley Morton died at his home in the village of Thomasburg early Wednesday morning. He was in failing health for some time.

In the death of Mr. Morton, the village of Thomasburg has lost a life-long resident, and one who throughout his life occupied a high place in the esteem of his neighbors and of many friends and acquaintances throughout the district. He had reached an advanced age, being in his 81st year. His parents were the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Morton, and during his active years, he was engaged in farming.

In religion, Mr. Morton was a member of the Church of England, and took an active part in the work of the parish of Christ Church, Thomasburg. He served as a warden of the church and was an enthusiastic worker in the Sunday School, being superintendent and teacher for some years. Fraternally, he was a member of Thomasburg Lodge No. 293 I.O.O.F. for over forty years.

Surviving him are his widow, who prior to her marriage was Miss Maude Graham; one sister, Mrs. J. E. Brown, Thomasburg; three brothers, James Morton, Moosomin, Sask.; Mr. G. Allen Morton, Trent Road; Mr. R. A. Morton, Foxboro.

CLIFFORD GORDON McCOLL

APSLEY, March 14 (ENS)—The passing of Clifford Gordon McColl at St. Joseph's Hospital on Sunday, March 9th, after a serious illness lasting only a few weeks, cast a sadness over the whole community. He was employed in the lumber camp of the Peterborough Lumber Co. during most of the winter, until sickness caused him to leave and come to his home.

The funeral was held Tuesday from his parents' residence in Apsley to St. George's church at 2.30 p.m. Rev. Cathcart, rector, officiating.

The church was filled many not finding room, as the deceased was well known by old and young.

The special hymns were "Near the Cross" and "What a Friend we have in Jesus." Clifford was 18 years old and leaves to mourn his early passing, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McColl, two brothers, Chesel at Apsley, Leslie at home, and his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Earnshaw (Senior).

Interment was in the family plot, Union cemetery, Apsley. The bearers were six uncles: W. Earnshaw (Jr.), Herb. Earnshaw, Gordon Earnshaw, A. Earnshaw, Vernal Earnshaw and Stephen McColl.

Among those from a distance who attended were Mr. and Mrs. W. Johnson and sons, Mrs. Fred Bullied, Mrs. Joe Bruce, Miss Muriel McColl, Mr. J. McColl, Jr., Miss V. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. D. Lean, Mr. Walter Lean, Mr. Russell Lean, Peterborough; Mr. Charles Jones, Mr. M. Dickson, Buckhorn; Mr. and Mrs. Puffer and daughters and son, Paudash; Mr. F. McColl, Lasswade; Mrs. Pomeroy, Miss D. Pomeroy, Owenbrook.

brought down two of the German planes shot down last night, the air ministry news service said.

The pilot said he saw the first plane in the moonlight when he was a mile away and closed in. With the first burst of machine-gun fire the Nazi plane caught fire and dived into the sea.

The pilot landed, refuelled, took the air again and again hit a Nazi raider with his first fire.

A piece of the aircraft fell away, the pilot said, and later he saw the plane hit the sea in flames.

Set Arms School At Long Branch

TORONTO, March 14 — (CP). — The Canadian Arm School at Barriefield near Kingston, Ont., will be transferred to suburban Long Branch, military officials said here today. The date for establishment of the school at Long Branch has not yet been fixed.

The Long Branch camp was formerly used as a military training centre under the old 30-day training plan. It will become a unit in the fourth-months training scheme and will operate in the four branches of small arms training, rifles, machine-guns, gas and physical training. It will be the only centre of its kind in Eastern Canada.

VOL. LXXXV, No. 62 — PETERBOROUGH, FRIDAY, MARCH 14, 1941 — PAGE 9

MAIN STREET TOPICS

COMING TO PETERBOROUGH.

Kenneth Brimacombe of the Selrite staff leaves next week for Peterborough, where he has accepted a position at the Canadian General Electric.—(Port Hope Guide).

NO POLICE COURT TO-DAY.

There was no session of the Police Court this morning, neither a city nor county case being on the docket. Magistrate O. A. Langley, K. C., had court at Campbellford this afternoon, however.

LUMBER MILL BURNED.

The lumber mill of Joseph Handley & Sons, Fenelon Falls, was completely destroyed by fire early today, and only splendid work on the part of a volunteer fire fighting brigade saved the lumber yard and sheds. Damage is estimated at $7,000.

AT SEED FAIR.

Local exhibitors at the Quinte Seed Fair at Belleville from Thursday to Saturday this week include Robert Armstrong, Gordon Hancock, Harry C. Blewett, Erle Tully and Kenneth Tully. The 400 entries were reported one hundred fewer than at Port Hope last year.

DOING A GOOD JOB

The big power grader owned by the city was being used this morning to rip the ice off George and other downtown streets, and the big machine was doing good work. A fleet of trucks and city workmen were employed to remove the ice and snow, and in a short time the streets should be practically clear.

LETTER OF SYMPATHY.

Members of the Board of Education expressed their regret on Thursday evening at the death of Miss Margaret Denne, who was for many years a teacher on the staff of the local schools. On the suggestion of Dr. Moir a letter of sympathy will be sent to the family from the Board.

APPRAISAL PRICE TENDERED

T. C. Ephgrave, valuator and insurance adjuster advised the Board of Education this week that his price for conducting a re-valuation of all school property would be $460. This arose out of a discussion on insurance and increased replacement costs. The meeting decided to confer with Mr. Ephgrave before taking any action.

CAR, TAXI DAMAGED.

A car owned by Dr. C. M. Scott and a taxicab owned by Capitol Taxi were damaged at Charlotte and George Streets on Thursday. Dr. Scott had stopped at the intersection waiting for the lights to change when the taxi driven by Earl F. Hopkins, 267 Dalhousie Street, skidded into the rear end of the motionless automobile.

TOSSING BOUQUETS.

D. G. H. Melton, chairman of the Board of Education, and T. J. Carley, K.C., both gave brief eulogies on Thursday night on the splendid work being done in the Public Schools and at the Collegiate in the sale of War Savings Stamps. Mr. Melton told Mr. Toole and Inspector Wightman that the Board members are delighted with the effort.

TO USE AUDITORIUM

The Children's Aid Society was given permission by the Board of Education on Thursday night, to use the Collegiate Auditorium at an early date. The speaker at this meeting is to be Dr. Charlotte Whitton, C.B.E., M.A., executive director of the Canadian Welfare Council. No charge will be made for using the hall, as the venture is strictly educational.

FARMERS AT C.P.C.

Another group of farmers from Hastings County who sell hogs to Canada Packers were guests of the company to-day. Graham Eastwood had invited forty-five of them from the Tweed, Madoc, and Marmora sections to see the actual operation of the plant, and especially to understand the method of rail grading hogs and other details of the business. They were guests of the company at dinner at Murray Street Baptist Church. Part of the program included a judging competition at the plant.

SECURED THE NUMBER.

A young fellow riding his bicycle on Rubidge Street was drenched today by a shower of dirty water tossed over him by a passing motor car. The bicyclist was damp, angry and also alert enough to take the number of the offending automobile. He promptly reported the number to the police and Constable C. J. McGillen spotted the car parked near the C.G.E. plant and slapped a ticket on it. The driver will have an opportunity to explain later on.

ENLIST AT KINGSTON.

Many Peterborough men have been seen recently in the Fort Frontenac Armoury at Kingston. Recruiting is in progress there for the artillery, and the men from this city have been well represented in the interviews granted.

EXAMINATIONS.

The part two examinations for the junior officers of the Prince of Wales Rangers will be held in the officers' mess on Sunday, March 23, concluding the present course being studied by about 75 officers and N.C.O.'s.

RIP UP ICE.

One of the city graders spent a hectic morning on Friday taking the caked ice off George Street. The machine was forced, at times, to back up and take a run at its target, but the outcome was large chunks of hard ice being rooted from the pavement and taken away by some of the trucks.

REQUEST REFUSED.

A request from the Canadian School of Cookery to use the Collegiate Auditorium for three days for a cooking school demonstration was refused by the Board of Education, Thursday evening. It was explained at the meeting that the facilities in the auditorium did not include hot and cold running water and the electric circuits were not adequate for hooking up two electric stoves on a 220 volt line.

WERE BATTEN GUESTS.

The local speakers at the Dummer dairy meetings on Thursday were invited to the home of Ernest Batten for supper. They were George A. Elliott, president of the Peterborough Cheese Producers' Association, W. J. Moore, dairy instructor, Charles E. Moore and F. C. Paterson. They reported a most hospitable reception by Mr. and Mrs. Batten, and helped the youngest member of the family, Eric, to celebrate his birthday. There were three candles on the grand cake his mother had made for his birthday.

MILLBROOK

Mission Circle Plans Allocation

MILLBROOK, March 14—(CP)—The Golden Links Mission Circle met for its March session on Tuesday at 8 p.m., Mrs. A. L. Siscoe and her daughter, Miss Dorothy, being hostesses for the gathering.

The chair was taken by the president, Mrs. E. J. Powell, who gave the call to worship, the theme being "Following Christ's way in the home."

The lesson was read by Phyllis Kidd, and the leader closed the period with prayer, after which the business was given attention, a general discussion of ways and means of raising the year's allocation taking up considerable time.

The talk on Christian Stewardship was given by the secretary, Jean L. Burnham, and Mrs. D. Dunn and Miss Burnham volunteered to write the monthly letter to Margaret Luxon.

Mary Dawson was appointed to take charge of the program for the April meeting, and Mrs. David Lunn took the chair for the one on Tuesday evening, giving extracts from letters covering the work in sections of Africa, Japan and Western Canada. An appropriate poem was also read.

The hostesses served coffee and cake, and a social hour was enjoyed.

Trail Rangers Meet At Apsley

APSLEY, Mar. 14—(ENS). — The Trail Rangers' Boys' Club met for a skating party on Friday evening at Tucker's School. All were presented with their first badges, a black arrow on a red background. After the skating the boys had a delicious supper served by the teachers, Mr. Lewis, Apsley, and Mr. Patterson, Tucker's School.

The weekly card party was held at the Library on Saturday night. Mrs. Wellington Lean was hostess. Only two tables of euchre were played. The prizes went to Mrs. Don Newberry and W. Lean, consolations going to Mrs. C. Smith and Master Keith Brown. Lunch was served at the close of the party.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernal Young motored to Peterborough on Tuesday.

Replayed Game

Defeating Foley and Wilson's last night three straight games by a 400-pin margin, Duffus' team broke the tie for first place which existed between the two outfits in the Automobile League. The match was a replayed affair, neither team being satisfied with the kind of scoring furnished when they met on Wednesday. Duffus' were 3 to 1 winners on the previous evening, but the players of both teams agreed the job should be done right.

Mike Duffus with 734 and H. Minion with 724 and Gray Copping with 667 were top men for the evening. Mike Duffus and Gray Copping are two of the veteran rollers of the city and both have been turning in great scores in the Automobile League and each led his team in scoring in last night's battle.

WANT FUN FOR NURSES

LONDON—(CP). — The British Y.W.C.A. is appealing for $44,500 for recreational facilities for nurses on active service in the Middle East.

Tourist Film Viewed By Legislators

Nine members of the Ontario Legislature were brought to Peterborough by A. L. Elliott, K.C., M.P.P., on Thursday night, to be the guests of the Kinsmen's Club, and to view the beauties of Peterborough and the Kawartha district as displayed in "The Call of the Kawartha," a film produced by Alderman F. L. Roy.

As Mr. Elliott introduced each of the guests at the head table in the Empress Hotel, each arose and spoke brief words of thanks in the direction of the club and Peterborough's representative. The members present were C. G. Mercer, M.P.P. for Durham; J. M. Cooper, K.C., M.P.P., of Sudbury; Angus Dickson, M.P.P., of Perth County; R. M. Smith, Deputy Minister of Highways; Charles Fairbanks, M.P.P., of Lambton; Lynn Miller, M.P.P., of Algoma-Manitoulin, the chairman of the Fish and Game Committee; Archibald Haines, M.P.P., Lincoln; R. A. McAllister, Deputy Minister of Pubwork Works; Roy Elmhurst, secretary to the Prime Minister, and K. D. McDonald of the Imperial Oil Company.

Welcomed the Guests

In the absence of Mayor James Hamilton, Alderman J. E. Sullivan welcomed the guests on behalf of the City of Peterborough. Mr. Sullivan mentioned the prominence this city has attained in recent months in the oversubscription of both the Community Chest Compaign and the War Savings Drive. Both factors, predicted the alderman, will have unbounded values in the advertising of the community; he announced that the final count in the recent drive for War Saving subscribers totals 9,662, representing an increase of nearly 5,000 over the quota set for the city by the committee in Ottawa.

To the Kinsmen's president, Lorne Bateman, Mr. Sullivan makes the suggestion that all of Peterborough's service clubs unite with the youth of today and give it leadership, and interest the boys in sports. A solid contribution would be made if this were done, the speaker said, for an interest or participation in competitive sports benefits a boy immeasurably.

Mr. Cooper responded to Mr. Sullivan's welcome, and told of the exponent Peterborough has in the Provincial House in the person of Mr. Elliott, who is never ceasing in his efforts to bring this district to the fore.

The speaker of the evening was A. R. Kennedy, managing editor of The Examiner, who in a humorous vein made to the governmental representatives the suggestion that they do not try too much to regulate the lives of those in tax-paying positions. Mr. Kennedy used the pig as a humble illustration of the many changes accomplished in the past number of years, and dwelt on the different circumstances in which pigs lived years ago and now.

Pigs were allowed to live much longer in days past, said Mr. Kennedy, and their lives weren't regulated to such an unenjoyable extent. It mattered really little, he said, if a pig became a little more portly than fashion decreed, but today everything is different, for he must be a given weight at a given time. All is regulated.

To Attract Tourists

G. Wilson Craw introduced Alderman Roy, and explained that the pictures about to be shown of the district of which Peterborough is centre would speak for themselves. Mr. Roy told of the objects in view when the production was contemplated by the civic officials, namely the attraction such an envoy would have to prospective tourists. Throughout the reels, the fact that Peterborough has nature at her best as a next door neighbor, and that good living facilities exist were stressed.

Lt.-Col. M. H. Park sang two solos of excellence, while accompanied at the piano by Martin B. Chenhall, but considerable difficulty was experienced in finding an accompanist when it was disclosed that Mr. Miller was also the possessor of a fine singing voice. Mr. Chenhall had left the hotel, as had the accompanist for the community singing. Mr. Chenhall was finally contacted, and consented to return, and in doing so allowed those in the gathering to hear Mr. Miller, and later Mr. Miller and Dr. Ralph Honey in a duet.

Mr. Smith and Mr. Miller both congratulated the Tourist Association on the excellent of the pictures; classing them as equal to the best they had ever seen.

Mr. Bateman announced that the ladies are providing the program at next meeting, which will be held at the Kawartha Club in form of a barn dance.

Japs Moving Out

NEW YORK, March 14 (AP)—Domei, Japanese News Agency, radioed a Hankow dispatch today saying that Japanese forces evacuated "on their own initiative" the Tungcheng area, southeastern Hupeh province, in the Chinese interior which they had held for two years and five months.

The spokesman of Japanese forces was quoted as recalling the Japanese also had withdrawn from the Wuning area in the adjoining province of Kiangsi March 9.

Leading Aircraftsmen Receive Their Wings

Names On Cast Add $16.59 To War Victims

Donald Curtis, 9-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Curtis, 13 Benson Avenue, fractured his leg while skiing in his yard last January, and when the leg was put in a cast, Donald got the idea of selling autographs. Everyone who visited him was invited to inscribe their name on the cast, and whatever they wished to pay was dropped into a container kept for the purpose. The minimum for adults was a dime and for children one cent.

This week the cast was taken off and the young fellow is coming along fine. He totalled up the contributions including many which came from out-of-town friends by letter and the sum realised amounted to $16.59 so the British War Victims' Fund is that much richer today.

Big Dance Monday

Down at the C.D.S. store, Herb. Jamieson, the manager who hails from Belfast, has developed the idea of a St. Patrick's Day dance with the proceeds going to the Fund. All the Irish people in the district who wish to observe he birthday of St. Patrick with a celebration will have the opportunity to do so. All other lovers of the light fantastic will also have an opportunity to attend the dance and at the same time will be helping the air raid victims in so doing. The net proceeds will be turned in to the Examiner for the Fund. Tickets are $1.50 and are available from members of the C.D.S. staff and at the office in the Canadian Department Store.

Phyllis Harris, a five-year-old girl, swept the sidewalks for the neighbors and wanted to help the War Victims so she turned over the sixteen cents she had received for her labors.

The following is the list:—

Previously acknowledged	$10,355.18
Donald Curtis, proceeds of signatures on cast ..	16.59
A Friend	2.00
Phyllis Harris	.16
Mrs. F. H. Dobbin	10.00
Total to date	$10,383.93

Airplane Is Loaded On Big Flat Truck

Three flat trucks two trucks, a derrick, and a tractor, manned by a crew of about ten men from the R.C.A.F. base at Trenton, struggled most of Thursday in an effort to load the plane, which made a forced landing in a field near May's School House. This morning they had been successful in getting the huge machine on one of the flat trucks, and the remaining problem was one of dissembling the parts for easy transporting. Both wings must be removed and put on separate trucks.

The only visible damage, to the casual observer at any rate, is the twisted propeller. It is a three-bladed afair and the ends of each are curled as if they were delicate table knives which had been jammed, point first, on a metal surface. A few dinges appear on the bottom of the aircraft also, but according to reports the damage is such that repairs should be speedily made and inexpensive.

Rev. Dr. P. J. Kelly Going To Cobourg?

A rumor has been heard this week of impending transfers in the ministry of the Catholic diocese of Peterborough. It is understood that Rev. Dr. P. J. Kelly, rector of St. Peter's Cathedral, is being appointed parish priest of St. Michael's, Cobourg, and that Rev. Dr. J. V. Masterson will succeed him at the Cathedral. It is expected that announcement of these reported changes will be made in the near future by Bishop O'Connor.

Since the death of Monsignor Kelly who was for years in charge of the parish of St. Michael, Rev. Father Wolff has been acting parish priest. He is one of the younger members of the diocesan priesthood, and in returning to his home city is said to be leaving a fine impression behind him in Cobourg. It is said that he is being appointed to the Cathedral staff.

Bank Deposit Plan Is Approved In Monthly Paying Of Teachers

Recommendations of the Finance Committee submitted by D. T. Diplock to the meeting of the Board of Education on Thursday night became law on their acceptance, and are far reaching in their scope.

The first provision was that the Board enter into an agreement with the Ontario Compensation Board for protection of janitors, Mr. Finnie, and all casual workmen hired during the year. The question had been dealt with at length in committee and when compared with other insurance plans was found to be far superior. It was passed.

They also approved the idea of paying all teachers on the bank deposit plan in order to save work in the secretary's office. This means that the 162 teachers will receive their salary cheques at any one of the banks. Each teacher will be asked to designate the bank of his or her choice and each month the salary will be deposited there. The teachers will be reimbursed for the stamps on the ten cheques in a year.

Formerly there was the work of typing out the individual cheques, signing them and delivering them, and now instead of more than 1,600 signatures a year, there will be just sixty.

Mr. Kenner said the Collegiate teachers objected to a 12-pay plan, but were in favor of the bank deposit system, and Inspector Wightman said practically all the Public School teachers liked the plan.

"This system injures no one and considerably reduces the work in the office," Mr. Melton said.

Cadet Uniforms Wanted.

Purchase of 450 uniforms for the Collegiate Cadet Corps was discussed, and Captain H. Craig, Cadet Inspector, said a grey sweatshirt, with garnet crest, a garnet beret with grey crest could be purchased at the Albion Knitting Company for $1.90, and the members agreed that a local manufacturer should be given the order. His price was not out of line with a few others that had been submitted.

It was decided on motion of Mr. Carley and Dr. Moir, that tenders be called on 450 pairs of grey cotton bedford cord trousers, made from pre-shrunk material, and that the tenders be in within five days. The Supervision Committee working in conjunction with Captain Craig was given authority to purchase them. The 450 uniforms complete, along with 8 drums for the Corps, may be purchased for $1,766, which is well below the appropriation of $1,900 set aside for this purpose.

Captain Craig showed the members one pair of trousers which had a piping of garnet ribbon along the trouser seam. This frill failed to find favor with the Board although it smartened up the trousers, and would cost fifty cents a garment more. However, Mr. Craig has a plan that might provide this frill at no cost to the Board.

Recruits Are Wanted For Dental Corps

Two officers, former Peterborough men, are seeking recruits from this city for the dental corps. They are Capt. "Hod" Stuart and Capt. Stan Stacey who are a present in Kingston.

Boys having had two years' high school and possessing a desire to be dentists will jump at the opportunity, for at the conclusion of the war they will be allowed to enter second year dentistry by viture of their experience in the dental corps. In all, about 15 are wanted from this district; all must be over the age limit, which is 19 years, and physically fit.

All interested should write to Captain "Hod" Stuart, C.A.D.C., Kingston.

Burns Is Charged With Shopbreaking

TORONTO, March 14—(CP). — Lawrence Burns, 29, Windsor, Ont., was remanded to March 21 on bail of $3,000 when he appeared in court here today on a charge of shopbreaking.

"This man was arrested upon release in Peterborough, where bail of $5,000 was granted," said Harold Chaplin, defence counsel. "As the charge cannot, perhaps, be gone on with until the Peterborough charge is dealt with March 31, I am asking that bail stand in this case."

"I am asking bail of $3,000 to March 21," said Crown Counsel W. O. Gibson, and the court ordered granting of the latter request.

Burns is charged with breaking into two places and stealing a number of articles. In Peterborough he is accused of safebreaking.

Service Station Is Lost In Fire

The barking of his Great Dane dog may have saved the life of Edward Patterson when his store and service station on Highway 7, ten miles east of Peterborough, was destroyed by fire early Wednesday morning.

Patterson, who lives alone, was sleeping over the store when the dog awakened him by excited barking. He thought some one was calling for gasoline, but when he got up discovered the store was on fire.

The place, a frame building, burned rapidly, and was soon completely destroyed. Only a few articles of furniture were saved from the upper part of the building but the stock of the store was consumed.

Another small building east of the store and used for storing oil escaped the fire.

Farmers Aim To Obtain More Milk Daily

Farmers in the Warsaw and Hall's Glen sections of Dummer gave an emphatically affirmative answer at Thursday's meetings to the paramount dairy question of this season: "Can we get five hundred more pounds of milk from each of our cows this summer?"

According to Frank C. Paterson they were "excellent" meetings, and the response at both places was in the words that with the help of Providence the Dummer dairymen are going to make a real job of sending milk to the cheese factories of that neighborhood.

All over Ontario this same problem of increased milk production is being discussed by similar groups of dairy farmers. The new price structure is being explained, the importance also of trying to make more 94 grade cheese to get the two-cent bonus was also stressed, and farmers were reminded of the work they are being called upon to do.

In the name of the cheese-producing farmers of Canada the Government has guaranteed to send the British people 112,000,000 pounds of cheese this year. In fact, the word has gone out that Britain will take the entire product of the Canadian factories in 1941.

Refused To Sell Land To C.P.R.

The C.P.R. station was located half a mile from the centre of the town because a Mr. Hefferman wouldn't sell his property in the west end, according to a story told by Rev. Father Kelly, L.L.D., at the regular bi-monthly luncheon of the Life Underwriters of Peterborough. The luncheon was held Thursday at noon in the Hotel Champlain.

Dr. Kelly was introduced to the meeting by the president of the association, Frank Daniel of the Prudential Life, and he took as his topic the growth of Peterborough during the last half century.

Salesmanship and a desire to enjoy more of the comforts of life had a big part in bringing Peterborough to its present state of development, the speaker said and the progress made in providing facilities for education, development of transportation and the splendid industrial growth were treated in detail to form the highlights of the talk.

In his own inimitable humorous style, Dr. Kelly punctuated his talk with laugh-provoking anecdotes on people and happenings of long ago. He spoke too of the hardships that faced the clergymen and the doctors of that era, who had to travel by horse and buggy from Peterborough to Apsley and Coboconk in the course of their work.

One particularly interesting incident indicated that Mr. Hefferman owned the only house, a log cabin, between Park street and Monaghan road west of the city proper, and when the C.P.R. began negotiations for a right of way into the city, Mr. Hefferman stoutly refused to allow them to cross his property. Because of this mainly, the company was forced to build the C.P.R. station half a mile south of Charlotte street well outside the populated area but today the station is many blocks from the outskirts of the city proper.

E. G. Pridham, branch manager of the Mutual Life conducted a door prize draw for a five dollar War Savings Certificate which was won by John Troke, manager of the Prudential.

The luncheon had a record attendance and the local branch has shown a steady growth in the last year.

Worse Than Coventry?

BERLIN, March 14 — (CP). — D.N.B. German news and propaganda agency yesterday quoted Nazi pilots returning from last night's raid on the Liverpool area that destruction on the Merseyside "exceeded that at Coventry."

"Hell broke loose on the Mersey," the agency quoted one pilot as saying. He described an "ocean of flames" visible 25 minutes' flight from the scene.

Salvage Drive Being Planned For Next Month

The constituency of West Peterborough has been designated as a unit in the nation-wide salvage drive which is to be launched in Canada next month.

Gordon K. Fraser M.P., as the member for the riding, has been requested to act as the contact between the constituency salvage organization and the Central Salvage Campaign office in Ottawa.

The object of the campaign is to institute a systematic and intensive collection of paper, metals and other scrap for war purposes.

Here and elsewhere there have been collections for some time, but th national drive is expected to intensify the effort by building up an organization in every electoral constituency in the country that will see to it that everything of possible value is salvaged.

The campaign which is under the jurisdiction of the Department of National War Services will be carried out on a large scale with extensive newspaper and poster advertising and the distribution of appropriate literature.

Jas. Geraghty Heads Chamber

For the third year in succession James W. Geraghty was elected president of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce when the directors of the Chamber met last night.

Other officers who were returned by acclamation were: George A. Macdonald, vice-president, J. J. Turner, treasurer and J. J. Dorris, secretary.

The meeting completed arrangements for the annual dinner meeting of the Chamber which is to be held on March 24 and is expected to be one of the largest and most interesting in the history of the organization.

It will be featured by an address by Percy J. Phillip, famous foreign correspondent of the New York Times, who has been familiar for years with the European situation and particularly with conditions in France where he represented the Times for many years, remaining until the Nazi invasion.

See Possibility Hitler Will Drive At Straits In Effort To Seize Iraq Oilfields

Experts believe the German spring offensive will have three prongs. One, an all-out submarine warfare against British shipping. The second, a drive through Spain against Gibraltar. The third a move through Bulgaria and Turkey against the Mosul oil wells of Iraq, to supply the mechanized war machine. In this picture we see British troops guarding oil lines which pipe oil from the Mosul wells. At RIGHT is a view of the Bosphorus, the narrowest water barrier between Europe and the Near East, as it appears at its narrowest point. With the Sea of Marmora and the Dardanelles, it connects the Black Sea, where Germany now has submarine bases, with the Aegean Sea where Greek and British fleet units are believed hovering. Should Turkey aid Britain she could tighten traffic control on the Bosphorus, thus prevent German submarines from travelling westward to the Mediterranean.

No Gold Mine Now Says Scotty

LOS ANGELES, Mar. 14—(AP).—Death Valley Scotty found a lot of gold mines but doesn't have any now, he said in Federal Court yesterday.

First-day testimony in the accounting suit of Julian M. Gerard of New York against the desert rat tore a bit into the mystery of Scotty but did not solve it.

Scotty testified that he located seventeen claims in the Funeral Mountains of Death Valley thirty-seven years ago. He had described them in letters written between 1902 and 1904, as very rich, one at least being worth about $5,000,000. But Gerard failed to furnish money for development and they were abandoned, he said.

All efforts of Gerard's attorneys to show that Scotty has had any money from gold prospects since 1907 failed.

"Have you a mine now?" he was asked.

"No."

"Ever had one?"

"No sir, a mine is a recorded location; I had none but the Knickerbocker claims."

"Ever taken any gold out of a mine and sold it?"

"No."

"Have you a hole in the ground that you ride out to secretly and extract gold from?"

"I never sold any gold. I never sold any mining claims or anything in connection with a mine."

Gerard will take the witness stand to-day. In his deposition he said he believes Scotty has a rich mine.

Huns Blame Jew For Willkies Leaving Prussia

BERLIN, March 14—(AP).—The German press today gave prominent position to stories alleging that a Jew was responsible for Wendell L. Willkie's grandfather leaving Germany.

The German news and propaganda agency alleged Willkie's family was traced in an effort to refute a statement by the American that his grandparents migrated to the United States as a protest against tyranny.

The Berliner Zeitung said Willkie's grandfather was listed in the records as Joseph Wilhelm Willcke, a copper-smith who had hoped to carry on business in his deceased father's shop.

A family disagreement arose over the will, the newspaper said, whereupon the widow of the deceased, stepmother of Joseph Willcke, sold the property to a Jewish neighbor named Bernhard Gerson.

The article detailed an involved financial transaction in which, it was alleged, the widow received none of the purchase money but was dispossessed.

Secret Ship Report

LONDON, Mar. 13 — (CP). — The House of Commons, in secret session, yesterday head confidential report on the shipping situation and Britain's chances of keeping ahead of German raiders in the Battle of the Atlantic.

Heard Torpedoes Hit Freighter, Rescues Fifty

PORTLAND, Me., March 14.—(AP).—A veteran British merchant skipper told a laconic but vivid tale yesterday of the rescue of fifty British seamen whose ships were torpedoed out of a westbound convoy in the turbulent North Atlantic Feb. 28.

The 40-year-old master, a veteran of twenty-six years in the merchant service, sipped tea at the British Consular agent's office while telling how his ship—he preferred that her identity as well as his own, be a secret—picked up seventeen out of forty-four men in the crew of the Anglo Peruvian, and another thirty-three from a ship he didn't name. All were landed at an Eastern Canadian port.

"We were steaming along about 10 p.m. Feb. 28," he told an interviewer, "when I saw the flashes and heard the explosions of two torpedoes which struck the Peruvian almost simultaneously. We were less than half a mile distant at the time.

"The survivors told me that she broke in half and sank in less than two minutes.

"When we got to the scene I ordered a boat put over, and with my second officer and two seamen aboard it pulled away to pick up the survivors. There were eighteen of them distributed on four rafts. None was seriously injured, but all were suffering from extreme shock."

The skipper said that "moderate" seas and a "heavy swell" were running. When the boat returned alongside, seventeen of the Peruvian's men successfully grabbed lines thrown from the deck and clambered to safety. The eighteenth, however, was lost when the boat swamped.

Earlier reports had said that the Anglo Peruvian's survivors were aboard the British steamship Nailsea Court, bound here, but the captain declared that the Nailsea Court was not in the convoy.

cial Government will pay 75 per cent. of direct unemployment relief costs and the municipalities 25 per cent. Previously the Federal and Provincial Governments each paid 40 per cent. and the municipalities 20 per cent.

Spend More On Roads.

The highways program for the coming year calls for an expenditure of $15,325,000, an increase of $288,000. The trans-Canada link between Hearst and Geraldton and extension of the Queen Elizabeth way from Niagara Falls to Fort Erie will be completed. The program is aimed at providing attractive motor routes for American visitors and means of swift military transportation should the necessity arise.

Next year's estimated cost of the recently announced bonuses for hog and cheese producers is placed at $3,[illegible]0,000. Cheddar cheese will be bonused at two cents a pound at a total cost of $2,000,000, and bonuses of $1 for Grade "A" hogs and 50 cents for Grade B-1 will account for $1,400,000.

Continue Mill Subsidy.

Mr. Hepburn announced continuation of the one mill subsidy "payable to the 900 municipalities of the province at a cost of $3,000,000 per year; this assistance is a further benefit to the home owner and an inducement to the prospective home builder."

He told the Legislature that "everyone should rejoice and find considerable satisfaction in the sound financial position" of Ontario.

"Our credit at home and abroad is second to no public authority in the Empire. This should be a source of great satisfaction to us all when we realize that we are the keystone province and one of the major pillars of the national economic structure."

Mr. Hepburn said that "those charged with direction of our war effort" had said the peak of the Dominion's contribution would be reached this year.

If the country's industrial wealth and man-power were utilised to the full "we would then be employing all our idle men, our full supply of electrical power, the vast output of our natural resources and our financial system would be taxed to its capacity, and probably beyond."

"The obligation of this great central province is to adjust its economy in order to bring it in line with a war effort which we hope will render the greatest possible help to Great Britain, now facing her greatest effort to survive."

Canada must rise to the occasion to replace losses of British ships and cargoes and "give to Great Britain the tools with which to finish the job."

Power To Be Ready.

Power of the Hydro-Electric Commission will be provided war industries "whenever and wherever needed," said Mr. Hepburn. Deliveries last year were 19 per cent. more than in the previous year, and the primary load of the commission's Northern Ontario properties increased by "some 20 per cent." through development of the mining industry.

"For the Northern Ontario properties as a whole the accumulated deficits of the first few years of operation have now been liquidated, and last year the customary reserve for renewals, contingencies and obsolescence, as well for sinking fund, were set aside in full."

"In rural Ontario," the Premier continued, "the construction of about 1,400 miles of rural primary line was authorized to serve nearly 10,000 rural customers, bringing the present total to about 19,500 miles on rural lines serving 123,000 customers, more than one-half of which represent services to individual farmers.

"For the ensuing year it is is expected that extensions to rural power districts will involve a capital outlay of approximately $1,500,000, of which the province will contribute $750,000 as a grant-in-aid....in addition....the province has advanced to the commission a total of $360,000 to enable it to make loans to 1,700 bona fide farmers....nearly 800 loans being already repaid in full."

More Liquor Revenue.

Outlining revenue obtained from the Liquor Control Board, Mr. Hepburn said that by the end of the current fiscal year "the Board will have paid to the provincial treasurer approximately $560,000 more than during the preceding year when $9,950,000 was paid." Payments of $365,000, about $40,000 more than last year, will be made to the 300 odd municipalities as their share of their local hotel authority holders' fees. "These increased payments reflect the higher revenues derived by the Board in its operations and are attributable to improved industrial activities throughout the province."

The Premier said an all-time production record was achieved in 1940 when minerals valued at $250,000,000 were taken from Ontario's mines. Owing to war restrictions he was unable to give detailed figures. He stressed the success obtained in lignite-coal experiments and said he hoped that in the near future this fuel would be available to industrial and domestic users in Northern Ontario.

The gross debenture debt of the municipalities was reduced in 1939 by $16,000,000 and at the end of the year totalled $388,200,000—the lowest figure since 1923. In 1932 it reached a peak of $504,800,000.

More Juvenile Crime.

Premier Hepburn said war conditions had brought about a considerable increase in juvenile delinquency but the number of prisoners in the adult institutions was dropping slowly. There had been an increase in cost to the provincial secretary's department of $168,500 due to the shifting of prisoners from institutions turned over to the Federal government for war purposes.

The cost of foreign exchange during the year was $1,847,035 which Mr. Hepburn described as "a dead loss" to the provincial taxpayers. He charged Ontario's payments of $10,500,000 for foreign exchange since 1930 were "one of the direct results of bad financing of former administrations."

The hog and cheese bonuses were introduced to spur production to meet the increased quotas asked in the British food contracts, the Premier said. An increase of 10 to 15 per cent. in cheese production over last year was needed and the government was concerned over a decrease of 50 per cent. in production for January and February.

Co-operation in the war effort of the Department of Education was noted in the use of vocational schools for war emergency classes and the plan whereby high-school students can leave school at Easter for work in war industries. Summer schools, in the main, would be discontinued to give teachers and students an opportunity of assisting in war work. For the coming fiscal year, the Premier said $13,588,630 will be given the department, an increase of $858,630 over the 1939-40 expenditures.

The increase was asked "to provide, if possible, for the payment in full of the legislative grants to public, separate and vocational schools."

Big Industrial Expansion

Mr. Hepburn told the Legislature that 160,957 placements had been made in the first 10 months of the fiscal year through provincial employment offices. A great industrial expansion had taken place in the last year, mainly due to war contracts, and the value of building projects approved by the Factory Inspection Branch of the Department of Labor during the first 11 months of the fiscal year was $26,895.

New buildings and works are needed to maintain services rendered by the province, but these will be held in abeyance for the duration and provision will be made only for contingent items that may be necessary to provide further fire-protection facilities; the construction of dams to control water levels for navigation, and to complete fish hatcheries.

Charges Teacher Drunk

TORONTO, March 14 (CP)—Provincial Secretary Harry Nixon said today he was prepared to investigate charges of drunkenness among school teachers made last night by J. E. Davey, Toronto school teacher.

(Davey, addressing the opening session of the Ontario Temperance Federation's convention at London, said he had seen some teachers "staggering and drinking by night, and going back to the classroom the next day to teach children.")

"So far as I am concerned," Mr. Nixon said, "until he is prepared to give us the names, I don't believe a word of it."

Coal mines of Japan may be placed under government control.

Rendel And His Daughter Fought Blast Fire

ISTANBUL, March 14.—Ann Rendel, 24-year-old daughter of British Minister to Bulgaria George W. Rendel, yesterday told how she narrowly escaped death in the bombing of the Pera Palace Hotel Tuesday night in which seven persons were killed.

She was among the British Legation staff that had arrived at the hotel from German-occupied Bulgaria. Two bombs exploded in the party's luggage.

"I had just left Gertrude Ellis, who was killed by the explosion, and not halfway up to the second floor with Nora Stern and Mrs. Oxley, who both worked at the Sofia (British) information office, when the bombs exploded.

"I fell down on the stairs and bits of debris came down on top of me. I could smell the explosive and the air was thick with dust. There was a crater at the bottom of the stairs and men were pulling two screaming women from it.

"Then I rushed back up to get my father. When father got downstairs, the fire was beginning to spread to the rafters and to the debris around the door and we all started throwing out burning wood to the streets.

"Bodies were lying in the street outside. Father sent me upstairs for his personal documents and got the people together to move over to the British Embassy.

"By that time the police had taken control and would not let us go. I was furious, but it is not true that I slapped a policeman."

Miss Rendel, who said she "still smells TNT" every time she lights a cigarette, said the explosions interrupted what was to have been a "triumphal entry" into Istanbul by the Britons.

"Stephen Runciman (press attache and son of Lord Runciman) and I even thought of buying mouth organs for the occasion," she said.

Death of Therese Armstrong, legation secretary, brought the death toll to seven. She was buried at the Episcopal Cemetery here.

The personal physician of the Governor of Istanbul, Loutfi Kirdar, examined the wounded and reported that all were recovering.

Blames "Hostile Agent."

LONDON, March 14.—A report by George W. Rendel, British Minister to Bulgaria, released last night by the Foreign Office, blamed "some hostile agent" in Sofia for planting the bombs that wrecked the Pera Palace Hotel Tuesday night, killing seven persons.

"Powerful bombs were added to the luggage of the legation party by some hostile agent before the party left Sofia," Rendel reported. "It appears probable the intention was that they should explode on the train."

Bracken Cohorts Will Run As Coalitionists

WINNIPEG, March 14.—(CP).—Manitoba today prepared for its first Provincial election in five years in which John Bracken of Winnipeg, Premier since 1922, will seek a mandate from the people for his coalition government April 22.

Election writs for the 46 constituencies represented in the 55-member Legislature are expected to be issued today, less than 24 hours after Lieutenant-Governor R. F. McWilliams dissolved Manitoba's 20th Legislature.

Nominations will close April 12 and the advance polls will be opened Friday, Saturday and Monday preceding the election day.

The 48 coalition government members — 21 Liberal-Progressives, 14 Conservatives, six Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, four Social Crediters, and three Independents—are expected to run as "coalition" nominees with other candidates being listed as independents. Whether the "coalition" nominees will carry their party affiliation into the campaign was not immediately determined.

3 Young Girls Die Trapped On Train Track

CHATHAM, March 14—(CP). — Three children were killed and a fourth was seriously injured late yesterday afternoon when, walking on the Canadian National Railways tracks near Prairie Siding they were hit by an eastbound Wabash freight train, whose approach they had not heard because of the deafening noise of a long westbound C.N.R. freight train roaring past them on the other track.

Killed outright were Irene Myers, 16, and Aurelia Barnier, 9. Their bodies were mangled under the wheels of the locomotive as the engineer was applying all brakes in an attempt to stop. Doris Myers, 4, died an hour after being admitted to St. Joseph's Hospital here. Phoebe Myers, 14, also is in the same hospital, and is given chances of recovery. She is suffering from head injuries, fractured ribs, intense shock, an dis in a semi-conscious condition.

The Barnier girl is the daughter of Lawrence Barnier, a section worker who lives at Prairie Siding. The parents of the other two victims are Mr. and Mrs. William Myers of Prairie Siding.

Engine Crew Witnesses

The only eyewitness of the tragedy, apparently, were the engineer and fireman of the Wabash train which plowed into the four girls as they walked easterly along the tracks. The train was Third 98, but the names of the crew were withheld by officials at the C.N.R. depot last night. The number of the westbound freight and the names of members of the crew also were not available.

The tragedy comes as a double affliction to Lawrence Barnier. The section worker, according to information obtained by police who investigated, lost his wife early in January. Thursday morning, his 2-year-old daughter, died at his home, which is located a short distance west of the flag station at Prairie Siding. He was in Tillsonburg obtaining a burial certificate for the baby when Aurelia was killed.

It appears that the Myers children had walked from the village along the tracks to the Barnier home to see the little child who died this morning. When they started to return home Aurelia Barnier decided to accompany them to the village for the purpose of mailing a letter at the postoffice located in the general store.

The children apparently, had been walking east along the track and stepped to the other track when they noticed the long C.N.R. freight train approaching them.

Whistle Drowned Out

Because of the deafening noise made by the westbound train, which was said to have had about 100 cars, the children apparently were unconscious of the approach of the eastbound Wabash train. The engineer, it is reported, saw the children on the tracks and kept up a constant whistling in an effort to attract their attention and finally threw on his brakes. Unfortunately he was not able to bring his train to a stop and the youngsters were thrown in all directions.

Irene Myers and Aurelia Barnier were badly mangled and death was said to have been instanteous. The former was hurled into the south ditch, but the Barnier girl was found under the wheels of the train. The other Myers sisters were thrown to the north side. Both legs of Doris Myers were fractured and one arm was almost severed and her head was badly cut. She died in the hospital at 6:55.

Coroner Dr. Rochon of Tibury also went to the scene to start an investigation and make preliminary plans for the inquest. Medical men who were summoned from Chatham were Dr. F. K. Reid, Dr. H. S. Barlow and Dr. W. A. Elgie.

Non-Essentials Eliminated By School Board

A rigid policy of economy aimed at eliminating the purchase of non-essentials is apparently going to be followed by the Board of Education, following the precedent of Thursday night.

At the meeting Mr. Walker, chairman of the Property Committee, read off a list of minor repairs at all of the schools which had been budgeted for, and which he wished to proceed with at once. The members questioned almost every item, and when reference was made to having the dentist's office fixed up in the South Central School, T. J. Carley pointed out that the work should be done, but it must be clearly understood that not a single item must exceed the estimates.

Regardless of whether items were provided for in the grants, every requisition will be closely scrutinized in the interests of economy, Mr. Melton remarked.

Tenders will be called for the heating system at the South Central School, after the chief caretaker has made a test of the old boilers.

When Mr. Carley read a requisition covering a piece of scientific apparatus for the camera room at the Collegiate the members refused to pass it, because no person present could explain its use, and several were of the opinion that it might be very well laid over until next year. However, following discussion, the Supervision Commit.ee was empowered to authorize the purchase when V. R. Henry explains what it is and why it is needed.

Report Is Landed.

Alex. Donnelly took the opportunity of directing congratulations to K. S. Wightman for the splendid annual report which was handed the Board members. He said he had read the report with a great deal of interest, and felt that it listed in interesting fashion all the Public School activities.

Mr. Melton added the thought that a similar report might be sent in each year by the Collegiate so that the reports might be available to show prospective industrialists or others who were seeking to locate here.

Dr. Kenner, however, pointed out that Mr. Wightman tenders a report under the Public School Act, but that the High School Act makes no such stipulation.

A Vicious System.

A request from Mayor James Hamilton for a list of all salary increases made by the Board of Education in 1940 precipitated a discussion on the salary system. Mr. Melton showed the Board the complete list which had been handed the Mayor and which revealed a saving of over $2,300 in the year due to retirements.

At this point Mr. Carley took a rap at the system existing in Pucic Schools in which an outside teacher regardless of her experience must start at the minimum salary.

"The system contains a vicious element. A teacher may be experienced and competent and yet if she lives outside the city limits she gets the minimum salary, while another may be taken on and soon reach the maximum. The first teacher is every bit as valuable but does not get the same money. Mr. Carley remarked:

"The thing is not fair on the face of it, but I don't think anyone has ever worked out a scheme of increases that wouldn't cause an uproar. If you can solve it you will be doing a service to the Board and to the profession," said Mr. Wightman.

"It was tried in one town and all the teachers resigned," added Dr. Moir.

"A teacher who comes in should be rated on experience in the Public Schools," Mr. Carley said, and Dr. Kenner pointed out that in the High School this plan is followed. The discussion fizzled out at this point apparently everyone being satisfied that it was a problem with too many ramifications for the present.

Collections Shelved.

The Marys of Canada are contributing to a fund for the purchase of Spitfire fighter planes, and a letter from Miss Mabel Patterson, vice-president of the Women's Service Corps, was received seeking permission to take up a collection in the schools. Another letter was received from the Mayoress of England asking that a collection be taken up for the Soldiers', Sailors' and Airmen's Widows and Orphans Fund in Peterborough, England.

There was a hostile feeling to both requests and the attitude of the Board was sumed up by Dr. Moir, who said children and parents are doing a good job in the purchase of War Savings Stamps in the schools, and in view of the war effort the request was not granted.

Mr. Carley also voiced opposition to the collection plan, saying that it definitely embarrassed the children from the poorer homes, and that every family now was carrying a goodly portion of the war load.

Demand Farming Prices On Par With Industry

TORONTO, Mar. 14 — (CP). — To-day is Budget Day in the Ontario Legislature. When Premier Hepburn presents his budget this afternoon it will be his seventh since his election to power in 1934.

The Premier has already indicated there will be no new taxation and there will be a substantial surplus. In the Throne Speech it was announced that the income tax will be amended to provide for greater exemptions in cases where donations are made from taxable income to accredited war charities.

The Legislature had its first division yesterday when an amendment to the Speech from the Throne pledging full co-operation to the Dominion Government in its war effort, was approved 55-18 on a straight party vote.

The amendment was moved by Works Minister Farquhar Oliver when he included the Throne Speech debate which had extended over three weeks. It superseded a previous amendment by Conservative Leader George Drew which advocated a new Dominion-Provincial conference. The Drew amendment was lost on the same vote by which the other was carried.

Making his first speech since he assumed the portfolio of works minister, Mr. Oliver declared that agriculture must be given a price structure on a par with industry if it is to be expected to do its part in the war.

He said the people of the country were divided into four classes in their contribution to the war effort. There were the armed forces first and behind them the industrial, labor and agricultural groups.

Industry and labor had been put on a cost-plus basis and there was no quarrel with that but agriculture was on a cost-minus basis.

"Over and above all there is the thought that those at Ottawa don't give a damn for the farmer. There's a feeling that farmers are the forgotten men who Ottawa is content to leave in that position."

The farmer and his wife, he continued, depend for the main source of their income on bacon, butter and cheese. These were being produced at below cost now and the pegging of butter prices was only "adding insult to injury."

Referring to Col. Drew's amendment, Mr. Oliver said this was no time for conferences "but a time for us all to roll up our sleeves and go to work."

Claim Greeks Stopped

ROME, March 14—(AP). — The Italian High Command claimed today that Fascist troops had repulsed Greek assaults on both sides of the Viosa River in Albania and inflicted "heavy losses" on the attackers.

Government Not Halting Debate To Discuss Farm Problems

OTTWA, March 14—(CP).—Members of the House of Commons today start the 14th day of debate on the $1,300,000,000 war appropriation resolution, after hearing Prime Minister Mackenzie King refer to "obstruction' 'of the measure and an appeal from a private Liberal member to get down to the real business of winning the war.

Yesterday the Prime Minister announced the resolution will be given priority until it and the bill to be based upon it are put through the House.

This announcement was made when E. E. Perley (Con. Qu'Appelle) asked that next Monday be set aside to debate agriculture, particularly the Government's new wheat policy.

Later, just before adjournment last night, John Turner (Lib., Springfield), a member who seldom speaks in the chamber, appealed to members to "get down to real business, to realize that there is a war on, and get his House of Commons geared up to a wartime basis."

"Many questions have been asked that mean nothing to our war effort, but which have just delayed the progress of the House at a critical time," Mr. Turner said.

"In my opinion much of this has been done for purely political advertising purposes at the expense of the country."

No Stop For Debate

When Mr. King told the House at the start of the afternoon sitting that consideration of the Appropriation measure would not be interrupted for an agriculture debate, Opposition Minister Hanson demurred.

He said if the Government would facilitate a debate on agriculture it might have the effect of speeding up consideration of the Appropriation measure.

"I suggest to the Ministry that this is a world of give and take," Mr. Hanson said. "We have facilitated the Government's war measures on every occasion. We have arrived at the position now where the Government say the Opposition have no rights in this House."

Mr. King said the War Appropriation Bill was not a matter of urgency, but key members of the cabinet had to remain in the House constantly while it was being debated, and they had urgent work to do in their offices.

"If my honorable friend is going to obstruct this measure which is most important, then he and his friends must take the responsibility for the obstruction which they make," Mr. King said.

"I object to the term 'obstruction'," said Mr. Hanson.

"So does everybody else," said Karl Homuth (Con., Waterloo South).

Mr. King replied:—

"I leave it to the House itself to say whether the word I have used was or was not fair.

"I am not saying the honorable member is obstructing. We will judge the significance of his words by the action of himself and his followers in connection with the measure itself."

M. J. Coldwell (C.C.F., Rosetown-Biggar), acting House Leader for his group, said the Government was largely responsible for keeping the ministers in the House, because it had failed to organize the debate.

Defence Minister Ralston said the fact was that for a week and a half members of the House had been making speeches and ministers wishing to give instruction had to "fairly force" themselves into the debate.

Mainly on Labor.

Speeches yesterday covered labor problems, use of Maritime Province manufacturing and shipping facilities, and aircraft production.

There was no indication when the debate would end, but some observers said they thought the assurance of the Prime Minister that nothing else would be taken up until it was concluded might hasten the end.

Rodney Adamson (Con. York West) claimed the Canada Wire and Cable Company of Montreal was given a contract for brass although Anaconda American Brass Company of Toronto had bid $1,500,00 lower. He said he had been told the Montreal firm got the contract because it was desired that power be purchased from the Beauharnois Company and he suggested the matter be investigated by the Commons Committee on War Expenditures.

Munitions Minister Howe interrupted to ask the Toronto member if he could substantiate his charges and said he would personally see that Mr. Adamson was called before the War Expenditures Committee to repeat them. He said further that from his knowledge Mr. Adamson's allegations were "erroneous."

Urge Air Production Chief.

Earlier Mr. Adamson, criticizing the government's system for aircraft production, urged that a dirtor of production or a minister, with rank to enable him to have authority over Royal Air Force officers, be appointed with power to control production right up to the time machines are delivered for operational use.

He recommended that this authority be given to Ralph P. Bell, present director of aircraft production.

Dr. Herbert Bruce (Con. Toronto-Parkdale) asked Mr. Howe to release H. R. MacMillan, chairman of the Wartime Requirements Board in the Munitions and Supply Department, from his oath of secrecy so he might make a public statement.

He said Mr. Howe's comments about Mr. MacMillan's report on shipbuilding, recently tabled in the House, indicated the possibility all was not well between the two officials and created doubt in the public mind. Yet Mr. MacMillan, by his oath of secrecy taken when he entered the department, was unable to make a statement.

Free transportation for soldiers in Canada while travelling on leave was again the subject of an appeal by T. L. Church (Con. Toronto-Broadview).

He presented a telegram he had received from troops in Petawawa camp asking him to help them obtain legal aid to fight charges of forging railway tickets laid against a group of soldiers.

Angus MacInnis (C.C.F. Vancouver East) renewed his charges that the government was not initiating and enforcing the proper relations between workers and their employers.

Convict Indian Of Manslaughter

BRANTFORD, Ont., March 14.—(CP)—John Leonard Buck, Six Nations Indian, today awaits sentence on a conviction of manslaughter in the death last September of Fred House, a fellow-tribesman.

A murder charge was reduced to one of manslaughter here last night by a Supreme Court jury under Mr. Justice F. D. Hogg after the jury had deliberated seven hours. House died from a blow struck during a drunken quarrel which had started over accusations by others that Buck had not paid for his share of liquor during two days of drinking.

Yesterday, testifying in his own behalf, Buck swore as a non-Christian Indian on a string of Indian Wampum obtained after the court had decided the oath of a non-Christian on the Bible was not sufficient.

The groom's gift to the bride was a silver tea set. The bridesmaid receiving a suede purse and the groomsman a cigarette case. Immediately following the ceremony the happy couple left on a motor trip to Toronto and Niagara, the bride travelling in a plastic beige tailored coat with brown fox fur and brown accessories.

On their return they will take up residence in Belleville.

THE CURSE OF MANKIND

Robt. G. Jackson, M.D. Now in his 83rd year

More than one prominent physician has described constipation as the curse of mankind and especially womankind, as indeed it is. If you know the rankness of a stagnant pool, you can easily imagine the internal condition of a constipated person.

Constipation is so unnecessary. Nature gave every man and woman the muscle mechanism for thorough and punctual elimination. That mechanism is still there even in the person who hasn't been "regular" for years. What's needed is exercise—use—for only by exercise and use can that muscle action be made strong and active again.

Are pills and purges the answer? You know different. The answer is diet. The muscles that form the bowel wall will need bulk on which to work. The nerves that control these muscles need minerals to keep them vital.

I positively assert that if you will eat one full meal a day from any one of my three natural whole-grain cereals Dr. Jackson Meal (formerly Roman Meal), Bekus-Puddy and Lishus, and make other meals of simple, sensible foods, you can re-waken Nature's eliminatory action and keep it functioning regularly. If you are interested in this subject, send for my free booklet "A Glorious Achievement". Address Robt. G. Jackson, M.D., 547 Vine Ave., Toronto.

S.A. Gym. Rooms Are Redecorated

A formal opening of the gym rooms and boys' Sunday school hall of the Salvation Army Temple, now attractive with newly decorated cream walls and light oak panelling, was held Thursday night under the auspices of the Junior Red Shield group. Proceeds from a silver collection and the sale of home-made candy will go towards the purchase of flannelette which girls of the group make into warm pyjamas for boys and girls overseas. About twenty 'teen-age girls belong to the Junior Red Shield, and through their enthusiastic efforts many fine contributions of new clothing have joined bales packed by the Red Shield Auxiliary.

Following a program of community singing, quiz contests, readings and vocal numbers, arranged by Miss Marjorie MacDonald, tea was served under the convenership of Mrs. W. Jones, leader of the group, and Mrs. J. Craig.

The Chic Women Plan Wardrobes

The chic woman reads dozens of stories about new fashions before she plans her spring wardrobe. She considers each new color, silhouette and accessory carefully. Then, because she is smart about considering her budget, as well as which lines and shades are most flattering to her type, she eliminates from her list items that do not suit her background and those which are impractical from other viewpoints.

For example, if her days are spent in an office and her social life consists of simple parties after work, the movies and having a few people in to dinner occasionally, she does not buy a dinner suit with fishtail skirt, however new and exciting it looks.

She puts the money she has allowed for dress-up clothes into lovely housecoats and a dinner or evening dress with jacket instead of an elaborate, ultra-formal gown which she isn't likely to be able to wear more than twice a year.

She does not wear mannishly tailored, single-breasted suits of hard finish wools unless she knows that she is pretty. And she does not wear ultra feminine, beruffled, positively frilly clothes if she is more than size 16.

HOME-BUILDING WIFE IS BEST HELP TO A HUSBAND

Married Woman Who Is in Trade or Business Takes Incentive to Do Greater Things Away From Her Helpmate.

✧ ✧ ✧

Every woman who loves her husband desires to be a real help-meet to him, and her problem is whether she can most do this by staying at home and pinching the pennies or going into business and earning dollars. Of course, in the past no such difficulty of decision arose. Then a wife assisted her husband in laying the foundation of his fortune by doing her own washing, cooking, babytending, paring the potatoes a little thinner and keeping a weather eye on the grocery bill. But now the starry-eyed bride who has a good job and a nice pay envelope, and who dreams of being one of the wives whose price is above rubies to her husband, thinks that the way to boost him up the ladder of success is for her to keep on working outside of the home, add her salary to his and thus be an asset instead of a liability to him. Both schools of thought have their points. Undeniably, the wife who can make the dough as well as bake it relieves her husband of a lot of care and responsibility. He doesn't have a wife to support. He doesn't have to worry over the rent being due, for if he hasn't the money for it Georgina has, and, thank heaven, she pays for her own hair-dos and facials and clothes. So he is even more fortunate than the hero of the old song who warbled: "When I was single my pockets did jingle," for he not only has his own earnings to spend, but a wife who is always good for a touch.

Of course, the theory of a husband and wife both money-earners, both working and striving and saving together, with the same interests and with the same ambitions, is ideal. But, alas, few dreams come true, and, unfortunately, only too often when the husband finds out that Georgiana can support the family, he lets her do it.

It is amazing how many men lose their jobs as soon as they are married and are never afterward able to find any work that appeals to them. They feel that they can afford to be choosy when they have wives who provide them with comfortable homes and spending money.

Wives Act as Goads

Somehow it seems that most men need wives as a sort of goad in their sides to force them on to making the effort that carries them on to success. Many an easy-going, unambitious man who, left to himself, would have been satisfied with making a moderate salary has become a millionaire before he knew it.

And it is the sense of a helpless wife's dependence on him that has kept many another man, whose very soul was fainting with weariness and discouragement, toiling on at an uncongenial task, until he achieved fame and fortune.

No disputing that the wage earning wife takes away from her husband the greatest incentive to success, which is necessity, and in so far she is a handicap oftener than a help.

Also it hurts a man's pride for his wife not to be dependent on him, and that is why the woman who can stand on her own feet practically always has to do it.

And if this is true in the lower brackets, it is doubly true in the higher ones. If the gray mare is the better nag; the wife has a cleverer business head than the husband has; if she is a better saleswoman, a shrewder buyer, a better executive, it is all over except the divorce. Unless the husband is exceptionally broad-minded and generous, he is filled with a jealousy that kills his love and makes him hate her.

So Helpful in the Home

Nothing is more common than to hear the domestic woman grive that she cannot help her husband because she does not know how to earn money. She sees him overworked and debt-pressed, and she thinks that if she could only write a best seller, or be a cinema star, or run a shoppe that would coin dollars, how he could bless her for lifting his burdens from him, and what a poor makeshift of a wife she is not to be able to do anything to assist him in his need.

But it is doubtful if any woman ever helps her husband as much as the one who makes him a comfortable home, who is a good mother to his children, who manages the money he earns thriftily and who gives him affection and understanding and appreciation, who makes him happy and who give him something to work for.

Very few men want their wives to be business or professional women. They want homemakers. They prefer to separate their working life from their domestic life, and it rests them to come home to a wife who is waiting for them at the door with a cheerful welcome, and who entertains them with a fresh line of chatter about the neighbors and what the children have done, instead of threshing over the business worries of the day or discussing the stock market.

But how a wife can help her husband is an individual problem that each woman must solve for herself.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, March 15

AN EXTREMELY lively and enterprising day may be anticipated on the basis of the current planetary activities. All pertaining to trade, writings, publishing, communications and travel should be greatly accelerated and move swiftly into gratifying grooves of success and accomplishment. And while the judgment may be sound and the mentality well organized, yet there are tendencies to act from impulse. Keep cool and refrain from danger and tempest.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be confronted by a particularly lively and lucrative year, in which all matters of a business or professional nature may move at high tempo. The faculties may be accelerated to notable accomplishment in writings, publicity, correspondence or business, with the judgment solid and secure. But this solidarity should not be negatived by excitement, strife, arbitrary conduct or impetuosity. Let calm judgment make decisions. Resort to diplomacy and tact, while emotional storms and stresses rage.

A child born on this day should be splendidly talented and versatile, with a brilliant mind and faculties sustained by sane and solid judgments and character, with capacity for sagacity, finesse and subtlety.

Junior I.O.D.E. Sponsors Bridge

CAMPBELLFORD, Mar. 14 (ENS) —A successful bridge and euchre party sponsored by the Junior I.O.D.E. Wednesday evening nets $25 proceeds. Much credit is due to these girls, since this is their first effort in raising funds for war work as they are members of a newly formed chapter. Twenty tables of cards were played, with Miss Hazel Atkinson winning the prize for ladies' highest score for bridge, and Mr. A. D. Bennett winning the gentleman's high score. Ladies' highest score for euchre was won by Mrs. J. Ackerman and the gentleman's highest score by Mr. Bill Rowe.

Y.W.C.A. '38 Club Sponsors Lovely Fashion Preview

Each season Peterborough fashion showings become more and more brilliant and professional, with Thursday night's parade, sponsored by the '38 Club, marking a new and exciting high in well planned and effectively carried out previews. 75 tables of bridge at play in the Green Room and Recreation Hall of the Y.W.C.A. preceded the presentation, with tea served at tables afterward. Proceeds are for the British Y.W.C.A. war work and local Y.W.C.A. service, including the sending of children to summer camp, the latter a work which the '38 Club of young business girls has enthusiastically carried out since its inception.

Spring, 1941, was ushered in with a note of slenderness and femininity centred in a lovely soft, gracious field of fashion, and always emphasized was the idea that one must look utterly bewitching.

Important in the suit group was the longer jacket, pockets, soft shoulder treatment, and action skirts featuring pleats or other fullness. Included were an amber and brown costume with straw sailor, bags and shoes in Mexican rust, an effective two-piece wool suit of soft blue with girlish white collar, worn with a black straw hat with with golden posies watching a capacious leather bag, and a navy dressmaker outfit with white pique lapels, the dashing hat of scarlet grosgrain ribbon shirred and curved of brim, and the sleek handbag of shiny red patent.

There were many smart coat models, several in flattering dressmaker style, and several in softly blended tweeds, the predominating shade often caught up in the accessories. The popular cape appeared in a costume that was the essence of charm. Full and flowing, it was worn over a matching frock of smart beige, and with it was worn a black straw tricorn with sheer veiling and an exquisite cluster of flowers. Looking like the pretty maiden stepping out in the Easter parade, a dainty model showed off her rose pastel redingote costume, pointed up with blue in necklace, gloves, and woven into the rose fabric of her hat.

There was an infinite variety of hats, from little perky flower and veiling affairs to the large sailor and picture model. Furs included neckpieces of grey squirrel and Kolinskey; handbags were in a host of flower-bright colors, and were draped or shirred with tricky new locks. Shells fashioned one striking piece of costume jewelry, and delicately tinted necklaces were finishes touches. Shoes are smarter than ever, and one suede pump boasted glass heels and buckles. The square toe was noticed, and stunning, little bows were on all types. Hair styles were along pompadour lines, with the Grecian influence noted in several sculptured coiffures.

The show concluded with a Victorian wedding party which suggested the old family album pictures brought up to date. The bride was in pastel pink embroidered net over taffeta, with trailing clouds of dreamy veiling from a halo-shaped hat, and carried a sheaf of roses; her four bridesmaids were in deeper pink and blue net and lace with Victorian bonnets two with quaint nosegays of sweet peas and roses; two with arm bouquets of snapdragon and other spring flowers. Miss Francis Wand, in a graceful blue frock, presented posters announcing shops taking part in the display. Gowns, coats and suits were by Levine's Ladies' Wear; hats by Olga Haskill; hairstyling, Kawartha Beauty Salon; shoes Maher Store; accessories, Muriel Specialty Shop; flowers, Sorenson's.

Soft piano music heard during the show was played by Miss Frances Wells, A.T.C.M. and Mrs. George Nicholls. Miss Jean Walters, president of the '38 Club was general convener of the bridge and fashion show, Miss Flora Metcalfe and Miss Edna Morrow were social conveners, and Miss Leone McMillan was in charge of decorations. Bridge draws were won by Miss Helen Turner, Mrs. R. D. Taylor, Mrs. Paige Rowell, Mrs. D. Davies, Miss Lola Leach.

DRAFTED FOR LOVE

By RUTH AYERS

YESTERDAY: April is seriously ill with flu for several days. She was exhausted, almost had pneumonia. Mother and Dad return, care for her; the boy friends fill her room with flowers. But the emptiness in her heart remains.

* * *

NO WORD FROM KENT
CHAPTER XVI

Ann returned the next day, sweet-faced, saddened.

From her room upstairs where she sat bolstered in pilows, April heard the first greetings in the hall.

Ann was saying with a catch in her throat, "You're such darlings, I can't tell you how happy I am to be home. It's better than being a prima donna."

She was all sympathy and kindness to April. "I'll be a Nightingale one way if not another," she smiled. "Wait until you see how I'll nurse you, April. It doesn't seem right for anyone as gay as you to have your wings clipped."

"It isn't my wings," April managed to grin. "It's my hoof."

In those first days of Ann's homecoming, April was beside herself to know the news of Kent. Had he written to Ann? Was he ready for the operation? Had he told Ann at last what had happened to his eyes?

Because she feared a word or a look would give her away, April kept silent, taking refuge in long periods when she stayed with her eyes closed, pretending sleep.

Mother guessed nothing. She beamed because April's ankle was improving; she sparkled at having Ann back from New York. "It seems like old times to have my two little girls with me again."

* * *

April caught herself studying Ann one day. If there were such a thing as great sorrow purifying one's faces and features, this had happened to Ann, she decided.

Her sister's hair was still mole color, worn in the same simple style; her features quite as indefinite. But there was something close to beauty in her pallor and the gentle brown eyes.

That day, April almost spoke aloud to Ann. "What do you hear from Kent?" she wanted to say, but she kept her lips tight.

It wasn't until Ann had been home a week that Kent's letter arrived.

April knew it the minute Ann walked into her room.

Without preamble Ann began, "Did you know when Kent was home on leave that he had been temporarily blinded in an accident at camp?"

"Why—why, yes, that night I met him at the train, I knew."

"You should have told me."

"It was the night before your audition with Vivano. I was afraid it would upset you."

April had kept her head down. Now panic rose. If she acted self-conscious, ashamed, Ann would think she was guilty. So she met Ann's eyes with a defiance she didn't feel.

Ann stared at her with the same brown eyes, the same outwardly gentle expression. But behind it all, April felt a steeliness, the first hint of suspicion.

"If I'd known Kent needed me," Ann was saying, "I would have come home from the ends of the earth to be with him. Never forget that, April."

* * *

After that, the Burnett house quieted down, outwardly serene and at peace. But a change had taken place, something deep and under the surface. Octavia sensed it, even though she kept grinning her marshmallow smile every time she laid her eyes on "her little lamb." Nip was aware of it and took to prowling in the rooms and spending long times curled up beside April. April herself probably expressed it best on the first day she took a few wabbly steps around her room. "I'll have to get going," she said to her mother, who was busy sewing on something white and frilly for Ann. "This house is wearing me down. It's too quiet—like doom was going to crack one of these days. Besides, I'm fast going out of circulation. Look at my room. Why, when I was first sick, I was smothered in blooms. Every time I looked up, love had sent another gift of roses."

Mother smiled and pointed to the blue vase which brimmed with fresh yellow tulips. "Hal Parks has been faithful," she reminded April.

"Hal? Oh, yes. The constant suitor."

"He telephones religiously to learn how you are and wants to be your first visitor."

"Yes?" April's mouth twisted into a ghost of her old-time smile. After awhile she said, "You might tell him he can have that honor. I'll be all set to see him in a week or so."

She turned to her mother. There was this question, this all-important answer she must have before she could pick up her own life and go on. It had to do with Kent Carter.

"Mother, does Ann say how Kent Carter is?"

Mother looked up quickly and then bent to her work. "Ann is so shy," she sighed. "So reticent about talking of anything which she feels deeply. But there was a letter from Kent yesterday from which she read me parts. Surgeons have operated on Kent's eyes."

April was standing at the window. One hand reached forward and clutched the cretonne drape for support.

"Was—was the operation a success?"

"It won't be known until the bandages are removed."

* * *

So the days went by, in a lovely dazzle of blue ice and spangled snow.

What April had said jokingly about being out of circulation, was turning out to be more fact than fun. No more "Sorry to learn you're sick" cards; no more flowers except those from Hal. Even the telephone was silent.

"It doesn't take long," April brooded, "for boy-friends like mine to forget."

A party girl, a Glitterbug, the belle of the town when she could dart about, but nobody when a game ankle kept her house-bound. When she fussed at the mirror, it even seemed as if she looked different, older.

She started knitting for the Red Cross to pass the hours; patiently hemmed small garments for war refugee children.

Then one night, Hal Parks paid his long awaited visit.

He stood in the door of April's room, dark, debonair, with the clipped mustache which made him, outwardly, so much of the man-about-town.

Absurdly, April felt her eyes filling with tears. Dear Hal! He was the stand-by, the devoted one.

She stumbled to meet him, grateful for the haven his arms promised as they enfolded her.

Keeping Soup in Pot Worries Cook Worse Than Bombs, in the Navy

By LOUIS HUNTER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

ABOARD A CANADIAN DESTROYER IN THE NORTH ATLANTIC, Mar. 14 — (CP). — Petty Officer George Lambert of Halifax is fighting his battle for Britain in the officers' galley of this Canadian warship.

It is his job to see the 17 officers aboard are well fed so they can withstand the rigors and strain of dangerous duties in submarine-infested seas. He has had no complaints from the ward room, and it is unlikely there will be when he can produce a menu that includes venison and chicken.

The 26-year-old cook was, in his own words, a "full-fledged" baker at Victoria, B.C., when he joined the Royal Canadian Navy in 1935, but it was two years before he went to sea "because I had to learn everything all over again."

"You know," he smiled, "it's all wrong to the Navy the way we cook and bake ashore."

Lambert, a chubby chap, has cramped quarters in which to do his work as a baker-turned-cook. There hardly is room for two persons in the galley, located on the quarterdeck under a gun canopy. It looks smaller even than its 12 feet by 8 feet, with a couple of cupboards and a small stove.

Lambert's biggest worries at sea are not submarines and torpedoes. His main problem is how to keep all the soup in the pot when heavy seas are running. If the sea is heavy he is likely as not to finish up with half the original quantity. The other half will be splashed over the stove and on deck.

Takes Pictures, Too.

Little worries of that sort are all part of Alberta's long day as a cog in Canada's war machine. He's out of his hammock in time to start preparing breakfast at 6.45. That keeps him going until nine when it's time to get lunch ready. Lunch is all cleaned up by 1.30, and until five o'clock if he isn't resting he is out and about taking photographs. Photographs is his hobby.

So far, Lambert has been the only casualty of the voyage, other than a seasick newspaper man. Rough seas threw the cook out of his hammock and now he is hobbling around with a strained back.

"But I'd rather have that and sea life than the bombing you people have had to go through in London," he said.

Perhaps, at that, Lambert has something, because he was in London during some of the worst attacks and he shudders when he recalls the night one of the deadliest types of bombs landed 1½ blocks away from where he and a companion had thrown themselves to the pavement.

"We were pretty badly shaken up and it was that that made me think the sea is pretty good," he remarked.

Marmora Lost To Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, Mar. 14. — (ENS). — Campbellford won 9 of 12 events in a scheduled badminton meet here with Marmora piling up a total of 164 points to the visitors' 91 points. The local team still continue to sweep aside everything that the teams in the Kawartha-Trent group have been able to put into action against them and are now riding at the top of the league and have yet to lose a scheduled contest this season.

Following is a summary of the scoring with the Campbellford team being named first::

Mixed Doubles.

Miss Parker and Mr. Ralph 15 vs. Mrs. Reynolds and Mr. Brady, 2; Mrs. Fink and Ellis Darling 15 vs. Miss Lumsden and Mr. Wells, 6; Miss O'Neil and Roy Ashton 15 vs. Miss Turner and R. Scott, 4; Miss Armour and W. Kingston 15 vs. Mr. Neal and Mrs. Neal, 12; Mrs. Ralph and D. Meyers 15 vs. Mrs. Hickey and W. Hart, 1; Miss Allan and A. Crosier 15 vs. Miss Sabine and D. Prentice, 2.

Ladies' Doubles.

Miss Parker and Miss O'Neil 13 vs. Mrs. Reynolds and Mrs. Hickey, 16; Miss Armour and Miss Fink 5 vs. Miss Turner and Miss Lumsden, 15; Mrs. Ralph and Miss Allan 11 vs. Mrs. Neal and Miss Sabine, 15.

Men's Doubles.

George Ralph and Ellis Darling 15 vs. C. Brady and R. Scott, 6; Donald Meyers and W. Kingston 15 vs. R. Neal and F. Wells, 12; Roy Ashton and A. Crosier 15 vs. D. Prentice and W. Hart, 1.

Since Lakefield retired from the leavue, leaving Havelock, Deloro, Hastings, Marmora and Campbellford with their standing as follows:

Campbellford—6 wins, and 1 tie, with 34 points.

Deloro—4 wins, 1 tie and 3 losses, 32 points.

Marmora—3 wins, 2 ties and 2 losses, 29 points.

Hastings—1 win, 2 ties and 4 losses 25 points.

Havelock—1 win and 6 losses, 23 points.

Hastings will meet Campbellford here on Friday, March 14.

Second Lady M.P.

Mrs. Beatrice Clough Rathbone, 30, will become the second American-born woman member of the British House of Commons by virtue of an unopposed nomination in Bodmin district. She will take the seat of her late husband, Flight Lieutenant John Rankin Rathbone, killed December last on a flight over Germany. Mrs. Rathbone was born in Boston, Mass., has two children who are now in the U.S., is greatly interested in politics and will serve as a Conservative. Lady Astor is the other U.S. born woman member.

BONARLAW

Mr. Clark Haig has accepted a position with the Hydro-Electric Power Commission. He commenced duties on Monday.

Births Marriages In Memoriam Cards of Thanks Deaths

ENGAGEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Willison, Peterborough, wish to announce the engagement of their youngest daughter, Doris Emily, to Richard William, only son of Mr. and Mrs. William Ducker of Toronto. The wedding to take place the early part of April.

IN MEMORIAM

HEATHER.—In loving memory of oud dear daughter, Eva J. Nisbett Heather, who died March 14, 1936.

'Tis sweet to know we'll meet again
Where troubles are no more,
And that the one we loved so well
Has just gone on before.

—Ever remembered by Father, Mother and Family.

SULLIVAN.—In loving memory of Ray Sullivan, who passed away seven year sago to-day, March 14, 1934, at the age of one year and seven months.

No stain was on his little heart,
Sin had not entered there;
And innocence slept sweetly on
That pale white brow so fair.
He was too pure for this cold earth,
Too beautiful to stay,
And so God's holy angel bore
Our darling one away.

—Ever remembered by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. Sullivan.

REPAIRS AND REMODELING ARE EASY AND INEXPENSIVE
Look at your Home through your neighbor's eyes. Is it modern or attractive—or it is a white elephant? If your home is old and out of style, but sound structurally, it can be easily and quickly modernized. Financing can be arranged through your Bank or our Bank to spread the payment or the cost over a period up to two years, at a low rate of interest. Call us for additional information.
H. R. SCOTT LIMITED
George at Rink Street. Telephone 4638.

ARE YOU PLANNING A NEW HOME?
Come right in and see us to-day—we have all the tools for home planning you'll need. We have PLANS, FINANCING INFORMATION, IDEAS, SUGGESTIONS—and good contractor references. Interest on home mortgages is low—maybe the lowest it will be during your life time. Under the National Housing Act all you need to have as a down payment is 20 per cent. of the value of the house and lot — the 20 per cent. would include the value of the lot. So why wait? Call us to-day for additional information.

Develop Talent at Home With Fashion Art Course

Don't Try to Copy—Use Charts

Discouraged so soon! Yet this would-be fashion artist has a real talent to develop.

Like so many girls who long for a well-paying career in art, she must do her studying at home. But she doesn't quite know how to go about it.

This is where charts and diagrams, professional instruction can help you. With their aid you soon learn to draw really graceful, well-proportioned faces and figures.

For the glamorous, Garboesque face of the fashion ads, draw an oval and divide it in half, horizontally. This is the eye line. Now divide the lower half into five equal parts and place the nose line two-fifths down from the eye line, the mouth three-fifths down.

Once you have these main proportions, the finishing touches come easier—shaping the eye and mouth, drawing the soft contours of the hair.

And the figure? You follow the same principle of dividing up, as our 24-page fashion art course shows you. Teaches you perspective, how to "block in," pose and dress figures, work in line and wash, and draw fabric textures such as velvet, jersey, net, chiffon, also

"The Authority on Authorities"

HIS PARTNER TELLS YOU

YOU CAN place one defender with the dangerous holding in certain suits if his partner has bid so as to show extreme length in another suit or suits. In fact, you can sometimes see definitely that the poor chap will have to do all of the guarding of a couple of suits, and is therefore subject to whatever kind of squeeze or end-play you build.

North, of course, took the lead of the diamond J with the Q. Reckoning East's double as based on the threatening cards of the two major suits, he cashed the spade K and finessed the 10, followed by the A. He counted West for the club A, so led the dummy's club 3 and came right up with the K, which held. Seeking to build another club trick, he led the club 2 from dummy. East's Q winning.

With only major suit cards left, East led the heart 10 to the A, and North then laid down the diamond A on the eighth trick. It squeezed East, who at this stage had six cards, the heart 9-8-7-6 and the spade J-9. Unwilling to part with one of his hearts in view of the K-Q-J-3 in dummy, he tossed off a spade, in which North held the Q-5. That enabled North to drop the spade J with his Q and cash the spade 5, discarding clubs from the dummy. He then took in three hearts, giving up the last one to East and making his contract.

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

Against South's 3-No Trumps if the first three tricks are the club K, club 10 to the A with East discarding the spade 6, the heart 2 to the 10 and Q and the spade 3 returned to the A, should West false-card with his spade Q and, if so, why?

100,000 BRITISH TROOPS MOVING NORTH IN GREECE

Subs Blast 4 Out Of Convoy In Double Sea Attack

For War Writer's Crossing

Passengers Stand In Nightmare Of Anxiety In Inky Blackness Of Ship's Rail As Escorts' Depth Charges, Guns Rumble

By SAM ROBERTSON (Canadian Press Staff Writer)
Passenger on Board One of Convoy Ships.

OTTAWA, March 15—(CP).—German submarines waylaid the great, grim convoy with which I recently crossed the North Atlantic and sank at least four of the ships so vital to Britain's war effort.

The "bag" may have been six. Two which listed badly after being crushed by torpedoes, were, however, still able to make way.

More than 200 of the gallant seamen who are playing such an important part in maintaining Britain's pulse beat were aboard the four boats known to have gone down. It was not possible to learn how many survived. It is the rule of convoys that ships which escape in attacks must plough on. To stop would be to become a sitting bird. The ship in which I crossed hurried away from the battle scenes.

There were two attacks.

Nightmare Of Anxiety.

Both attacks came in the blackness found only at sea. One was at five in the morning; the other at midnight.

Both those periods were filled with an anxiety that seems like a nightmare now that solid ground is underfoot. Passengers stood by lifeboat stations, scarcely able to see even each other in the darkness, not knowing when a torpedo might tear the ship from under their feet in a blinding flash.

But they were scarcely more anxious than the 19 hours which separated the attacks.

If the submarine, or submarines, which launched the first blow survived the deadly depth charges which catapulted from the decks of our naval escorts, it seemed they would signal to a German bomber base the position of our convoy.

The fact sky-raiders did not come may have indicated the depth charges which rumbled across the sea like thunder found their mark. It may have meant an Iron Cross awards to the U-boat men for their night's work will be posthumous awards.

The craft known to have gone under the numbing wintry waves included the largest of numerous ships which made up the convoy. It was a massive Whaler-factory craft with the lines of an overgrown bathtub. It took two torpedoes to wound it mortally. The other certain losses were two freighters and an oil tanker.

When the second attack came we were on the fringe of the area Hitler's undersea marauders usually in-

Clyde Is Struck Again

RAF Raids Norway To Brest Patrols Hun Bomber Bases

LONDON, March 15—(CP).—The industrial centres of Gelsenkirchen and Duesseldorf in Western Germany were the main targets of British air raids last night, the Ministry of Information announced today.

A very effective attack also was made on a small scale on oil tanks at Rotterdam, the Ministry said.

A large number of bombers took part in the attacks on Germany, and only one failed to return.

An Air Ministry communique said that at Duesseldorf the British bombers dropped incendiaries in the industrial area, where the attack was officially described as on "a large scale."

Raids on shipping, airdromes and docks were carried out from Norway to Brest, in Western France. Fighter planes patrolled German bomber bases to hamper German raiders taking off for Britain.

At Gelsenkirchen the main target was the great Hydro generation plant, where oil is produced from coal. Here the attack was described as "heavy and successful."

Dusk to Dawn Attack Hits Workers

Huns Bomb New City In Northeast Area, Four Are Shot Down

GLASGOW, March 15 (CP) — Waves of German bombers blasted the great Clyde river shipbuilding area from dusk last evening until dawn today, killing and injuring many residents in the working class district in the second raid in as many nights.

Bombs of the moonlight raiders, who spread wide over Britain, sent one 40-family tenement in this section tumbling down, burying many in the wreckage.

Hundreds in the working class area were left homeless and rescue workers still dug in the debris today.

One of the thousands of incendiary bombs scattered over Clydeside a number fell on an old soldiers' home, burning out the servants quarters. Veterans not too feeble lent a hand to nurses in putting out the blaze.

Churches and schools were among the Clydeside buildings damaged in last night's raid, which was lighter than that of Thursday night.

New City Attacked.

LONDON, March 15.— (CP). — The great Glasgow shipping district along the river Clyde was bombed again last night and early to-day and a north-eastern British city was attacked violently for the first time in the war as the Nazi air force maintained the suddenly accelerated pace of the war in the air.

British bombers stuck grimly to their assaults on western Germany's big industries with another "heavy attack" during the third night of mass bombings by moonlight.

Wells, Me., March 15 (AP)

A boyhood dream—to ride in the engineer's cab—will come true today for Lawrence Hilton and Kasimer Melinsky. Nazis Tune Up Air Armada At All Bulgar Fields; Say Balkan Stage Critical

Claim Britons Are Already Moving North With Tanks And Flame Throwers Huge Cargoes Of Supplies Arriving Daily

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, March 15—(AP).—Nearly 100,000 soldiers from Britain's Imperial forces with shiploads of munitions, artillery, tanks and other mechanized equipment — enough for five divisions—have been landed at five Greek mainland ports, it was reliably reported today.

This report first came from neutral diplomatic circles in three southeastern European capitals. Correspondents were told privately by the British officials that the reports "probably are well founded."

These reports coincided with increased activity at Bulgarian airports, where hundreds of Nazi fighters, bomber and transport planes were wheeled out—ready for instant action—as German circles asserted the Balkan crisis was "reaching a critical stage."

Will Swear Facts Right.

One diplomat declared he would take oath and sign a sworn statement that his facts were correct with reference to the landing of British troops in Greece.

Diplomatic mail arriving from Athens during the early afternoon told the same story.

Both sources told of five British ships daily arriving from Africa loaded with men and war materials.

Already, they said, British troops have moved north into the Greek mainland as far as a line running from the Aegean port of Volos across to the Island of Corfu.

Diplomatic sources said mechanized equipment and armaments already were on hand for five divisions.

A neutral diplomat told the Associated Press immediately on leaving his train that he had seen the debarkation of British troops with his own eyes.

He described cheering British soldiers marching down the gangplank and off to billets.

All Hotels Taken Over

"All hotels in southern Greece have been requisitioned," he said, "for British staff headquarters and to house officers."

He said British equipment in Greece included a vast number of anti-aircraft guns, anti-tank guns and many hundred tanks, both light and heavy, together with numbers of flame-throwing machines such as the Germans used last year on the western front.

In addition, he added, many shiploads of munitions and other war materials already have been landed.

He said more and more ships were arriving daily at five principal mainland ports which he declined to

Turks Stand Pat, Think Reply Sent To Hitler

ISTANBUL, March 15.—(AP). — Turkey's foreign policy remains unchanged since Germany's occupation of Bulgaria, the newspaper Ikdam declared to-day.

(Turkey is a non-belligerent Ally of Britain, bound by mutual assistance ties to oppose any act of aggression leading to war in the Eastern Mediterranean.

(Those ties were stated officially to have been tightened as a result of recent conferences between Turkish leaders and the British foreign secretary Anthony Eden and Gen. Sir John Dill, chief of the Imperial General Staff).

"The Eden and Dill visit showed Turkey's relations remained the same—that we will always be loyal to our Allies," Ikdam continued. "As for Hitler's special commission, this should not be considered more than a sign of politeness."

No official statement has been made yet, but observers believed it probable that President Ismet Inonu's reply had been sent to the Turkish ambassador at Berlin for delivery.

If She Were Sure

London, March 15 (CP)

BRITAIN would be willing to let almost any quantity of food for the unoccupied zone in France pass through her blockade if she could be certain it would "all go down the throats of Frenchmen," a spokesman for the ministry of economic warfare said today. She could not permit food to enter France if it were going to benefit her enemies.

Will Not Weaken U.S. Fleet F.D.R. To Pledge

WASHINGTON, March 15—(AP). — President Roosevelt, informed legislators said today, will tell the United States people in his radio address tonight that he has no intention of weakening this country's fleet in order to help Britain and other nations under the $7,000,000,000 lease-lend program.

These sources expressed belief that the President would make a rather "definite statement" on the subject of releasing naval vessels and would assure the public that under no circumstances would the United States navy be placed in an unbalanced state.

The prediction also was made that he would call for speed and more speed in ship production and make a new appeal for a united nation behind the defence program. Some mention might be made about strikes in defence industries, it was reported.

Mr. Roosevelt will speak at 10.30 p.m., E.D.T., while attending the annual banquet of the White House Correspondents' Association. His half-hour address will be broadcast over all major networks.

23 To His Credit

LONDON, March 15—(CP).—Flt. Lt. Marmaduke Thomas St. John Pattee was credited officially today with the destruction of 23 German warplanes—three within the last month. He was awarded a bar for the Distinguished Flying Cross he won earlier this year.

They Got Eight

Athens, March 15 (CP)

A Royal Air Force communique said British planes patrolling the Klisura area yesterday intercepted a large formation of Italian bombers escorted by fighter planes and shot down eight of them and damaged others severely.

Two British planes were lost, the communique said, but the pilots parachuted safely.

Airman Blamed In Fatal Smash

BELLEVILLE, March 15 (Special) —Investigating the auto death of Beatrice Smart, a coroner's jury Friday afternoon blamed the accident on the driver of the car, Aircraftman Lloyd Lyons of the R.C.A.F.

The verdict stated: "Beatrice Smart came to her death on January 14, as the result of injuries received in an accident on January 13, when a car driven by Aircraftman Lloyd Lyons collided with a telephone pole near the Devil's Elbow. The driver of the car was in no fit condition to operate a motor vehicle."

The jury recommended a sign be erected some distance on each side of the curve to warn drivers of the right-angle curve.

Five persons were injured in the accident that happened at the curve on Dundas Street West, known as the Devil's Elbow. Beatrice Smart, who was a passenger in the front seat of the car, was fatally injured. The driver, Lloyd Lyons, was critically injured, and is still in such a condition he was unable to testify at the inquest. Two other airmen have been transferred to posts some distance from Belleville. Teresa Campbell, the fifth passenger in the car, is still in the hospital recovering from a fractured thighbone and lacerations.

Testifying at the inquest held at the hospital, Miss Campbell stated "the driver, Lloyd Lyons, was intoxicated."

"We stopped near the Ontario School for the Deaf, two miles west of this city, for a drink.

"At that time the driver was intoxicated, and we tried to stop him from driving," testified Miss Campbell.

The injured girl informed the jury she was not sure where the accident had happened until she had been informed later.

Only 4 Ships Lost Week Of Mar. 14

LONDON, March 15)CP)—Four merchant ships—two British, one Norwegian and one Netherlands—totalling 19,533 tons were reported by neutral sources in the week ended March 14 to have been sunk by enemy action.

In addition two other ships, the 1,152-ton Norwegian ship Mira, in German service, and the 1997-ton Finnish bark Penang were reported sunk due to war causes.

The British Admiralty's latest summary, for the week ended Mar. 2, showed 148,038 tons sunk in that period, the heaviest loss since October. Weekly sinkings since the war began have averaged 63,342 tons.

Quitting Indo-China

SAIGON, French Indo-China, March 15—(AP).—The Standard Oil Company was reported today to be selling kerosene and other products stored in the area recently ceded by French Indo-China to Thailand under a Japanese-mediated peace agreement, with the intention of moving out.

Macaulay Claims He'll Prick Surplus Bubble

TORONTO, March. 15.—(CP)— Premier Hepburn, who only twice has failed to show a surplus during his seven-year reign, has given Ontario its biggest surplus yet. In delivering his budget for the fiscal year in the legislature yesterday, the Premier announced a surplus of $12,6600,364.

A well-filled Legislative Chamber heard the surprise announcement which precipitated an outbreak of desk thumping by the Liberal members. When Premier Hepburn estimated the surplus for the next fiscal year, ending March 31, 1942, at $9,743,065 and then concluded his address, there was a wild outbreak of enthusiasm that found the government supporters on their feet, cheering their leader.

After the demonstration ended, Loepold Macaulay (Con. York South) prefaced his motion adjourning the debate with the remark: "I haven't the heart to puncture this bubble today. I will give the real facts to you all on Tuesday."

The surplus surpasses by $3,266,426 the previous record of $9,313,938 which Mr. Hepburn reported in 1937. In his last year's budget address, the Premier estimated the surplus would be $356,364.

An increase of $25,005,053 in revenue over what had been anticipated along with what Premier Hepburn termed with the governments "pay-as-you-go" policy were prime factors in the unprecedented surplus.

Protect The Farmer

VANCOUVER, Mar. 15—(CP).— A resolution urging both the Dominion and Provincial Governments "to take immediate steps to protect Canadian farmers by guaranteeing a minimum price for all farm produce which will cover the cost of production," was adopted by the British Columbia Chamber of Agriculture yesterday at its annual meeting here.

Tired Of Arguing Taximan Slays Toronto Woman

GAINESVILLE, Fla., March 15.—(AP).—Mrs. Ruth Rawlins, pretty, 35-year-old wife of James Rawlins, of Toronto was slain by Earl J. Allen, a taxi-driver in his St. Petersburg apartment house because he was "damn tired of arguing."

This statement was made to St. Petersburg police by Frank B. Hogan, 27, who is held with Allen on a first-degree murder charge. The body of Mrs. Rawlins was found in a shallow, hastily dug grave on the outskirts of Gainesville, 115 miles fom St. Petersburg. According to Sheriff Todd Tucker, Allen signed a four-page confession in which he admitted killing the woman by hitting her with a wine bottle and then garroting her with a lamp cord.

Hogan early to-day led police from Brooksville to the spot where the body was buried. The slaying took place during a drinking party in Allen's apartment and was preceded by an argument between Allen and Mrs. Rawlins over the former's accusations that she had been seeing other men. Hogan claimed that Allen carried the body to his car and put it in the rear compartment.

Not Sure She Was Dead.

Allen and Hogan told officers that Mrs. Rawlins was beaten fatally in

Just Two Errors

New Britain, Conn., March 15.

'TWAS a good corned beef and cabbage banquet that the Irish members of the New Britain Elks held, but the menu was printed in Gaelic and, faith not one of the sons of the Ould Sod could read it. And that was not the worst of it, at all. The favors, a little flag of Erin in a small woven harp, were stamped: "Made in Japan."

Reaboro Boy Escapes Nazi

Captured and Interned During Invasion Of Norway

The epic of Narvik is being told by a young radio operator who witnessed the fighting from the deck of a prison ship, following his capture by the Germans. He is back in his native Canada, with the memories of the great episode still vivid in his mind.

His name is Bob Smith, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Smith of Rearboro, near Lindsay, and he plans to do down to the sea again as wireless operator on a merchantman.

Captured by the Germans, he made his escape, and then began a struggle through 30 miles of Norway's swamps and marshes until he reached Sweden. Here he was not interned, but was kept under surveillance. Later, a Swedish boat which had been shelled by the Germans picked him up with other refugees. The ship had the unhappy experience of being shelled again, when nearing Scotland, but this time by the British; their identity was soon made known, however, and the shelling ceased.

As a young employee of the Marconi company in London, Smith had steamed into Narvik harbour on a British boat just before the battle started. German destroyers and land batteries shelled the ship for two hours and it was captured with all hands.

Water Red With Blood

"The waters of Narvik were red with blood", said Smith, "It was a terribly sickening sight. The gallantry of the British was magnificent, but in our case it was surrender or be killed. We did not know there were so many German guns in Narvik."

Smith and the other prisoners taken with him were herded aboard a German ship, the Jan Wellem, a storage ship, and whale factory. Sixty-five British seamen; mostly from merchantmen, were kept below decks six or seven to a cabin.

Telling the story of the battle, Smith said: "As soon as the bat-

ABOARD A CANADIAN DESTROYER IN THE NORTH ATLANTIC, March 15.—(CP)—The perils of convoy duty in the dangerous North Atlantic hold no terror for Sub-Lt. F. C. Frewer, 20-year-old member of a seafaring Toronto family.

Veteran of many convoy trips through the submarine zone, Frewer received his baptism of fire during the evacuation of the British troops from France.

Frewer, who joined the Royal Canadian Navy in 1936, was studying at Portsmouth when a call came for volunteers to man the vessels

Nazis Hold U.S. Writer As Spy

Berlin Denies Action Is Reprisal For Two New York Arrests

BERLIN, Mar. 15 — (AP).—The German news agency announced to-day an "American journalist, Richard C. Hottelet, representative of an American news agency," had been arrested on strong suspicions of espionage in favor of an enemy power.

(United Press headquarters in New York said a Richard C. Hottelet has been attached to its Berlin bureau for four years.)

Authorized sources declined to give any details concerning the reported arrest except to say "the alleged espionage activities were not in connection with journalistic work."

Asked what enemy power was involved, these sources said "the trial will bring that out."

It was explained that the United States "naturally is not an enemy power."

Other informed sources indicated a preliminary hearing would be held to-morrow.

Nazi sources said Hottelet's arrest should not be interpreted as a reprisal for the arrest of Transocean (a German propaganda news service) representatives in New York, but referred only to personal and private activities in no way connected with his work as a newspaperman.

A special grand jury in Washington returned indictments Tuesday against Transocean and two individuals charging violation of the Foreign Agents Registration Law.

The Justice Department announced the two men, Manfred Zapp, Transocean's American manager, and Guenther Tonn, an associate, both German citizens, had been arrested in New York.

Zapp was charged with delaying his registration, failing to give material information, and aiding Transocean to violate the Act. Tonn was accused of failing to register.

Furious Attacks In Albania Yield Nothing

LONDON, March 15 — (CP). — Mussolini, vacationing in Greece in the vain hope his generals would devise some means of making his troops "do something" by today was reported to have returned home a sadder and a wiser man.

The Italians launched furious counter attacks along a considerable front in Albania, but, said the Greek High Command, got nowhere except into trouble. Their losses were described as enormous.

Germany was reported in some circles to have massed thousands of planes along fields in Bulgaria, ready to pour across the Greek frontier in an effort to do what all Mussolini's forces and all his equip-

HEALTH PROBLEMS

BREAST FEEDING

Last week we talked about the importance of breast feeding. To recall a little of this to your minds we would refer to a study carried on in the city of Chicago on a series of 20,061 infants from birth to 6 months who had respiratory infections. It was found that 28% of the breast fed infants and 39% of the artificially fed infants had respiratory infections. It was found that 5% of the breast fed infants had intestinal disorders and 16% of the artificially fed.

Dr. L. A. Clarke

I am indebted to Miss Ross and Miss Conley for assistance given in the preparation of today's article in which we will deal with the ways of maintaining breast milk.

The maintaining of a supply of breast milk depends upon the natural ability of the mother, her habits of living, her diet, and most important of all, upon regularity of nursing and the complete emptying of the breast after each feeding.

Habits that contribute to the health of the mother and baby that are emphasized as important for the pre-natal period are equally important after the baby is born.

Let us say again that nursing is the natural follow-up of the termination of normal pregnacy and is a normal function which assists in the return of the body to normal.

To successfully nurse her baby the mother must have a regular regime with fresh air, exercise, adequate diet, adequate rest and freedom from worry, excitement and emotional upsets. Daily exercise in the fresh air and sunshine stimulates and tones up the whole body and helps to prevent nervousness. Sunlight during the warm months of the year assists in the formation of Vitamin D in the body which both mother and baby need. These important items are cheap and easy of access.

The mothers diet should be well balanced with regard to fats, proteins and carbohydrates, as well as minerals and vitamins. Because this diet has to provide all the building materials needed for the growth of the baby and the protection of the mother's tissues, she should have from 1½ pints to 1 quart of milk daily, with green vegetables, fresh fruit, meat, eggs, fish, cheese and should avoid pastry and highly seasoned foods. She should have three well balanced meals daily with some nourishment before retiring.

Some people have difficulty in drinking milk. In some cases this is a matter of habit but there are a variety of ways in which it can be used other than as a beverage, such as cream soups, milk puddings, cocoa, and many others that will occur to the competent housewife. No mother can successfully nurse her baby unless she includes milk in her diet because baby needs large amounts of calcium for the making of bones, and milk is one of our chief sources of calcium. Care should be taken not to upset the digestion by eating too frequently or too heavily. Plenty of water should be taken between meals. Bowel elimination should be regular; this is best accomplished by means of laxative foods.

Rest should be adequate. At least eight hours and better still nine hours of sleep at night with an hour's rest in the fore part of each afternoon are needed. Excitement, worry and over exertion will seriously interfere with the secretion of the milk. In order to avoid these, the co-operation of all members of the family should be received.

The breasts should be emptied completely after each nursing because this stimulates the secretion of milk. If some milk is left in the breasts this tends to cause the diminution in amount of milk secreted. If the baby does not empty the breast, the residue should be artificially expressed.

The first month of life is a very perilous one and breast feeding is a great protection during this period. If all babies were breast fed the number of infant deaths would be greatly lessened. It must always be remembered that breast milk is the ideal food for the baby. The actual method of nursing and care of the breasts and other details with regard to maintaining an adequate supply should be discussed with your doctor during your periodical visits to have the baby supervised.

Hanson Charges Trainee System Weak

OTTAWA, March 15 (CP)—Opposition Leader Hanson says the weakness of the compulsory military training system is that the trainees cannot be forced to serve overseas in the defence of Canada.

In the course of a discussion of the training plan in the House of Commons yesterday, Mr. Hanson suddenly asked the government why it had not "the courage to go the whole way and retain the absolute right to utilize the services of these men for the defence of Canada over there?"

That "weakness" in the program was something the government would have to answer for to the people, Mr. Hanson declared.

The short Friday sitting was occupied by resumed consideration in committee of the $1,300,000,000 war appropriation resolution which now has been subject to 14 full days of debate.

Hon. J. G. Gardiner, minister of national war services, promised to bring down the new regulations covering the new four-month training plan as soon as they were ready, probably next week.

McNevin and the Arsenal

Shortly before five o'clock Bruce McNevin (Lib. Victoria) digressed to make a defence of Lindsay arsenal which is in his Ontario riding. He said it was highly efficient and that he had visited it frequently and conferred with employment officers who engaged men to work there. He deplored charges that patronage had been influencing the hiring of men for the plant.

Mr. Hanson chided the member for assuming a "proprietary" role over the arsenal and got into an interchange with some ministers over his own knowledge of military matters.

This prompted Mr. Hanson to go into details of the training plan in

P.C.V.S. PRESENTS - - -

Special To The Examiner
By Two Students of the P.C.V.S.

Contest

A multiplicity of contests were wound up at the Collegiate this week concerning paper and War Savings Stamps. The results of several other contests will be made public at the earliest opportunity.

Paper contests among the Grade Niners finished this week and proved Miss Bailey's Form 9H to be the winners over all other combatants. Miss Weddell's Form 9D came a close second but lacked the few papers necessary to make up the difference. 9H and 9D will now have the privilege of attending the morning assemblies for one week while the other forms wail over their misfortunes in their classrooms. The outcome of the battle was determined fairly and competently by a group of three expert mathematicians who judged the respective piles of paper during a weary tour of inspection of all Grade Nine form rooms. The judging committee was composed of Mr. C. S. Browne, Mr. R. D. Brown, and Mr. R. H. David.

On Tuesday the flags were awarded for the sale of War Savings Stamps and Certificates. XII A Academic, a form that is very much in the news lately, made a strong burst and sold $168 worth of Certificates and $135 worth of Stamps, making a total of $303. The average sale per pupil was $6.73 and Bernice Newman received the flag for her form.

XI A came first in their division by selling $150 worth of Stamps and $88 worth of Certificates, making a total of $238. Dorothy Frost was presented with the flag and the average sale per student was $6.10.

In other forms followed these stellar examples the Stamp and Certificate sales would remain consistently above the $1,200 mark.

The sale of Stamps and Certificates dropped off slightly this week. $800 worth of Stamps and $332 worth of Certificates being sold for a total of $1,132. Since last September over $11,000 worth of Stamps have been sold in our school. And Hitler thinks he can win with spirit like that ahead of him!

Echoes Circulation

The day of publication is coming closer for the Echoes and form representatives are procuring their orders. A total of 1022 Echoes had been ordered by Thursday morning and 1136 by Friday. This is slightly above the respective sales for last year's Echoes but we must boost them higher yet. The objective is 1400 copies but more won't hurt anyone. The deadline for orders is Monday night or Tuesday so work hard over the week-end.

Even though it is war time the advertisers have given our magazine the same liberal backing as in the past years. They have displayed confidence in the Echoes and we are proud of it. The Echoes belongs to the students, not to any one or group of editors, helpers, etc. therefore the students should support their magazine.

Send the Echoes to friends and relatives in other High Schools; they enjoy it almost as much as you do. The price suits everyone this year since it is only 25 cents per copy, as we mentioned last week.

Still More About The Play

The dance after the play lasted until 1:15 a.m. and proved a success; coffee and doughnuts were served. Music was supplied by the school gramaphone, a selection of school records, and others donated by good-natured students.

Many people have wondered at the thanks extended to a Mr. Brown of "Bright's Wines." To quell their curiosity we beg leave to report that no "fire-water" was donated but merely the steins and keg used in the tavern scene. Does that make you feel any better?

We think that the tavern scene was a masterpiece. The atmosphere would have done credit to any English inn of 1770. The rifle hanging on the wall, the ancient bellows by the fireplace, the steins, the landlady, and the cronies who gathered around the central table; all these added to this very realistic scene.

Did anyone notice the three candles at the back of the stage? They came perilously near blowing out several times due to the currents of air set up by several scurrying actors and actresses but luckily it only amounted to an erratic flickering.

A picture of the cast of "She Stoops to Conquer" is on display in the Camera Club showcase. It is finely mounted and should prove a lasting memento of the play to all interested. It is reasonable at 75 cents and was taken by Mr. Cripps, an expert local photograher. Orders should be left with Mr. V. R. Henry in Room No. 5.

The play was a tremendous success all around and will no doubt be long remembered as one of the best presented by the P.C.V.S. Dramatic Club. Again we offer congratulations to all who helped in any way in its presentation.

Teasette

A new foolproof system of keeping tab on the attendance at P.T. classes was adopted this week. Numbers ranging from 1 to 100 have been painted at two foot intervals around the border of the gymnasium and each boy has been allotted one number, which he must try to remember in order to find his proper position at the beginning of the period. The absence of one or several boys is indicated by a gap in the line. The instructor may check the number of the vacant space with the list in his book, determining who is absent. This system is so time-saving that the exercises will be lengthened by about five harrowing minutes.

Jack Thompson, past secretary of the P.C.V.S. Camera Club, and member of XII A Academic proved his photographic talents by a newspicture recently published in this paper. The picture showed the diver emerging from the Otonabee after fixing the piers of the new London street footbridge. For those interested the exposure was one, one hundredth of a second at f 4.5, on fast Panchromatic film.

To date there has been approximately six tons of paper collected under the supervision of Aaron Black.

In the recent paper contest between XIII A and XII A Academic, there was over two tons of paper accumulated by the hard working students. Two tons, if you please!

The customary party that is usually given to the winning form in the Echoes' Circulation contest has been dispensed with this year. However it should prove a matter of pride and satisfaction to the winning form when it is announced that they have sold the most Echoes. The Grade Nines will have a chance to gain some privileges for themselves if they sell a lot of Echoes. The form selling the most will be allowed to attend the assemblies for one week, as in the paper contests.

A movie was shown on Friday morning with the courtesy of the Canadian National Railways. It was a very interesting and educational color picture on the Gaspe Peninsula. The terrain of the country and the life of the people was vividly depicted and the movie was very spontaneously applauded.

The School Orchestra was very ably entertained at the home of their director, Mr. Bob Maybee, on Thursday night. After games and refreshments the grateful orchestra members departed with a stronger feeling of appreciation towards their leader.

Gross receipts for the play, "She Stoops to Conquer," were $506.70. After expenses have been paid the War Effort should be enriched by approximately $200 (one half the proceeds.

The result of last night's basketball games were a tie for the seniors and a defeat for the juniors. The juniors lost the game to Cobourg by a score of 20-16 and the seniors tied with Bowmanville, having a score of 24 all.

Cheese, Produce and Livestock

MONTREAL BUTTER HITS PEG

MONTREAL, March 15 — (AP) — Butter prices on the Canadian Commodity Exchange rose to the maximum price of 35 cents a pound during the week. This created an awkward situation for wholesale distributors who found that to satisfy their clients' needs they could not purchase butter under 35 cents a pound and could not sell it above that level so that the cost of handling represented a total loss. Trading under these circumstances naturally was not heavy. Supplies were light. The net advance in price on the week was ¼ cent, regraded spot butter selling at 35 cents bid. In the futures section, March option closed at 34⅞ cents bid against 34½ cents a week ago.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, March 15 — (AP) — Produce market prices here Friday, as reported by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, follow:

Butter. — First-grade creamery prints, jobbing price, 36c; first grade solids, jobbing price, 35½c; Quebec No. 1 pasteurized, regraded, wholesale price, 35c; Quebec No. 2 regraded, 34½c. Receipts: 1,966 boxes.

Cheese—Western white and colored, wholesale price, for export, 14c. Current receipt price Western white cheese, 14 5-16c; Western colored, 14½c. Receipts: Nil.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Mar. 15 — (CP). — Small gains dotted wheat prices at the finish of Friday's quiet session on Winipeg Grain Exchange as moderate purchases by Southern houses and mills combined light offerings to give the market a steady tone. Final quotations were ⅛ to ⅜ cent higher.

Export business in Canadian wheat was confined to the sale of a small quantity from stores at the Pacific Coast. The amount of wheat involved could not be determined, but it was believed to have been sold to the Orient. Buenos Aires values were off ⅛ cent at the halfway mark.

Light trading in coarse grains brought out minor shipper support in oats and barley as well as a little speculation in flax. Rye was almost neglected.

Yesterday's Quotations.

ment so far as not been able to do. The information regarding these assemblages, however, came from travellers, and was not confirmed officially.

There was every indication that Britain's bombing of the German-held European coast was preparatory to an attempt at invasion in which picked young troops, trained for months to fight hard, without food if necessary and without sleep, might establish footholds which others, as eager but possibly not as well trained, could seize in an effort to re-establish a battleground in Europe and gradually push the German out of countries they seized by tactics of surprise.

On other fronts the Germans appeared to be getting nowhere at the moment. Yugoslavia still stalled on the German demands she join the so-called Tripartite Axis agreement, apparently wondering what Greece and Turkey might have to say to her after the war.

fest. The convoy dispersed the moment the first midnight torpedo let go——in the vitals of a freighter bobbing along on our starboard beam, only a few hundred yards away. From then on every ship was on its own and we did not sight any of our convoy-sisters the rest of the voyage.

The most striking thing about the ordeal no one of the hundred passengers will ever forget was their own remarkable coolness. Perhaps it was that most of them had hardened through living in England under the death that flies by night.

They All Can "Take It"

London—all of the United Kingdom, in fact—can take it. Certainly the merchant seaman can take it. And seemingly so can the passengers they risk their lives to transport.

The first warning that the undersea terror had struck were shudders which seemed to ripple the steel of our ship.

They came from the concussion of the torpedoes which blasted the four vessels running astern.

Those shudders electrified most people out of their sleep. The few moments of horrible wonderment which followed were quickly ended by the low moaning of the ship's klaxons.

Our captain, who left his home in Hull, England, more than 40 years ago to ship as a sea-man apprentice, had rehearsed us well against such an emergency. He had been through four U-boat assaults earlier in this war and others that short span of years ago when the Germany of the Kaisers last plunged the world into flames.

All Go To Bed Clothed

Everyone went to bed warmly clothed. For myself, I slept in woollen underwear, thigh - high hockey stockings saved from school days in Ottawa, flannel trousers, a sweatshirt snatched from Harold Starr as a memento of his glorious football day with Ottawa Roughriders.

Other woollens and such bluechasers as cigarettes and a flask of rum lay at the bedside. These were snatched up once we were into shoes, overcoat and cap.

Just before we joined the hurrying flow of passengers to lifeboat stations on the upper deck one of my two cabin-mates made a gallant jest meant as a nerve-steadier. The humor of it made it work.

It was J. M. Hanlon, a tall youth from Surrey en route to Canada to join a new merchant ship. He is a ship's third officer whose life has been salted by sea spray for eight years.

A Nerve Bracer

He wanted to pass along to us his own brave coolness. He said: "rotten hour to have a boat drill, what."

At five in the morning all of us knew it was no such thing. But we laughed together and it did steady us.

Up on the boat deck we expected to find a scene at least tinctured by hysteria. Among the half hundred women and girls on board, who ranged in age from eight to 80, were some who had been brushed by death in previous torpedoings.

There was, for instance, Miss D. McMahon of Montreal, who had seen scores of children and seamen die when the Nazis sank the City of Benares. That was the last ship to leave the United Kingdom with eager youngsters the British Government wished to evacuate to Canada and safety. The Canadian woman was buffeted for 24 hours before a destroyer found her lifeboat.

Even more terrifying must have been the memory that flashed to the mind of Mrs. Irmi Goeritz. A young German matron from Saxony who lost her husband, two children, brother, sister-in-law and cousin at sea last fall. She was with them aboard the Simon Bolivar when a magneto mine found that Dutch liner.

Mr. Goeritz gave up his business and moved to Holland from the Reich three years ago. He was en route to Chile with his little family and relatives when tragedy struck. Alone, bravely, his widow is going to the Eastern United States, probably to farm with relatives.

Another who might have been expected to be unnerved was a Regina girl in her mid-20's who came away from England and the bombs only because her first child is but six weeks away.

No Chance to Fight Back.

And there were men who had struggled against the Nazis for the right to live in freedom as they have known it. Now they were facing the prospect of going down and perhaps out without a chance to fight back.

There was W. Bazosowski, a Pole in his early 30's who has been only a few jumps ahead of the Germans since December, 1939. He is a master craftsman in the manufacture of airplane instruments and the Nazis wanted his skill. He fled Warsaw when he learned that. The hunt persisted through Czecho-Slovakia, Rumania, Hungary, and France. In Canada he will contribute his skill to the Empire's war effort.

Another was Pilot Officer Jack Kennerly, a lanky young aviator from Pasadena, California, who has been flying with the American Eagle Squadron of the Royal Air Force.

He shattered his ear drums in a five-mile-a-minute dive on the tail of a Heinkel bomber. After a few months' convalescence he wants to get back into his Hurricane "and show those damn squareheads some more hot lead."

Everybody Calm.

But up there on the wind-combed deck, waiting for the expected command, "take to lifeboats," there was nothing but calmness. It was contagious.

It was exemplified by a young English housewife bound for Brandon, Manitoba, to join her aviator-husband of the R.A.F. who is helping train the air-fighters so keenly needed now. We had been teaching her a smattering of Canadian.

"Hya palsy walsy," she chirped cheerily as we met on deck. "Been up all night?"

There was another laugh over the rattle-headedness of our 17-year-old stowaway. He was trying to escape from the tedium of work in a Bristol drygoods store. His hope of finding a new life in Canada's wheatlands ended, for the time being at least when he was discovered 60 hours out of England.

When the klaxon tumbled him out of his bunk he got both legs into one trouser-leg. And up on deck, when finally he reached it, it was found his trousers were backwards.

Only one woman swooned. She had been bunked down for 36 hours with seasickness. A jolt of brandy fixed her.

Out in the darkness that eyes could not stab we knew brave ships were dying. In the heavy seas racing at the time brave men must have been, too.

Guns Rumble Once

Now and then there was a fitful light from starshells put up by our warship escort. In the blackness a submarine usually comes to the surface to get manoeuverability and liner aim for its torpedoes. By the light of the flares the naval men were looking for such subs. There was on brief cough of gunfire, several times the thunder of the depth charges.

Bundled in life-jackets and as many layers of clothing as they were able to snatch up, the passengers stood to on deck for one tense hour. By that time we had steamed far from the grim scene. The skipper sent us to the lounge and smoking room for warmth and hot coffee.

The smoking room is the bar room so there were warmer things than coffee going the rounds. Then there was singing—"Alouette," "Roll Out the Barrel" and other old standbys.

The midnight alert was almost the same, except that it came at the end of the day when heads were loggy with weariness and anxiety. After the first shock of knowing danger was so near, many of the passengers fell asleep as we waited in the lounge until the captain reasoned we were clear of the danger zone.

It must take courage as well as calmness to sleep with death as a bed-fellow. Yes, sea-faring and sea-going people can take it quite as well as old London.

Curling Notes

By HERB MARTIN

After trailing for 11 ends, Leo Ackford came through with a beautiful shot on the last end to count two and win for his rink the Vice-Skips' bonspiel for 1941, and the right to hold the E. G. Patterson Cup till next season.

Playing real hard-fought ends, Ackford and Ryan fought it out every inch of the way, and the game was never won until Tom Ryan played a little light on his last stone.

All players played well, and special mention must be made of the two new leads.

And so all the schedule games set out by the schedule committee came to a close last evening. Any curling we have from now on will all be "extra."

Miss H. Fanning's rink won the final in the consolation of the Sturgeon Trophy, yesterday, when her rink defeated the one skipped by Mrs. R. Turner. The margin was two shots.

Playing at Peterborough last night, in the Lindsay-Peterborough Cup, the Lindsay boys were up four shots. We have no returns of what happened in Lindsay.

assigned for the evacuation. He volunteered immediately.

"We shoved off for France in a hurry and in all kinds of ships," the young Canadian said. "I was in charge of a 'schout,' a Dutch freighter of about 300 tons used for running across the channel and to Norway. We made three trips in 10 days—one to St. Malo and two to Jersey.

"We took ammunition to St. Malo and brought back troops. It wasn't a very lucky trip. We had gone right into the harbor at St. Malo and on the way out our ship broke down and had to be towed to Jersey. On the way a couple of Gerries' flew over and dropped a few bombs around us. Their aim wasn't very good, though, and the nearest bomb fell 100 yards from us."

About 250 persons, including soldiers, were removed to England aboard the ship. Most of them were Jersey islanders.

"We were at St. Malo while the British demolition parties were blowing things up." Frewer related. "A couple of us picked up an automobile the British forces had abandoned and drove it around the town for a while. Finally, we ran it off the jetty so the Germans wouldn't get it."

The Germans were within 50 miles of the town and there was considerable panic, Frewer said.

"People were running for the boats, throwing their house keys to strangers. There were a lot of people with handbags as their only baggage. They were weeping on people's shoulders."

Before the Canadian took his 'schout' out of the harbor the proprietor of a beverage house presented him with a case of champagne.

"He figured it would be better for us to have it than to let it go to waste," Frewer smiled. "Anyway, it was all gone before we reached England."

Frewer, who has been aboard the St. Laurent since last November, is a son of Captain G. D. Frewer of Canada Steamship Lines, to which he went from the Cunard Line.

tle started I felt the ship rock. Our guards dashed up on the deck and left the doors unlocked. We followed them and I saw a sight I shall never forget. A German destroyer was moored to our ship, and while I looked at it a torpedo from a British warship struck it amidships and it sank in about two minutes. Only five of the crew were saved, the rest were killed or drowned.

"The whole harbor was aflame with gunfire, I saw another German destroyer go under and a third was so badly crippled that it was abandoned. German merchant vessels were sinking all over the harbor, in an attempt to bottle up the English destroyers, but they got out before the manoeuvre could be executed, and I saw houses burst into flames ashore.

"I saw the destroyer Hardy, commanded by Commander Warburton-Lee, who received the Victoria Cross posthumously for his daring, run aground in the harbor. The survivors got ashore and joined the Norwegians," said Smith, "what is called the Angenes side of the fjord."

Removed To Shore

The prisoners were removed to the shore by the Germans, and put in a railway hut, there was just room for them to lie down, and no more. The Nazis told them they would be taken to Hamburg, but Smith and his companions had other ideas.

"Then we were transferred to a schoolhouse in the centre of town and were kept there during the second battle of Narvik until April 24, the food rations were pretty skimpy, all we got was a half cup of bean soup for our main meal and sometimes a cup of coffee at night. The Germans were bringing in food by planes.

"Our tobacco and cigarettes were pooled after our capture," said Smith, "and when we ran out we asked the guard to buy us some from the Norwegians. They told us English money wouldn't be accepted, as they said it was no good, but finally I was allowed out with a guard to make purchases, and found the Norwegians quite willing to take the money."

Matters became continually worse and Smith and some of the others decided to make a break for freedom, only three of them managed to get out, and they hid in the swamps by day, and tramped through the rugged countryside by night into Sweden.

"We had to wade through slush up to our waists at times and we walked until we were exhausted," he said, "We managed to get some raw fish and other food which kept us going. I think we walked about 35 miles, and finally managed to stagger over the border into Sweden."

Shelled By British

Then came the voyage by boat, the shelling both by Germans and British, and the eventual landing in the Scottish port. Smith then obtained a short leave, but had to work his way home to see his parents for the first time in three years.

Lawson Blakely of Lindsay, a close chum of Smith, was employed by the Marconi Company in London at the same time, he made two trips to Canada and was one of the last membersof the crew to leave the ill-fated steamer Pennsylvania when it was torpedoed in the Atlantic, off the Scottish coast; he is now with the Trans-Canada Airways.

name specifically.

Few airplanes, the diplomat continued, have been transported yet to the Greek mainland.

(British planes co-operating with Greek forces in Albania have been based mainly on the island of Crete.)

Because of the difficulty of communication between Greece and other Balkan countries, and also because rigid censorship exists now in Greece, it is impossible to obtain confirmation of this diplomat's story.

Neutral military observers arriving in Belgrade by air said 100 to 200 German military planes were being turned up at the Sofia airport alone. Some were Germany's largest type bombers.

Similar preparations were reported being made at 24 other airports taken over by German forces in scattered sections of southern Bulgaria.

(German forces have been massing there for two weeks, presumably to add weight to reported German pressure on Greece to give up her war in Albania and talk peace on Mussolini's terms).

The most ominous-sounding statement yet from German sources was contained in a dispatch to Belgrade newspapers from Berlin saying:

"The new moment has arrived which may have decisive results on Greek-German relations."

Warning From Berlin

Reports that British troops have landed in Greece lacked official confirmation but warnings began to come from Berlin that Germany would act if such landings actually were made.

(The Nazis apparently are getting ready their excuses in case they march into Greece.)

These warnings said "no authentic confirmation' of reports of British troop movements toward Greece had been received in Berlin. 'However when British help to Greece becomes of serious character....military intrvention of the Reich will follow quickly."

The fact that neither Berlin nor German diplomatic quarters anywhere in the Balkans have taken official notice of some neutral observers as giving good reason to believe such reports are erroneous.

Censorship which veils the movements of the German expeditionary force in Bulgaria as well as developments in Greece combined with the distortion of news for propaganda purposes to make the military situation increasingly difficult to ascertain here.

British sources said that even if British troops actually landed in Greece, no official British or Greek confirmation was likely to be forthcoming immediately.

Germans control communications lines throughout Bulgaria and have forbidden travel in zones they occupy across from the Greek frontier.

26 Killed In Berlin

BERLIN, March 15 — (AP) — Twenty-six persons were killed and 28 injured in the British raid on Berlin Wednesday night an announcement today said.

Branch Notes

ST. JOHN'S A.Y.P.A.

St. John's A.Y.P.A. held its weekly meeting on Wednesday night. A short business period was conducted when plans were made for a Corporate Communion and breakfast, to be held the first Sunday in April with Miss Florence Gynane in charge. The District Lenten Rally will take place on Wednesday, March 19, in St. John's Parish Hall. All members are requested to attend. Miss Kay Chivas and her group were in charge for the rest of the evening. Three or four games of volleyball were enjoyed by all members. Nelson Hewitt, president, closed the meeting with prayer.

ST. GEORGE'S A.Y.P.A.

The weekly meeting on Thursday was opened by the president, Bea. Curtis, with a hymn and prayer.

In the absence of the Worship convener, Vera Downs, the president introduced the special speaker for the evening, Clarence Corbett.

Mrs. Ed. Adkinson moved the vote of thanks to Mr. Corbett on behalf of the A.Y.P.A.

The members are reminded of the Lenten Rally in St. John's Parish Hall next Wednesday at 8 o'clock.

A.Y.P.A. DISTRICT COUNCIL

The Annual Lenten Rally is to be held on Wednesday of next week, March 19, at St. John's Church, Peterborough, at eight o'clock. There will be a short general meeting, following the service in the church. —The Voice of the District Council.

ST. LUKE'S BRANCH

Mrs. Foster and her group were responsible for the program on Monday evening, and as usual it was a good one consisting of musical contests and other games. At a short business meeting a letter from the Dominion A.Y.P.A. concerning the Sunday School by Post was discussed. The Dominion has asked each branch to pay the cost of teaching the Sunday School lesson to as many children as that branch can afford. This branch decided to pay for ten children.

Next week the branch is entertaining Mark Street United Church Y.P.S. at a St. Patrick's Night party. Miss Hope and her group will be in charge.

Members are reminded of the District Lenten Rally service in St. John's Church at 8 p.m. Wednesday night, March 19.

BOWLING LEAGUE

This league wound up its schedule for the year on March 8, and the four following teams play off tonight, at 7 p.m. for first and second place. Apaches (St. Luke's); MicMacs (St. George's), Mohawks (St. Luke's) and Senecas (All Saints'). The high singles high three, high averages and team prizes will be presented at the annual banquet to be held later. Your team will be glad of your support tonight.

Comfort In Dark Days Is Offered By Apostle John

By REV. E. R. JAMES.

"If ye had known me yet should have known my father also," St. John 14:7.

Can you hear the note of pathos and disappointment in the voice of the Lord? "If ye had known Me ye should have known my Father also." He had been with them for nearly three years and yet they had not recognized Him. They have looked upon the Face of the Pure One; they have heard His voice of sympathy when He touched the leper and said: "I will, be thou clean." They were sure He was a Prophet—a man sent from God with a message for His generation. "Never man spake as He spake." But the tremendous and heart shaking truth that He is the only begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth, had not dawned on them. As Jews they envied the privilege of Moses, who cried with deep emotion: "Lord, show me thy glory." And the Lord passed by and proclaimed His name as full of mercy and graciousness. They saw the Son Himself, the Word made flesh, and their eyes were holden.

An Astonishing Truth.

The astonishing truth is that it was only after His death and resurrection and ascension that they realized the truth that He is the Son of God in a most mysterious sense of the word.

"Philip saith unto him, Lord, show us the Father and it sufficeth us." We owe to St. John all we know of Philip. The Lord personally called him. 1:43. It is Philip who helps Nathaniel in his hour of difficulty: "Can any good thing come out of Nazareth" asks the loyal traditionalist. Philip answers: "Come and see."

It is to Philip the Master turns with the question: "Whence shall we buy bread that these may eat?" It is to Philip that Greeks come with the moving question: "Sir, we would see Jesus."

These devout and God fearing Jews would ask for nothing better than to have a vision of the Father. They would consider themselves more favored than kings, prophets and wise men.

Jesus saith unto him, have I been so long time with you, and yet hast thou not known Me, Philip? Bishop Westcott, a great master of this Gospel, points out that the position of "Philip" at the end of the sentence intensifies the appeal. The Lord adds the breath taking claim: "He that hath seen me hath seen the Father."

You have been born a Christian, baptised and a communicant. The living Christ asks you the same personal question. Or is the word Christ merely a phrase, a name. Is is your earnest desire that your eyes may be opened to see the King in His glory and beauty? What would you give to have a vision of that fascinating Personality, the Lord Christ? Read carefully those four-word portraits—the four Gospels—and pray that your eyes may be opened to see Him, Who is full of truth, beauty and goodness. You will see something of His ideals of courage, obedience and love. Then you will with a full heart follow Him.

Came To Reveal The Father.

The Lord Jesus has come to reveal the Father. He is the perfect Image o. God, the Father. Have you seen anything of His patience; His patience in dealing with you? "He has not dealt with you according to your sins. It is of the Lord's mercy that you are not consumed. He is the Chief vine-dresser and is pleading that you may be given another chance to repent.

The Lord through His Holy Spirit gives us that vision not for passive contemplation but for inspiration and transfiguration. "That Christ may be formed in you." That you may very humbly reflect something of His Image through His indwelling Spirit and that your fellows may see something of the Father in you and be attracted to Him.

In the day of storm, in the hour of anxiety, He will reveal Himself more clearly as He whispers in your heart: "Be of good courage, I have overcome the world."

Comfort ye, comfort ye, my people, saith the Lord.

The Golden Text

"As often as ye eat this bread, and drink the cup, ye proclaim the Lord's death till He come."—I Cor. 11:26.

Lord's Supper Inaugurated During Time of Passover

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for March 16 is Luke 22:1-38, the Golden Text being I Cor. 11:26, "As often as ye eat this bread, and drink the cup, ye proclaim the Lord's death till He come.")

✧ ✧ ✧

THE FEAST of unleavened bread, called the Passover, was near. It commemorated the time when the Jewish people were captives in Egypt and the angel of the Lord sprinkled blood on all the doors of the Israelites so that they should be passed over, while the first-born of every Egyptian should perish.

Jesus and his disciples were to celebrate this feast in Jerusalem. In the meantime, the Lord's enemies, the chief priests and the scribes, plotted how they might kill Him. "Then," says Luke, "entered Satan into Judas surnamed Iscariot, being of the number of the 12."

How could Judas, having had the wonderful privilege of being with Jesus and knowing Him well, have plotted against Him? It is inconceivable, but Judas went to these wicked men, enemies of his Master, and said he would betray Him to them for a small sum of money, about $20. He did not dare do it when the common people, who loved Christ, were by, but promised to betray Him "in the absence of the multitude."

On the day of the Passover, Jesus sent Peter and John to prepare a place for them to eat. They were to go into the city, the Lord told them, and they would see a man carrying a pitcher of water on his head. This was odd, because the women of the household were the water carriers. The two disciples were to follow this man to his home, where there was a large upper guest chamber. There they should prepare for the feast.

Disciple of the Master

It is likely that this man who bore the water was a disciple of the Lord's and had expected He would eat this feast at his home. At the time of the Passover the whole city would be full of people and places would be hard to find.

Jesus and His apostles sat down at the table, Jesus apparently with His coming trial and dreadful death constantly in His thoughts, but with the disciples so far from being troubled that they disputed among themselves as to whom should be greatest among them. Not even when the Lord said: "With desire have I desired to eat this passover with you before I suffer," did any present seem to understand what He meant.

"And He took bread, and gave thanks, and brake it, and gave unto them, saying, This is My body, which is given for you: this do in remembrance of Me."

Taking the cup of wine He said: "This cup is the new testament in My blood, which is shed for you."

These men who had been intimate with the Lord all the time of His teaching, seemed from the account not to take alarm even when He said: "But, behold, the hand of him that betrayeth Me is with Me on the table."

They did indeed begin inquiring among themselves which of them it might be that should do so dastardly a thing, but then they commenced the dispute as to who should be accounted the greatest. Jesus had told them, you remember, that he who would be greatest among them should be the servant of the others. That is a vital point for us all to remember. Not he or she who wears the finest clothes, lives in the most luxury or set himself up as superior to others really is the greatest among us. It may be the humblest servant. If he or she serves others by loving personal sacrifice, he or she is greater than a king or queen.

Jesus loved Simon Peter, but He also knew wherein he was weak, so He said to Peter that He had been praying for him that his faith would not fail. "Lord, I am ready to go with Thee, both into prison, and to death," asserted Peter. Jesus must have smiled sadly, as He answered: "I tell thee, Peter, the cock shall not crow this day, before thou shall thrice deny that thou knowest Me."

The Lord then told His disciples that they should hereafter be armed with purse and scrip and a sword to protect themselves in their travels.

Red Cross Bale Packed

CAMPBELLFORD, Mar. 15 — (ENS).—Fifty ladies of the Campbellford Red Cross Society met on Thursday afternoon in their work room where they completed three quilth and packed refugee clothing, including 10 dresses, 5 sweaters, 3 gowns, 21 pairs of gloves and mittens, 2 afghans, 4 boys' suits. A shipment was sent to headquarters, including 10 sweaters, 17 scarfs, 7 helmets, 6 pairs gloves, 47 pairs mittens, 90 pairs socks, 14 pairs pyjamas and 1 quilt.

Following the secretary's report, given by Miss Stella Keir, Mrs. R. A. Linton, vice-president, acknowledged the donations from the following: Holy Angels Sodality of St. Mary's Church, $65.20; English Line W.A. 3 quilts and $11.50, and $12.50 from the Campbellford High School Literary Society.

Cancel Bookings

SHANGHAI, Mar. 15 — (AP). — The Canadian Pacific Steamship Line cancelled all reservations for its Trans-Pacific routes to-day and announced it would not accept future bookings.

Company officials said the action was made necessary by uncertainty over sailings caused by withdrawal of three or four liners for use elsewhere.

Suffering and Sacrifice Not Popular In Preaching

W. T. Stead, the well-known British journalist, after witnessing the Passion Play at Oberammergau, came away saying to himself: "This is the story which has transformed the world." And he seemed to hear an echo from the Bavarian hills about him. "Yes, and will transform it." Yes it must be confessed that in our day the cross does not hold the central place in preaching. Christianity is rather set forth as a way of life, and the example and teaching of Jesus are emphasized rather than His death.

The explanation may be that the cross is not popular with congregations. It stands for suffering and sacrifice and people do not like to be reminded of these things. In addition, the doctrine of the cross is difficult to interpret; it raises at one stroke the problems of God and man, and their mutual relations The writer has heard several series of Lenten sermons by outstanding men, and he cannot remember one occasion in which the cross was the preacher's theme.

A question that every thoughtful man will raise as he approaches the story of the death of Christ (who is acknowledged to be the finest person that ever lived on earth) is this: Who was responsible for nailing Him to the cross? And why did they do such a wicked act? Closely connected with this question is the more practical one for us, Have the hateful motives that led these people to crucify Him any equivalent in our time? These questions will be faced at the evening service in St. Andrew's Church next Sunday.

Some of the designs turned out for submission to the units by Disney and his staff are shown.

Freedom Is Retarded In Slaves To Habit

CAMPBELLFORD, March 15.—(ENS). — Slaves to habit were condemned by Rev. G. N. Maxwell, whose address to members of St. John's Y.P.U. formed the principal feature of the Monday meeting. Rev. Mr. Maxwell, who has been delivering a series of talks to the organization, chose as his topic this week "Freedom." He cautioned the Young People that to be truly free they must first become masters of themselves, and cease being slaves to habit.

Cecil Stephens led in the call to worship and opening prayer of the meeting and Leo Coveney gave the Scripture reading.

Other items on the program included a piano solo by G. W. Lucy and a vocal solo by Mrs. Doris Potts During the business portion of the meeting the president, Len Smith, announced the group had accepted an invitation to attend a joint meeting as guests of the neighboring group in Hastings on March 17.

St. Andrew's Y. P. S.

St. Andrew's Young People's Society completed arrangements for a Chinese checkers party to be held next Monday in the church basement. This was the principal item of business at their weekly meeting presided over by the president, Mrs. Bruce Grills.

Taught Class For 20 Years

Twenty years leader of the A.S.K. Class of Knox Church Sunday School, Andrew McKenzie recalled yesterday with something akin to fatherly fondness some of the boys of that class now grown to manhood and taking in the affairs of the country a part that warmly rewards those who helped in the guiding and influencing of their youth.

One of the young men of that class was Pilot Officer Ross Allen, who was killed overseas some months ago. Another who has come into recent industrial prominence in Peterborough is Ian McRae, newly apopinted works manager of the Canadian General Electric Company.

Mr. McKenzie said he would like to recall them all, but that was impossible. Some others he mentioned as standing out in his memory by their later achievements are:

Robert McLeish, manager of a glass manufacturing company in Montreal; John R. Heron, of the Public Relations Department of the Royal Bank, Montreal; Major James Turnbull, second in command of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders; L. H. Ingram, personnel manager with the Quaker Oats Company in Peterborough; Flying Officer William Jackson with the R.C.A.F. in Toronto; Chester Thurber, inspector of C.N.R. rolling stock in the Maritime Provinces; Harvey Henry, manager of McKercher & Wanless, men's wear, in Ottawa; Don Hill, chief inspector with the C.G.E., the position Mr. McKenzie held for years.

The Lord's Supper — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON — By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Luke 22:1-38.

As the feast of unleavened bread drew near, the chief priests and scribes plotted to kill the Lord, and Judas Iscariot, being tempted by Satan, communed with them how he might betray his Master to them, for money.

On the day of the Passover Jesus sent Peter and John to get ready. Jesus told them they would meet a man with a pitcher of water on his head, they were told to follow him, and at his house prepare the feast.

At table the Master brake bread and gave it to the apostles, saying, "This is My body which is given for you"; and He took wine saying, "This cup is the new testament in My blood, which is shed for you."

The Lord told Peter He had been praying that Peter might not be tempted. Peter said he would go with his Master, even to death, but Jesus said Peter would deny Him ere the cock crew. (GOLDEN TEXT—I Cor. 11:26)

The Control Of The Tongue

It is necessary and right that our provincial legislatures should be in session, although there are times when one is inclined to believe that things will be running along much better when they conclude their sittings.

There was a fair enough example of the reason for that statement given in the Nova Scotia Legislature by George M. Morrison, the member from Cape Breton South, who is also a Lieutenant in the Canadian Active Army. He was speaking on the budget debate and took occasion to refer to the attitude of Ontario during the conference on the Sirois report. A few of his remarks we quote:

"Unfortunately we have in Canadian politics our Quislings who, whether they know it or not, are playing the Hitler game.

"That conference came to naught chiefly because of one of them, the Premier of Ontario.

"I am sure I speak for all Nova Scotians when I say his attitude was one of an enemy of this country, and if Nova Scotians had their way he would be put in a detention camp tomorrow."

According to the Parliamentary Guide, Mr. Morrison who made that statement is well educated. He has had the advantage of university training and is a barrister by profession. That being the case he speaks as one who should know the worth of statements, and he should be able to judge well the effect of what he has to say.

We have no hesitation whatever in saying that his statement regarding the Premier of Ontario falls into that already too large classification of things which had much better never been said. Suggesting that Premier Hepburn (although Mr. Morrison did not use his name) should be placed in an internment camp, and that such action would meet with the approval of all the people in Nova Scotia, is such loose talk that it suggests Mr. Morrison's brain has been better educated than his tongue.

It is such speeches which bring into existence the feeling that it will be better when the Legislature concludes its business so that more of them can no longer be made.

We Need Assurance

Two student airmen were killed in Moncton on a Wednesday, and on the same day two in Saskatchewan met death. On Thursday of the same week a head-on crash of two bombers took the lives of seven young airmen, all from England, who were training at Port Albert. And that made eleven fatalities in two days. For the moment we are not considering the loss of planes even if they are scarce enough at the moment.

There have been statements made to the effect that such accidents in Canada have not been running above what might have been anticipated, although it is difficult, even by reference to figures, to come to a fair conclusion of what the ratio of such smashes to the number of air-hours ought to be.

We know that automobiles, driven along good highways and in the most favorable weather conditions, go crashing into each other, and possibly it is out of the question to expect that young men in the course of training in the air shall be subject to none of the same calamities.

Men who have had experience in the air have told us that when planes are flying in formation they get along better than when going alone. The planes know and respect their positions and are not at all likely to crash one into the other. Our informant said two planes flying singly were more apt to collide.

It would not be possible to comment intelligently on such matters, but we do suggest that the most searching inquiry should be undertaken by experts and responsible officials to determine if our training air losses are not too high. We believe our people would feel better if they were assured that every known and possible step is being taken to make certain that young men training for air battle are surrounded by all the aid, caution and assistance it is possible to provide for them.

The Stop-Buying Idea

One public spirited woman in Western Ontario has been advising that the ladies should wear their dresses for three or four years and that they should start using cotton stockings. The money which they thus save would be turned into the national war effort.

The question has been asked by others: What, then, is going to become of the people who are in the business of making and selling dresses? If there is no business for them, then they will all have to close up shop and discharge their help.

It is also a fact if the "stop-buying" program were carried to considerable length there would be an immediate falling off in such revenue as goes to the government from sales tax, wages tax, and to other governments through business tax and real estate levies.

It has always seemed to us that a community where people are working, where money is being circulated, is the place which will best maintain its tax-paying ability, no matter from which quarter the request for taxation, revenue or contributions may come. Shoving off to extremes may satisfy the feelings of some people, but it may also mean the ruination of others. It's a situation where a good injection of common sense may help a great deal.

Why a Special Day?

Sunday, March 23, has been set aside as a day of prayer throughout Canada, coinciding with the National Day of Prayer in the United Kingdom "on behalf of the nation and empire, their Allies and the cause in which they are united." Prime Minister King urged observation of the day as "a time of humble prayer and intercession."

With the general idea we are at once in sympathy, but the question will not down—"Why wait until that particular day?" Is the Lord not as willing to hear the petitions of His people today, tonight or tomorrow as on the 23rd of March?

Does the naming of a special day for prayer carry with it the suggestion that on other days we do little or nothing about it? If our people are not driven to their knees daily in times such as these then there is something loose or missing entirely. If ever there was a time when we as a nation should be much in prayer asking that our lives should be so strengthened, fashioned and dedicated so that we might be made fit to survive, then that time is right now. Setting aside a special day is all right, and to such plan we have not the least objection. But why wait until the 23rd of March?

Starting a Home Industry

The question of securing a war industry was mentioned at the meeting of Campbellford Town Council. There had been visitors in town looking over several available buildings, but nothing definite was reported as to the outcome.

Mayor F. F. Long made this suggestion: "There is a real need of an industry in town and citizens should all band together and start one of their own."

As a suggestion that admittedly has a good deal of common sense in it, but it is one which has never found much backing in any municipality. We have heard that same matter discussed by men who had tried it and their opinion was there was nothing much harder to do than try and find sufficient capital for an industry, and find it right in the community. Their experience had been that it would be much easier to sell stock in something being started elsewhere. Investors did not seem to consider it was possible to start something right at home and make a go of it.

We believe that to be true enough. We have known people who had money to invest and they would listen to the salesman who had some shares to sell in a mine of which the investor had never heard, and about which he never took the trouble to inquire. The fact that it was a long way from home seemed to add to the lure of the venture.

Gathering funds for starting something at home has always been difficult, and it is equally difficult to put the finger on the actual reason. Most people prefer to wait for some person from the outside world to arrive and see the opportunity and develop it. That same feeling or tendency runs like a straight line through most of our municipalities, large and small. The Mayor of Campbellford made a perfectly logical remark, but it will be found hard to carry the idea into effective action.

As It Was On The Tenth

Some enterprising chap wants to sell us a series of articles on "Etiquette," and has sent along some samples. They run in the form of questions and answers, like this: "Should a spoon be left in a tea cup or placed in the saucer?" Of course the answer goes on to say it should never be left in the cup. Well, we're not going to buy these articles because teaching people of the community what is called "etiquette" is not exactly in our line of business.

On the Tenth Concession there were no sets of rules about what to do with a spoon or with a tea cup. People went according as they felt about it, and in that way there was opportunity for what can be called the expression of one's own personality.

The hired man for instance had a great deal of personality, and it seemed always to be craving for expression some way or other. When he got his tea he put in two spoons of sugar and then he proceeded to stir it up in a sort of whirling motion. He never did like to leave a lot of sugar resting in the bottom of the cup and we remember having heard the folk says when it came to washing dishes that the hired man always cleaned out his cup.

When he gave it a stir he left the spoon in the cup; when he took a sup he left the spoon standing right there, but it never poked him in the eye because he had developed a technique all his own for keeping it in place. When he took hold of the handle of the cup one finger went around the handle of the spoon and tied it up as neat as you could wish, and then when he wished to do a little more stirring before the next supping the spoon was right there where he knew where to look for it.

There were times when the tea was too hot, and those times were mostly always. Grandfather possibly never read any of the articles on "etiquette" and he poured the tea carefully into the saucer and from the saucer he would drink. Saucers on the Tenth were generous things, rather great in depth, and their spacious dimensions probably suggested drinking from them.

It might seem somewhat out of place today were the hired man to return to the well regulated table and use his fork to spear a piece of bread when the plate was just a little beyond reach. He was not one who called for a great deal of attention and he did not want to impede the progress of others by having them passing things to him which he could reach himself. There was something rather deft about the way the hired man speared; he was not the bungler with a fork; his trajectory was admirable and his aim was true. He nipped off one slice and disturbed nothing at all.

When he spread his bread he placed the slice in the palm of his hand and there he performed the operation of laying on the butter. That way he seemed to have opportunity to inspect his workmanship and know that it was good. There had been no place missed and no section slighted.

Possibly such things should not be done in this age when people write articles on how to eat and where to lay the various tools and implements used in the process. But on the Tenth people took their victuals as they considered they should be taken. Were we to begin now telling people how to eat it would seem like dimming and calling into question the ways and customs of grandfather and of the hired man. And that we have no intention of doing.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Things are getting better in New York. A strike of bus drivers is reported to have put 900,000 of the residents on their feet.

One of the busiest sections of the Italian army these days consists of the fellows who are responsible for running up the white flag.

It is announced that oil taken from the liver of a shark is rich in vitamin A. Just what A does to you is something about which we are uncertain at the moment, but if in need of it the proper thing would be to go out and catch a shark.

TWO SIDES

(By A.R.K.)

¶ I pay my taxes and complain I get no value for my kale, the tax man gives to me a pain, he should be in the village jail.

¶ That's all they think about each year, they started back in eighty-three, they have a notion odd and queer to wham the ducats out of me.

¶ But I must stop and ponder more and stop my mad complaining pace, for wise men tell me o'er and o'er there are two sides to every case.

¶ If bandits came upon my shack to shoot wild slugs by quart and peck, the sleuths would camp upon their back, they'd put big ropes about their neck.

¶ And they would bid me go to bed nor worry of the bandit scare, they'd fill the wild men full of lead, sit on their chests and pull their hair.

¶ If I was choring out at night, and if my lantern blew and bust, the firemen hasten for a fight, one could not see their heels for dust.

¶ And so it is I dwell in peace or sit beneath my basswood tree, my fear for safety it can cease, bad men can't come and tackle me.

¶ So thus I stop and meditate about the taxes that I pay, I muffle in my hymn of hate and cough up like a cheerful jay.

CAP and BELLS . .

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

DURING this past week I have been discussing in this column Mr. Lars Moen's remarkable book on the German Occupation of Europe "Under The Iron Heel"; I finished the last article with a statement based on Mr. Moen's finding that the defeated nations of Europe feel that Capitalism, as a system, has failed them and that after this war they must find something better. The question is, What? In spite of all the arguments and propaganda of the Marxists few Europeans have any use for Communism and cannot bring themselves to regard it as the saviour of civilization. Communists are bad psychologists, and their governmental ideas are too inflexible to be acceptable to people so deeply intelligent as the Danes and Norwegians, and too neglectful of the niceties of living to be acceptable to the French or the Low Countries.

C & B

The new order in Europe, thinks Mr. Moen, will be a compromise between the better elements of capitalism and socialism; this sounds like a strange beast, a kind of Royal Nonesuch, and it is hard to find a name for it. Its chief features seem to be a rigorous governmental control of trade and industry, with an assurance of economic security for everyone. That is the European cry now—Security. They want it more than anything else, and if they have to sacrifice a certain amount of political freedom to get it, they will do so. It looks as though political freedom were too rich a dish for all the peoples of Europe to digest.

C & B

The economic system most favored for the future appears to be Socialism. But not a National Socialism; there is a feeling that Nationalism is dead. To the historian this is intensely interesting. Nationalism arose with the decline of Catholicism as a world faith, when men began to put the state of being a Frenchman or an Englishman ahead of being a faithful son of the church. Readers of Bernard Shaw's great play "Saint Joan" will remember that Shaw puts a remarkable speech about the rise of Nationalism into the mouth of Peter Cauchon, the Bishop of Beauvais. He says: "....As a priest I have gained a knowledge of the minds of the common people; and there you will find....a most dangerous idea. I can express it only by such phrases as France for the French, England for the English, Italy for the Italians, Spain for the Spanish, and so forth. It is sometimes so narrow and bitter in country folk that it surprises me that this country girl can rise above the ideas of her village for its villagers. But she can. She does. When she threatens to drive the English from the soil of France she is undoubtedly thinking of the whole extent of country in which French is spoken. To her the French-speaking people are what the Holy Scriptures describe as a nation. Call this side of her heresy Nationalism if you will: I can find you no better name for it. I can only tell you that it is essentially anti-Catholic and anti-Christian; for the Catholic Church knows only one realm, and that is the realm of Christ's kingdom. Divide that kingdom into nations, and you dethrone Christ. Dethrone Christ, and who will stand between our throats and the sword? The whole world will perish in a welter of war."

C & B

THUS Mr. Shaw describes the rise of Nationalism in the fifteenth century. We have had almost five hundred years of it, we have had the welter of war, and we have had an attempt at a League of Nations. Now, according to Mr. Moen, the embittered peoples of Europe who are suffering the impositions of a nationalistic conqueror are sick to death of nationalism, and hope to see the last of it when this war is over. If, then, nationalism has run its course, what will be the banner under which the new internationalism will appear? Will it be the United States of Europe? Many people hope so. A group of British political thinkers, of whom Lancelot Hogben is probably the best known in this country, have already an elaborate scheme for such an organization. Its form, in brief, is that of a combine of European nations with cultural autonomy but with a central government to maintain order in the wider sense, and to put in effect a planned economy. It is through this means that the Europeans of the occupied countries hope to get the security which is the desire of their hearts.

C & B

We are somewhat surprised to find that the peoples of the Low Countries and of France were by no means so anti-German at the time of the invasion as we hoped they were; they were houses divided against themselves. Even after the occupation there was considerable sympathy for the German cause and resentment against England for the weak and foolish policies which she pursued during the past twenty years. But now, according to Mr. Moen, that is all changed. Bitter hatred for Germany is the spirit of the occupied zones, and bitter disillusionment for those who expected great things from National Socialism. They see an Allied victory as their only hope of a better lot in the future, but they think that Britain can only win if she has the material aid of the United States. The news that the Lease-Lend Bill has finally been approved will be greeted with rapture and relief in occupied Europe and will do much to strengthen the morale of the subject peoples. Like President Wilson, Mr. Roosevelt will be the idol of Europe, but this time Europe will not be disillusioned.

FLYING A BIT

"All right, if you really want Willy I'll jerk three times and let him know you're looking for him."

• Saw Heinkel Destroyed

A RESIDENT of Peterborough has received from relatives in England the following story of the destruction of a German Heinkel off Southend:

Roof-spotters at Southend saw the end of a Heinkel 111 on Monday afternoon, when a Spitfire pilot caught it with three short bursts from his cannon-equipped 'plane and the raider, with pieces falling away, plunged into the sea east of the Pier-Head. The German 'plane crossed Essex on its own and was first sighted by the Spitfire pilot to the north-east of the town. The pilot dropped his bombs in a creek in an effort to dodge into some dark clouds. He was unsuccessful, and watchers saw him fly across the town towards the Estuary with the Spitfire closing in.

"There were three very short bursts from the Spitfire's guns," one watcher said. "The raider apparently replied, for I saw a red flash from the tail. Then both machines disappeared into a small cloud and the German emerged in a downward dive into the sea."

Eye-witnesses state that the raider came down east of the Pier in a sheet of flames. It appears that the bomber was so badly damaged by the Spitfire armed with cannon that the flying pieces of wreckage obscured the view of the fighter pilot, who had to dive clear of the debris.

"It was like having a dustbin emptied into your face," was how the pilot, a 21-year-old flying officer, described the experience, according to the Air Ministry News Service.

The raider was flying at 3,000 feet when it was seen by the Spitfire pilot 1,000 feet below.

"I climbed, crept up to within 50 yards of the bomber, and then opened fire," he said. "The result was amazing. I had not given him more than a two-second burst when pieces of the bomber blew off life chips from a log, and so blinded me that I had to stop firing and dodge out of the way. When I could see again, the bomber was on its way down and two of the crew had baled out. I had a good look at it as it was going down, and the fuselage had some terrific holes in it."

The raider's crash into the sea was confirmed by the leader of another section of Spitfires who was near, and he also saw two of the German crew bale out and come down in the water.

In the excitement of the combat the Spitfire pilot left his radio transmitter in the "on" position, and listeners at his base could plainly hear such shouted exclamations as "I've got him. I've got him," followed by a pause, and then, "Hell's bells—he's gone all to pieces."

• War Comes First With Him

TO TALK to Mr. Roosevelt during the critical days while debate on his war powers and policies drags on in the Senate and he is obviously impatient for action is to be struck by the new gravity under the old cheerfulness. His desk is piled high with war inventories. In long night sessions with Secretaries Stimson, Knox, Hull and Morgenthau — his "war cabinet"—he has worked out a schedule of priorities for delivering weapons to Britain and keeping them at home and he chafes to go ahead.

He looks fitter and less worried than he did last summer. His manner is as easy and his strong nerves as steady as ever, but he is tenser, more preoccupied, less assured. Quick as usual with his answers, he frowns on the "if" questions he used to enjoy. "We can't look ahead that far," he chides the interviewer who asks about the future.

The conditions in which Mr. Roosevelt functions have changed so drastically, in fact, that he might be at the beginning of his first term instead of his third. He has to operate in another world, wrestle with a wholly new set of problems. The job of the Chief Executive today is so different from the job he took over eight years ago, or four years ago, that the experience gained in dealing with domestic crises applies only indirectly to the task of steering the ship of state through the storm of world war and world revolution.

This is why the third-termer is not quite the same man as the first-termer or the second-termer. Franklin Roosevelt has lived longer in the White House than any other President. From the day he established himself in the historic, impersonal rooms he uses most—the office, the oval study, the spacious upper hall that serves as the family living room—he has made them his own. They express his tastes, his hobbies, his personality; they have been somehow molded into a frame and setting for a man who enjoys living there, enjoys being President, enjoys collecting things, enjoys life, people, words, enjoys above all the largest and the smallest politicial manoeuvres.

Mrs. Roosevelt has made the White House cheerful, comfortable and vastly hospitable—a kind of all-American social centre—but it remains the President's House, more impressed by the present occupant than he has been impressed by it. No man has ever been so little deflected or worn down by the Presidency, physically, mentally, or temperamentally, in basic ideas. And in fundamental characteristics, Mr. Roosevelt changes astonishingly little as the years go by. His divergences from the main track are tactical; invariably he returns to the line leading toward his original objective.—New York Times.

To The Editor

RE UNEMPLOYMENT

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—I have read all the letters published to date in your column regarding unemployment, but the views of the man, (if you can call him such) calling himself "One of the Many," surely takes the cake. In times such as we are going through at present, there is absolutely no reason for any able bodied man to be unemployed; that is if he is not afraid to work.

What gives this person the right to insinuate that farmers' sons and daughters haven't a just right to work in our industrial city of Peterborough?

Who toils from before sunrise until long after sunset to help keep you with a comfortable feeling under your belt?

How many of your squawkers and lamp-post-leaners have enough of what it takes to get out on the farm and do a real day's work? If you did, you would undoubtedly have the audacity to expect factory wages and not count good board as anything, and be forever listening for a whistle to blow, and grumble continually if you were asked to exert yourself one little bit extra.

Remember, Providence only helps those who help themselves and when you help others you help yourself. Too bad "One of the Many" didn't live in Germany, then you would have plenty to do, and nothing to say either.

Look around you, count your blessings and be thankful you are free to look and choose your work, and that Hitler isn't here to put you at work in a good rich barnyard, where you might get manure on your boots.

'FARMER,' AND PROUD OF IT.

But Naaman was wroth, and went away, and said, Behold, I thought, he will surely come out to me, and stand, and call on the name of the Lord his God, and strike his hand over the place, and recover the leper. Are not Abana and Pharpar, rivers of Damascus, better than all the waters of Israel? may I not wash in them, and be clean? so he turned and went away in a rage.

And his servants came near, and spake unto him, and said, My father, if the prophet had bid thee do some great thing, wouldest thou not have done it? how much rather then, when he saith to thee, Wash, and be clean? Then went he down and dipped himself seven times in Jordan, according to the saying of the man God: and his flesh came again like unto the flesh of a little child, and he was clean.—II Kings v: 9-14.

Norwood Bingo Proves Jolly I.O.D.E. Evening

NORWOD, Mar. 15 — (ENS). — Another successful bingo night sponsored by the 40th Northumberland Chapter I.O.D.E. was held in Norwood Town Hall on Tuesday evening and was well attended, despite unfavorable weather conditions. A large number of useful prizes, donated by the members were distributed. The proceeds will be applied to the Chapter's war work program. During the evening the members of the Willing Workers Group sold candy.

The regular meeting of the United Church W.M.S. was held on Thursday afternoon in the Sunday School Room. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Hugh Robb conducted the business. The temperance reading was given by Mrs. William Cuthbertson.

During the business discussion it was decided to make a quilt for the mission bale at the home of Mrs. Tucker and a tea will be held.

Miss Maysie Buck, convener of the group, took charge of the program. Bible readings were given by Mrs. J. G. Keefer and Miss Edith Burgess. Mrs. Fred Ogilvie, a guest of her sister, Mrs. John Marks, brought greetings form her own branch of the W.M.S. in Vancouver, B.C. Mrs. Rork Ferguson gave a piano instrumental, and Mrs. Gerald Baker gave the first part of the study book on Dr. Macey of Indore, India. Mrs. M. I. Robinson spoke on Miss A. J. Archibald, the first woman missionary to go to Trinidad.

Norwood Girl Honored.

On Friday evening at the A.M.S. Formal, the president of Queen's University, presented Miss Lorna Breckon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Breckon of Norwood, with the Tri-color Trophy. This award is given for the most valued service to the college in activities other than sports.

The same day Miss Breckon was elected president of the Levana Society for 1941. This is the highest position obtainable by any girl in attendance at Queen's University. Miss Breckon is a graduate of Norwood High School, of which her father is principal.

The regular meeting of the executive of the Norwood branch of the Canadian Red Cross was held at the home of Mrs. Claude Bongard, on Thursday evening. A committee was formed under the leadership of Mrs. Henry Peace to take charge of the making of clothes for refugees. It was decided not to undertake a further quota until the present one for fifty pairs of pyjamas should be completed. It was also decided to have complete information sent to the branch regarding the Home Nursing Course.

Mrs. R. K. Tedford, who was delegate for this branch at the annual meeting held in Toronto on February 28, presented her report of the proceedings. The representatives from the unit who were at the meeting presented their reports of their work for the past month. The reports were as follows:

Elgin group, 8 quilts; Mrs. Webster's group, 8 quilts, 6 pairs mittens, and 2 pairs gloves; C.W.L. group, 3 women's blouses; Women's Institute, 2 quilts.

Since January 23 the following list of refugee clothing has been forwarded to headquarters: 1 woman's jacket, 6 girls' skirts, 2 women's blouses, 3 girls' pullovers, 9 pairs girls' pyjamas, 10 pairs women's slacks, 1 pair boy's pyjamas, 1 boy's pullover, 21 quilts, and 4 complete infants' layettes.

Mrs. Godin opened her home for the March meeting of St. Andrew's Young Women's Auxiliary. The program in charge of Mrs. Stan McMillen followed the service of worship for youth as outlined for the World's Day of Prayer. This consisted of responsive readings, the singing of three hymns and readings by Mrs. Percy Elliott, Mrs. Kenneth Gavanaugh, Mrs. J. Rogers, and Mrs. William Gollcher. The Scripture in two parts was read by Misses Jean Ford and Paulin Godin. An interesting part of the program was an inspiring address on "The Kingdom of God" given by Miss K. Tincombe, B.A. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Godin and a social half-hour spent.

Radionics

The most priceless thing on earth is good health. Are you endangering your health by not paying sufficient attention to the danger signals that nature is giving you?

Headaches, sore throat, bronchial cough, pain over sinus, constipation, kidney and liver conditions, pain over appendix area and urinary bladder. These are all warning signals, if you will heed them.

RADIONIC EXAMINATION will determine the cause of any of these symptoms. If you have infection of the sinus, teeth, tonsils, kidneys, appendix, bowel, etc., the Radioclast will find it and trace it to the part affected. Don't neglect your health by not knowing what the cause is.

Drafted For Love

By RUTH AYERS

YESTERDAY: April tries to avoid questioning Ann about Kent, but realizes that her sister is nursing some suspicions. The surgeons have operated, but will not know for some time whether Kent will see again. As April remains at home, her numerous boy friends gradually desert her. Only Hal Parks is faithful. When he comes at last to see her, April is grateful for the haven of his arms.

✧ ✧ ✧

KENT REGAINS HIS SIGHT

CHAPTER XVII

HAL proposed that night.

After he'd told April the news in the town and answered her questions in regard to work at the plant, he eyed her quizzically.

"You've been through a war yourself, April," he said.

"H'm—not far wrong, Hal."

"I've missed you. Been leading a hermit's life."

"You shouldn't have done that, Hal."

"Ah, but I wanted to. You've spoiled me for other girls. I'm going to brood and sulk until you can do the town with me again. I'm terribly fond of you, April. Maybe you've guessed."

She wanted to stop him, to tell him he mustn't tie himself up to her when she wasn't in love with him. Perhaps she would be some day. Perhaps, when all memory of Kent was gone and she was sure he had his eyes back and was happy with Ann, she could think of Hal. Not yet.

Hal picked up her left hand, appraised the ring finger. "A diamond would be beautiful there," he said. Then the bantering mood fell from him and he was all ardor, all lover. "April, darling, I mean it. I love you. Say you'll marry me."

She drew her hand away. "I'd like to say yes—" she began, then stopped abruptly.

"You mean, April, you're not in love with me?"

She nodded her head miserably and blinked back tears. "I like you an awful lot, Hal, but it's not—it's not love."

"Is there someone else?" Hal spoke quietly.

Someone else. Someone with a crisp, russet wave in his hair, whose eyes had been shadowed behind dark glasses. Someone who was shy and serious and yet with great courage? But Kent Carter wasn't hers. He belonged to Ann.

"No, there isn't anyone else," she choked. "It's just that I can't be sure yet."

Hal stood up, outwardly suave again but with that endearing way of understanding her. "I'd rather wait for you and lose you than have any other girl," he said.

✧ ✧ ✧

SO they left it like that. When Hal had gone, April thought, "Perhaps I could learn to love him. I'll try, I really will. But not until I know for sure that Kent Carter is out of the darkness."

Any day now, Kent's letter would be coming to tell the results of the operation.

"I'll know the day by just seeing Ann's face," April told herself.

Nip took up the vigil by her bed. Ann came and went on visits to her room. If she'd been hurt, she had apparently tried to forget it. And each day, she seemed to bloom more.

"You look positively radiant," April complimented her.

"Thanks," Ann smiled in her quiet way. "Coming from you, April, that means a lot."

"Nonsense," April said. "You've always had good looks all your own, but you've never done enough about it. Take me and my vanity table. Ever see so many boxes and bottles, lipsticks and lotions? I've worked hard at the glamor stuff and you've done better just by being yourself."

April was knitting and gave a jab to the needles. This was a pair of mittens for the Red Cross and she'd missed a stitch or maybe added one, so the smooth effect was spoiled.

"It seems funny," Ann said, taking the needles in her capable hands, "to see you fussing over anything like this."

"It's my better nature coming to the front," April grinned. Then, because she could do it with a certain nonchalence when her eyes were down, busy with the stitches, she said, "By the way, Ann, when's the good word coming from Kent?"

She might have imagined it, but it seemed as if Ann's mouth tightened and her eyes weren't unlike the needles, bright, jabbing.

"I'll know soon," Ann said.

And it was that very afternoon.

✧ ✧ ✧

APRIL didn't have to see her sister's face to learn the news. There was a surer way of knowing than that, a giveaway that was infallible.

Ann, in the downstairs hall, burst into song. It was the first time she had sung since her arrival home from New York.

April sat motionless in her chair by the window, her head bowed, her lips moving as if in prayer. "Thank God," she kept murmuring, "Thank you, dear God."

Afterwards, the Burnett house that had been filled with a nameless unrest under its quietness soared into an aria of its own.

"The operation was a success," Ann told April. "Kent's coming home in a few days for an indefinite leave. He insists he'll go back to camp—but I think he'll be home for good."

"You mean—his eyes are all right again. He can see?"

"Yes, the bandages are off. He's fine. He wrote this letter himself."

"I'm so glad for him—and for you, Ann," April said, but Ann scarcely heard her.

Mother began to work more furiously that very afternoon on the frilly white things she was making. "I have an idea there'll be a bride in the house soon," she said with a knowing nod.

✧ ✧ ✧

IT was this that brought April to her senses. She would have to face Kent. She would have to look at him and he could look back at her, this time with his eyes.

"I'll carry it through somehow," April thought, but deep in her, she knew she couldn't.

She began marching up and down her room, testing the injured ankle, measuring her strength.

On the day of Kent's return, she even tried the stairs and wandered disconsolately in the downstairs rooms. Dad grinned at her, over his work of helping Mother hang some new pictures. Mother smiled and said, "You're doing fine to make the trip down here all by yourself. Here, Dad, move the frame a little to the right. We want everything just right for Kent's homecoming.

Nip nosed at April's heels. He'd been a great comfort, attaching himself to her ever since the day he had gone on the ill-fated drive with Kent.

That had been her day and this was Ann's.

As Ann made ready to meet the train which would bring Kent home, Mother poked her head into April's room. "You'll be ready to say hello to Kent?" she called out.

April had on her terry robe, the white one that hugged her thin figure and made her look like some wraith of herself.

"No, I'm sort of tired," she said. "I think I'll be excused tonight."

Then she shut the door quietly, on her heart and on her happiness.

KINGSTON-HAMILTON ROUND STILL TIED—3rd GAME WEDNESDAY

Tompkins Gets Only Goal For Combines

KINGSTON, Ont., March 15.—(CP) — Kingston Combines and Hamilton are all even in their O.H.A. Senior B playoff with the teams last night playing their second tie game and deciding to meet in a sudden death third game on Kingston ice next Wednesday.

The score in the first game at Hamilton was 4-4 while the score at the Jock Harty Arena here last night was 1-1.

Overtime was not played with the two tired teams agreeing to settle the series in one more game.

Honey Tompkins of Peterborough who figured in all the Combines goals in Hamilton with two goals and two assists, collected the lone Kingston score last night when he scooped in a pass from George Hood and Doug White after 10 minutes of play in the first period.

Hamilton did not tie the score until the third period when Jerry Wetham banged in a pass from Art Day after a minute's play. Hamilton got the opening for the score when Clare Williamson was forced to vacate his defence position after breaking his stick. Before he returned to the play the goal was counted.

Tami Mauriello Knocks Out Steve Belloise

NEW YORK, March 15 (AP)—Perhaps the brightest prospect as a future champion the boxing business can show right now is Tami Mauriello, a boy who has been fighting professionally less than two years.

Tami still needs lots of experience and some "cuteness" to go with his punch, but he's a lad who can hit 'em so they stay hit and he has chances to go to the top in either of two confused divisions—middleweight and light heavy.

The punch and opportunity both were on display in Madison Square Garden last night before some 14,000 fans when Mauriello knocked out his neighborhood rival, Steve Belloise, in 2.58 of the first round of what was to have been a 10-round fight.

It took only about a half-dozen wallops to give Tami, a 1-2 under dog, the victory. That put him back on the road toward a possible shot at the middleweight title (New York version) held by Ken Overlin. But Mauriello is growing and by the time another Winter season comes he may be aiming at the 175-pound title abandoned by Billy Conn. He weighed 161 last night—eight more than Belloise—and had to take off several pounds in the last three or four days to get down to the limit agreed upon.

Jack Thirnbeck Swim Winner

Y.M.C.A. junior swimmers churned up the water of the George Street pool in another handicap swim. The event was a 50-yard medley relay and was won by Jack Thirnbeck.

Thirnbeck was the winner of last month's shield, and has added a few more points to his count towards winning it again.

Thirnbeck was hard pressed to win by Jack Gynane, who finished in second position. Andy Brown was the third man to place in the final.

Following the handicap the juniors were put through their paces by Coach Gord. Minty.

Complete results of the events are as follows:

1st heat—1 Clapham; 2 A. Brown.

2nd heat—1 D. Pinch; 2 R. Seabrooke.

3rd heat—1 J. Thirnbeck; 2 D. Plunkett.

4th heat—1 J. Shields; 2 J. Gynane.

Semi-Finals.

1st heat—1 A. Brown; 2 Clapham.

2nd heat—1 Thirnbeck; 2 J. Gynane.

Final.

1 J. Thirnbeck; 2 J. Gynane; 3 A. Brown.

Helge Bostrum To Coach Chicago Hawks

WINNIPEG, March 15 (CP)—Helge Bostrum, 44-year-old Winnipegger named coach of Chicago Black Hawks in the National League, played amateur and professional hockey in leading Western Canada cities, on the Pacific coast, and in the mid-west before joining the Chicago team in 1928.

It was recalled that Major McLaughlin, owner of Black Hawks, kept Bostrum on the sidelines most of the time during 1929-30 season until the husky 200-pound defenceman from Manitoba starred one night against New York Rangers. That earned him a regular berth on the lineup at the age of 32.

After four years as a defence mate of Teddy Graham, Bostrum was known as the "most stitched player in hockey history." He held that title only a few years because Ching Johnson, former New York Rangers veteran, set a new injury record.

Retired in 1934

Retiring from Black Hawks in November, 1934, Bostrum became manager of St. Paul Saints in a deal that brought Art Wiebe to Chicago. Ching Johnson succeeded Bostrum as pilot of Saints and the former Winnipeg star retired six years ago until today.

Bostrum played his first hockey before the first Great War with Transcona, a railroad town, in the Winnipeg and district senior loop. Later he was a member of Winnipeg Monarchs along with Dick Irvin, now coach of Montreal Canadiens.

In 1917-18 Bostrum was with Winnipeg Ypres who lost to Kitchener in the Allan Cup final. Ypres won the first game 4-3 but lost the second 4-1 and the round 6-4.

Joined Moose Jaw Team

On his return from overseas he joined Moose Jaw Maple Leafs in the Saskatchewan Senior League and helped Leafs win the provincial title in 1919-20. Five other Winnipeggers were on the team—Hal Winkler, Ab Newell, Stan Marples, Cece Brown and Spunk Sparrow, all turning professional in 1921 when the old Western Canada Professional League was formed.

Bostrum played the 1921-22 season as a professional with Edmonton Eskimos. From there he went to Seattle to perform in the Pacific Coast Professional League and Minneapolis Millers in the American Association League. He was with Winnipeg Maroons in that League when Chicago first acquired him.

The new Black Hawks coach also carved himself a name in Winnipeg sport circles as an amateur baseball and lacrosse player. He starred at third base as a ball player. But it was in hockey that he suffered the most hardship. Once with Black Hawks he had 145 stitches put in his ankle after a skate cut across it.

Hastings Club Is Outpointed

CAMPBELLFORD, March 15.—(ENS).— Campbellford Badminton Club defeated Hastings 10-2 in the last scheduled meet in the Kawartha-Trent League here on Friday when they outpointed the visitors to the tune of 172 to 80 points. Only in the ladies' doubles were the visitors able to field a strong enough combination to down the locals.

This town's club, which began its existence only two years ago has swept aside all teams in the league winning all scheduled contests with top honors in their Kawartha-Trent group.

Events were as follows, with Campbellford being named first:

Mixed Doubles.

Miss Parker and Mr. G. Ralph 16, vs. Miss Kerr and Mr. D. Wilson, 7.

Mrs. Fink and Mr. Ellis Darling 15, vs. Miss Phillips and Mr. E. Hahn 3.

SPORTS - DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

The Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational School basketball teams have to win the hard way if they want to stay in the running for the Cossa cage titles. Winners of their own section both Peterborough seniors and juniors were stacked up against winners of the Lakeshore section here last night in the first of home-and-home games and neither was able to pull off a win, although both put up a great battle. The juniors were beaten 20 to 16 by Cobourg and as a result will have to defeat Cobourg on their own floor next week by five points to take the round. The senior squad had the strong Bowmanville squad against them and held the visitors to a tie 24-24 after leading them at half time 14 to 6. That means the Peterborough team will have to win in Bowmanville to grab the group.

* * * * * *

With Quaker Aces sure of first place in the Ladies' Basketball Loop, there is a great battle for second place and the right to meet the Aces in the final series for the senior championship. Westclox moved into the second slot last night at the expense of Y Gym who were beaten by the Clockmakers 36 to 20 but that win does not guarantee Westclox second place. They are half a game ahead of the Y Gym outfit but the latter have a game with St. John's to play and a win over the church team would tie them with Westclox. In that case a playoff game would have to be arranged to decide which team would take second place and which would have to battle St. John's in a playoff series for the junior championship. Under the setup the first two teams play for the senior title and the third and fourth clubs clash for the junior honors. Aces are sure of a berth in the higher bracket and St. John's in the lower. Both have to wait to see who will be their opponents.

One young fellow who must be glad tomorrow is Sunday is Chum Gillespie, about the busiest 'teen age athlete in town these days. Wednesday night Gillespie who is captain and defence man of Peterborough's juvenile hockey team journeyed to Haliburton and helped polish off the northerners 14 to 1. Last night he played the whole game for Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational School senior basketball team against the Bowmanville Collegiate in a group playoff game. Tonight will find him playing forward for Peterborough's junior basketball team who are billed to meet Royal Military College, Kingston, in a sudden death junior O.A.B.A. game at Cobourg. Three games and two trips in three days should be about enough excitement for any young athlete.

Put The Clark In Clarkson

Peterborough's gift to Clarkson Tech hockey team, Al and Grant Clark very nearly put the Clark in Clarkson this winter. The two boys have had a great season with the Potsdam, N.Y. school team. Grant playing centre on the starting line led his team in scoring with a total of 40 points in the thirteen games played, scoring 19 goals and having 21 assists. In a recent game against the Cornwall Canadians, Grant led the attack with five goals and three assists and Al scored what the Potsdam sport writers say was the most sensational goal ever scored in the Clarkson Arena, stickhandling through the whole Cornwall team to register. The Clarkson team won 10 and lost three games this winter, their opposition including Yale, Princeton and Colgate.

* * * * * *

Incidentally in that Cornwall game Grant Clark figured in one of the most unique scoring feats on record. Clarkson were playing a man short in the third period and yet succeeded in scoring three goals in exactly seven seconds, Grant having a hand in two of them. Soon after their teammate was penalized one of the Clarkson forwards scored. Five seconds after Grant Clark made the play for a second goal and two seconds after the next faceoff he scored himself. The goals were registered at the 16.40, 16.45 and 16.47 marks and undoubtedly were three of the fastest counters ever made in hockey anywhere.

Says Ken Colling in the Belleville Ontario-Intelligencer: "With the rejuvenation of senior hockey in Kingston, the Limestone City residents are going "all out" in favor of Canada's winter pastime. At this week's meeting of the Kingston city council Alderman Art Casterton, former C.O.B.L. executive head, fostered a motion for the erection of two more open air rinks in Kingston for 1942, one to be erected on the Cricket Field (where softball is played) and the other at Kiwanis Square in the north end of the city. With two open air rinks now available in Kingston and two more next season the Limestone City is preparing for the influx of youngsters who desire to play that great health giving out-of-doors winter pastime—hockey. In Belleville the community at large apparently does not consider the welfare of its growing youth to so much as provide a single open air rink where growing Canadian boys can learn to play hockey and young girls can gain healthful recreation at skating. No doubt when the Kingston council looked over the roster of their senior club and found only Udall and Smith, two spares at that, were actually natives of Kingston, the Limestone 'city fathers' decided something should be done to encourage hockey among the youth of the community."

Playing Out The String

The few games remaining in the National Hockey League are just a case of playing out the string. The position of the clubs are all determined so as far as that is concerned the games that are left do not mean a thing. The scoring championship has been sewed up for weeks by Bill Cowley and that cannot be changed. But there is one important matter hinging on the remaining fixtures. That is the disposition of the Vezina Trophy, possession of which lies between Turk Broda of the Leafs, Johnny Mowers of Detroit and Frankie Brimsek of the Bruins. Mowers is two goals to the good but has to face Boston twice while Broda's two remaining games are against Chicago Black Hawks who have not been prolific scorers this season, especially against the Leafs.

* * * * * *

Picking all-star teams is often a matter of geography. There were two selections in yesterday's papers, one by a Boston sport writer and the other by a Toronto scribe. The Boston man picked Bruins for all but one position on the mythical All-Stars; the Toronto sports commentator chose Leafs for four out of the six positions and added Hap Day as coach for good measure. That's about the way most of the selectors do their job, but it probably measures out about even when it's all added up. One strange feature is that although the New York Rangers have more players in the first seven scorers than any of the clubs not a Ranger has the remotest chance of being chosen this season for the All-Stars.

Sporting Chili Con Carne: Harry Winters, has been detailed to referee the junior O.A.B.A. game at Cobourg tonight between the Peterborough junior and Royal Military College, Kingston....Campbellford made a better showing at Midland last night but were beaten 6 to 4 and on the round by 18 to 10....A Toronto sport writer asked the question. If the Leafs could not beat the Bruins once in the last six games how are they going to beat them four times in the next seven? His pass has likely been cancelled....Ralph Allen says that Red Horner just wasn't a great defenceman. We had always suspected that....Kingston and Hamilton Nationals are still tied after two hectic games. After holding the Hamilton team in the Ambitious City the Combines expected a win at home but found the opposition plenty tough....In the Ladies' Basketball Loop Quaker Aces and Y Cadets will meet Monday night, followed at 7.45 with a game between St. John's and Y Gym. The second game is very important as a win for the Y would tie them for second place with Westclox and the two teams would have to clash Wednesday to see which is to play Aces for the championship.

TOOLS FOR DUTCH INDIES

CANBERRA—(CP). — Australia has been asked to lift export regulations to permit export of machine tools urgently needed for defence work in the Dutch East Indies.

Westclox Grab Second Slot In Cage League

Westclox girls, playing fast, clever basketball, steam-rollered the Y Gym team in their Ladies City League game in the Y.W.C.A. gym last night, winning 36 to 20, and as a result the clock-makers are now in second place in the hectic race for playoff positions. The Y girls still have a chance to tie Westclox for second place, if they can beat St. John's girls in a game scheduled for early next week. In the other game of the double-header St. John's were beaten 14 to 10 by Quaker Cubs.

As a result the league standing is as follows:—

	W	L	TP
Quaker Aces	11	3	1
Westclox	10	5	0
Y. Gym	9	5	1
St. John's	7	7	1
Quaker Cubs	6	9	0
Y. Cadets	0	14	1

The Westclox team played one of its best games of the season to hand the Y girls a decisive defeat. They were breaking fast, passing well and their shooting was about the most accurate marksmanship they have displayed all year. The losers tried hard and never gave up battling but the Westclockers just kept rolling right along and there was nothing much that the Y team could do about it.

It was fairly close in the first half although thanks to some snappy sniping by Elinor Craig who tossed in four baskets before half-time, the winners were in front 10 to 4 at the rest period. In the high-scoring second half the Westclox attack sparked by B. Saunders, Agnes Flynn and Elinor Craig overpowered the Y girls 26 to 16, despite a valiant effort by Isobel Young who looped in three baskets and converted a free throw for the losers in the final session.

The winners had too much speed and power for the Y girls and that was about all there was to the contest.

Westclox (36)—B. Saunders 8, M. McFadden, J. Crowe 2, A. Flynn 10, D. Gibbs, H. Tighe, F. Bestard 2, E. Craig 14.

Y ym (20)—B. Flynn 3, I. Young 7, S. Zachs 5, R. Sullivan, D. Ackford 4, R. Ellis 1.

Referee L. Grose, Umpire J. Cooper.

The St. John's - Quaker Cubs game was a low-scoring affair and an unusual feature about it was that only five players on the two teams succeeded in getting on the score sheet. St. John's were without the services of their chief scorer Agnes Bowler, who was out of town last night, but gave the winners a lively argument before losing 11 to 10. The Cubs, who are out of the running for the playoffs, but who have beaten every team in the loop except the league-leading Quaker Aces, played good basketball and won the argument by outscoring the church team 9 to 4 in the first half. St. John's came back in the second session and outscored the winners 6 to 5 but could not pull the game out of the fire.

Jean Metcalfe was high scorer for Quaker Cubs with seven points and H. White contributed five. The other two Quaker Cubs points were registered on a basket by G. Allen. Edna Foster led the St. John's attack with three field baskets for six points while Eva Clark with four was the only other successful Saint sniper.

Quaker Cubs (14)—H. White 5. J. Metcalfe 7, G. Allen 2, B. Fenner, M. Youdell, D. Smith.

St. John's (10)—T. Law, U. Chivas, D. Groombridge. E. Harte-Maxwell, E. Foster 6, F. Gynane, E. Clark 4, E. Gynane.

Referee W. Thirnbeck, Umpire J. Cooper.

Merrick, Noted Racer, Is Dead

LEXINGTON, Ky., Mar. 15—(AP). — Merrick, at 38, the oldest thoroughbred, died on Thursday of old age.

The noted racer, foaled in 1903 at the late James B. Haggin's farm near Sacramento, Cal., was buried yesterday in a horse cemetery on the farm of owner J. Cal Milam.

"He was just worn out," said Milam. "He was just like an old, old man. Nverybody on the place feels as though we have lost one of the family."

The son of imported Golden Garter-Bianca, Merrick became ill yesterday after being turned out in the fields. He died a short while later.

Milam, grieved at the death of the noted thoroughbred that has belonged to him for thirty-five years, said: "No matter how long you have them, you're never ready to have them go."

In 205 races from 1905 to 1915, Merick won 61 times and was in the money 157 times. His earnings totalled a modest $26,765, but in those days purses were much smaller than to-day.

He did not begin winning until he became a four-year-old, when he came under Milam's careful handling. His greatest successes were scored during his fifth, sixth and seventh years. He continued campaigning until his eleventh year, when he was retired in the blue grass.

Merrick's best races were run at six and seven furlongs, because his legs never were strong. He won one stake, the Pontchartrain Selling Stakes at Windsor, Ont., in 1909, and still holds the record for seven furlongs at Latonia, Ky. The mark of 1:25 2-5 was made on October 15, 1909.

Merrick was owned by four different persons, before Milam obtained him in a trade. He lost him several times in claiming races, but always got him back.

Some Ball Camp Training Notes

LAKELAND, Fla., Mar. 15—(CP). —Rookie Pitcher Hal Manders, a cousin and admirer of Boo Feller, is honoring the Cleveland star by naming his baby after him. Manders, candidate for a job with Detroit Tigers, was advised yesterday his wife had borne a seven-pound son at Evansville, Ind.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Loser in two of three games in their first series with New York Yankees, the Cardinals nevertheless continue to experiment. Rookies Ira Hutchinson and Sam Nahem have been named to hurl the fourth game today.

Send Out Root.

LOS ANGELES.— The Cubs send 42-year-old Charley Root against the Athletics in their first exhibition game to-day. Manager Jimmy Wilson will use six rookies in the starting lineup.

HOLLYWOOD. — Three more White Sox have joined the flu brigade. Tom Stevens, Orval Grove, and Tom Turner are suffering, making eight abed in the camp. However, enough players are around to fulfill an exhibition date with Hollywood to-day.

AVALON, Calif. — Chicago Cubs heaved with relief when they left rain-swept Catalina Island yesterday. They open their 30-game exhibition schedule against Philadelphia Athletics at Los Angeles today.

Hard On Umpire.

TAMPA, Fla. — Eleven days ago Jewel Ens, Cincinnati coach, volunteered to umpire. He was hit in the left shoulder by a foul tip. Yesterday it was discovered Ens had a fracture, and he'll wear bandages for the next week or so.

ONTARIO, Calif. — A bus on which Pittsburg's Pirates were travelling collided with an automobile here yesterday, killing Anton Chavez, a motorist. All the players escaped injury.

Manager Frankie Frisch released Catcher Ed Fernandez to St. Paul.

SARASOTA, Fla. — Batting, rather than pitching, has been the Red Sox weakness in their three Grapefruit League defeats to date. So yesterday Manager Joe Cronin sent his heaviest artillerymen through a long batting drill.

Giants Play Dodgers.

MIAMI. — With Miami overrun with New York and Brooklyn fans, a record crowd is certain for today's game between the Giants and Dodgers. Although Brooklyn left a detachment in Cuba to play a Cuban team, almost all the regulars will face the Terrymen.

TAMPA, Fla. — George Selkirk looked spry in his first game as the Yankees trimmed the Reds 5-0 yesterday. He banged out a couple mighty flies though he didn't get a hit.

Midland Ousts Campbellford

MIDLAND, March 15 (Special).—Midland Intermediates Friday night landed themselves in the O.H.A. Intermediate "A" finals by virtue of their 6-4 triumph over Campbellford here. Carrying off the first game at Campbellford last Monday night, 12-6, the locals had easy going in the goals-to-count series, winding up on the long end of an 18-10 count.

Sydney Takes First Game Maritime Final

SYDNEY, N.S., Mar. 15—(CP).—The lightly regarded Halifax Navy team sprang a surprise last night by almost matching goals with Sydney's power-packed Millionaires, who scored a 9-8 win in the opening game of a home-and-home series for the Maritime hockey championship.

Trailing by five goals as the last period opened, the Stars rattled in just that number of scores before the game ended. Johnny Atchison's lone Sydney marker in this period gave Millionaires their edge.

The teams will play the final game at Halifax on Monday night.

The Sailors' late goal-getting splurge upset pre-game calculations that had favored Millionaires, last year's Maritime champions, to come out of the encounter with a lead of six or more goals. The expectations continued right up until the last session opened.

BOWMANVILLE HIGH SCHOOL HOLDS P.C.V.S. SENIORS TO A DRAW

Toronto Meets Chicago Twice During Weekend

By SCOTT YOUNG
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

A brief dispatch from Chicago stating that Helge Bostrom has been engaged by Chicago Black Hawks as coach and assistant to Manager Paul Thompson lends some interest to a news-barren hockey week-end, for Helge played defence back in the days when an approved method of confusing an onrushing forward was to lay a charge of tobacco juice across his bows.

Helge's most recent induction to the gentlemanly atmosphere of the National Hockey League brings to mind some of his earlier history as related by that hardest-fisted of hockey historians, Bobby Benson. Benson's hockey career in the old Western Canada League and later in the American Association was linked closely with that of Bostrom and the tobacco-juice story is just one of the colorful stories of that hockey era.

Was It Habitual

In telling this story one day about a year ago, Benson did not say whether Bostrom's tobacco-check was habitual or just for emergencies. But he told of a game between Duluth and Minneapolis more than a decade ago in which Bostrom slowed the speedy Duluth forwards to a sodden walk with an accurate barrage of tobacco juice, until and since then a defensive weapon little known to sport.

His career in amateur hockey around Winnipeg, then through professional competition in every recognized professional league on the continent except the International-American, now the American league, is studded with such exploits. The good hockey players in those days didn't eat as well and comfortably as they do now. They worked longer hours at less pay, but if even 10 per cent of the stories are as startling as they sound, they enjoyed themselves.

Meet Leafs Twice

Chicago plays twice during the week-end, meeting Leafs tonight in Toronto, while New York Americans engage Canadiens at Montreal, Sunday, Boston travels to Detroit and Americans back to New York to meet Rangers, while Leafs go to Chicago. Bostrom won't be with Chicago tonight, and likely not tomorrow night, but he'll be on hand for the play-offs and if any man can give the uninspired and uninspiring Chicago club something to make them dangerous in the Stanley Cup play-offs, Bostrom is that man.

Maybe this breath from the rollicking past is just what the jaded Hawks need of course, if other means fail, Helge can always send out for a plug of tobacco.

Cobourg Team Defeats Juniors 20 to 16

One tie was the best Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational School cage team could get Friday night in two group playoff games with Lakeshore clubs played in the Collegiate gym. here.

P.C.V.S. Seniors obtained the draw, battling Bowmanville High School to a 24-24 tie. Coach H. A. Craig's Juniors were beaten 20 to 16 by Cobourg Collegiate and thus will have to play the second game in Cobourg with a handicap of four points.

Both games were good exhibitions and it was an interesting card all the way.

The Garnet and Gray Seniors had a lead of 14 to 6 at half time in their clash with the fast Bowmanville quintette, but blew the margin in the second half, when the Rubbertown team came from behind to take the lead, lost it again, once more whent ahead and finally saw their edge vanish when Jim Ferguson looped in a long shot for P.C.V.S. in the last seconds of play.

Many Opportunities Lost

The Peterborough team failed to win largely because they did not cash in on their scoring opportunities as effectively as did the winners. They had a big share of the play even while they were being outscored in the second half but they had little luck in their marksmanship. Bowmanville on the other hand had fewer chances to score, but made better use of them especially Slemon, who tossed in five baskets and two free throws in the second half to spark the visitors' offensive.

Although Bowmanville set up a small lead early in the first half Coach Bamforth's team soon rallied and carried the battle to the invaders for the balance of the period, scoring ten points in a row to lead 14 to 6 at the rest period. In the second session, however, the visitors' attack developed more punch and their shooting improved while P.C.V.S. had little luck under the basket. The result was that the Bowmanville team gradually whittled off the lead and at last flashed in front. The lead seesawed several times before the final whistle and Bowmanville were in front 24 to 22 until Ferguson's tie-making shot just before the game ended.

For Bowmanville, Slemon's effective shooting and Brown's speed stood out, while for the losers the starting five all turned in good cards, with Ferguson especially prominent. From the guard position he scored seven points to lead his team's attack. Gillespie was the second highest scorer with six points to his credit. Taylor, Hall and Moore all battled valiantly. The teams:

Bowmanville (24).—McIlveen 3, Casbourn, Brown 6, Slemon 12, Wheeler 3 Allin Tamblyn, Underhill, Mitchell.

Peterborough (24). — Taylor 3, Ferguson 7, Gillespie 6, Hall 4, Moore 4, Kay, Gardner, Richardson, Saunders.

Referee.—Dr. Worton, Peterborough; umpire, D. Jackson, Bowmanville.

Junior Game

In the Junior battle, Cobourg showed a smart passing attack and an effective zone defence that bothered the Collegiate youngsters. It was even going in the early part of the first period, but toward the end of the session the Cobourg attack started to function and they ran in three baskets in a row to lead 12 to 7 at the half. It was close checking and slow scoring for the first part of the second half and Cobourg increased their lead by registering two free throws and a basket to go in front 16 to 7. Then the Peterborough kids started to come and in a figthing rally they pulled up to a point of the leaders at 16 to 15. However, the visitors failed to crack under this drive and finally had enough in reserve to score two more baskets to win the battle.

Maize, Murie and Burge led the Cobourg attack, while Gardner and Newton were the best for the losers, Gardner coming through with eight points.

Cobourg (20).—Rawlings, Maize 6, Dawe, Murie 5, Corbett, Burge 5, Bevan 4, Hutton.

Peterborough (16).—Richardson 3, Saunders, Gardner 8, Newton 4, Routley, Lillico, McTavish, Dinsdale.

Referee—Al Clarke.

Theatre Highlights In Manhattan

By LEON EDEL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

NEW YORK, March 15—(CP).—The irresistible combination of one of the first ladies of the American stage playing in a sparkling Shavian drama with Canada's most distinguished actor gave Broadway a brilliant opening night this week.

The occasion was Katharine Cornell's production of Bernard Shaw's "The Doctor's Dilemma," with Reymond Massey in the role of the doctor in the dilemma, and five noted British actors as the other doctors mercilessly lampooned by Mr. Shaw.

They make a rather formidable medical addition to a Broadway that already has a play about one doctor in "The Talley Method." and a play about psycho-analysis in the Gertrude Lawrence hit, "Lady in The Dark."

Framed in this setting of six serious frock-coated medicos of the Edwardian era, Miss Cornell, in colorful gowns and overwhelming hats of the "Gibson Girl" type, is like some luxurious exotic flower set amid gloomy surroundings. It is essentially a man's play; but Miss Cornell, as Jennifer Dubedat, in the one important female role, illuminates it with her usual grace and intelligence, her dignity and magnificent presence. What her voice lacks in emotional texture, she make up by the constant warmth of her personality imparts to the Shavian situations.

Massey in Top Form

Mr. Massey, as Sir Colenso Ridgeon, the doctor who must choose between curing a fellow-doctor or the scoundrel husband of the woman he loves, is in top form. The Toronto-born actor plays Sir Colenso with unfailing insight into the psychology of Harley Street, and with genuine wit. In the final scene with Miss Cornell, he reveals a flair for comedy, an ability for pointing up the sharp Shavian dialogue, one would not have attributed to him. So frequently has he been cast in more sombre roles.

Clarence Derwent, Whitford Kane, Ralph Forbes, Cecil Humphreys and Colin Keith-Johnson are the Britons who fill the stage with their medical lore. Most of them are but Shavian caricatures, but Whitford Kane, with his customary humanity, scores as Sir Patrick Cullen in an admirable bit of natural acting, while Mr. Humphreys as Sir Ralph Bloomfield Bonington, makes the most of a clear-cut caricature.

Another Briton in the cast, Bramwell Fletcher, has the difficult part of the amiable scoundrel, Louis Dubedat, the artist whose laxity in money matters is only equalled by his cheek, but who is nevertheless worshipped by his wife, Jennifer. Mr. Fletcher's performance is brilliant at all times, plausible, deft, engaging.

The net result is an evening of acting without equal in the current season, a star-studded production of play admittedly not one of Mr. Shaw's best efforts, but still an amusing high comedy, when it emerges from his longish scenes of rambling philosophizing.

Guthrie McLintic has directed with his customary wisdom in stage matters. The settings by Donald Oenslager are attractive and there is notable an outdoor terrace scene, with a moonlit river windings is way along a valley, which frame one of the brightest moments in the play.

Noted Official Dies

Philly Pitcher Goes To Army

Hugh N. Mulcahy, of West Newton, Mass., star pitcher of the Philadelphia Phillies, shown receiving his physical checkup before he became the first major league baseball player to be drafted into Uncle Sam's army. Mulcahy expressed no regrets at the interruption of his diamond career and was pleased at coming through the examination with flying colors.
